Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Rising and descending air it is well known that rains which fall abundantly are brought about by rising air which cools by expansion. On the other hand, descending air is compressed and is warmed for the same reason that a bicycle pump is warmed when it is compressing air. When air is warmed, its capacity for moisture is increased, or in other words, it is a drying agent. Lands where air descends suffer not only from scanty rainfall but also from the air drying the soil. When mountain ranges run north and south, dry regions are often found on their lee, as in regions east of the Rockies in both United States and Canada.

Times Editorial A Masterpiece

New York, June 1—(CP) — In an editorial entitled simply "Dunkirk," the New York Times said today:—

"So long as the English tongue survives, the name Dunkirk will be spoken with reverence. For in that harbor, in such a hell as never blazed on earth before, at the end of a lost battle, the rags and blemishes that have hidden the soul of democracy fell away. There, beaten but unconquered, in shining spindor, she faced the enemy.

"They sent away the wounded first. Then died so that others could escape. It was not so simple a thing as courage, which the Nazis had in plenty. It was not so simple a thing as discipline, which can be hammered into men by a drill sergeant. It was not the result of careful planning, for there could have been little of the free counsel, rising in all his glory out of mill, office, factory, mine, farm and ship, applying to war the lessons learned when he went down the shaft to bring out trapped comrades, when he hurled the lifeboat through the surf, when he endured poverty and hard work for his children's sake.

"This shining thing in the souls of free men Hitler cannot command, or attain, or conquer. He has crushed it, where he could, from their hearts.

"It is the great tradition of democracy. It is the future. It is victory."

FRANCE DECIDES NOT TO SIGN ITALIAN PACT

For Time Being Withholds Approval of Commercial and Economical Accords

Allies Finish Making Advances to Italy — Next Step Up to Mussolini

Paris, June 1—(AP)—France decided today to withhold approval of commercial and economic accords with Italy which were ready for signature and government spokesmen seemed resigned to the prospect of Italy's early entrance into the war.

It has been said that all preparations are complete for such an eventuality.

Responsible quarters refused to break fairly soon," said a French spokesman.

The decision on the trade accords, announced at the Foreign Office, reflected the tenseness that has arisen over Italy's warlike attitude.

It was made as the immediate aftermath of a rupture in economic and contraband control negotiations between Britain and Italy, authorized spokesmen said.

The accords involved are mostly renewals of previous contracts. Negotiations had been completed, it was said, and signatures would have been affixed in a matter of days.

Not Final Break

Despite increasing indications that Italy is shortly to enter the war, informed sources said today that they did not consider Rome's refusal to approve the draft of an agreement on Allied contraband control constituted a final break in the Anglo-Italian negotiations.

The whole matter of the abandoned negotiations is receiving consideration here. The Rome government has not yet made public the reasons why it is not prepared to proceed on the lines of the draft proposals.

The Italian move was given secondary play in the newspapers which devoted their biggest headlines to the victory of the Allies in the Flanders evacuation.

Diplomatic sources outside the British government, however, asserted that "the Allies have finished making advances to Italy. The next step is up to Mussolini".

Italy, it is understood, has not specified why the proposals for a British-Italian agreement have been rejected.

"They had been agreed upon by both parties", said informed Foreign Office sources.

His Majesty Confers Insignia of Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath

London, June 1 (CP)—The War Office announced today that General Viscount Gort, commander-in-chief of the British Expeditionary Force, returned to England.

A War Ministry statement said: "As a result of the good progress made in the evacuation of the British Expeditionary Force and the consequent reductions in the strength of the troops remaining in Northern France, General Lord Gort, on the order of His Majesty's government handed over the command of the remaining troops to a senior officer.

"General Lord Gort arrived in England this morning."

Simultaneously Spring Military Manoeuvres Reported Underway in Northern Italy

Rome, June 1—(AP)—Italy today called up 10,000 non-commissioned officers to supplement a force of 50,000 enlisted last fall.

Simultaneously spring military manoeuvres were reported under way in Northern Italy, with one army headquarters at Florence vicies near Florence.

Diplomatic dispatches shared the spotlight with the passage through Italy of a Danish military mission and reports by General Canovas, bound for Berlin.

Dispatches from Madrid told of growing insistance there that the British relinquish their hold on Gibraltar — a demand which has been made repeatedly by the Italian Press.

Diplomatic observers linked the Spanish mission with these demands and speculated on what role Generalissimo Francisco Fran-

Of Course the Airman Could Speak English

London, June 1 —(CP) —

The skipper of one boat told of his rescue of a Royal Air Force man on the way across the channel.

"I saw him in the water but I didn't know whether he was a Jerry, so I called to him and spoke English" He shouted back, 'Of course I can, you ——fool'".

"When we were ashore to look for R.E.F. men, the airman came to us.

"As we were passing a bomb crater I heard a whistling sound. I don't think I should have realized what it was. But the airman pulled me down into the crater. A second later a bomb went off right where we were.

"If I had not been in the crater, I should have been killed. Funny, isn't it, that the man whom I saved should have saved mine!"

General 'Tiger' Gort Faced Dangers With Humblest of His Men

A Southeast Coast Port in England, June 1 (CP)—Britons today acclaimed the biggest rescue in military history as it was estimated unofficially that between 75 and 90 per cent of the British Expeditionary Force had been pulled out of the Nazi-laid trap in Flanders.

Since the strength of the B.E.F. sent into Belgium at the outbreak of wide-open war in the west was placed at 175,000 men, this meant that 130,000 to 140,000 Tommies had been brought to the safety of English shores by a mighty armada of warships, merchantmen, fishing boats, yachts, barges and other craft of all sizes and description.

Though it was announced definite figures could not be released as yet, informed sources reported a tremendous increase in the numbers of homecoming troops within the last 24 hours.

When King Leopold III ordered the surrender of the Belgian army last Tuesday and thus laid open the Allied left flank, the B.E.F. appeared to be faced with the impossible of putting up the while flag or being annihilated.

There has been neither surrender nor annihilation. Covering the withdrawal of the British army Hitler sought to destroy British and French forces still fighting in a fierce rearguard action against the Nazis pushing in on the narrowing Dunkirk corridor.

Last Man to Go

Allied naval guns and the Allied Air Forces gave support to the withdrawal and embarkation, protecting under the additional cover of a low-lying fog the troops gathered the numerically superior German air force.

Grimy but grinning British Tommies, still armed with arms of battle, said their leader, General Lord Gort—"Tiger" Gort — was behind us. He was the rearguard battle being fought to save as many as possible of their pals and their French and Belgian armies still stranded around Dunkirk.

One officer said Gort faced the danger with the humblest of his men and cracked:

"If I know the Commander-in-Chief, he will be the last to go."

French Poilus fought side by side with the British to keep Dunkirk defences intact as parts of a huge army fighting its way from the Lille sector toward the coast—a movement which the Germans reported to have reached Dunkirk.

The B.E.F. was the spear high in praise of their men, many of them territorials, the Canadian militia, Canadian militia, who had their first baptism of fire in Flanders.

Surprising Few Casualties

They declared that mass bombing attacks have proved to have a stunning effect on troops but to cause surprisingly few casualties; that this generation of German soldiers is not the equal of their fathers who fought in the last war, and that the German blitzkrieg depends upon a heavy infiltration of units for a major share of its success.

The armada of fishing boats able to penetrate the shallow waters of the Belgian coast where warships could not go are playing a big part in the rescue of the B.E.F.

Hardy fishermen and merchant seamen in blue jerseys and high sea boots rounded to the call to "get the lads out." They sailed their little craft to the heavily-bombed shores and rescued thousands who otherwise would have been left behind.

A silent lot, they had little to say about their share in the exploit. But they praised the pluck of the Tommies.

One fisherman said:—

"When we got there the beach was as crowded as Blackpool (an English seaside resort) on a bank holiday. Just as we had taken our full load aboard—and a bit over—Jerry spotted us and started bombing.

Started Football Game

"An artilleryman told how thousands of soldiers had spent two days and nights in the open with no food or shelter as German planes bombed them continually. He said the men joked and played cards, and even started a football game to keep up their spirits.

An officer said that, when the R.A.F. bombardment was in full blast, "I spent hours lying in ditches, with my fists clenched and my fingers wedged in my ears, my face pressed in the mud."

Another artilleryman said:

"The Germans asked for a truce to bury dead after a 36-hour barrage had he'd up their advance. But they refused to 'unco' us to save them another seven hours of slaughter."

But if the Tommies were cheery, the lines of women and children at railway station platforms as the troop trains rolled in were strained and tense. Many of the women were in overalls, for they had been working in the Ypres sector up to the last minute.

There were part of some thousands of the French rear guard and included a shipload of negro colonial troops, who defied the threat of bombing annihilation and fought their way out to the channel.

Canada's Memorial at Vimy Blasted by Nazi Bombs

Attack by Foe Dive Bombers Deliberate Say British Tommies Who Witness Vandalism of Huns — Splinters of Memorial Picked by British Soldiers — Eye-Witness Declares He Saw Nazis Bomb British, French and Canadian Military Cemeteries Near Vimy Ridge

By EDWIN JOHNSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 1 (CP-Cable). Canada's memorial to her first Great War dead atop Vimy Ridge has been smashed to pieces in deliberate bombing of the area by Nazi planes, according to British Tommies returned from the hell of the fighting in Flanders.

One soldier, weary and battle-stained after the bitter rearguard action of the Allies, told this story a few hours after landing in England:

"I stood near the memorial and saw German dive bombers swoop down and release a load of bombs on the memorial," he said. "It was completely shattered. The attack was obviously deliberate."

After the plane disappeared, the soldier said, he and others walked to the site of the towering concrete shaft which dominated the plains stretching northeast toward the Belgian frontier and picked up splinters as souvenirs.

Another witness to the destruction of the memorial said the planes returned later and bombed British, French and Canadian military cemeteries in the vicinity of Vimy Ridge, scattering the tiny crosses over the graves and wrecking the graves.

Still other eye-witness correspondents in the battle area had seen the unabagged memorial before it was hit that those of the fighting was taking place south. of and parallel to Vimy Ridge. A few days later, however, the Germans announced the capture of the Vimy area.

The memorial was unveiled in 1936 by King Edward VIII, it was on Vimy Ridge on April 9, 1917, that 100,000 Canadian soldiers stormed to victory. In that week 11,297 officers and men were killed.

SCREEN EVACUATION

Hits Were Obtained on Enemy Troops, Transport Columns and Artillery

London, June 1 — (AP) — Destruction of German planes to 66 German warplanes against 19 British losses in extensive raids over Northern France was reported by the Air Ministry today.

Another toll said was 56 Nazi planes at a cost of 16 British and missing. Another 10 German planes were shot down about dawn today over Dunkirk, France, with one British plane lost.

Medium heavy British bombers attacked German troops, motorized columns and artillery in forays yesterday and last night in Flanders the Ministry reported.

It said naval aircraft also had sunk a German torpedo boat off the Belgian coast.

The communique said:

"Royal Air Force fighters continued to destroy enemy bombers and Allied troops from the northeast coast of France. Further reports show that during yesterday 56 enemy aircraft were destroyed or seriously damaged. Sixteen of our fighters are reported missing.

"At dawn this morning our fighter patrols over Dunkirk shot down 10 enemy fighters with a loss of one of our aircraft. A naval aircraft later bombed and sank an enemy transport off the Belgian coast.

"Bombing operations against the enemy in Flanders were continued yesterday evening and during the night by medium heavy bombers. Hits were obtained on enemy troops on the march, on motor transport columns and on heavy artillery. Dock gates and bridges were destroyed.

"All our bombers and reconnaissance aircraft were lost in these operations."

A later Air Ministry communique said:

"Three Nazi torpedo motorboats prowling off the Belgian coast in the hope of attacking British expeditionary Force transports were attacked by our aircraft this morning. One of them was sunk.

"Aircraft belonging to the fleet air arm have been in contact with the coastal command spotted motor launches and destroyers off the coast astern. They opened fire on an aircraft, which dropped a line of light bombs. A minute after the bursts the pilot saw that two of the enemy torpedo motorboats were dead and silent. There no sign of the third."

Armchair Complacency Thing of Past In Great Britain

(By D. E. Borrill Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 1 (CP Cable) Complacency no longer marks the average Englishman's attitude toward the war.

Until only a couple of weeks ago, the battlefields of Europe seemed far away, and the war distant, but since the start. of Hitler's surge to the sea thruout the Low Countries, the British have given a new conception of war preparedness and the seriousness of battle.

Now there is a changed attitude. Every one is "getting down to brass tacks" Everyone has become imbued by a new spirit of Britain. Both all this did not happen just through a sudden change of outlook. The transformation started with Prime Minister Churchill's fighting speech in parliament followed up the news reports of modern warfare. Now come daily and nightly press and radio warnings by government officials who talk straight to the public stern words of caution and warnings of what is in store for Britain. Now the scene of battle is at their baredoor.

Germans Attempt to Land Troops by Sea on Channel Coast Between Dunkirk and Boulogne but Were Repulsed With Heavy Losses

Paris, June 1 (AP). — French troops were reported today to have smashed their way across the lower Somme River and established a bridgehead which they held against repeated German counter-attacks.

The Nazi attacks were carried out in force by infantry, supported by tanks, artillery and aircraft, a military spokesman said.

The statement where the French succeeded in establishing the bridgehead was not disclosed. It was presumed it was in the Abbeville sector, where the Germans were said last night to have been dislodged from the south bank.

Bearing the brunt of the German assault along the Somme was a small bridgehead which the French established on the north side of the river.

London, June 1—(CP)— British and French alike praised the fighting qualities of the Belgian soldiers, many of whom refused to comply with the King's order to surrender. The Tommies expressed their contempt for the Belgian Monarch with the story that rapidly spread through England—

"What's the difference between Leopold and Judas?"

"Leopold didn't take the time to kiss us."

Mr. Andrews had stopped his automobile on William street to permit his own daughter to alight and proceed to school. The little girl was on the opposite side of the street and ran out from behind the parked car directly into the path of Mr. Andrew's automobile, which had just started away. Minor leg scratches were the only injuries sustained, Mr. Andrews assured Traffic Officer D. Ellis on his investigations. Mr. Andrews stopped and assisted the little girl who was more frightened than injured.

The only arrests necessary in Belleville yesterday came when P.C. Thomson apprehended two strangers on Bridge street. They were taken into custody on charges of intoxication and remanded until Monday.

TWO CONVICTED WITH VIOLATIONS OF REGULATIONS

Frank Lenez, Enemy Alien, Given One Month on Vagrancy Charge

HEAVY DOCKET

Trenton, June 1 (Special).—Two persons appeared in police court here this morning before F. Dale, K.C., here yesterday charged with violations of Defence of Canada Regulations and both were convicted.

Frank Lenez, native of Czechoslovakia and registered Canadian alien, was sentenced to one month in the common jail here after pleading guilty to a charge of vagrancy. His case was heard in the police court authorities for further investigation.

Lenez was arrested by Sergeant Detective Hyndman and Mrs. Hyndman on the morning of May 22 last, when he was found loitering on the premises of a Trenton paper mill property. Prior to this it is said he had been seen on the adjoining near one of the Trent alley Canal. He told the court that he had entered alien in Montreal and enroute to the Trenton district to secure employment.

"According to his record from Ottawa this man had no release papers. He have been interned as an alien, but released as alien No. 1763. He hasn't reported to the police since, an alien since early in May," revealed Crown Attorney Donnan as he moved for a severe punishment.

"One month in the common jail and during that time the Ottawa authorities can be notified of this man's actions," concluded His Worship.

Admitted Statement.

Dafoe Shaffron, 22-year-old Trenton laborer, who was born in Prince Edward County, was convicted of making statements that might lead to dissatisfaction to His Majesty, contrary to the Defence of Canada Regulations. He was remanded in custody until Tuesday for sentence.

It was charged that Dafoe said: "I hope the Germans will beat the Allies and teach them a lesson" and additional words of profanity. Dafoe contended he was intoxicated at the time and did not remember exactly what he said. He pleaded guilty, however, but the court made no comment.

When the name of Norman Tescroff, Toronto, was called in court, the accused man failed to answer to a charge of speeding. P.C. Taylor testified that Tescroff had been apprehended driving at the rate of 40 miles per hour on Dundas street on May 22 and had been timed at 60 seconds into court on enlargement. A fine of $7.00 and an additional $6.00 costs were imposed.

Several Trenton motorists were fined for various infractions of the town's traffic by-laws, written pleas of guilty being tendered in several cases by Chief Bain. One Trenton youth had his operator's licence cancelled for three months after admitting a charge of careless driving.

THREE ADMITTED TO HOSPITAL AFTER CAR ACCIDENT

Montreal Residents Injured When Car Sideswiped and Thrown Into Ditch

NOT CRITICAL

Three residents of Montreal are in the Belleville General Hospital today as the result of a motor car crash on Highway No. 2, which occurred shortly before 9 p.m. when an automobile driven by Pte. Kirk of the Trenton R.C.A.F., is alleged to have collided with a westbound Montreal-owned car, driven by Joseph Shifrotron, 4643 Park Ave., Montreal. Kirk escaped uninjured, while the Montreal car turned over in the ditch and all six occupants sustained at least minor injuries.

Those admitted to hospital last night were: Mrs. Sarah Shifrotron and Mrs. Gertrude Wertheman, all of Montreal. Mrs. Wertheman is suffering from severe spinal injuries and deep facial cuts, while the elder Mrs. Thileman sustained a dislocated shoulder and several scalp cuts. Mr. Thileman complained of internal and chest injuries and is being X-rayed today. Dr. G. S. Cronk, who attended the injured at the scene and at the hospital, today stated. The driver, J. Shaffron: Morton Wertheman, a passenger, and Mrs. J. Shaffron, also of Montreal, escaped with minor injuries.

Charges Pending

Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine, who investigated, was told that Almond Krug was proceeding easterly and was about to pass a car driven by R. Pringlehurst, Stirling, when he sideswiped the Tittleman car, which was proceeding in the opposite direction, the force of the impact crashing the Montreal car into the north ditch, where it turned over causing injuries to the six occupants. Krug was driving a borrowed automobile and the highway was slippery owing to the night's heavy rain. Constable Ervine added that charges were pending against Krug.

Additional Accident

The crash attracted a large number of onlookers and while stopped at the scene, Mrs. A. O. Meagher, Octavia Street, sustained minor injuries and suffered shock when the car she was sitting in was struck by another near the scene of the first crash. Mr. Meagher had parked his car along the highway to assist in the rendering of first aid to the injured Montreal people.

A second automobile, driven by Russell Howden, Toronto, then parked behind Mr. Meagher's car before a large Hamilton transport driven by C. R. Brown, Hamilton, collided with the rear of Mr. Howden's car. The force of the impact drove Howden's car into the rear of the Meagher vehicle.

The sudden jolt resulted in Mrs. Meagher suffering from head and neck injuries and general shock.

Some envious fellow-man analyzed the all-time high vote for Mayor Carl Zeigler of Milwaukee and found the increase in his votes from seven to 15 times greater than that from men.

ST. PIERRE HUGHES DIES IN OTTAWA

Soldier and Penologist and Well Known in District—Commanded 21st Battalion

Ottawa, June 1.—(CP)—Brigadier-General William St. Pierre Hughes, soldier and penologist and brother of the late Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Defence in the Sir Robert Borden Government of the Great War, died early today. The 78-year-old penologist had been in failing health since 1932 when he gave up his post of administering Canada's several penal institutions.

General Hughes was born into a military family. He joined the famous Winnipeg Rifle unit, known as the "Little Black Devils" before the turn of the century and later served during the First Great War with distinction, being awarded the Distinguished Service Order and was mentioned twice in despatches.

General Hughes, a native of Durham County, Ont., made penology his life work. He began his career as warden's secretary and clerk of assessments in Kingston Penitentiary in 1893. He became Inspector of Penitentiaries in 1913 after filling a number of posts in this work.

While new as serving overseas, the penitentiaries branch was reorganized in 1919 and he was the post of superintendent, created. General Hughes was appointed to his position on his return to Canada in 1919. Before his retirement 22 years later, he did much to modernize Canadian prisons.

When the First Great War broke out, General Hughes mobilized the 21st Battalion in Kingston and commanded this unit until 1916 when he was appointed to command the 10th Canadian Infantry Brigade which he took to France and eventually until 1917. He then returned to England to command the Canadian Base at Crowboro until it was taken over by the Imperial Army.

General Hughes is survived by one son, Major L. M. Hughes of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery at Kingston.

The Stars Say

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a most propitious one for all affairs of church and state, with Saturn a sextarity and Mercury a trine, a very friendly mood and ready to support and give the necessary positions. There may be promotion, honors and public preferment. In connection with groups see that the objectives are clear and the responsibilities, corporations and private individuals to be given to the government voluntarily as a contribution to Canada's war effort.

Meanwhile Defence Minister Rogers confirmed that he had sent a message to Sir Harry Lauder, Minstrel singer of Kilchenry, Ont., endorsing a "beg-a-loan" drive. The minister said a light tank would be sent to Kilchenry from the armored fighting vehicles school at Camp Borden for display purposes if required.

Controller Hanson Handicaps and J. D. McNish arrived from Toronto to confer with Munitions Minister Howe and other officials on Toronto's plan for a $1,000,000 civic subscription fund to purchase warplanes, aircraft, tanks and other war materials.

The Controllers said Mr. Rogers had approved the Toronto plan.

"It took me just eight minutes to explain our plan and just two minutes for Mr. Rogers to say that it was alright with him," Controller McNish said.

Mr. Rogers recently furnished the national convention of the Imperial Order of Dodos with a tank to train at Saint John, N.B., with price estimates for two more tanks, one for aircraft and other material of war.

Most offers of material aid to the government are made by letter, Defence Mr. Ralston said. Frequently it was suggested the donation be used for a particular purpose.

Difficult to Earmark

"I believe that what the government has found in the past very difficult to earmark a particular sum of money for a particular piece of equipment," he said. "Such an arrangement would mean maintaining a special fund for the particular purpose.

"Therefore, it has been indicated to the donors, so far as I know of any offers having been made, that it would be possible if they would permit that money to be put into the Consolidated Revenue Fund and we have assured them that the Consolidated Revenue Fund will be devoted, among other things, to the purchase of equipment of that kind."

"I should like to add, however," the Finance Minister continued, "that if there are offers of special pieces of equipment for particular purposes, the government will be very glad to give consideration to them."

A government proposal to divert an additional 30,000 men annually from the St. Lawrence River for the Benedict Canal Power and Power Company absorbed most of the day, although consideration was also given a number of other measures, including several minor agricultural bills.

The House, after four hours debate, passed the measure and through committee stage and left it over for third reading. It gave first reading to a Bill respecting the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, to Manitoba, where it expires Last June 30.

HOUSE GETS ON WITH BUSINESS OF THE SESSION

Atmosphere in Parliament Completely Changed After Bitter Debate of Thursday

MANY BILLS PASSED

Ottawa, June 1.—(CP)—Business as usual—or maybe a bit faster—was the order of the day in the House of Commons yesterday, in contrast to the time-consuming political storms of the preceding day which left pass-bearing spectators stoney-faced.

The atmosphere was so completely changed that even when a Beauharnois Bill came up, opposition speakers made only the briefest reference to the Beauharnois scandals which shook the Liberal part a decade ago.

"I know the desire of the government is to expedite legislative programme," said Conservative leader R. B. Hanson, as C explaining the business-like attitude throughout House which contrasted to Thursday's storm as Ralston delivered a counter-attack after a Conservative plea for a change in government leadership.

"Now that we have got rid of some of the fat that has accumulated as a result of the election and the sporadic political warfare that has taken place recently, I say to the government that we on this side of the House are prepared to cooperate in putting through the program in an orderly and decent way."

At the same time he made clear the Conservatives intended to vote against their function as an opposition, to study each measure on its merits.

The Government welcomes donations of money and war materials, Finance Minister Ralston told the House.

Defence Minister Confirms Efforts.

T. L. Church (Con. Toronto Broadview) called attention to "the offering of various kinds of mechanized equipment by some responsible, corporations and private individuals to be given to the government voluntarily as a contribution to Canada's war effort."

Defence Minister Ralston confirmed that he had sent a message to Sir Harry Lauder, Minstrel singer of Kilchener, Ont., endorsing a "beg-a-loan" drive. The minister said a light tank would be sent to Kilchener from the armored fighting vehicles school at Camp Borden if required.

AT THE BELLE

All the charm and tuneful sparkle of the original hit musical comedy has been retained in RKO Radio's screen version of "Irene", which is now on the screen of the Belle Theatre to prove itself one of the season's most enjoyable offerings.

Anna Neagle, the English actress whom most American picture-goers know for her entrancing dramatic performances in "Nurse Edith Cavell" and "Victoria the Great", completely surprises with a scintillating and delightful portrayal of the happy-go-lucky Irish colleen. A former musical comedy star before she came to the screen, Miss Neagle is perfectly at home in the role and her gyrations, in such a carefree characterization is a proof of her unusual versatility.

Ray Milland also is brilliantly effective as the wealthy young man who gets Miss Neagle into her various troubles as she soars from her last job to become the toast of the city. He also is the one who marries her at the end after her disillusionment and her engagement to his rival, Alan Marshal, who likewise does an excellent job in his part.

Roland Young adds many laughs as the hard-working manager of a fashionable gown shop, and Billie Burke as Marshal's flinty mother-in-law and May Robson as Miss Neagle's spirited grandmother also contribute heavily to the film's excellence. Arthur Treacher in another of his delightful butler characterizations, Marsha Hunt, Doris Nolan, Isabel Jewell, Alan Mowbray and Stuart Robertson have the other important roles, and handle them well.

Herbert Wilcox, who produced and directed the offering, has done a splendid job in bringing out the picture and in his novelty features, especially the unique Technicolor sequence for "Alice Blue Gown" sung in the colored revue number. Altogether, "Irene" ranks way up on the entertainment scale. It's a hit all-the-way.

Excellent Junior Feature

Three excellent junior features precede the feature attraction including the popular Terrytoon, a new Mickey Mouse Cartoon, "Mickey's Trouble", and "Letter from Aldershot", a short entitled "Canada Carries on" series; revealing the thrilling pictorial record of Canadian Troops in England—their reception and experiences in the old land.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Too Many Husbands"

Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas in the uproarious comedy hit "Too Many Husbands" is still play'n at the McCarthy Theatre and for an evening laugh-loaded entertainment we urge you to see "Too Many Husbands".

"Over the Moon"

Alexander Korda's "Over the Moon" a technicolor comedy romance starring Merle Oberon, is the next attraction which opens at the McCarthy Theatre and advance notices indicate it rates as one of other top-notch screen production. Latest Pic Post reviews of the picture says, an all-star comedy "Quiet Please" and a Merrie Melody technicolor cartoon "Prest-o Change-o" then outstanding featurette presentations, precede the above showings daily of "Over the Moon."

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE HOUSE OF THE SEVEN GABLES"

That no Hollywood picture producer has ever attempted to film Nathaniel Hawthorne's immortal "The House of the Seven Gables", before the cameras until the present time is somewhat surprising, but that overnight has been changed. The picture is now completed and will be the feature attraction at the Capitol Theatre starting next week.

House is Copied

Jack Otterson, the studio's art director, was sent to Salem, Mass., to inspect, photograph and draw plans of "The House of the Seven Gables" of Hawthorne's dramatic masterpiece. It wasn't until sets were erected on the cameras that the studio announced that the picture was based on a book.

Joe May was assigned to the direction. Vera Lewis, Dickie Moore, Sanders, Margaret Lindsay, Vincent Price, Nan Grey and Dick Foran, leading players appear as Hepzibah; Sanders as Jaffrey Pyncheon and his brother, Clifford; Nan Grey as Phoebe and Dick Foran as Matthew Maule.

Big-Scale Production

Three of Otterson's sets were erected on the lot representing interiors of the ill-fated and forbidden house. The remainder of the action takes place. Otterson's plans and drawing resulted in the creation of replicas of the main entrance of the house, the upper and lower hallways, and in the construction of a duplicate of the mansion on the studio's back lot.

Only slight changes were necessary in Hawthorne's story. Burt Kelly and Jesse Lasky are producers of the picture declares. Hepzibah and Clifford, brother and sister in Hawthorne's original tale, will appear as distant cousins in love with each other. Jaffrey, Clifford's uncle in the book, will be seen as his uncle and grandfather. A prologue, covering details told in Hawthorne's novel, was written and was filmed to further enhance the action of the picture.

KILTED TROOPS LED CANADIANS AT FESTUBERT

Originals Made Heroic Fight in Famous Orchard Action 25 Years Ago in First Great War

By H. H. GORDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For the second time in 26 years Germany is making the northwest corner of Europe a battleground in her attempt to strike at Britain. Lightning thrusts by air and land again have brought war's horrors to the countryside where 25 years ago Allied forces fought successfully against great odds to stem the enemy drive to the channel ports.

Germany's blitzkrieg in the Low Countries has had the same objective as the operations of the spring of 1915. Then it was that Canadian troops followed up their heroic resistance in the Second Battle of Ypres by playing a big part in stubborn fighting at Festubert.

Thrust into the heat of conflict three weeks after losing half its complement at Ypres, the reinforced 1st Canadian Division participated in a series of attacks designed to aid the left of the Allies' spring offensive which had the Imperial Army in the field on continental country as its objective.

Their task was not spectacular but Tubert area were inconclusive. All resulted in severe losses and few gains. Sergeant-Major Frank Lawrence of "The Orchard," most noted of the Canadian battles in which the Canadians took part, on the night of May 15-16, 1915, from under withering machine-gun fire. But the overseas soldiers gained the position and succeeded in holding it.

Kilties In Lead

Three kilted battalions — the 15th and 16th Scottish and the 13th In support—led the Canadian advance against the "Orchard" defended by bardment. Wide ditches full of water impeded their progress. They plunged through, although suffering severely from shrapnel and rifle and machine gun fire, before trenches were cleared at the point of the bayonet.

This and other operations resulted in the capture of several hundred yards of trenches, but by May 25 Sir John French, the commander-in-chief, called a halt. The great French efforts in the douges area had failed to win any such much valuable ground, but viewed as a whole, the offensive failed to break the enemy's line or to prove the decisive strokes that the Allies hoped for.

Conditions at Festubert handicapped the operations. Outclassed in weight and frustrated by innacurate artillery fire, they were unable to silence the enemy's batteries or to keep down his machine guns. From May 18 to June 1, Canadian battle casualties were 93 officers and 2,230 other ranks.

"The Battle of Festubert takes its place as the most satisfactory engagement of the 1st Canadian Division in the Great War," A. Forsteare Duguid wrote in the Official History of the Canadian Forces in the Great War 1914-1919.

"Great expectations of advancing seven miles had developed between the 9th and 18th, May to hopes of reaching Top ridge at the least. Having Sir John French had looked for a major success entirely achievable by 10 divisions with the ammunition in hand. At the end, in number 1st and Kilchenry, they reduced to the indefinite pronouncement that they were employing sufficient men and sufficient ammunition for an advance which it be possible to break through the enemy's prepared positions."

Buy-a-Tank Fund Approved by Rogers

Kitchener, Ont., June 1 —(CP)— In a wire to Mayor Meininger, Defence Minister Ralston has replaced the approval of the Federal government to the mayor's buy-a-tank fund which will be opened here today to receive an advertising club's sponsorship.

Mr. Rogers after expressing his pleasure that the fund had been conceived said that his department would welcome the gift. Camp Borden tanks to Kitchener to give impetus to the campaign. The light tanks are worth $25,000 and heavier infantry tanks approximately $50,000.

The mayor replied promptly expressing the city's appreciation of the department's co-operation and said the campaign for the buy-a-tank campaign will spread throughout the Dominion. Funds are to be raised by popular subscription.

ALLIES HAVE ACHIEVED

What the Germans said could not be done has been done — the British and French have evacuated out of Flanders many tens of thousands of soldiers of the Allied army which were fighting in Belgium.

This is one of the most efficiently organized movements ever carried out in military history. There were not only the rearguard actions of the withdrawal but there were also the embarkation and passage over the English Channel.

What was so perfectly organized has meant the withdrawing of the great number of men out of the triangular pocket in which the gallant soldiers found themselves was through no fault of their own. These soldiers who returned are super-men comrades who fell by taking a terrific toll of the Germans. Men who can fight, these Allied soldiers fought and achieve as these men achieved must have cost the Germans vast resources in men and in materials.

Stories which come through of the heroism of the men, of the fishermen, of the sailors, of the crews of the ships of the fleets and of the navy, fill the mind with admiration of those who have been defending the freedom of Britain and France and of those nations which have come under the despot's heel for the time being.

Now the wounded and tired men, having fought as men never fought before, are taking a rest in the interior of England which they need.

The entire world rings with praise of the coolness and heroism and the deathless courage of the Allied armies.

THE BATTLE OF FLANDERS

It was said that the Allies could lose the battle raging in the Netherlands and Belgium and North France, but yet win the war but that Germany had to win the battle if she was to have a possibility of winning the war.

The great battle, if what has already taken place can be called a completed battle, has not been won by Germany. The successful withdrawal of the Allies is a proof of that and it must have been a keen disappointment to the Germans who had promised to annihilate the forces in Northern France and Belgium. They failed to do, though they desperately tried to do so. And whatever they have achieved has been at appalling cost to the Germans in human life and in material resources. The Allies have not lost the battle.

The battle is not ended. It may proceed into a further battle for the Germans have not faced the main body of the Allied troops.

The Allied determination to see this thing through to the end is backed up by the clear appreciation of the sacrifices which will be entailed and of the menace. The issue of this strengthens the peoples.

Britons have turned their native hand into a great fighting one and their designs of a foe who is without honor or sense of shame. They await with confidence whatever the war may bring and will endure to the victory.

As the men who fought in Flanders these past two weeks were not faint-hearted, neither in Britain is there a faint-heart. They resolved that when the full story is told it will have the refrain—Victory.

HOSPITAL SHIPS BOMBED AND SUNK BY NAZI AIRMEN

The Nazis in 1940 are performing the same type of acts as the Germans did in the years of the Great War, when they sank the British hospital ship, Llandovery Castle, bearing wounded and when they bombarded the Red Cross Hospital at Etaples, France, killing many nursing sisters, doctors, orderlies and also wounded.

A few days ago German airmen bombed and sank two British hospital ships crossing the English Channel, with serious loss of life.

Weapons are modernized and more deadly today and greater is the crime which rests upon the heads of the Nazis. To bomb a hospital ship bearing all the evidences indicating the mission of the ship and the nature of its cargo of suffering and wounded soldiers, nursing sisters and doctors, is despicable and inhuman. To bomb it from the air is more intimate act than to destroy it by torpedo for the culprit is brought that much closer to his crime and the individual's responsibility is that much heavier if there can be any such thing as degree in such actions.

While this is not the world in which one to expect from the Nazis, it is shocked by the examples which the enemy gives of callous brutality.

Last week it was said by the R.A.F. so persistent were attacks made by the German bombers with machine guns on Red Cross ambulances that the Red Cross vehicles had to be repainted so that there would be no markings to attract the vicious fire of German airmen that they were ambulances, for ambulances appeared to be especially liable for attack.

Germany in the last war set out to make itself feared and in the days of the Nazi Germans seek to shock and terrorize the nations.

It is part of the war plan which the Nazis hope will conquer, namely actual warfare on the most horrible scale with barbarism and treachery, fifth column activities and the war of nerves utilized to terrorize the civilian population especially.

So the Nazis have set themselves to perform deeds of which humanity is ashamed, deeds of unbelievable horror.

This is the foe that the British, French and their Allies are fighting. This is the victorious development which must be crushed. This it is which calls the Allies to the utmost effort in the spirit of a great crusade to down the enemy.

No Nazi casuistry can remove the responsibility for or can excuse such horrors in the name of war.

That Body Of Yours

The Causes of Headache

I have spoken before of my attempt to count the number of causes of headache and giving it up after I reached one hundred or more. Actual number is more than one hundred and fifty or even two hundred. In fact, two or three conditions combined may be causing the headache. Also, the headache is meant as ache or pain within the skull, not the pain in the greater area outside the skull due to cold, dampness and sometimes influenza.

A headache means that something is wrong in the body or the body itself. Headache, then, is not a disease in itself but a symptom.

Most headaches are believed due to changes in the bloodvessels in the head, not organic or damaging changes that change the structure of the bloodvessels or the nerves in them, but changes in the pressure of the blood, or in the amount of pressure, or in the way flowing through the bloodvessels in the brain.

In an editorial on Headache in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, it is pointed out that in trying to find the cause of headache it should be noted whether the headache is through the whole head or if it is in the boundaries, such as the forehead, top of head, or side of head. Secondly, whether it is dull, sharp, throbbing, or slight. Thirdly, whether it is present all of the time, occasionally or at regular intervals.

A suggested classification of causes of headache is as follows:

1.—Organic (actual damage, destruction, tumor, wound): in the tumor or overgrowth of tissue, (to harden-ing of the arteries, (b) actual damage or bleeding, (c) inflammation of the brain substance, (d) injury to brain substance.

2.—Vascular (bloodvessels): (a) increased blood or full or high blood pressure.

3.—Toxic: due to poisons or wastes from general ailments or diseases of the body, such as fever, disease, anaemia, constipation, fevers, over-use of drugs, alcohol, tobacco.

4.—Reflex: headaches due to disturbances anywhere in the body.

5.—Functional: migraine (one-sided headache), general nervous-ness, neurasthenia (mental and physical fatigue or tiredness), and mental disturbances and depressions.

Among other conditions causing headache are anaemia, cataracts, and inflammation of a sinus or abscess. elfwwabr bn r dG

They Got the Sub

A naval officer just back from Norway tells a story that will rank with the finest tales on the speed of modern communications. At 5:30 one morning a German U-boat saw a submarine steaming up the coast. Getting up full speed and ramming up the police in the nearest town. A British intelligence officer, informed of the sighting, was ordered to use the signal officer. It was coded and then handed to the Naval Wireless. The message was decoded and telephoned across to the Admiralty. Meanwhile it was wirelessed to a cruiser in a Norwegian fjord, decoded and signalled by Aldis lamp to an adjacent anti-submarine trawler. The message received at 9:52 p.m. Shortly after midnight the submarine was located, attacked and probably sunk.—London Spectator.

Nazi War Aims Are Very Clear

I know a man who is a native of one of those small European countries which up to date—that is, 9:15 p.m. this evening—have managed to remain neutral. He is a friend of mine and speaks German as perfectly as he speaks his own language. He is a friend of Hitler.

He told me that one summer two years ago he went to dine and sleep at Hitler's chuse at Ober-Salzburg. He was a week-end guest, under full supper he and Hitler walked up and down the terrace together discussing art, the present and the future of the world. "Discussing" is not the right word. He says that the man who Hitler who did all the talking, and all he had to do was grunt occasionally to say were things like "What a brilliant idea, Your Excellency" and "Only a man with supernatural vision, Your Excellency, could have thought of a thing like that."

Anyhow, after Hitler had been talking for over an hour, he suddenly said, "Come, let us speak with an Englishman as you and I have been talking German, and after

Canadian Wartime Fliers

Wing Commodore George R. Howsam Senior Air Staff Officer No. 4 Air Training Command

By The Canadian Press

Wing Commodore George R. Howsam, the man who laid much of the Royal Canadian air force foundation for the British commonwealth training plan, is taking another step forward in his flying career which has seen him devote nearly 26 years to the service of aviation.

A short, energetic airman with the R. C. A. F. wings across his tunic, he has been promoted from the post of director of R. C. A. F. air training to that of senior air staff officer for No. 4 Air Training Command of the joint air training plan with headquarters at Regina.

He will hold one of the key positions in organizing and administering the vast command, stretching from British Columbia, Alberta and most of Saskatchewan, where pilot, air gunner and air observers will be trained.

His is the vital job, in company with other leading air officials of the plan, to strive to make a mighty contribution from Canada in the air allies' fight to reach air parity with Germany.

It was due largely to the energy of Wing Commander Howsam that the antiquated training system of the R. C. A. F. was transformed into a modern scheme similar to the Royal Air Force in Britain. Before that he was director of training of air training in national defence headquarters here, he has worked with determination and ability to establish an efficient training plan for Canadian airmen.

The three-phase plan was adopted as a guide being open to elementary, intermediate and advanced schools, and now that R. C. A. F. training is being merged with the British commonwealth air training plan, which follows the basic points introduced in Canada by Wing Commander Howsam, he is the assistance of other air force officials.

As far back as the spring, 1939, he expressed a conviction in an interview that air power is not as important in practically any modern military engagement and he has seen his beliefs vindicated in Norway and on other European battle grounds.

The air arm of the fighting forces will be a major consideration when war comes, and I believe it will," he told The Canadian Press at that time. "Through our training plan we hope to create a tendency to turn out competent fliers as rapidly as any country in the world when the time comes."

Has Fighting Record

Hundreds of young airmen at R. C. A. F. air stations know and like this 45-year-old wing commander for his administrative talent, his unfailing good humor and his salty epithets, which have created headquarters and mess room tradition for pungent use of English.

And they admire him still more for his fighting qualities, amply shown in the First Great War. Straight from high school in his native Port Perry, Ont., he joined the Canadian army in 1916 and three later switched to the air force. In France he won the military cross for bringing down four enemy planes in one day. Nine other aircraft fell before his deadly machine guns in other dogfights during the war.

After the war, he returned to Canada but continued with the air force, serving in several western air stations where he learned of flying problems he was to have to combat with No. 4 training command.

In 1939 he was a member of the famous "Siskin flight" of the R. C. A. F. which made a goodwill expression at the Cleveland air races and which brought all the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto spellbound as they swept down from the clouds to within a few feet of Lake Ontario.

He served with commands in Toronto and then was brought to Ottawa to organize air training on a streamlined basis. This done, and the training plan launched, he leaves his map-cluttered office at headquarters and goes back to the wartime air force to put his training planes for new achievements in an illustrious air career.

Bland Warns Great Britain Against Nazi Parachutists

London, June 1 — (CP) — Sir Nevile Bland, British Minister to the Netherlands who witnessed the beginning of the German invasion of the country, warned last night that Nazi parachutists and fifth columnists could do a great deal of damage in a direct attack on the British Isles.

"They may have some diabolical surprises in store for us," Sir Nevile said in a radio broadcast. He called for further protective measures against the parachute menace, declaring the Nazis might have captured the Netherlands in 24 hours if authorities in the invaded country had not taken extreme precautions.

"I do not want to be an alarmist and there is no need for panic," he said, "but more must be done and taken to provide against the danger.

"There are countless places in England where men and guns could be landed. Be defiant with any person connected with the German race or even Holland, if you know people still at large keep an eye on them. They may be perfectly all right, but they may not, and today we can't afford to take any risks.

"If a devilish surprise comes we shall meet it with courage, and if we do our duty thoroughly we can meet it with confidence."

Pushing Planes Across Border to Observe Law Criticized by N.Y. Post

New York, June 1 — (CP) — The New York Post criticized the section of the United States Neutrality Law which compels the pushing across the international border into Canada of airplanes sold to the Allies by American companies.

"American pilots must still land and push their planes over the Canadian border," the paper said editorially. "Secretary Hull's new order, permitting delivery by ace pilots at Halifax, does not cancel the Previous instructions requiring that planes sold to the Allies must be shoved, not flown, across our northern frontier.

"This strange obeisance to an abstract concept of neutrality resembles a mysterious rite, part of a cultist protocol. Neutrality would be served if our planes were required to strike their heads against the pavement three times. Meanwhile, the Allies wait for their planes until the little ceremony is concluded. It is enough to make a Nazi laugh."

Spy Activity Hampers Retreat From France

London, June 1 — (CP) — Military circles said today that areas through which Allied forces retreated from France were "riddled with spies."

"It seemed that if army headquarters suffered a house—even if one of a row—it could be guaranteed that that house would be bombed," one spokesman said.

Illustrating "fifth column" activities, the spokesman said one man in the uniform of a British officer drove motor to move troops two miles along a beach for embarkation.

"The man in charge of the embarkation party knew the beach pretty well," said the spokesman, "and asked a naval officer if it was really was intended to embark from that place.

"The naval officer replied: 'We have no intention of doing any such thing.'

"Half an hour later the place was bombed."

The spokesman said the case was being investigated to determine whether "the officer" who gave the order was a spy.

Risky to Keep Baby Waiting

Greatest Joy in Store for Couples Who Stand Sacrifices

By Carry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Home is the greatest school for many. It is the crowning of love and the making of character. It is the making of the bird, and other creatures of the wild, or by the buds and flowers of the field. Equally important it is because school and college end and vocation begins. It may explain in part why so many youths and maidens fail in life, and especially among the middle and professional classes.

Normal marriage presupposes planning for children. Some married couples are, for a season, sterile, unable to have children. Others are by choice unready to be childless. Not a few will purposely postpone the rearing of children.

Some months ago I conducted a forum for a large group of high school girls on "Marriage as a Career". One of the girls asked the direct question rose and calmly inquired: "How long do you think it advisable to be married, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tucker, Stirling, before you have a baby?" I told the girl George Stiles, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stiles, of Bonarlaw, that the church tastefully decorated with pink and white tulips and fern the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Scott. Miss Grace Pitman, organist, Andrew Fraser, baritone church played the wedding music and during the signing of the register Miss Lulu Hoover sang a soprano solo "I Love You Truly".

A Coiffure Youthful as the 'Pigtail'

CAROLE LANDIS . . . shows a new trend in coiffures.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Sixteen years ago the pigtail was doomed, sentenced to death. Thus ended hair bow ribbons and beauticians and barber shops. Feminine tresses became emancipated and since that time they have been footloose and fancy free. We, the floor mop, the shingle, the wind-blown bob, the pineapple curl, the shoulder-length cut and any number of scrambled effects. At last fashion has bestowed upon us a mode that is fresh, youthful and charming, the manship high hair-do having been nothing more than a flash in the coiffure pan.

We've now an amalgamated assortment of hair jewelry. You must join up because, to flaunt the chignon of 1940, tresses must be more than shoulder length. They are confined at the nape line in various arrangements. Sometimes a ribbon is used, sometimes a flower and sometimes a comb. Now and then the neat effect comes by making a pigtail-over-pigtail. The latter fashion has the ends of the hair are done in curly ringlets, fairly large, flat and sculptured.

Chance for Originality

Front and side locks are separated from the back hair by a parting from ear to ear. With two portions to work with, all manner of lovely designs can be originated. One of the simplest patterns shows up-swept rolls at either side, two rolls above the forehead, placed so that they overlap slightly toward. On the oval face this effect is especially flattering.

If your wool is still short and you bridle at chignon-ish, you can buy spare hair at your beauty shop. These "extra pieces," as they are called, come in a variety of forms. You can have coils with ringlets at ends, or you can purchase small braids. All that is necessary is to have enough of the human grown foliage to serve as an anchorage.

When buying factory hair, do not economize. Only first quality will fool the closest critic and will do be sure that the color match is perfect. Make hair invisible only when you need it but, even so, there is no sense advertising to the world at large that your nape curls are demountable.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Can't Love One Man and Live With Another

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a married woman with one child four years of age. Last year I suffered a nervous breakdown and had to undergo a serious operation. In the hospital, where I remained five weeks, I fell in love with my doctor, who is old enough to be my father. He seemed to be interested in me too, but when he had finished his too much, he ignored me. He's constantly on my mind, although I know it's useless and awful, I just can't help it. I feel so ashamed.

My husband is wonderful and has no bad habits. I have enough sense to know that men of his kind are hard to find, but it seems impossible for me to love him as a husband should. I haven't seen him since.

My husband knows of this affair, and wants to build a nice home for us, but I don't care to be tied down in one spot. Right now I feel like moving. I am from a good family, well educated, and can't move some way I imagine. I forget this man, because one can't forget a man and live with another without success.

Restless

There's an old quotation—the source escapes me for the moment—to the effect that "Love on bended knees and thank God for a good woman." That is the highest standard for saying so, your husband has brought you a good home. Don't crush on the doctor—hundreds of thousands of women have gone through the same experience. I've had innumerable letters from women who imagined themselves "in love" with their doctors, especially when they've had a mental breakdown.

The doctor has shown you clearly that he's not interested. Keep on being a good mother. You won't be if you let this crush get you. Be thankful for your husband and his house he wants to build. And I wish to goodness you could see some of the letters that come to me from good women who would think they were in Paradise if they had one hundredth part of your good fortune.

An Excuse in Case of Strife! Parents' Fault

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man, 24 years old and in love with a girl of 20. Upon several occasions I have met her by chance and after persistent persuasion, she finally consented to take her home. Since then she has avoided me.

I asked her the other day if I could come to her home and after several excuses she finally confessed that her parents were strongly opposed to her going with anyone, and as long as she was staying with them, she thought it best for me not to come as we only lose trouble between her and her family.

Do you think I should continue trying to see her at her home, or she will go? Or do you think that it was only an excuse to avoid having a date with me?

Terry

It's hard to say whether the young lady was just stringing you along or not. A little more light on the situation, why don't you continue to call at the young lady accidentally, or at least until you find out if she has any interest in you. A difference of several years in your ages may be a contributing factor to her attitude.

How Aunts Can Help

Tribute From William Lyons Phelps

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

The day has nearly passed when unmarried aunts bring up their sister's children. Nevertheless, there are still aunts like the Aunt Julia whom the first Essay refers.

"And welcome whereso'er she went
A calm and gracious element,"

who have fired their nieces and nephews with ambition. Such an aunt of mine still lives, and I owe her much.

William Lyon Phelps, in his Autobiography with Letters, devotes a chapter to his Aunt Libbie, who lived alone and paid frequent visits to her nephews' homes. "One of the happiest moments" of his life was spent in her house, when his brothers and he went there for holiday rests, he writes.

"Her influence on me (and my brothers) was wholly beneficial, for she supplied everything I did not get at home. . . . She was interested in every detail of our lives, and longed to have us grow up and natural, and she did her best to make us so. She studied the best of conversation as she studied the art of singing, and she seemed to prize good manners, good breeding and good taste above everything."

Learned Gracelessness

William Lyon Phelps gives a vivid lesson for all of us in the art of being gracious:

"Among other things I learned from her, I learned some considération for others. When I was about eight years-old, spending a week-end at her house, a middle-aged man called one evening, and after a polite skirmish with my aunt I was ordered to entertain him. At that time I happened to be excited about boats, and the visitor discussed the subject in a way that I found very charming. After he left I spoke of him with enthusiasm. What a man! And how tremendously interested in boats! And my aunt informed me that he was a New York lawyer; that he cared nothing whatever about boats, but took not the slightest interest in the subject. 'Then why then did he talk all the time about boats?' 'Because he is a gentleman. He saw you were interested in boats, and he talked about the things he knew would interest and please you. He made himself agreeable.'

With more than the leisure and social recreation, many an unmarried aunt has more opportunities to cultivate the social graces than her married sister with several children. However, an occasional aunt will sag at her sister and children about her.

An Inspiration

The widely-read and highly-cultivated aunt of fourteen-year-old William Lyon Phelps must have done much to inspire him for the career by which he, in turn, has inspired so many hundreds of others in appreciation of great literature. "I was fourteen or fifteen . . . I had already read the complete works of William Shakespeare, and from five in the morning until six-thirty we discussed the characters and plots with ardour. We did this on every one of my visits for several years. I learned a great deal," he writes.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What can be done by some people that the child should have measles, whooping cough and other children's diseases early "so he won't get them so hard?

A. Wholly unfounded on facts. On the contrary, the earlier the child contracts these diseases, as a rule, the more likely he is to die from them or suffer ill effects therefrom at later years.

Q. When a parent wishes to control a child's bad habits or behavior or personality problem in general, what is the best way to approach and win him?

A. One good way is to get in touch with the psychology department of your nearest college or university.

ZION W. M. S.

Mrs. (Rev.) McKenzie was hostess to the Zion Auxiliary at their May meeting. The ladies met for a pot-luck dinner, the proceeds of which will be given to the Red Cross.

The May meeting is eagerly looked for because it is the time of the annual Grandmother's Day. The president had charge of the worship service which was based on Ecclesiastes 12: 1-14. The question of "Remember Now Thy Creator in the days of thy youth" was dealt with by some length. Attention was drawn to the fact that "Remember Now Thy Creator in the days of thy youth" means a dreaming old age. Youth and age together are children's heritage, a church. Never think life incomplete because it is not as it should be. Contentment is in quality and quantity. Neither youth nor age is "the best," "Christ is the beginning", for the end is Christ.

The program was conducted by Mrs. W. K. Denyes. She dealt with the subject "Is Your Conception of Life's Day" Denuil Ridout. Posters on subject were displayed around the rooms. Some of these posters read: "Jesus reveals that a man's relation to the Kingdom of God is revealed by his attitude toward his fellowmen." "Compassion is one of Christians is the greatest himan virtue." "Love is the foundation". Readings were given by Mrs. C. Cronkright and Mrs. Ridout. Discussion on Stewardship followed, Miss E. Goswell was asked to take charge of envelopes. Each could be used in Red Cross effects. Mrs. Ridout, Mrs. Cronkright, were asked to register their ages. Mrs. Denyes presented the Mizpah segments of a framed motto as being the oldest lady present. She said the oldest lady present. She said she was 87 years old. Mrs. Mary J. Ray, Zion's oldest W. M. S. member was also present, but was absent.

Mrs. H. Casey was then presented with a life membership certificate, the gift from the ladies of the Auxiliary. Mrs. Casey, Mrs. W. Morrow and her school mates.

Mrs. Casey received a lovely dress and Mrs. Hyde made the presentation of a lovely bouquet of flowers.

"The address was signed by: — Mrs. A. Hamilton, Bessie N. Spencer, Jennie H. Dafoe, Chas. Dafoe, Mrs. Chas. Dafoe, Mrs. Alma N. Moore, Grace D. Scott, Mrs. Lorne Dafoe, Mrs. Ray Dafoe, Lena S. Shorey, Gertie C. Sills, Ethel Gowsell.

Mrs. Casey was taken completely by surprise, Mrs. Casey replied in a few words.

The meeting was closed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer.

Grandmothers were asked to group themselves on the lawn for a photo which was taken.

There were 19 members present and 7 visitors. Collection $4.50.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Procession and Recessional

Today's smart perfectly managed wedding, follows a certain pattern in the formation of the procession and recessional. Each bridal party is adhered to whether the wedding is formal or informal, elaborate or simple, large or small, a church wedding or a house wedding. Here is the line of the procession:

Ushers—walking together, two by two, the shortest leading.

Bridesmaids, walking together, two by two, the shortest leading.

Maid of honor (or matron of honor), walking alone.

Bride, with her father, Bride walks at right of her father.

Here are the answers to some questions that may be in your mind:

First: In the well-planned wedding of today, the bridesmaids are not paired off with the ushers, in the procession or recessional. In the recessional, the maid of honor does not walk with the best man.

There should be an even number of ushers and an even number of bridesmaids; it is not necessary, however, to have as many bridesmaids and ushers. That is, you may have, for example, four bridesmaids and six ushers, or two bridesmaids and four ushers.

Usually, there is only one "honor attendant"—the maid of honor or the matron of honor — who walks alone. If the bride decides to have both a maid of honor and a matron of honor, or two maids of honor, they walk in front of the bride in relationship or friendship to the bridegroom, directly preceding the bride and her father.

If there is a flower girl, she walks between the chief attendant and the bride. If there are two flower girls, they walk together.

Nowadays attendants of either the bride or bridegroom may be either married or unmarried. If an attendant of the bridegroom has been best man, for instance is married, it is not necessary for the bride to invite his wife to be one of her attendants. In the same way it is not necessary for the groom to invite as one of his attendants, the husband of one of the matrons of honor or any other attendant.

Second: In the procession, each pair follows the pair directly in front by four paces. (This is carefully observed in the rehearsal.) But in order to make the entrance of the bride more dramatic, there is an interval of eight beats between the pair of honor (the one who directly precedes the bride) and the bride and her father. Each member of the procession should begin with "left foot" forward.)

During the ceremony, the performed in church or at home, the procession is the same in a house wedding, there is no recessional.

Third: At the end of the wedding march, the minister comes into the chancel from the vestry. In a house or hotel wedding he enters by a door chosen for convenience. In either case, he is followed by the bridegroom, and a pace or two behind their bridegroom, comes the best man.

The Recessional

At a church wedding the recessional is the reverse of the procession. That is, the bride and the one couple, the bride and bridegroom, walk together. In the pageantry of the recessional, there is value in having the bride highlight concentrated on only one couple.

Next in the order of the recessional:

Bride and bridegroom—the bride on her husband's right arm.

Maid of honor (or matron of honor), walking alone.

Bridesmaids — walking together two by two.

Ushers—walking together, two by two.

If there are flower girls, they walk between the chief attendant and the bride.

As the recessional starts down the aisle, the best man usually goes to the vestry to perform the ceremony of tying his fee to that of the minister the fee or gift that has been given him by the groom, and, if other arrangements are not made, carries the bride's or groom's hat and coat to the car at the front of the church.

Parent Discipline

Has it ever occurred to you that your child gets a thrill out of punishing you and your temper? Many a child does.

Nearly every week I get a letter from a mother who writes that after reading something like this: "I have done everything to train my boy, but it's no use. No matter whether I whip him, send him to bed without his supper, or try to be kind to him, he disobeys me. He never seems to know when he is wrong, and resents any kind of punishment."

Child training is simply a matter of common sense. Discipline started in babyhood and kept up consistently. All too often parents make mistakes in this line, babyhood and don't start to train them until they are about the age of two years or so overcome. Or they think discipline means whipping the child. Then, on the other hand, I read of mothers are mistaken practitioners of "Spare the rod and spoil the child."

I'm against whipping children for several reasons. There are better ways of disciplining them, and the whipping is done more often by parents when they are angry and consequently are likely to make spectacles of themselves. They go to the extreme, so to speak. The child observing things a parent does and says under such circumstances, feels a sort of contempt for the parent because he has been able to produce this state of madness by little effort. Whatever effect the whipping is intended to have is lost when he feels—this way, obviously.

There is another reaction in his mind, too. If he sees his mother lose her temper at him he forgets over some prank of his, his respect for her is diminished. After a repetition of such incidents, he obeys her only because she is bigger and stronger than he is. Then when he is punished, he resents it and feels he is the victim of injustice. When he grows strong enough to avoid her chastisement, he loses control over him completely.

I remember reading in the works of some philosopher a pithy line: discipline is only the art of making disciples. That's another way of saying it's the art of leadership. Leadership is what is important in raising children properly.

Leaders can found such respect that they are followed blindly and unanimously. To good parents is a leader something like this. But he doesn't get to be a leader by being a tyrant. He builds up respect in his child by being fair and understanding in his discipline. He doesn't close his eyes to misbehavior one day and punish for it the next. He doesn't expect children to know things are wrong without being told, and he doesn't punish them severely for things they didn't know were wrong. He doesn't punish them when he is angry and upset.

None of the Dionne Quintuplets has been whipped. I know there aren't angels now, but they certainly are far above the average child normal in every way. Far better behaved, I know, than many children I've seen punished.

At the other extreme to these whipping disciplinarians are the indulgent fathers and mothers, who refuse to hold their children to be good. I don't know which type of parents is worse.

Down the shell-torn roads of France and Flanders they are pouring in an endless stream. Old men and women, children, broken in spirit and body, homeless, their pitiful belongings dragged behind them in broken down vehicles, or carried on weary shoulders in large untouth bundles. Babies in arms, whimpering against a mother's breast; old people scarcely able to walk, drag tired feet along the cobbled roads while overhead roar the death-dealing Hun raiders, machine-guns spitting death and destruction to these innocent victims of a fiendish mad lust for power.

Their homes are smoking heaps of debris. Their loved ones, lie in the bloody plains of Belgium and Flanders. They gathered what they could of their effects when the Hun hordes swept out of the north, leaving death, rape and destruction in their wake, and joined the vast army of evacuees in its trek, southward to nowhere.

Now hungry, their clothes hanging in tatters from weary bodies, hope nearly gone, the vast army of refugees from the stricken countries over-run by the legions of the madman of Europe, is turning another

Picton

Picton — Rain yesterday (Friday) forced cancellation of the opening of Belleville and District Softball League here Friday night. Plans had been made for a gala opening and the cancellation is a disappointment to the sport fans.

A large crowd gathered at Cherry St. Public School last night when schools of Athol, Hallowell and South Marysburgh townships, presented a concert under the direction of their music teacher, C. H. Simpson of Picton.

Wellington Consolidated School orchestra assisted and gave five selections. Among the unison choruses were 'Joannie with the Light Brown Hair", "Two Songs of Innocence", "The Shepherd and the Lamb." "Dear Canada, Dear Land of Mine" with solo by Mrs. Gordon Bell and "Canada from Sea to Sea." The works of this latter number are by Gena Branscombe Tinney of New York, a Picton girl, and the patriotic number was written on the occasion of the visit of their Majesties to Canada and much sung at that time.

Juniors gave two choruses, 'Sir Little Mice" and "Merry Minute, Creep."

Olga Bohtanski of Cherry Valley school, sang three songs, in English, French and Russian, the latter being her native tongue.

Picton Lake School gave a dramalogue, "King John and the Abbot." "Minuet" was played as a piano trio by Jean, Mary and Mona Bell and "Goodnight" as a piano duet by Miss Kathryn Bell. A boys' chorus scored a hit with "Camp Town Races."

Rev. O. R. Flindall was chairman and paid deserving credit to Mr. Simpson, teachers and pupils.

The radio is perhaps the most potent factor in the home these days, as the war news is eagerly followed. Several radios are placed in front of stores and the newscasts result in little crowds of listeners. Newspapers are also eagerly read. The evacuation of Allied troops from Flanders has had a cheering effect during the depressing days when bad news predominated.

Malone, N. Y., June 1 — (AP) — Two youths charged with harboring and concealing an alien have been released from jail on $1,000 bail each pending Federal court action.

They were booked when arrested by immigration officers last Sunday as William J. Gehling, 20, Lancaster, an engineer, and Grover E. Nash, Jr., 19, East Canton.

Immigration officers charged them with concealing in the locked rumble seat of their automobile a youth who gave his name as James Maxwell White, 20, Toronto. The latter, charged with violating United States immigration laws, is in jail.

National Council On War Production Urged on Government

Winnipeg, June 1 — (CP) — A resolution urging appointment of a National Advisory Council "with wide powers to develop and to direct war production" was sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King by the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

A 'Mr. Sensible' In Every Street To Maintain Morale

London, June 1 — (CP) — A nationwide plan to install a "Mr. Sensible" in every street to maintain public morale in the event that radio broadcasting and newspaper circulation are disrupted by bombing or invasion was announced yesterday by Sir Winmarleigh Deedes, Information Officer for London.

The plan envisages local "agents of reassurance" responsible for posting reliable news bulletins in streets and allaying public fears, stimulating public effort for victory and giving advice and exhortation."

Canadian Men and Women Asked to Help

Canadian men and women, boys and girls, irrespective of color, creed or denomination, are asked to assist in the provision of clothing and other necessaries for the victims of Hun aggression.

In Belleville, the call goes out from the Regent and members of the Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E. Clothing, blankets whether new or not are urgently needed. And needed immediately.

Take an inventory of the family clothes closets, attics or wherever the clothes are kept. There, you may be surprised at what you can spare. Or if you prefer, dig down into the pockets of the family exchequer and purchase a large variety of clothing, blankets as you can afford.

Then telephone 1400-M, (the Armouries) any time between 2 and 5 p.m. on Mondays or Thursdays, and if you find it impossible to deliver your gifts personally or otherwise, they will be promptly called for.

In the meantime, England's problem is growing. Daily it is increasing by leaps and bounds as the stream of evacuees pour across the channel to the haven of a British refuge, and that means immediate action on many part and mine, lay time can be lost. So do your bit toward the alleviation of the suffering of those people, to whom a country like Canada would be a veritable paradise.

All Canadians Asked to Help

Sanctuary in England

And England, warm-hearted, and sympathetic, in spite of the tremendous cost of the war which she is facing, opens heart and arms to these innocent victims of a ruthless war machine. She is giving them food, homes and clothing. Her gallant sons and daughters on the home front, are taking time from their own arduous war duties, to provide succor to the army of non-combatants that are arriving daily in thousands from the continent.

But they need help. And once again the clarion call goes out to the far-flung corners of the Empire to come to the aid of the Mother Country. And in response to that call, insofar as Canada is concerned the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire are rallying from coast to coast.

From Halifax to Vancouver, the call goes forth. Regents of the many chapters of the order, are issuing an appeal to the country to help the Motherland in solving this tremendous additional war problem which she has taken voluntarily to herself.

Canada must not and will not fail

"Lover Come Back"

By BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

Almost at once Sondra heard Kemp issuing commands from the afterdeck. There followed a cheer . . . the confused murmur of excited Japanese voices . . . and finally the tramp of feet coming forward. When she realised they must pass her stateroom she quickly turned off the light, and peered out between the curtains over the porthole.

The Japanese crew of the Dragon —she knew all six of them—were carrying rifles. Laughing and chattering, they moved with no discipline, yet there was an accustomed ease in the way they handled their weapons. She chilled to the sudden knowledge that these smiling brown men, whom she had known as fishermen, were not fishermen at all but Oriental soldiers trained to arms.

All her grandfather had ever said about Japanese spies, the Japanese menace to Alaska, came back to her. How smugly confident she had been that southeastern Alaska was free from any such menace! Blind and foolish she had been, and Dynamite Kemp—immersing themselves in petty personal quarrels while the dark shadow of Oriental intrigue spread, unnoticed, about them.

She looked down at Kemp's automatic still clasped in her hand. . . . If Kemp did effect her escape, she would see to it that those chaps went with her—or were destroyed.

Escape? But what chance had she? It was Kemp against Ikeda and his well-armed crew of loyal Japanese. How could Kemp hope to outwit, or overcome them?

Rescue? Remembering Ikeda's comments on that, she was again forced to admit the bitter truth of his summing-up. Her sole reliance must be Kemp—and herself.

Leaving the porthole open for air, she lay down, fully dressed, to wait for midnight. For a long time the only sounds were the steady pulse of the engine, the whoosh of seas, and the occasional whine of steering gear as the wheel turned.

Eight bells struck at last, and she heard Kemp and Ikeda talking as the latter came off watch. Ikeda seemed greatly pleased over a message he had just received from the Japanese cruiser toward which they were heading. The warship had shifted position to a nearer point. "A most gratifying circumstance, Lieutenant. Now we shall make rendezvous about eight in the morning instead of noon."

Swept by sudden panic, Sondra lost Kemp's reply. That change of position lessened her chance for escape — perhaps even made escape impossible. But Kemp—her thoughts turned to him in blind trust. He would not fail her. He would find a way.

The sound of Ikeda's going into his stateroom, followed her to get a grip on herself. . . . He was getting ready for bed. . . . He was getting into his berth. . . . Now, all was still.

As minutes passed she began to ask herself, was Ikeda still awake? Dare she risk lifting the trap door now?

Then, startling her, a slip of white paper came fluttering in through a screen door. It was scrawled in a single word in Kemp's well-known hand: "Come."

Carefully, her heart thumping, she lowered herself into the narrow, close-smelling chute. It was empty now, but she proceeded with infinite caution, feeling her way through the darkness until she came out among the ship's stores, in the lazaret. Above her head the hatch cover had been lifted about six inches on one side, so that her face came just to the opening when she stood erect.

Outside, reclining on the moonlit deck beside the companion, Kemp lay supporting himself on one elbow and smoking a cigarette. At this hour the only member of the crew above deck was the helmsman whose dusky form could be discerned at the wheelhouse. Yet, should he or anyone chance to look aft, Kemp would seem to be merely taking it easy while he watched the night run of the boat.

"Kemp!" she whispered.

Casually he turned his head bringing his face within a few inches of her own. "Be careful," he whispered softly. "I must talk quietly while I have the chance, Sondra. You are in grave danger, Ikeda plans—"

"I know. I heard all that passed between you and Ikeda, in his stateroom."

"You heard—and you still trust me? Darling . . ." His finger tips brushed tenderly across her cheek. Then he was again speaking in a tense whisper. "We've got to get you out of this tonight, somehow, while Ikeda sleeps. Awake, he's dangerous as a king cobra, and as quick to strike whatever comes between him and any stake for which he plays. Lives mean nothing at all to him when the stakes are such as your grandfather's charts—or yourself."

"Oh, Kemp, why did you let him get me aboard here? Where were you?"

"In the engine room, darling; and I had no idea Ikeda would do anything so mad. If I'd even dreamed he might, I'd have stopped him if it cost me— But I didn't . . . and here we are."

"Just where are we now, Kemp?"

"In the Gulf of Alaska, far out of sight of land."

She bit her lip to still its trembling. "Then there isn't any chance of help—of rescue?"

"There's one chance, I think," Reynal. I've felt all along that he suspected us, was watching us. If he saw you brought aboard, he might mark the course we set. Might follow, and overtake us."

"But how could he? The Pelley is away, and the Baltic is far slower than the Dragon."

"I was thinking of the Glory. He has the old ship all ready for sea, and— But I'm chitching at straws." He shook his head impatiently. Reynal wasn't even in port when we left. It's capeless we must look to, to get you out of this. You—and the charts."

"Have you got them, Kemp?"

"They're still inside the model. Do you happen to know the secret of that hidden drawer?"

"No. I didn't even know there was one, until I heard Ikeda mention it."

He shrugged resignedly. "That's that, then. I was hoping we might be able to slip the charts out, and leave Ikeda to find the empty drawer. Now we'll have to take the model and that means—" He fell silent, frowningly considering what it meant.

After a long minute he nodded slowly, and spoke as if to himself. "Ya, that's the way. The only way."

"You have a plan, Kemp? Of escape?"

"If escape—yes. But there are some things I have to do before I can tell you about it." I must go up to the wheelhouse for a minute, so that helmsman won't get curious and come out to see what's happened to me. And I've got to get that model, with the charts. Incidentally, I shall find out just how soundly Ikeda sleeps."

"Kemp! You look—there's something—something terrible in your eyes. Are you going into danger? Tell me!"

"Darling, there's only one thing I can tell you now—one thing I want you to remember. In days to come, when you're despising me." He was not whispering now, but his voice was low and terribly earnest, as if he were dragging the words from his heart. "I love you. I've loved you from the first day I saw you. I shall go on loving you—more than life—so long as I live. . . . Won't you believe me?"

His lips were smiling at her, the saddest smile she had ever seen. His eyes were deeply dark pools of shadow, but she sensed their desperate intensity. A smiting wave of compassion swept her. In a moment of sudden insight she knew that, somewhere in his past, life had dealt this man a shattering blow. "I do believe you, Kemp. It makes me proud—and humble, too—to know I have the love of a man whose heart is so—so fine and decent. You could never deceive you, my dear, no matter what comes."

"Dear — little — thoroughbred" His smile, in the moonlight, had a tortured look. "That's something for a man to take along." His free his feet up under him, ready to run but bent for a final word. "Wait here for me, I'll be back long. I think; but if you hear me cough loudly, duck back at once through your burrow."

He was on his feet, and gone. So quick that Sondra could not be sure he had really left until she heard Ikeda's voice in the wheelhouse, words sharp, questioning. Then, more harshly, in English, "Speak! What is it?"

Sondra caught her breath and waited fearfully for what the next moment would bring.

"Nothing wrong, Ikeda." It was Kemp's voice, casual, quiet, politely apologetic. "I just decided to have another go at Orchard Island. I'd slipped in after it." You're several hours to sleep yet—sorry I disturbed you."

Ikeda's voice, faintly ironic, replied. "Quite all right, Lieutenant. It just happens that I'm easily—aroused."

Weak with relief, Sondra crouched in the lazaret, watching the luminous minute-hand creep round the dial of her wristwatch. It had made almost a complete circle before Kemp returned, carrying the model. He did not at once resume his place by her hatch, but squatted within her view on the after grating, his back against a pile of sacked coal.

For some minutes he sat toying with the model, and Sondra knew he was making sure he was not being spied upon. Presently he turned and thrust the model inside a half-empty coal hack, tying the mouth tightly above it. Then he dropped down again beside the lazaret.

"Okay so far, darling," he whispered. "You saw where I put the model?"

"Yes. What in the world did you—"

"Those charts must not go into Japanese hands, Sondra. There's enough coal in that sack to carry them, and the model, straight to the bottom. It will be your job to roll the sack over the stern if—if things go wrong after I start taking over this ship. Understand?"

"I understand, Kemp. But the Japanese besides Ikeda, aboard here. How can you take over?"

"Easily, I hope. First, I'll catch Ikeda off guard—"

"As you did on hour ago? Kemp, he'll kill you!"

"He won't get the chance. I'll go to his door, rap, tell him some large vessel is overtaking us. While he's gun—I'll have to borrow that back from you, darling. Did you bring it?"

"Yes, here." She placed it in his hand.

"Good. . . . So Ikeda falls for my story, and pops out for a look. I simply jam my gun in his back, and start issuing orders. While he's under my gun muzzle, the others won't dare make a move."

"But Ikeda would. He'd risk your gun, rather than capture and—"

"I'll give them an out. Make them take to within reach of land, set us off in the lifeboat with provisions and arms. We'll dump all their guns overboard, and let them sail away to their rendezvous. Nice work, eh—if we can get it."

Something in his manner of airy, almost boyish, confidence did not ring true to Sondra. She eyed him anxiously. "Kemp, do you really think you can do it?"

"Darling, of course I'll do it. Now you crouch right where you are, until I call you. Or until you hear something go wrong."

New York Giants May Take All the Money This Fall According to Bill Terry

Fans Beginning to Talk of Nickel Series' in New York for World Series

REDS SOLID TEAM

Experts Believe Brooklyn Dodgers Will Find Own Level After Great Spurt

(Associated Press Sports Writer).

It might be a good idea, as the Major-League baseball teams turn from the first quarter and head into the July 4 drive, to keep an eye on the clubs which are "laying str" the pace, but running close just the same.

In this respect, you hear a lot of talk in New York about the prospects of a "nickel series" this fall, provided the subways don't raise their fares.

The Giants, pooh-pooed at the start of the season as a cinch for fifth or sixth place in the National League, what with only half an infield and a lot of old gaffers, are third, four games out of the top. After experimenting for weeks weeks, Manse Joe merrily has covered" his world championship Yankee line-up of '38. With pitching and hitting clicking, the Bombers bounced up from the cellar late to the first division of the American League and are breshing down the necks of Boston Red and Cleveland Indians.

With no games played in either league yesterday, and the western half of the American loop and the eastern half of the National travelling to start their second swings around the circuit today, the set-up still looks good to be Cincinnati Reds and Cleveland Indians.

The Brooklyn boom seems to be all over. The way the Giants whipped them in the Memorial Day doubleheader made it appear Brooklyn's starting lingering is running out and left the flatbush follies two games back of the Reds.

Headed by Bucky Walters' unbroken run of eight wins and with Paul Derringer showing signs of getting under way again, the Reds are first best bet to win. In front now and starting a home stay, they are the choice to repeat.

ROOKIES LEAD CLEVELAND TEAM

Boudreau and Mack at Short and Second, a Smooth Combination

Chicago, June 1.—(AP)—Cleveland has two of the two regular batting over .300—Lou Boudreau and Ray Mack, the two rookies brought in to strengthen the team respectively.

Manager Oscar Vitt turned the shortstop post over to Boudreau and the second base job over to Mack at the start of the season and he's had few worries about either position since.

The 22-year-old Mack, a Bohemian and native of Cleveland, is hitting .305, about best average in the league.

Boudreau, a much better hitter than Mack when they cavorted for Buffalo in the International League, is hitting .326, 11th in the circuit and tied with Mack for leadership in the production of doubles, each having 13.

Several clubs think the Indians capable of giving the Yankees a battle all the way if these freshmen keep up their smooth double play work.

Louis and Godoy Take Training Easily

New York, June 1.—(CP)—Three weeks away from his big moment, Joe Louis and Arturo Godoy, the Chilean challenger for the heavyweight boxing title, still are taking training fairly easily. But they will buckle down to work in earnest soon.

Louis took Friday off altogether while Godoy boxed four rounds at Carmel, N. Y. Meanwhile promoter Joe Jacobs announced plans for a heavyweight elimination tournament to determine an opponent for the victor of the Louis-Godoy match June 20.

Jacobs aims to match the winners of Buddy Baer-Valentin Campolo and Pat Comiskey-Steve Dudas fights, with the victor to meet the winner of the Abe Simon-Tony Galento fight slated for July 4.

The survivor of all that will go against either Godoy or Louis in one of the ball parks in September.

GARNER CLAIMS TEXAS LEAGUER

U.S. Vice President Says He Started That Kind of Play in Baseball

Washington, June 1 (CP)—Take it from Vice-President Jack Garner, a prominent Texan was the inventor of the Texas league style of baseball—and his name was Jack Garner.

Garner, talking with Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees, explained in a recent meeting of the two famous figures:

"When I was a young fellow I loved to play ball but I wasn't much of a hitter at first. I couldn't drive the ball very far and I wasn't fast enough to beat out infield hits. So I figured the best thing to do was just tap the ball over the infield.

"I did that and it was very successful. All the young fellows around our town started doing it and finally it spread over the state and somebody started calling that kind of a hit a Texas leaguer."

HEAVY TRACK FOR TRACK MEET

450 Schoolboys Compete at Montreal in Interscholastic Meet

Montreal, June 1.—(CP) — A heavy track was in prospect as more than 450 schoolboys from Quebec and Ontario competed here for the 18th annual Dominion and McGill interscholastic track and field meet today.

Rain fell Friday lessening the chances of record breaking performances in track events. Showers were forecast.

A number of out-of-town contenders arrived during the day and moved into lodging at the Field House beside the McGill University track.

Ottawa Glebe Collegiate, champions last year, have entered a strong team and ruled as favorites for the title. Ridgetown Quinta Collegiate and Toronto Schools are expected to provide strong opposition however, and Montreal schools can be expected to pick up their share of points.

POST FORFEIT TO MAKE WEIGHT

Billy Conn and Gus Lesnevich Meet Next Wednesday for Light Heavyweight Title

Detroit, June 1.—(AP)—A $5,000 guarantee that Billy Conn, 161½-pound light heavyweight Boxing Champion, and Challenger Gus Lesnevich would make the 175-pound limit for their 15-round title fight here next Wednesday night was posted with the State Boxing Commission Friday by Promoter Jack Pfeiffer.

The guarantee—$2,500 by each fighter—had been ordered by Boxing Commissioner John Hetiche following reports the champion was having difficulty in shedding excess poundage.

Conn's manager, Johnny Ray, reported his fighter weighed 178 1-2 pounds after a long sparring session today. Lesnevich, who took the day off, weighed 178 1-2 yesterday.

Ralph's pained expression attests the power behind the punch which took a lot of the fight out of the challenger. Armstrong won by a knockout in the fifth round.

NEW MIRACLE MAN OF GOLF

New miracle man of golf. That's Craig Wood, veteran Mamaroneck, N.Y., pro, whose sensational 72-hole total of 284 in the Metropolitan open golf championship at Bloomfield, N.J., set a world record for four rounds of major tourney play over a full-length course. Wood's shot rounds of 64-66-68-66 for the remarkable score.

HURLERS BEGIN TO SHOW STRAIN AT ROCHESTER

Only One Hurler Goes Route in Last Six Games Played

TERRIFIC PACE

Rochester Defeated by Bisons Although Berley Good in Relief

John McGraw once said that pitching was 70 per cent of the ballgame and the Hlldr. guy was around baseball's big show long enough to know—but a team with a alone isn't going to win pennants in any league.

Billy Southworth, manager of the Rochester Red Wings, probably realizes this as well as anybody, and knowing that his club is leading the International League at present with only three regular pitchers having over 300, he isn't likely to be kicking good sluggers out of the clubhouse.

The Wings have been galloping along at a terrific pace since the start of the season and the upset on the pitching staff has been the number of games won by one and two runs. But with double headers filling up in leaps and bounds for the future, their burden grows heavier.

It may possibly be true that the mounds men are getting the worst of the strain already, if developments of the last few days mean anything. Only one hurler has gone the distance in the last six days and although the Wings have won four of six games in this time, the pitchers were hit for plenty of bases by the opposition.

Last night Preacher Roe and John Berly divided the mound duties for the Wings and gave up thirteen hits between them—Roe as finisher. Bisons pounded out a 6-4 victory lighted the six-hit pitching of Floyd Giebell and Jim Trexler. The Wings left all their tallies off Giebell and were leading at 5-0 when the portly Trexler took over with none out to squash a late rally. Pat Mullin connected with one of Trexler's shots for a homer with two men on in Buffalo's half of the fifth inning and that was the game.

The Bees dropped Rochester to within a game and a half of the second place Jersey City Giants who were rained out at home. Baltimore also caused postponement of the Baltimore-Newark and Montreal-Toronto engagements.

CANADA GUNNERS SHARP SHOOTERS IN ICE RECORDS

Reviewing the Ice Hockey Season in England it Appears Artillery and Toronto Scottish Topped Lists

(By Harold Fair Canadian Press Staff Writer).

London, June 1 (CP)—Canada's soldier sons in Britain are convinced that if their artillery units harry the Hun with the efficiency they showed on the hockey front there in the 1939-40 season no one need worry much about the Dominion's honors in battle.

The gunners gained the major share of honors in the impromptu series which kept the Canadian players' hand in and thrilled the English public to such an extent that a proposal had fo include a Canadian army game to draw any gate.

Sparked by two St. Catharines players, Chick Turner and Speedy Girsh, one of the Royal Canadian Artillery won nine of the 12 games it played, meeting Canada showed up next best while the third leader was another artillery unit.

Authorities would not permit formation of a regular league, but the boys battled it out in championship was at stake. Nine units had hockey teams and many of them met, in addition to the army encounters, the Canadians played individual games with service and made up all-star aggregations to meet the pick o fthe Britishers.

Same Nice Wins

Only team to beat an English team in the nine N.H.L.-Army clashes, the Canadian gunners trimmed Wembley Monarchs 8-4 in their opener. The artillery all-star team was the only one to defeat an English outfit, winning 11-4 from Harringay Greyhounds late in March. In an England-Canada set, the home players won the first three games.

Toronto Scottish won seven, lost five and drew two in their campaign while a second R.C.A. team was not far behind with five victories, a loss and a draw.

Turner and Girsh accounted for 27 of the 61 goals credited to the artillery team, Turner getting 19 goals and Girsh eight. Rheece Duff of Moncton, N.B., was another power on the gunners' attack, with 12 tallies, while Art Lorimer, former Montreal Canadiens star, Bob Armshaw of Ottawa paced his artillery team with 18 goals.

"What is so rare as a day in June"—then is when the softball sailors come into tune. It may be poor poetry, but it's pure baseball nevertheless. With Ki-Y, Neighbourhood, Senior City League, Girls' Softball and other leagues swinging into concerted action these days we are hereby making our annual appeal to the sponsors and managers of the various local teams, and this includes Point Anne and other nearby centres as well. This department is not composed of quintuplets but twins and cannot be expected to attend more than one game per evening, but if the team managers will leave their score cards at a central point in the downtown area, the sports department of the Ontario Intelligencer will endeavor to provide the additional publicity and publish the accounts of all games played. The Neighborhood loop managers are requested to leave their score cards with Chairman Doc Rose, while other softball managers can obtain publicity by cooperating and leaving their score cards at Eddie Thomas'. As the deadline for the sport pages of this O.F.J. is 9 a.m. precisely, this department would not only appreciate but gin preference to leagues and teams who co-operate to the extent of depositing their score cards on the night of the games played. Thanx.

Alderman "Derby" Jeffery has accepted the position of chairman of the sailing committee of the Belleville Yacht Club and the responsibilities of completely reorganizing the thrilling aquatic sport in the Ontario capital city. Commodore Maurice Callaghan tells us there are numerous business men in the city who are interested in sailing craft, but who have been unable to take active part in the Yacht Club's competitive activities. It is these men who are to be approached and asked to affiliate themselves with the local sailors. "We also intend to stage every other week's racing as a twilight affair off Victoria Park this year as an experiment. There are many lovers of the sport who cannot avail themselves of this water sport in the daytime, so by staging races in the early evening's twilight we hope to create additional public interest. Victoria Park is a cool spot in the summer evenings and the water is also more ideal for the citizens where they can cool off after a hard day's work and also enjoy our races. Then again we have such keen sailors as Bill Locke, Harold Holden and others, who own sailing craft, but who have never raced in club competition. Captain Callaghan and Callaghan as he looked optimistically upon the forthcoming season after sustaining fatal injuries in a motor accident.... There was one of the game's greatest players and undoubtedly an outstanding centre player.... Providing the war permits, sports will be continued at Queen's University next September.... Cy Wentworth, former Canadien N.H.L. player, will coach the Kingsway juniors next winter.

Record Jumps

Moscow from the sidelines announces a new parachute-jumping group record of more than 21,000 feet made by three officers of the Red Sea fleet. Such feats in peacetime manoeuvres will hardly compete for attention with the very practical demonstrations in parachute work now being staged by the Nazi forces. Probably it is the wish in Moscow to do nothing more than remind the world that the Soviet Union was the pioneer in experimenting with parachute warfare. If that is so, it is quite a case of the pupil leaving the teacher far behind. Soviet parachute work in the Finland raid was far from impressive.

The most impressive of all Soviet parachutist leaps was commented upon in this place months ago, and had nothing to do with attitude. It was the breath-taking parachute jump by witch Joseph Stalin himself in to Adolf Hitler's camp last August.—N.Y. Times.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Escape by sea of considerable numbers of Allied forces from the Flanders pocket and the continued embarkation of French, British and Belgian troops at the shattered port of Dunkirk indicates the German air force, despite its preponderance in numbers, is not all powerful.

It has been unable to keep the British navy from effecting the evacuation. German bombers in large numbers attempted to harass the operation but were repeatedly driven off by anti-aircraft fire and British fighter aircraft.

Ships of the Royal Navy carried troops across to England and gave effective protection to the transports engaged in the work.

All in all the operation bodes little good for the prospects of a German invasion of England. If the enemy air force could not succeed against the fire of ships and a numerically inferior air force in stopping this cross channel movement it may not be able to provide safe passage for German transports across the Channel.

Tragic as the necessity for this evacuation is the fighting leading up to it inflicted a heavy toll of loss on the Allies and demonstrated the courage and fighting spirit of the new British and French armies. They matched the Germans outnumbered their opponents three to one after the collapse of Belgian resistance.

The fighting of a successful rearguard action against such odds, coupled with German superiority in the air and in mechanical equipment, was a difficult operation and gives rise to hope for different results under circumstances more nearly equal for both sides.

The Difference

A Nazi in Berlin blocked the passage of a man in the street.

"Heil Hitler, Jew!" he commanded.

"Step aside for a Nazi."

The other, a good German citizen, looked at him with all the disdain of six years written on his face.

"I'm not a Jew," he said in a time voice—I do happen to look intelligent."—Exchange.

TOMMIES FEED A YOUNG REFUGEE

Fighting men faced with the arduous task of fighting their way through encircling German troops following the collapse of the Belgian army, British Tommies are shown here as they watched a comrade feed a youthful victim of the Nazi terror. A touching scene made as the British troops advanced to the relief of the gallant appeal from King Leopold.

A Trick That Failed

The Graf Spee, scuttled off Montevideo, had so far sunk at last reports that her 11-thousand tons are now only awash at low tide. In the years that are being made for salvage a curious discovery was made, according to the Montevideo correspondent of The Daily Telegraph of London. He says:

"I learned the Germans placed a torpedo nose upward in the ammunition hoist of the fore turret. They then suspended a weight of about 500 pounds over it by a wire running through a pulley-block. Either this wire failed to release or else fouled after being released. Anyway, the weight did not drop.

"It is stated that one of the German officers went on board the ship and indicated the danger to the local officials and how it could be rectified.

Accusing the committee of "scuttling the musical reputation" of the British seaside town of Bournemouth, a citizen protested against the decision to cut down the Municipal Orchestra and abandon summer symphony concerts.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 1 (CP).—Still influenced by uncertainties of the war, the stock market opened the new month with a drab display. Improvement was noticeable mainly in industrials.

Golds accounted for most of the meagre action. Only about 100,000 shares changed hands in the two-hour session.

Industrial price changes were mainly small fractions. Walkers Common firmed 1¼ to 33¼, Movers Common and Shawinigan advanced a point while losses of a point or more came out for Dominion Foundries, Canadian Locomotive, De Haviland Aircraft and some banks.

Imperial Oil, International Petroleum, Brazilian, Massey-Harris and Canada Bread were all gainers of fractions up to a half point.

Base Metals were slightly stronger and small gains showed for Smelters, Hudson Bay, Nickel, Pend. Oreille and Steep Rock.

Gold shares broke about even on losses and gains. Pioneer dropped 5 cents to a new low for the year at 200 and Canadian Malartic, Bellechasse, Little Long Lac and Aunor weakened a point. Against these were a number of narrow gains.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, June 1 (AP).—War imponderables continued to act as a drag on stock market buyers today and leading issues were permitted to slip fractions to a point or so.

While not drastic, declines were negligible from the start—trafters for the two hours approximated 300,000 shares, compared with 1,000,000 on Thursday—provided a little encouragement for bulling factors, few were disposed to reach for favorites because of fears Italy would enter the conflict.

Among resistant shares were American Telephone, Sperry, Allied Chemical and Phelps Dodge.

Canadian issues were steady. Fractional improvements were accorded Int. Nickel, Imp. Tobacco and Distillers Canada 4s, among bonds, dipped slightly.

Toronto Butter Prices Rise ¼c

Toronto, June 1—Only fractional price changes took place during the current week's session of the Toronto open produce market.

The butter market maintained a steady tone, prices across the Ontario product were lifted 1-4 cent per pound. Arrivals of fresh receipts have been on the light side for the week by the year and the buring to cover immediate requirements cleared offerings fairly well from day to day. Ontario No. 1 solids sold at 23 cents, although dealers were not offering Ontario butter as freely.

Supplies from storage and export sources kept supplies moving well on the egg market. Demand for domestic eggs was slow, however, and the market developed an easiey tone. Consequently, stocks and fresh receipts increased slightly. Grade A large eggs were in the market trend as substantial quantities of this grade were being shipped overseas. Receipts were liquidated promptly, packed lots still commanded premium prices.

The market for dressed poultry remained steady with light supply and demand only fair. Inquiries for chickens were also supplied mostly from storage stock. Receipts of live birds picked up. A few spring chickens appeared on the market. Two barrels of ducks were reported but were shifted here from Long Island, United States, consisting of ducklings and cooling 22c per pound, Toronto.

ITALY CALLS

co might play in the Italian fight to dislodge the British from Gibraltar.

Comments in the Italian Press left little doubt that Italy intends to enter the war, as an ally of Germany, but the question of precisely when Italy would enter the strife was veiled by a grim official silence.

The most significant new development was the appointment by the editorial in International Relations, leading foreign affairs commentator, to the post of Italy's territorial demands upon France and Britain "in the event of peace terms."

Public declaration of Italian policy appeared as Fascist leaders expressed resentment over the rejected armistice from Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italian political leader, to British authorities in Malta.

Major heads the Italian section of the Nationalist Party in the Maltese cabinet. Newspapers previously had played up articles on the maltreatment of Italian citizens in Malta.

Coincident with the clamor over Mizzi's arrest, papers gave big play to articles played up an article in Arriba, Fascist Party organ, attacking British "imperialism" in Gibraltar, which commands the westerly entrance to Mediterranean and is headquarters of the contraband control which already has drawn protested strong anti-Allied sentiment.

CANADA'S

ed or wounded.

Dedicated By King Edward VIII.

The stately Canadian memorial in the crest of Vimy Ridge was erected in remembrance of the 60,000 Canadians who gave their lives in the first Great War and was dedicated by King Edward VIII on July 26, 1936, in the presence of 6,000 veterans from the Dominion who had made the long pilgrimage to Flanders.

The monument was 225 feet long, 135 feet wide and towered 135 feet in the air. It was designed by Walter Allward, Toronto sculptor, and took fourteen years to construct.

Two thousand tons were hauled into the sky from the base of the memorial and a white-cowled heroic woman, representing motherhood, brooding over her dead sons who lie in the fields below, was the central figure in front of the pylons. Other heroic figures were at both ends of the memorial base.

The symbol of Canada's sorrow and achievement, as memorialized in Ridge on April 9, 1917, was dedicated by King Edward to the memory of the Vimy Pilgrimage and high dignitaries representing the Canadian, British and French governments.

Official Canadian representatives were Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Justice Minister, then Minister of National Defence and now Minister of Pensions and National Health, Ian Mackenzie, G.O.C. Power, then Minister of Pensions and National Health, and recently appointed Air Minister.

President Albert Lebrun of France represented his country at the dedication. The land on which the memorial stood was presented to the Canadian people by the French government as a token of gratitude to the memory of Canada's fighting men.

Many Attended

Attending the ceremony as guests of Canada were Rt. Hon. Sir Robert and Lady Borden, Rt. Hon. Sir George Foster, Rt. Hon. Sir Eugene Fiset, Wartime Deputy Minister of Militia, Lieutenant Sir Byng, widow of the Victor of Vimy, and Lady Currie, widow of Sir Arthur.

The Vimy Pilgrimage latest peacetime mass movement overseas from Canada, was organized by the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League and the National Vimy Pilgrimage Committee composed of representatives of National Veterans' organizations.

Performing the first official act on behalf of Canada after full dedication ceremonies, Mr. Power laid King George V regret, King Edward's wreath on the memorial and dedicated the white stone symbol.

In a short address, King Edward touched the heart of the commemoration when he said: "though the mortal remains of Canada's sons lie far from home, their memory will now stand on the ancient Artois hill their immortal memory in Canada's spirit and in the surety Canada's as any acre within her native bounds."

A message from Prime Minister Mackenzie King was read by Mr. Power and Mr. Lapointe and Mr. Mackenzie spoke.

The Memorial has been called one of the noblest in the world. Stone used in its construction was brought from Yugoslavia and was noted for its durability. Around the base of the ridge dug outs were retained as they were when occupied by members of the Dominion.

The side of the hill trees were planted, some of them taken from Canada as saplings. Avenues led toward the memorial which dominated the Douai Plain.

"As the ends of the base, one symbolic group of figures bears the British and Maple Leaves, and other the fleur-de-lys and laurel representing the glory of victory of France and Canada, which is being demonstrated again in the struggle against the same foe.

REPEATED GERMAN UNITS SELECTED

The infantry organization is changed by dropping the machine gun battalion from the division, machine gun units, the men who operate the guns, "fifteen guns" are now corps troops.

The new infantry brigade consists of three rifle battalions, designated as British rifles and have light machine guns in place of these rifle battalions and one machine gun battalion has been broken up as mobilized for the 1st and 2nd divisions.

Cameron Transferred

This officer is now responsible for one machine gun battalion mobilized for the 2nd Canadian Division transferred to the 3rd Division. It is the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa.

Probably this unit, along with the north York Scotia Highlanders, another machine gun unit called for the 3rd division and the Irish Regiment of Canada of Toronto, called for the 4th, will be converted into rifle battalions.

The field batteries in the new artillery will be increased to four batteries formerly and in 3rd Divisional Artillery each field battery will be increased to three batteries, in the non-permanent active militia. The 18th Field Battery, Kingston, however, will be drawn from only one field battery in the 3rd Division.

While the selection gives representation in all parts of the country the geographic grouping of units is interesting. Under the reformation of the 1st and 2nd Divisions is not strictly adhered to in the 3rd.

The 7th Infantry Brigade, for instance, brings together a battalion from Nova Scotia, one from Saskatchewan and two from Ontario units. The 8th Brigade consists of a battalion from Manitoba, one and one from Saskatchewan and one yet to be selected, the only province in the division.

Use of Machine Gun Battalions

Considerable criticism has been made of how the three machine gun battalions, mobilized, were used in the 1st Division or the other two machine battalions in the 2nd Division fell into the new divisional organization.

Originally, gun units play an important role in an army corps and the machine gun battalion of a corps troops serving either in their original units or as reinforcements throughout the winter are now in the hands of Major-General Crerar, Major-General Victor W. Odlum, Canadian Corps commander, on inspection tour of his command.

The staff of the 2nd Division was completed this week with the announcement of the appointments of brigade staff officers and commanding officers for the artillery, engineers, divisional artillery, divisional signals, divisional engineers.

This week was devoted to mobilize for the 3rd and 4th divisions and the training centres of our large cities and industrial towns is reviewed by the government each week.

The home-coming Toronto Scots, reinforcements for that corps commander' brilliant rear guard action, are now in Canada with their division and two divisions of General Rene Prevost, Quebec command are the only Allied troops still covering the Dunkirk retreat.

This would mean that only some 48,000 men were left in Flanders of the 400,000 British troops who originally were trapped.

Divisional Signal Corps, B.E.F. Commander-in-Chief, was likened by the British Prime Minister to Napoleon's Old Guard in the Peninsular war who saved his army from annihilation by fighting rear guard actions turning soldiers said "Lord Gort and his brilliant command" the rearguard fighting.

Council Meets.

While all of London's Evening papers proclaimed the Germans had been driven into the sea and hope to wipe out the B.E.F. in official announcement said that the Dominion War Council met yesterday in Paris and reached full agreement regarding all measures which the situation calls for.

Meeting at breakfast time Britons grabbed their papers with cheer as they saw early reports of the safe return of the bulk of their 'soldiers in the Flanders army had been snatched from the fiery hell of the beaches and hurried across the narrow channel waters.

Long strings of tug-hailed coal barges, private yachts, motorboats, pleasure craft, fishing boats and passenger craft and warships, the men were packed together, officers and brave women remained up night after night, pouring tea and coffee and food and cheer to nurse the injured.

Soldiers who had played football yesterday on the sand dunes of the French coast, exchanged their mud stained clothes so that they had to remain in hiding until new clothing could be issued to them. They had undergone such shelling and bombing as big into the Germans "The Navy", said that from a naval viewpoint Italy's entry into the war would be "little more than an annoyance to the Allies." Germany, on the other hand, it might well be disastrous."

Retired Marshal Sir Archibald Montgomery - Massingberg, former Chief of Imperial General Staff, said in peacetime, wrote that Mussolini was creating a new empire and would note enthusiasm among the ignorant youth of the nation, who think that it is going to be easy to be got out of the war.

"When the bombs begin to fall and the machine guns begin to rattle," he added, "the misguided enthusiasm will quickly fade away."

Retired Air Commodore L. R. O. Charlton, said: "The Allies with Italy would put the Allied air force in the defensive position.

"This was only adding fuel to the fiery demands for more planes" brought back by the bruised and weary Tommies rescued from Flanders.

Allied airmen were bold, daring and brave, the soldiers were the first to declare. But against a Nazi air fleet numbering three to every one said, the chief need was for more Allied planes of all types.

Extracts From Bacon Board Bulletin

During the period when importations of United States hogs were at large there was a heavy total consumption of hogs in the Canadian market, partly of low priced United States, and partly of higher priced Canadian product. The average price of domestic supplies was below the cost of Canadian hogs, but the margin over cost of the whole allowed the payment of export prices for the higher quality of Canadian hogs put into domestic consumption.

Now, however, it is necessary to distribute into domestic consumption all of the hogs that have ever been marketed, so disposed of plus the part that were being put into storage. The present is a time of crisis for the export trade. It will not be known for a few weeks at what price the domestic market will finally absorb the supply. This will depend to a considerable extent on the volume of hog marketings. The period of increasing seasonal consumption of pork products is approaching. For a time domestic consumption may have to be developed by means of price concessions but demand may soon meet supply.

Normally with an unrestricted export trade, prices values established hog prices. But there have often been exceptions to this. Sometimes during periods of heavy marketings when exports could not be stepped up fast enough to absorb all the surplus, domestic prices fell below export levels. During periods of low marketings domestic prices advanced. Examples of such conditions in the winter of 1936-37 illustrate the first condition and the season of 1938-39 the latter.

The price of hogs is now being adjusted to the average of export and domestic value for product. The present is a time of crisis. The implications involved in this situation. Until domestic values are more definitely known, it is wise to be cautious altitude is wise and necessary. The first consideration for the board is to see that the producers's all that is possible for his hogs. The present responsibility of the supply situation are as inevitable as the fall of the leaves in the autumn of the war. To say at the time to hog producers that everything is well would be folly. Nevertheless it appears quite plain that undue pessimism is equally foolish. It is a reasonable assumption that if Canada can maintain the present hog numbers as are possible under sound farm economy, Great Britain will require supplies of bacon hogs sooner than now anticipated.—Extract from Bacon Board Bulletin No. 41.)

"Parents who do not register their children by August 31 may find it a risk of not having their children taken away," MacDonald said.

He explained that "the situation requiring evacuation of our large cities and industrial towns is reviewed by the government each week."

The announcement of the appointment of Major-General Victor W. Odlum as commander of the 2nd Canadian Division brought the total number of Canadian officers now serving either in their original units or as reinforcements throughout the winter are now in the hands of Major-General Crerar, Major-General Victor W. Odlum, Canadian Corps commander on inspection tour of his command.

The staff of the 2nd Division was completed this week with the announcement of the appointments of brigade staff officers and commanding officers for the artillery, engineers, divisional artillery, divisional signals, divisional engineers.

This week was devoted to mobilize for the 3rd and 4th divisions and the training centres of our large cities and industrial towns is reviewed by the government each week.

The home-coming Toronto Scots, reinforcements for that corps commander' brilliant rear guard action, are now in Canada with their division and two divisions of General Rene Prevost, Quebec command are the only Allied troops still covering the Dunkirk retreat.

This would mean that only some 48,000 men were left in Flanders of the 400,000 British troops who originally were trapped.

Divisional Signal Corps, B.E.F. Commander-in-Chief, was likened by the British Prime Minister to Napoleon's Old Guard in the Peninsular war who saved his army from annihilation by fighting rear guard actions turning soldiers said "Lord Gort and his brilliant command" the rearguard fighting.

Council Meets.

While all of London's Evening papers proclaimed the Germans had been driven into the sea and hope to wipe out the B.E.F. in official announcement said that the Dominion War Council met yesterday in Paris and reached full agreement regarding all measures which the situation calls for.

Meeting at breakfast time Britons grabbed their papers with cheer as they saw early reports of the safe return of the bulk of their 'soldiers in the Flanders army had been snatched from the fiery hell of the beaches and hurried across the narrow channel waters.

Long strings of tug-hailed coal barges, private yachts, motorboats, pleasure craft, fishing boats and passenger craft and warships, the men were packed together, officers and brave women remained up night after night, pouring tea and coffee and food and cheer to nurse the injured.

Soldiers who had played football yesterday on the sand dunes of the French coast, exchanged their mud stained clothes so that they had to remain in hiding until new clothing could be issued to them. They had undergone such shelling and bombing as big into the Germans "The Navy", said that from a naval viewpoint Italy's entry into the war would be "little more than an annoyance to the Allies." Germany, on the other hand, it might well be disastrous."

Retired Marshal Sir Archibald Montgomery - Massingberg, former Chief of Imperial General Staff, said in peacetime, wrote that Mussolini was creating a new empire and would note enthusiasm among the ignorant youth of the nation, who think that it is going to be easy to be got out of the war.

"When the bombs begin to fall and the machine guns begin to rattle," he added, "the misguided enthusiasm will quickly fade away."

Retired Air Commodore L. R. O. Charlton, said: "The Allies with Italy would put the Allied air force in the defensive position.

"This was only adding fuel to the fiery demands for more planes" brought back by the bruised and weary Tommies rescued from Flanders.

Allied airmen were bold, daring and brave, the soldiers were the first to declare. But against a Nazi air fleet numbering three to every one said, the chief need was for more Allied planes of all types.

Many French Troops Reach England

Increasing numbers of General Prevost's French troops fought through German lines and reached England.

One small boatload of soldiers picked up two German airmen shot down during the retreat to the sack and brought them along. The prisoners were given sandwiches and coffee with their captors before being taken to a prison camp.

Some of this "second Coruna" (referring to Sir John Moore's retreat to the sea in Spain and Portugal in 1809) continued with high praise for the men behind, commanded by the rescue of most of those who reached Dunkirk was the chief subject.

"Every gun and every possible weapon was left behind," the first Press Association said, "will be hammered by the Germans to bring about this final and complete triumph."

British quarters emphasized that the operations in Flanders have been a "joint Allied affair," with French armies and navies working in "close unity with the British forces."

As Britain became more confident about the safety of children in the event of a German attack, it was announced that 97 more children will remove 47,000 children tomorrow from east and southeast coast areas to safer reception areas.

Health Minister MacDonald said that the government could not give "any guarantee that no bombs on any part of the country will be absolutely safe, but there is clearly less danger now to the less crowded population than in one densely packed."

Churchill, Allies Visit Paris.

No Intention to Split Allies

Major General Mastings L. Ismay is a member of Prime Minister Churchill's Chiefs of staffs Committee.

General Maxime Weygand is the new Generalissimo of France. Gen. Weygand is Chief of the French Mission to Canada in connection with the Canadian Army Overseas. Admiral Henri Petain is Vice-Premier of France, while Gen. Vuillemin is Commander of the Joint Allied War Economic Committee.

The purpose of the Allies' "closest possible concord" came out in the Supreme War Council meeting in considerable speculation over what steps the Allies might take to split Britain and France with separate peace offers as a result of Italy's entry into the war.

Admiral Sydney R. Freemantle, British naval expert, declares the "Navy", said that from a naval viewpoint Italy's entry into the war would be "little more than an annoyance to the Allies." Germany, on the other hand, it might well be disastrous."

NEW VEGETABLES PLANTS DOMINATE SATURDAY MARKET

While the usual number of Saturday vendors was not in evidence today, the large variable display of produce offered made up for any lack of sellers. New vegetables and flowering blooms turned the market into a colorful scene, and a large clientele made brisk transactions during the early hours.

Prices generally were steady with asparagus showing the only noticeable decline. Quotations on this vegetable varied in different places but generally it sold at half-pound bunches for 15c. Extra quality demanded 15c the pound, and in some quarters even this price was raised.

Onions and radishes, lettuce and rhubarb were in abundance and sold well at 5c the bunch with some vendors offering the first two at three bunches for 10c. Pansies, carnations and other blooms were offered at 10c and 20c the box.

Tomato plants, by far the best quality offered thus far were quoted at 75c for large flats. Small ones sold at 35c.

Onion seedlings were priced at 30c the box. Raspberry canes were offered at 2 cents each. Good quality cabbage plants were quoted at 10c the dozen.

Table and seed potatoes were everywhere in evidence with the former quoted at $1 the bag and the certified seed varieties at $1.25 and $1.50, according to quality. Other winter vegetables were steady at last week's prices.

In the inside market, egg quotations showed no change from last week's figures. Extra "A" selects sold at 25c the dozen, with other grades ranging downward to 21c. Butter prices were steady at 25c for two pound rolls.

Broiler chicken offerings were much lighter than usual, but good weighty birds sold well at the top price of $1.10. Other qualities ranged downward to as low as 60c. Last summer's chickens were offered at prices between 90c and $1.25. A few fowl moved slowly from 65c each.

Fresh whitefish and lake trout headed the fish offering, both selling at 20c the pound with a few cents extra for filleting and slicing. Muskats sold at two pounds for 25c and pike at 10c.

Young pigs in the heaviest offering were in the market opposite at prices between $4.50 and $5.50 each, brisk business was dull during the early hours, at least.

Nurses' Alumnae Sponsors Band Concert On Sunday Evening

To further their work for the Red Cross, the Nurses' Alumnae of this city is sponsoring a band concert to be held Sunday night in the Capitol Theatre when the R.C.A.F. Band, under the direction of Flight-Sergt. Cooper will present an excellent musical entertainment. The nurses' contribution to Red Cross has taken the form of donating and preparing surgical dressings. They have purchased all materials themselves and the concert is for the purpose of defraying the expense of additional supplies. Lieut. Fred Jobson will be chairman for the evening.

The concert tomorrow evening promises to be most interesting, featuring patriotic airs, popular numbers to be played by the R.C.A.F. orchestra, and such well known operatic and semi-classical numbers as the March, Entry of the Gladiators, Overture to Aïi Ia from Verdi's opera; Selection—Sounds from England, Cornet solo, Schubert's Serenade and Waltz Lolo du Dal. Mr. F. D. Bankier will be guest soloist.

It is hoped that the public will avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing a splendid band concert and of doing a bit for the Red Cross.

Low Prices of Pork Mean Small Profits; Farmers Dissatisfied

Dissatisfaction of the present price of pork among farmers of this district was evidenced on the city market here on Saturday, when one of the largest offerings of young pigs in years was offered for sale. Prices ranged between $4.50 and $5.50 each.

Consensus of opinion among those offering the stock for sale was that the margin of profit was so small after expenses had been paid, that trading of the animals was out of the question.

A shortage of feed, not unusual at this time of the year, and the prices of grain and feed as compared to that of pork, was another factor that enters in the picture, farmers stated.

"The price of eight cents, which has scarcely changed for the past six weeks, does not warrant farmers the trouble of raising the animals," one said.

That the feeling was general among rural residents, was brought out in the fact that sales were practically nil. Farmers, generally appeared to be shy at purchasing the animals at the present time and those offering for sale were forced to return home with their stock.

About ninety pigs were offered for sale.

The enemy, showing the importance he attaches to the passage (of French troops) over the Somme (to the northern bank), counter-attacked in this region. This counter-attack was repulsed."

The War This Week

(By Don Gilbert Canadian Press Cable Editor).

King Leopold's untimely surrender of the Belgian army rendered the already difficult position of the British and French forces in Flanders untenable in the 20th week of the war, and only the undaunted fighting qualities of the troops and the military acumen of the officers prevented a total defeat.

The Belgian army constituted fully half of the Allied force in Flanders, cut off from the main body of the French army, and its capitulation opened up an entire flank to the full weight of the German armored divisions. Withdrawal was the only course open, and, while the troops fought in fierce combat at the rear and on the flanks, the gradual move to the sea began.

At Dunkirk and other ports in the area the British and French navy and ships, and, under the worst punishment the German air force could deliver, thousands of soldiers were embarked and carried across the channel to the south of England. Up to Saturday morning all but about 45,000 men had been evacuated.

King Leopold surrendered the Belgian army without notifying the commanders of the British and French forces in Flanders. The Belgian government established itself in France and declared its intention of carrying on the war with all the resources at its command.

Regroup Armies

The fine fight of the British and French troops in Flanders afforded the Allied Commander in Chief, General Weygand, valuable time in which to regroup his armies and consolidate the new line from the English Channel along the valleys of the Somme and the Aisne to the northern tip of the Maginot Line at Montmedy. If the Germans attempt to reach Paris this is the front that will have to be attacked.

If a blitzkrieg on the British Isles will find the British people ready, is proposed as an alternative, denied to fight back. Defence preparations were hurried in every part of the Kingdom during the week and General Sir Edmund Ironside, among the best of British soldiers, was put in supreme command of the home forces.

The reverse in Flanders put new life into the war effort throughout the Empire. Important measures were announced in Ottawa. New Zealand introduced a special powers act similar to that passed last week by the British Parliament. It provides for conscription to manpower and wealth. India undertook to raise 100,000 more men for her army and to quadruple her air force.

Defection of the Belgian King served to increase Italian fervor for entering the war on Germany's side. It was indicated in Rome that Italian action, if taken, will come without warning. But Allied powers are prepared.

Sculptor Saddened by News Vimy Memorial is Shattered By Blasts of German Bombs

W. S. Allward Hopes Damage is Not Irreparable—Models of Figures Are in Ottawa — Bronze Not Used for Figures in Memorial Lest it Might be Used for Munitions

Toronto, June 1 (CP).—Sculptor Walter S. Allward today received with great sadness eye-witness reports from London that German bombers have deliberately shattered Canada's Vimy War Memorial which he designed and on which he labored for fourteen years.

(British Tommies returning from Flanders told of Nazi bombing planes wrecking the memorial with its twin shafts that towered 140 feet over the Plain of Douai. They said also that the bombers deliberately wrecked Canadian, British and French cemeteries nearby.)

"I only hope the reports are not true," the 65-year-old sculptor told The Canadian Press at his home in suburban York Mills. "It seemed inevitable, however, that this terrible thing would happen in these terrible days. The Huns have gone quite mad.

"It seems like such a wanton thing. The memorial, you know, is in an open field. It isn't in the heart of a village and there aren't any military objectives nearby—only the cemeteries in the neighborhood and clear ground all around."

Sad Commentary on Civilization

Allward expressed hope the $1,000,000 memorial, which commemorated the valorous deeds of Canada's first Great War Dead, might not be beyond repair. He said:

"Is it a sad commentary on civilization," he continued, his voice husky with emotion. "I really can't say any more about it at the present time.

"We couldn't help but think that another war might come, that some day all our work might go like that—" he snapped his fingers.)

"So we carved the figures of stone, instead of casting them in bronze —bronze figures might be melted down for munitions if war came again."

Blocks of Stone and Models of Figures

"I had them bring several huge blocks of stone from the quarries of Yugoslavia, more than we needed for the two columns. They are buried deep in the earth nearby. I thought they might some day be needed for repairs. And half-size models of all the figures are stowed away at Ottawa."

Paris, June 3 (AP)—The first of many bombed Paris this sunny afternoon for the first time in nine months of war, killing 35 persons and wounding many.

Unofficial reports said between 350 and 300 German planes took part in the attack on Paris and its environs.

The number of casualties in the built-up areas of the city was well above 100.

Columns of smoke rose tonight from industrial suburbs of the capital where heavy damage was inflicted.

The bombing appeared to have been a reprisal raid following Nazi attacks on Southern France Saturday and a French reply in the Ruhr yesterday.

Many buildings were wrecked, numerous fires started and streets ripped up.

Why The Weather?

By MAJOR A. H. Thiessen

Wind and the barometer! The question is asked. Everyone knows that air tends to move from high pressure to low air pressure. In the free air, say 1500 feet high, a difference of about .025 inch between places 15 miles apart will cause a 20-mile breeze. A difference will be less at the surface than aloft, due to friction, less over a land surface than over a water surface, and still less in a city than in the open country.

SEVEN HUNDRED "FIFTH COLUMN" SUSPECTS HELD

Seized in Weekend Roundup and Sent to Internment Camps in Upper and Lower Egypt

POLICE ON GUARD

Alexandria, June 3—(AP)—Seven hundred "fifth column" suspects, seized in a week-end roundup, were sent today to internment camps in upper and lower Egypt.

Approximately 600 of the suspects were seized in Cairo and the remainder in Alexandria. All were held under strong guard to await trial before military tribunals.

Premier Aly Maher Pasha, meanwhile, said the government is studying new regulations to assure the nation's internal security in view of the tense situation in the Mediterranean.

Fully equipped soldiers with fixed bayonets stood guard over telegraph and telephone systems. Heavy guards also were posted at railway stations, bridges and strategic points along highways and canals.

Police Patrol Streets

Police armed with rifles patrolled the streets.

Authorities prepared to requisition trains and other transport facilities quickly to remove children and aged persons from Alexandria if Egypt is attacked.

Reports of negotiations between Italy and Britain over contraband control underscored diplomatic activity. The Premier conferred with General Henry Maitland Wilson, commanding officer of the British forces in Egypt; Ambassador Sir Miles Lampson and the Italian Minister, Seafino Mameli. After a few in official circles that the Mediterranean situation might be clarified after the scheduled meeting of Premier Mussolini and Hitler in Rome Tuesday.

The newspaper La Bourse Egyptienne said that only 100 persons had been taken into custody since police started a roundup of undesirables May 21.

Among the women 11 men held as suspected accomplices in the assassination of Sheik Abdel Raouf Abdel Zaher, member of Parliament who was shot to death from ambush May 30.

'Nazis Leaders Advise Hitler, Italy Must be Kept Out of War'—Tabouis

Paris, June 3—(CP-Havas) — Nazi leaders led by Marshal Hermann Goering have strongly advised Hitler that Italy must be kept out of the war, both to prevent her from sharing in any possible loot and to keep her pliable to German ambitions, Genevieve Tabouis wrote today in L'Oeuvre.

Goering was described by the commentator as further arguing that Italy's participation would ensure the Fuehrer to exact eventual vengeance for Italy's anti-German role in the last war.

According to Mme. Tabouis, a poll on the question was taken among reichsleiters by Alfred Rosenberg, the Reich's Nazi "ideologist."

"Germanic supremacy in Europe is inconceivable if it is soiled by alien influences. It would consequently be best to keep Italy out of the war, so she would have no pretension to profit from it later victory.

"Furthermore the Gauleiters and chiefs of the Reich's ranking functionaries are rabid Italophobes. They are all persuaded of the inferiority of the Fascist organizations and Italian army as compared to the German people and National Socialism.

"It is felt that they have the right to impose all German systems and methods on the Italians. They believe that only a non-victorious Mussolini could bow to the orders of the Fuehrer and, in short, accept German superiority.

"Marshal Goering is the most anti-Italian in the Germany immediate entourage. He has repeated that, to his mind, the Italians merit no consideration."

The reason given for the postponement was that several nations had requested more time to prepare exhibits.

The postponement came as residents of Turin, Italy's big industrial centre close to the French frontier, were urged by the Press to depart for country districts as the nation quietly pressed general mobilization steps in apparent preparation for war.

BOMBS DROPPED AT FOREST ROW

Southern England Visited by Raiders but Little Damage Done

London, June 3 — (CP) — Two bombs were dropped today at Forest Row, Sussex, in southern England caused some damage.

The bombs left craters several yards wide and damaged nearby buildings.

Shortly before the explosions, the inhabitants were awakened by the roar of an airplane.

One woman was reported injured by flying glass.

The bombs fell near a boys' school, but the only damage consisted of broken windows.

A joint communique by the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security said "an unidentified aircraft dropped two bombs in the country district at Sussex early this morning. No casualties were caused and little damage was done."

Villagers expressed the belief that the raider had lost his way and simply jettisoned his bombs that it might be the mating gestures as if signalling before they fell.

There was no sound of gunfire but British fighting planes were heard.

New York, June 3 — (AP)—Joseph Schenck, President and Board Chairman of the 20th-Century-Fox Film Corporation, was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury today on 24 counts of income tax fraud, conspiracy and making false statements to a government investigator.

The indictments resulted from a three-months inquiry.

Schenck's bookkeeper, Joseph Sedgwick, was named a co-defendant.

Two indictments specified that Schenck had defrauded the government of more than $400,000 in taxes from 1935 to 1937.

The indictments said Schenck had fraudulently deducted from his gross income "losses" registered by ostensibly selling stock to friends in Hollywood, and that he had written off as business expenses amounts that actually were personal.

The movie executive was charged with perjury in statements to James Rosapepe, an internal revenue bureau investigator, who questioned him in May, 1938, while investigating the income of William Bioff, an official of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees who was sent to jail in Illinois recently on an old pandering conviction.

If convicted on all charges, Schenck would face a maximum prison term of 107 years and fines of $160,000.

Moscowitz, named only in the second of two indictments, said Schenck charged with helping Schenck evade taxes, would face, if convicted, a maximum of 17 years and a fine of $40,000.

Schenck is also a defendant in the Government's broad anti-trust prosecution of the major movie firms, which was scheduled to start in Federal Court next October.

In the Bioff investigation, one of the indictments said, Schenck "did not tell the truth about $100,000 turned over to the union executive by Schenck's nephew, Arthur Bietzbach."

NAZI PROPAGANDA SEEKS TO FOMENT HYSTERIA OF FEAR

New York Editor is Informed Nazis Determined to Distract U.S. Attention from Europe

BOMB PLOT STORIES

New York, June 3—(AP)—Henry Floor, Editor of Time and Life magazines, said today he had been informed by a trustworthy source that propagandists are making a determined efforts to foment 5th American alarm and bomb plot stories in an effort to distract the country from what is going on in Europe.

His would be easy, he said, in view of the actual danger spots existing in the western hemisphere. This way, he said, "the Nazis will alarm Americans."

He declined to discuss any purpose of the supposed propaganda, but a fear hysteria here would do much toward halting further Allied purchases of war materials, such as airplanes.

The source of the information, he said, could not be disclosed, but it was one which has been usually accurate previously.

Duke of Northumberland and Heir to Viscountcy of Falmouth Killed at Dunkirk

London, June 3 (CP)—An authoritative source said tonight that the withdrawal of British and French forces from northern France is still going on.

Those taken out by the French navy were expected to be now in France and it was extremely difficult to give even an estimate of the number being taken out in the dual withdrawal.

The Allied fleets and air force poured tons of explosives into German forces seeking to close in on Dunkirk while efforts were made to evacuate the last few thousand Allied troops. The evacuation officially ended with the escape of about 335,000 men. Another 175,000 British troops in the area, not to mention several thousand French and some Belgians who came to England with their comrades.

NAZIS CALL FOR WORLD HEGEMONY

In Event of Victory Would Set Up Tariff Wall, Says French Writer

Paris, June 3 (CP-Havas)—Nazi long-range policy calls for extension of industrial development in the Americas via complete German-Italian economic domination of all Europe, Jacques Blun reported today in Le Journal.

According to the writer, German policy as regards the United States was mapped well in advance of the war, "it provides," he said, "for inevitable establishment of a tariff wall over the New World against the European continent entirely dominated by the German-Italian bloc.

"The latter, once master of Europe and raw materials, would therefore have a formidable weapon which applied to the United States, would provoke such economic, political and social disturbances that the dictatorships could look to expanding their hegemony to the two American states without great risk."

People Sat Calmly at Cafe Tables As Paris Suffers Heavy Air Raid

By ROBERT OKIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, June 3—(AP)—Three bombs fell 150 yards from where I was lunching today in the brilliant sunshine of a June day.

The cafe trembled as though in an earthquake, and the shrill whine of bombs was plainly audible before the explosives crashed just around the corner.

One flattened a post office. Another, 150 yards away, crashed nearly took the corner off an apartment house. A third fell diagonally into the cellar of a bank, leaving the bank standing.

For an area of a block around where each bomb struck, the streets were littered with glass and mortar.

In the distance black smoke was rising from a fire and the air was thick with dust for half an hour after the bombs dropped.

People sat calmly at tables in the cafe as the bombs fell. One man called for more wine in between explosions. Several score officers laid down their forks, but continued to eat calmly. A few people went into the basement.

Military Observers Predict Lull Lasting from Three Days to Two Weeks Before Nazi Machine is Ready for Another Assault

Paris, June 3—(AP) — German land, sea and air forces renewed savage attacks on Dunkirk today, a military spokesman said, making evacuation of the remaining Allied forces there "increasingly difficult."

The Nazi attacks failed, however, to halt the withdrawal operations, the spokesman declared, largely due to the work of the British and French air forces which covered the exodus successfully.

PONTIFF CONFERS WITH NUNCIO

On Sunday He Deplores Treatment Accorded Non-Combatants

Vatican City, June 3 (AP).)—Pope Pius XII conferred today with Monsignor Francesco Borgongini Duca, Papal Nuncio to Italy.

What the Pontiff discussed with the Nuncio in a private audience in the Pope's library was not disclosed, but observers foreign observers presumed their talk concerned the possibility of Italy entering the war.

European belligerents whom he did not name are far from conforming to the principles of humanity" in their treatment of non-combatants, the Pope declared yesterday in an appeal to the countries at war "to remember always those duties of humanity which do not lose any of their value under war law and necessity."

In reply to greetings from his Cardinals on his name day, the Pontiff said that "we are moved by neither partisanship nor prejudice in raising our voice in upholding "our anguish in seeing how the treatments of non-combatant peasants in more than one area is far from conforming to the principles of humanity."

In extending this paternal love "to all our sons and daughters, both those of the German population and those of the Allied states," the Pope deplored he widening scope of the war.

He said populations in occupied areas should be treated "as, in a similar case, an invaded would like to see his own citizens treated."

German Raids Staged To Impress Italy Says Observer

Paris, June 3—(AP)— Continued excursions by German bombing and reconnaissance squadrons into southeastern France and in the Paris zone were reported today by a military spokesman, who declined to give details of the results.

The spokesman, echoing views expressed yesterday by Telefrance News Agency, expressed belief that the display of German air strength in southern France had a "political significance."

French commentators had suggested that raids on the Rhone valley over the week end, in which at least 56 persons were killed and 100 injured, were carried out to impress Italy with the ability of the German air force to assist on a possible new southern front.

Whole Nazi Division Wiped Out at Rethel

New York, June 3—(AP)— A British Broadcasting Corporation announcement in German, heard here by National Broadcasting Company, said an entire German division had been wiped out by French forces near Rethel during a German assault on French position. The report did not say when the fight occurred.

In a report from Paris, an N.B.C. correspondent said French sources had declared Germany's losses in Flanders in the last 23 days totaled 600,000 men, thirty-fifths of the Nazi tanks and 2,000 of their first line planes.

POLICE COURT

After being dismissed from custody on a charge of intoxication, Jack Hurdle was arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court. Claude Hurdle of Frankford found himself facing an additional charge of driving a motor vehicle without first having obtained a licence. Hurdle pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs on the second count.

Hurdle and James Mair, Frankford, were arrested by P. C. Taylor last week and remanded in custody on nominal charges of vagrancy. Police officials took stock on their possession of scrap iron which was found in the rear of an old motor car driven by Hurdle. The charges of vagrancy were dismissed against both.

His Worship delivered judgment in the case of Mair and was presented last Thursday when Frederick Dryden, Tweedsmuir Township farmer, was convicted of failing to provide nourishment for his cattle. Counsel in this matter are rather high and therefore providing the accused man pays the costs and assurance is provided that his cattle will be adequately taken care of in the future, that should be sufficient penalty. If he does not meet these requirements his cattle will have to be confiscated," concluded His Worship. G. N. Bristol, local barrister appearing on Mr. Dryden's behalf, assured the court that the court orders would be fulfilled to the letter.

Given Time To Pay.

A soldier of the C.A.S.F. appeared on a charge of intoxication and admitted his guilt. He was given time to pay the conventional $10 fine. "This man wielded a knife and was generally disturbing the peace when arrested," declared the prosecutor," revealed Chief Hidd.

"Is that true?" asked that black eye" quarrel Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., as the observer's discolored optic on the soldier's face. The latter smiled knowingly. Two drunkenness charges were given fourteen days in default of the payment of fines and costs and the latter being convicted of intoxication.

Two domestic cases concluded the proceedings, the first finding the evidence in the second case, during which he complainant suggested the husband join the army, His Worship declined to comply with the suggestion and the husband will join the army, His Worship declined to comply with the suggestion and the husband will join the army, His Worship declined to comply with the suggestion and the husband will

by BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

"Wemp, wait! The charts—what of them?"

He flashed her a sidelong glance, looked quickly away. "We take them with us, of course, beautiful."

Again his words had been a shade too casual. And suddenly she understood why he had looked so grave when he learned they could not take the charts and leave the model behind. Ikeda at the point of a gun, might let them go if he believed they were leaving him the charts. But—

"Kemp, you told me tonight that lives would mean nothing to Ikeda, balanced against possession of those charts. Do you think, then, he'd not risk his own life to keep them? What if he refuses to bargain, orders—"

He laid a finger playfully across her lips. His laughing eyes, so close to her own were feverish in their brilliance. "You'd be amazed, sweet, at how potent a persuader is the muzzle of an automatic, applied to the human vertebrae! Just try it, sometime, and see—"

"Don't quibble, Kemp. What if Ikeda should ignore the consequences to himself and order his men to—to shoot you?"

He tried to answer carelessly, but she saw his eyes darken, his face go grim. "If he should, the men would doubtless obey. But in that case, darling, you'd never need worry any more about Ikeda."

She stood silent, stunned by the shock of sudden realization. She knew now that this was what Kemp really expected to happen. He would do his best to put through his forlorn hope of gaining command of the Dragon. But he intended without fail, to remove the personal menace of Ikeda from her path. "To place himself in a position where he could with certainty call the Japanese—while being killed himself.

"Oh, Kemp," she whispered, nearer to loving him in that moment than ever before. But he did not hear. His bare blond head was bowed over the automatic, testing the slide, inspecting the loaded clip. She thought how sharply even his face looked, of a sudden. Then she realized that the light striking across it was no longer moonlight, but the first gray streak of dawn.

Her watch said two o'clock. Soon now the early Alaska sun would be flooding the sky with hope. How many, many times she and Kemp had risen early to watch a sunrise from the deck of the speeding Dragon. . . . Tears filled her throat. This might be the last sunrise they would ever see together. She moved her head to look past him over the miles and miles of foam-patterned swells. One of them, lifting the Dragon, let her glimpse a rosy patch on the far horizon.

"The sun, Kemp. It's coming up already."

He glanced up in the direction toward which her face was turned. "No, beautiful. That's too far south for the sun. Must be—" His eyes widened with sudden interest. "It's a sail—the signals of a big square-rigger, catching the first rays of a sun that's still below our horizon. There was growing excitement in his whisper now. "She's under full sail, too—in a wind like this! And making knots. . . . Coming up on us like an ocean greyhound!"

Abruptly he reached through the opening and thrust the automatic back into her hand. "Darling, this changes everything. That ship will overtake us before my watch ends—perhaps before Ikeda wakes. When she draws close enough, I'll go to the top of the cabin and semaphore a message. Afterward, with luck we can both slip overboard, swim for it, and be picked up before anyone aboard here knows we're gone."

"Ye-a-a." Sondra spoke doubtfully. "But if that ship holds her present course, Kemp, I'm afraid she will pass much too far away to read your signals."

"I know, darling. But I've got a hunch—" He broke off to nod and wave an indolent hand toward the wheelhouse. Then rapidly, without moving his lips, he whispered, "Slip back to your stateroom, quick. Wait there for me. The helmsman has just sighted the windjammer, and I must go talk to him a moment."

In the Glory's after cabin, the five men who had the dinner table were discussing Ikeda. The Forest Man was saying, "I've always wondered what was important enough to hold Ikeda in Sitka. Now it's clear—O'Moore's charts. He learned of the old banya passage through Starbuck, of course, and used it to enter Echo House at will."

Captain O'Moore nodded grimly, as if remembering how freely he had always talked before Starbuck. "But why should he be takin' me gurl away with the charts?"

"I've some ideas about that," replied Mayes. "Ikeda either guessed or guessed the hiding place of the charts, only after the plane brought him in from Juneau. We know Miss O'Moore returned to Sitka at almost that same time. I believe Ikeda went up to the house to get the ship model, was surprised there by Miss O'Moore, and was thus compelled to take her with him. He wouldn't overlook her value as a hostage, either. As something to bargain with in an emergency."

O'Moore spoke slowly. "Then if we overtake Ikeda before he reaches the Jap cruiser, he'll trade us Sondra for his safety. Otherwise—" his eyes took on a bleak look—"he'll make sure she never has a chance to talk."

There was silence for a moment, because none could dispute the unpleasant truth. The Forest Man finally admitted, "I fear you're right. For Ikeda, a cannery employee, to abduct your granddaughter—that's one thing, Captain. If apprehended his government could and would deny all knowledge of him and his acts, and let him take his medicine. But for Commander Ikeda to carry off Miss O'Moore on board a warship of the Imperial Japanese Navy —that's something altogether different. Something neither he, nor his government, could ever afford to let come to the ears of our State Department. We must face this fact, gentlemen. Also the further fact that Ikeda, on his past record, is a cold-blooded realist, and has no scruples whatever at his mercy."

"Not quite," interposed Reynall, with a sympathetic glance at O'Moore's ravaged face. "You forget, Starbuck is aboard the Dragon. Little as I like him, I don't believe he would let any real harm come to Sondra if he could help it." He kept the talk on Starbuck until the Forest Man asked Mayes, "Do you happen to know how he ever got himself into such rotten company?"

The eyes of the Naval Intelligence Officer took on a remembering look. "It began with delta," he said. "Gambling debts. Kemp Starbuck Colfax was one of the most promising young officers that ever came out of Annapolis. Fine family, both sides, though a bit cone-to-seed financially. Charming personality, generous to a fault, and a genius for mechanical construction and airplane gunnery. To him, chiefly, is due the credit for a new type of heavy-calibred gun in our present planes. And he but tears out of the Academy at the time of designing it.

"Ironically that, coupled with his weakness for gambling is what ruined him. Nippon is always lying in wait for such as he. He was edged along until they had him hopelessly bogged down in a morass of debt. Then they began putting on the squeeze—with the plans of that gun as their payment price. Naturally, my department hadn't been completely blind to this. One night, at Coronado Beach, we walked in on Kemp Starbuck Colfax and a pair of Jap agents who were taking over a full set of gun drawings from him.

"Later, it developed that those drawings were not of the successful gun at all, but of one that had proved a complete failure. But by that time the affair couldn't be kept under hatches. The arrest made newspaper headlines, and Kemp had to answer a general court on half a dozen charges, including one of conspiracy to betray military secrets.

"Kemp claimed he had only been trying to put over a fast one on the Japs—playing a lone hand to get himself out of their financial clutches, and leave them with some worthless drawings. The court martial did not convict him on the more serious charges but, after the string given the sorry mess, they could hardly do less than hold him guilty of neglect of duty. He was not allowed to resign; but he might as well have been hobtailed, so far as the effect on public sentiment was concerned. Everywhere he went, the finger followed him. Personally, I believe him innocent of the first charges; and I believe he got a raw deal at Coronado. But he certainly seems heart and soul in with Alaska now."

"I hardly think that," said the Forest Man, "for he added, compassionately, "I can see how it happened. Everywhere he went the faces of his own kind were turned against him, even though his own outfit had found him not guilty. The Japanese, as Mayes said, are always on the lookout for such situations. They offered him quiet, tactful sympathy. A chance to make a fresh beginning in a country where no one had ever heard of him. He was no doubt smarting under what he considered a raw deal from his own country when he took the job of president of the Japanese-owned American Packing Company."

Mayes commented a shade accusingly, "But he knew he was made president of the outfit only as a means of getting around the law which requires a foreign-owned corporation to be headed by an American citizen."

"Yes. But there's nothing very wrong in that. And he personally, attended strictly to putting up fish—until Ikeda came down. Although he must have known for some time that his small boats were actively mapping the waters around Sitka, instead of fishing."

Captain O'Moore broke in. "Twould have saved some trouble had someone given me a hint about Starbuck."

"I did, sir," asserted Reynall. "The very day I arrived in Sitka."

"What's this?" O'Moore frowned accusingly. "Divil a word have ye ever peeped to me of such a matter."

"Old Grandpa, sir. You gave me no chance to open my mouth about anything. If you remember, But I told Sondra, and I assumed she had told you."

"Not a word! And 'tis hard to believe she'd keep a thing like that from me. When did you tell her?"

The evening of the day Ivrechel Sitka. You possibly recall that our first interview ended with your ordering me out of your house, sir." Reynall smiled slightly. "When Sondra was showing me to the door, I asked her to be in the cupola at nine o'clock that night, so that I could talk to her from the old 'talking pipe' between Twin Islands, and explain my position. I had an important interview with you coming up next day, and I felt sure if you understood that my aunt and I planned to stop the canning machinery out of the Glory at the end of the season and restore her to her old status, you'd feel more friendly toward us."

"Ye told Sondy that—about the Glory?"

"Certainly. That night as she stood in the cupola. And I had more to tell her. You see, I met Starbuck when I landed and thought his face familiar. After my first interview with you, I saw him again on his wharf talking to a couple of Japs. Then I remembered—his picture had been pretty prominent in the newspapers at the time of his court martial and always coupled with something about the 'Japanese Spy Ring'. That evening after I'd told Sondra our plans for the Glory I very guardedly warned her against letting you get involved in any way with Starbuck. I couldn't go into detail, of course, but I told her to be sure to meet me the next morning so I could explain my suspicions and—"

"Did she meet you?"

"No. That was the morning you wriggled out of your contract with us, sir. I was pretty mad when I left you: Too mad to talk to her when she stopped me outside in the hall. Then, right way, you tied up with Starbuck. I couldn't go into detail, of course, but I told her to be sure to meet me the next morning with an endeavor to undermine a competitor."

SPIRIT HAS TRIUMPHED

Flesh, blood and spirit triumphed. Germans might make the pocket or triangle in Flanders a veritable inferno of fire, shot and shell and of the wildest bedlam of sounds of war, but the spirit of the British and French defenders of Flanders and the Belgians who kept on fighting after others had bowed to King Leopold's order to surrender, refused to be daunted. They fought their way to the Channel coast and were taken across in the greatest sea movement of troops ever recorded in history. Little ships, pleasure boats and every kind of craft joined the group in rescuing the heroic legions to England and the Allies still held their front from back Hitler's grey hordes.

In all annals nothing has equalled this rearguard battle against overwhelming the Hun could hurl at them. Allied warcraft threw a shield, a protecting wall of fire around these gallant sons of Britain, France and Belgium.

The spirit of freedom has again demonstrated itself. The resourcefulness of the Allies, the initiative, the initiative and the brilliant tactics of the Allied command have triumphed.

Not all the stockings of the Nazi press in belittlement of this great deed with its heroic sacrifice and effort can keep these facts from human knowledge. Practically all the world knows the German is now knows the truth. The Germans dare not tell their people.

VIMY RIDGE MEMORIAL

Canada's war memorial at Vimy Ridge has been blasted by the German dive bombers, according to British Tommies who have come out of the battle of Flanders with glory, despite the determination of Adolf Hitler, the Fuehrer of the Huns, to destroy or to annihilate the British Expeditionary Force.

The vandal enemy bombers cannot destroy the spirit of the Vimy Memorial, though they shatter its pylons and splinter the stocks of arms. The story is written in Canadian hearts and is being repeated by Canadians serving with the R.A.F. and will be repeated by Canadians of all arms of the service in the coming battle of the war.

Individual German bombers did this work of vandalism of dropping bombs on the memorial. These Nazis are fired by the spirit of their leaders that of reliance in destruction. Here the aim is to wipe out vestiges of the defeat of pan-Germanism in the last war but they cannot do that for to achieve that they would have to destroy history. It is part of world civilization that the Canadians fought at Vimy Ridge and not all the bombs and tanks and parachutists from beyond the Rhine can wipe this page out of history. It is now part of the soul of the world civilization.

But just the same Adolf Hitler, the dauber and pretender at art, has wrecked one of the finest works of art in the name of a host of many that seeks to conquer the world by destroying all other culture and civilization itself. Hitler has said that he has the spirit of an artist, but it is the spirit of the bomber that he has, the spirit of vengeance and ruthlessness, the spirit of destruction.

A look at pictures of German units, particularly paratechutists, and tank corps, show how this spirit has permeated the men in these units. They take destruction as the main thing. They have the gang instinct.

Veterans of the former war noticed this characteristic of the Germans that they could be held in the mass but rarely could perform individual deeds of heroism. That is the instinct of the pack.

Germany has wrecked and destroyed many things. She has as far as she is concerned destroyed the soul of honor, she has exalted treachery and deceit, she has driven countless millions from their homes, young and aged, sick and infirm, to travel the highways, to slink through the woods, to find a place where the Hun spirit of evil is not to be found. Little children are not allowed the free development that nature intended them to enjoy, they must flee. But even death cannot kill yearnings of the spirit. Even out of the battle field, out of the wanderings of the poor refugees shine these forces of life, that the Hun would crush under his feet but cannot. He can blast with bombs the stately glistening memorial to Canada's dead, but their service has been rendered to mankind, and the explosives of Nazis, all the vileness of Nazi hearts, cannot wipe out the significance of Vimy. This memorial stands for peace that came after great sacrifice, it was an expression of the human yearning for a perpetuity of peace, though even as it was being dedicated, there was great anxiety felt that perhaps soon again Germany would be at her work of destruction. Such has proven all too true.

But new Vimy victories are being performed by the Allies as in the present withdrawal in history, when Britain and France saved over one hundred thousand men from Flanders.

What cannot men of the spirit of these men do? What cannot men of the spirit of the Canadians at Vimy do? They are fighting against the laws of life for the Hun to be able to prosper and fasten his savage, destructive hold of life and mankind on the world which detests Nazlism.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

How Many Cases of Hay Fever and Asthma Could be Prevented

If you were a millionaire, money for some poor blind person or a crippled child, you would find that practically every body that could help would do so. There is something about the sad appearance of the blind and the crippled that brings a responsive frown on all.

However, when the medical health officer of a municipality asks for an appropriation to cut down the incidence of a disease known to prevent the spread of hay fever, he is told that there is no support. The average member of a council even if one of the sufferers himself, says hay fever simply says, "it's only a severe head cold; it will go away when the first frost weather comes".

Several these councillors, legislators, or other representatives of the people do not realize that that hay fever is the starting point for a large percentage of the deaths of Canadians. Bronchitis, bronchial pneumonia and pneumonia. Added to this is the fact that asthmatics are in every three hay fever sufferers develops asthma. Asthma is the patient suffering a severe attack of asthma should catch the symptoms of us all with its desperate gasping for breath, and the suffocative appearance of the patient.

Can this hay fever with the distress it causes be prevented?

It is estimated that about three million people in the United States and Canada are afflicted with hay fever in the Autumn, 80 per cent of the cases are caused by the pollen of ragweed. All that is necessary to prevent hay fever treatment and later suffering is for the municipalities to cut down the ragweed before the pollen is carried by the wind to these unfortunate people who are sensitive or allergic to ragweed. This has been successfully done where this has been done in a thorough manner.

Dr. H. B. Anderson, Toronto, in appealing to the Ontario government for its rigid enforcement of the ragweed act in this province, that public spirited, intelligent, law-abiding citizens should have to suffer on account of the carelessness or neglect of selfish neighbours, that municipalities non-productive weeds to flourish on their premises. He suggests that a Hayfever Prevention Association be organized under provincial auspices for this organization.

When we realize that ragweed pollen not only causes hay fever but all the nose, throat, and chest irritations, and asthma, that by cutting down ragweed is just good common sense.

Pioneer Contractor Restores British Warship to Action

Below the turgid waters of Kerry Bay and Deer Man's Bay, off Kingston, lie the hulks of a battle squadron sunk to prevent the entry of the British warships into the Welland Canal. Among the vessels sunk in the mouths of the gaunt ribs of the Psyche, once a proud frigate of the line. And this is the story of the Psyche and of a district pioneer contractor, Lieutenant-Colonel Herbert. William Forbes (grandfather of His Excellency Mgr. J. Guillaume Forbes, Bishop of Gaspe), who, at the request of the British Admiralty dismantled the frigate at Montreal, brought it in sections past the rapids of the St. Lawrence and assembled it again at Kingston in time to sustain the honor of British naval power on Lake Ontario in 1814.

It was a remarkable feat to bring a fighting ship over land, and it has only been accomplished once before, according to our limited knowledge of naval history. This was in 1918 during the campaign in the Congo territory, when armed British motorboats were hauled at Cape Town and taken 2,500 miles into the interior in Lake Tanganyika, where they surprised and wiped out a squadron of armed German vessels.

Economic Warfare

The information concerning this unique episode in Canadian naval history is based on the researches of Mr. F. J. Audet, formerly of the Dominion Archives, who has written a biographical sketch of Colonel Forbes.

Some time ago (through the courtesy of Dr. F. J. Audet, chief of the Dominion Archives) we dealt with the advent of Highland Jacobites to Upper Canada and the Lower Ottawa and related how, among those who came with Simon Fraser's Nor'westers in Wolfe's expedition, were three sons of Daniel and Mary Forbes of Inverness—William, Daniel and John. The last named, John, had 13 children, of whom one son, William, is the subject of this sketch as an outstanding pioneer. He achieved honor in a crisis of his country.

William Forbes was one of the early members of the old York County when it comprised all the country on the Quebec side of the Ottawa from Pontiac to the St. Lawrence. He had commenced his career as a merchant, Late in 1812, he was instructed by Sir George Prevost, Daniel. For a few years past, a large lumber trade flourished on the Ottawa River, and the British blockade of the Baltic Sea to English ships in 1808, by Napoleon had put on a new impulsion to this industry which paid large dividends to the lumbermen who contracted to buy in Canada, and the Forbes brothers decided to go into the lumber business. Having, at the beginning of the war of 1812, gone to Montreal, Forbes took and other timber to William H. Robinson, the Commissary General of the British army in Canada, they obtained permission from Sir George Prevost, the governor, to cut oak timber. Our Ottawa Valley thus furnished valuable material in its struggle against Napoleon.

Necessity of Naval Supremacy

At the end of 1813, the second year of the war, the American fleet, under Commodore Isaac Chauncey, under Sir James Yeo, had had a few successes, but these had led to nothing in the nature of a decisive naval engagement. In these, Yeo proved superior to his opponent, despite a disparity of gun-power and ships. On Lake Ontario Chauncey had 14 ships, 114 guns and 1,192 seamen, while Yeo had six ships, 62 guns and 717 men.)

Yeo's headquarters were in Kingston, where there was a large dockyard. To him was committed the large responsibility of the Upper Lake. Yeo had a running fight on Lake Ontario with Chauncey, "but neither captured" two American ships, the Growler and the Julia. In April, 1814, there was launched at Kingston the Wolfe, carrying 22 guns, and the "Princess Charlotte" of 43 guns. With these he bombarded Fort Oswego in cooperation with General Drummond.

But more naval ships were still considered necessary to give the British a decisive command of Lake Ontario.

In these circumstances, the British Admiralty resolved in the Spring of 1814 to increase its naval strength on Lake Ontario, in order to obtain a complete superiority in numbers. No suitable ships could have been built at Kingston, yet the time factor was most important. Accordingly, two frigates and two brigs were sent to Montreal with the intention of taking them up to lake Ontario if possible. The undertaking was a difficult one, as these were no canals at that time linking the waterway system. Sir George Prevost, Governor General and Commander of the forces, decided to delegate the problem. They decided to make the attempt, and called for men.

William Forbes, Patriot

Into the breach stepped William Forbes. He was hardly 25 years of age when he signed, on June 30, 1814, a contract for transporting from Montreal to Kingston two frigates and two brigs for the sum of $32,000. But, if the Government found the undertaking high, he declared himself ready to transport a single frigate for the sum of $12,000. Or, he would undertake the job at cost price, and would leave it to the Governor to decide on his remuneration. This last plan was immediately accepted. In submitting the contract, Forbes urged that there was no time to be lost if the undertaking was to be a success, as the water in the river was beginning to get low. Yeo at once had the contract and immediately set to work. All he asked was a military guarantee of his men against attack

The route selected was the first pass "Perche." Forbes had a terrific task overcoming a "desperate rapid—Indian—for the weather, rapids, falling water, and the furnishing of overland equipment to the numerous rapids. But he did it. By means of barges, canoes, flatboats and cables and waggons he delivered the frigate with all its rigging complete at Prescott on August 17. By September 26, the "Psyche" was ready to take her place in the fighting line.

War Contracting at Cost

Forbes' plan advanced all his own expenses and in this respect his generous conception had cost him dear, and that I have actually and seriously contributed to the sum of Eleven Thousand and Five Hundred and Thirty-Seven Pounds, Thirteen Shillings and One Penny Currency, in conveying from Montreal to King-ston the Frigates Magging and Horses Marked B of His Majesty's Frigate, Psyche, according to the agreement entered into by me on the 22nd June last.—(Signed) William Forbes.

His original proposition was to undertake it for $12,500 or do the job at cost, plus whatever remuneration the Government saw fit to pay him. As already stated, the contract was entered into on the latter basis. The cost was approximately £11,334, and payment of this amount was made to Forbes on May 1st, 1815.

In the same year (May, 1814) Forbes was elected to the House of Assembly as the representative of the Ontario Valley (old York) county in the first parliament of Upper Canada. He only enjoyed the honor for a few months, for on July 1st, 1815, he died, from a cerebral fever contracted in the transporting of the frigates to Kingston.

Thus William Forbes rendered a great service to his country at a critical time. It cost him his life, but the fleet on Lake Ontario was ready for reinforcement. In October, 1814, the "St. Lawrence," of 100 guns, was launched at Kingston. Yeo then had his preponderance of gun power and the British fleet was unchallenged on Lake Ontario.

And so through all life and death struggles the British Empire has grown. Its strength has depended on the strength of an ideal motivating unselfish man to serve and die for the good of the community, for the perpetuation of a way of life that enabled individuals personality to be humblest citizen. This is our heritage and it is for us to-day. Its ideal is predicated only upon our willingness and power to defend it. —Harry J. Walker in Ottawa Journal.

Not Their Privilege

Of those who are now making rules about England's leaders and the plight into which they have brought their country not all are really entitled to speak. Flings at Chamberlain and his kind come with ill grace from mouths that would have spouted flams and wrath if Chamberlain had followed the opposite road from the one he did.

If in the last half dozen years Britain's economic and economic system would make a drudge of you. Don't yard for it. Be an individual. Let others be victimized if they want to.

7. Let the mistakes go. They will be corrected in the next department and no one will know who made them. To err is human.

How to Fail

In Chatham News revives an old list of seven rules to failure. So much advice is given people how they can succeed that it is invigorating to be told how to make sure of failure. And in time of war, are not these rules rather handy for things to guard against? Take your time about a job—maybe someone else will do it.

2. Do only what is required and believe the suffering by thinking about the good you have done.

3. Leave it until the last minute it is a rush job. In this way you can blame it.

4. Soak your brain with pessimistic what-if-me ideas. They will stifle the urge to succeed and leave you serene and complacent.

5. Don't worry about your job. Worry about the time and how you might be spending it.

6. Rest all you can. You are sinking your time. A modern economic system would make a drudge of you. Don't yard for it. Be an individual. Let others be victimized if they want to.

7. Let the mistakes go. They will be corrected in the next department and no one will know who made them. To err is human.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Successful evacuation of a large part of the Allied armies in Flanders constitutes a highly encouraging result in its kind. For days it appeared doubtful if the troops caught in the German pocket could escape the alternatives of death or surrender.

That the Germans confidently expected to bottle up the forces and hold them is evident from the efforts they made at terrific cost to prevent the evacuation and from the tenor of the announcement from the German high command.

The result is that the important territorial and strategic gains achieved by the Germans are partly offset by the losses in men and equipment they suffered. Heavy as the Allied losses may be they can take consolation in the fact that the major portions of armies which were on the brink of complete destruction were saved.

Saturday the Germans began a series of bombing raids on industrial centres in southern France, a possible indication of their next objective. So long as the Allied armies are based on northern France and as long France capable of keeping them supplied the tactical defeat suffered in the last few weeks can be overcome.

The destruction of important war industries on both sides of the Channel may be the next goal of the enemy, a goal to be achieved prior to co-incident with further military operations.

W. A. and Ladies' Aid Societies Of H. & P. E. Counties Meet at Victoria

The eighth annual convention of the Women's Association and Ladies' Aid Societies of Prince Edward and Hastings Counties in the Bellecroft Presbytery convened in Victoria United Church, Prince Edward County, on Thursday, May 30th. Morning and afternoon sessions were held. Delegates, numbering nearly four hundred, were present from the fifty or more Societies of the Presbytery, lauding the seating capacity of the attractive little church to its utmost. The real beauty of the church's interior was further enhanced by a colorful profusion of Spring flowers which furnished an ideal setting for one of the most enthusiastic and inspiring meetings in the history of the Presbytery. Mrs. P. Lent, Belleville, presided most capably over the meeting at both sessions.

Following the registration of the delegates and visitors, who were welcomed by the officers of Victoria United Church W. A.; a brief period of community singing under the direction of Mrs. (Rev.) James Semple, Belleville, who was assisted by Mrs. Fred E. Houston, Belleville, as accompanist, was enjoyed by the delegates.

The morning devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Roy Vallieau of Massassaga W. A.

Mrs. Harry Cunningham on behalf of the Victoria Women's Association and the church welcomed the guests most cordially. Mrs. O. Van Luven, on behalf of the delegates, replied to this address of welcome, calling attention to the encouragement and inspiration received at the annual gathering together of the ideas in their Women's organizations of the church, as they discussed their problems and sought by helpful suggestions to assist in overcoming each others difficulties.

In her address, "The Progress of Women", Mrs. P. Lent, Belleville, sounded the keynote of the convention, dealing with the topic from the standpoint of woman as an individual and also in her wider sphere among her fellow workers.

"In the early church, women played a small part, but their influence was felt. Mary, Mother of Jesus, played an important part, and the last thing Jesus did was man's world. That day is now gone, to commit her to the care of a loving disciple.

"We should be a chain linked together by the love for our Master, our Church, and our fellowmen. The president and executive alone cannot run a society, no matter how interested or capable that may be. The highest standard of our societies is the full service that we can give to our church and its members. Do not envy the woman with ability. Use her discovered talents. No society would succeed if we all had the same talent. Each must use the talent which she has for the general welfare of the whole group.

Secretary's Report

Miss Audrs Brickman, Redersville, read the secretary's report giving an account of last year's convention in Tweed, and called upon the secretaries of the various societies for their reports. Without exception these reports showed great enthusiasm and interest; not the note of discouragement was sounded throughout.

Societies reporting included Kingston Road, Ballyhide, Wesley, Wellington, Bethel (Rawdon), Trinity (Madoc), Stirling, East Lake, Salmon Point, St. Ola; Bridge St., Belleville, Mt. Pleasant (Frankford), Queensboro, Bowerman's Centenary, Forward, Carmel (Stirling), Shannonville, Cherry Valley, Big Island, White Lake, Wellman's Corners, Springbrook, Andrew's (Marmora), Bancroft, White's, Smith's, Crookedneville, Actinolite, Picton, Massassaga, Crofton, Canniton, Grace St. (Trenton), Holloway St., Belleville, Burr's, St. Andrew's (Gilead), Victoria, Johnson, Demorestville, Stoke, Tabernacle, Thomasburg, Tweed, Ameliasburg, West Huntingdon, Mt. Address On

'A Challenge to Women'

An address which was of deep interest to Mr. and Mrs. Bow Lee was given by Mrs. Earl Wall, Consecon, who chose as her theme, "A Challenge to Women". "There was a time," observed Mrs. Wall, "when it was generally conceded that this was a man's world. That day is now gone. Woman is now of equal importance to man in the progress of the nation. The home is still the woman's sphere, but anything outside which would affect the home, is her business.

"In Germany Hitler does not want modern women as he knows if women took an interest in outside affairs it would hurt the Nazi scheme," contended Mrs. Wall.

"Women must help to build for times of peace as well as for times of war. It is true that many of our laborers be skilled, as there is a work for everyone to do. In this scheme there is an important place for women as it is generally agreed that a nation can rise no higher than its women.

"The world may not yet be in a state where swords will be discarded for ploughs but we should train our minds and have brotherly love for mankind. Our whole social structure is built on the Bible and if we lose this foundation we are lost" said Mrs. Wall in conclusion.

Mrs. Harold Elliott, Stirling, favored with a solo which was much enjoyed.

The following ladies were appointed as Resolution and Courtesy Committees:—Resolutions, Mrs. Harold Faul, Mrs. A. H. Fisher.

The morning session was concluded by a quiet half hour conducted by the Spiritual Life W. A. Mrs. Bailey was in charge and gave a brief address. Mrs. Jessie Williams sang an appropriate number during this period.

The ladies of Victoria W.A. were admirable hostesses and in a very capable manner catered to an excellent dinner to the very large number of delegates.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session was opened at one-thirty.

The Tweed W. A. had charge of the Devotional Period. Mrs. (Rev.) H.L. Morrison, speaking on the subject — "What is the Church?", said in part, "One purpose a body serves is to give expression to the desires of each member. So at this we hands what our spirits prompt us to do. We speak with our mouths the things our spirits prompt us to speak. In these and other ways, our bodies give expression to our spirits.

"So the Church, the body of Christ, is the instrument to give expression to His Spirit. Through it and its various members the spirit of Jesus must be expressed if it is to be adequately expressed. If the institution which we know as the church, fails to express the spirit of Jesus then it is not His body."

Mrs. J. D. Reeves read a passage of Scripture. Mrs. George Gordon spoke briefly and followed her remarks briefly with a prayer. Mrs. J. W. Kingston of Tweed also assisted in the devotional period.

New Officers

The report of the nominating committee was presented by Mrs. Semple, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

District organizer, Mrs. J. A. Lott, Hon. President, Mrs. P. Lent, Belleville; President, Mrs. Florence Bateman, Shannonville; 1st Vice President, Mrs. O. Van Luven, Consecon; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. R. Ward, Picton; Secretary, Mrs. Clarence Holmes, R. R. No. 3, Belleville; Treasurer, Mrs. A. Gray; Press Sec'y., Miss Margaret Kerr, Tweed; Executive, Mrs. Harold Elliott, Stirling; Mrs. Ross Burr, Mountain View, Mrs. Harry Murphy, Shannonville, Miss Audrs Brickman, Redersville, Mrs. E. Demorest, Madoc, Mrs. A. Waddell, Foxboro.

A solo "I heard the voice of Jesus say" was sung by Mrs. W. Krik from Grace Church, Trenton.

Round-Table Conference

Mrs. Lott, district organizer, very ably conducted the Round Table conference and dealt with the various problems bearing on the work of the Societies were discussed. A motion was passed at this time that the question of the place of meeting for the next annual convention be decided by the Executive.

The Resolutions Committee brought in a recommendation that the annual reports be sent to the secretary before the date set for the convention so that they may be summarized, enabling the secretary to give in condensed form a clear picture of the work accomplished by the various societies during the year. Expressions of appreciation were unanimously approved to those who had assisted in making the convention helpful.

Address by Rev. Newman

The concluding address was given by Rev. R. B. Newman of Belleville. "The church," noted Mr. Newman, "depends so much on women today. They have in their care so many of its activities and without their faithful and unceasing services it would fall of its purpose. You are meeting today in unusual circumstances. Sunday, May 26th, was proclaimed by our King as a day of prayer. God has called every day a day of prayer, for we are observing it? We are lax in this regard, although we find public men, such as ex-Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, giving it as his firm belief that we may still be won by prayer.

"Our Queen has called upon the women of the nation to be assisted in upholding in honor and honesty the ideals of Christ. If they do so faithfully their cause will be invincible. The Women's Associations of the church are engaged in the work of building up God's Kingdom in these countries. They are helping to give this spiritual leadership which is so essential if any victory in the cause of right for which we are fighting is to be assured.

"Some of our people," continued Mr. Newman, "are discouraged regarding the progress of the war as we read the war news. But we must win. We must outthink and outlive the pagan forces that are arrayed against us. We must honour our fathers and mothers.

"Our faith is being sorely tested in these days of trial and doubt. We ask ourselves: "Is God able to deliver? Is He able to give us freedom? Is He able and willing to help us?"

"Honor and freedom are being ruthlessly attacked today as never before in the world's history. Germany and Italy utterly disregarding all that is right are attacking these things which we hold dear. We are paying a big price in maintaining them, but we are standing for the right and willingly offering ourselves as a sacrifice.

"The world needs changing, but there must first be a change in the hearts of its people. We must put into practice the teachings of Jesus. Only God can affect this change in the hearts of men. If the women of our church and country aspire continue loyal, our cause is invincible, as no force can stand against God."

This very fine inspirational address was followed by the installation of officers by Mrs. Lott.

Young Women's Guild Discusses 'Propaganda'

"Propaganda" as used daily in civil life rather than war "propaganda" was the theme of the regular meeting of the Young Women's Guild held Monday evening at the home of Mrs J. A. Buchanan, Dufferin Avenue.

The worship service, conducted by Miss Marjorie Hill, was based on "Truth and led from "Fear not" to "The Truth shall make you free," showing how the cure of fear is to keep faith with truth.

Miss M. Templeton, who was in charge of the program, explained the present difficulty in knowing on what to base one's judgments and decisions. In 1937 there was established an Institute of Propaganda, a non-profit organization to help thinking citizens detect the devices of propaganda. Protection against propaganda comes also through democratic education.

The origin, definition and double significance of the word was dealt with by Miss J. Tickell.

Propaganda is not always either good or bad but is a short-cut. It is used by politicians, advertisers, and in fact by everybody.

Mrs. A. D. Archibald dealt with propaganda in advertising and why it is such a success. It appeals to fear and flattery, points a target at the cause and assumes the remedy.

It was shown how publicity experts understand people better than the people understand themselves.

The radio as a vehicle for propaganda, both good and bad, was dealt with by Mrs. W. J. Harrison. The movies perhaps the most popular form of amusement and another vehicle for propaganda, was next dealt with in a paper by Mrs. Plumton, read in her absence by Mrs. Sherry. As an example it was pointed out how often a drunken man is made to appear amusing. On the other hand the movies can teach tolerance with others, can expose racketeering problems and can project propaganda for democracy.

It is necessary to distinguish between propaganda and mere sentimentality.

Various interesting devices of propaganda were explained and again next winter.

exemplified by Mrs. Stan Kerr.

Words which have become "propaganda words" were illustrated by Mrs. Leake.

In conclusion, Miss Templeton rounded out the topic by suggesting that the members check on themselves to see if they recognize propaganda and know the tricks well enough to analyze it and find the facts. The great danger of bad propaganda is that it distorts the vision.

In business discussed earlier in the meeting plans were made for carrying on the School for Leisure programs.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Children's Questions

The other day, when I visited some friends who have children, a group of youngsters followed me around asking me questions about the Dionne Quintuplets. Of course, some of the questions they asked are the type that seem ridiculous to the grown-up. I was doing my best to give sensible answers to the questions when the father interrupted, scolded the children for bothering me, and sent them away.

"They pester me the same way, Doctor," he apologized.

Well, I tried diplomatically to make the father realize I thought he could be treating his children like that.

I know that all of us who have children, or who have had them around the house, have been driven at one time or another to exclaim, "Oh, don't ask so many questions!" just to gain a little peace and quiet. I know, too, how great the temptation is to put off answering the children or to tell them to run along and ask somebody else. But I think the fumbling questions it prompts or reply to the poser is preferable without impairing the child's respect. No one likes to have his seriously spoken questions laughed at or ignored.

I don't think the human race learned to talk in order to ask and answer questions. They are impelled to do so by an instinct as old as the human race.

I think the right response, when little Johnny catches you with a question you can't answer, is to tell him you don't know and to offer to find out as soon as you can and tell him. Whenever possible, that time should be kept. If a child is old enough to read, it's a good idea to refer him to a reference book in the home and show him how to use them. If you ret him in the habit of looking up things in a dictionary or encyclopedia, you've accomplished a great deal in his education.

Far from discouraging their questions, I think parents should encourage them. I know of one family in which every mealtime when the children are gathered around the table each of the parents is a "question bee." From their questions and the grave way they seem to look at current events I can see that it has been a great advantage to the children. They undoubtedly the parents have learned from these "question bees" also. They have found out what youth is thinking about and their own mental processes have been given stimuli. They have been able to exert a greater influence in directing their children's thoughts into proper channels. For a thought and a reap an act", is a time-tested adage.

Hot Water and Cold

Does hot water freeze faster than cold water? This has been a subject of much controversy among physicists. This scientific point entered the discussion, with conflicting findings. To the physicist there is but one answer, if the experiment is performed under ideal conditions that cold water will freeze faster than hot. But in practical experimenta it is not always possible to obtain ideal conditions, and consequently inconsistencies, real or apparent, develop.

It was pointed out in the discussions that hot water evaporated faster than cold, and that if the experiments were started with equal amounts of water the hotter one would soon become much smaller, and this would aid it in freezing quicker. This also would make the experiment unscientific because the starting conditions were not continued unaltered.

The series of experiments were made by Dr. O. Wakeham, of the University of Colorado, in one of eight tests. In four of them, 250 cubic centimeters of water at various temperatures were placed in metal cylinders, and in the four others equal amounts of water were placed at the same temperatures in glass. The time in which it took each sample to freeze in outdoor temperatures of slightly above zero was recorded.

Water boils at a temperature of 100 degrees Centigrade at the 1000 foot altitude, where the tests were made. The times in which the water at different degrees froze in the cylinders were: 190 degrees, 94 minutes; 80 degrees, 42 minutes; 60 degrees, 39 minutes; 50 degrees, 37 minutes. When the pie tins were used, a different set of results was obtained. The freezing times were: 190 degrees, 31 minutes; 80 degrees, 33 minutes; 60 degrees, 31 minutes; 50 degrees, 29 minutes.

It is apparent from these figures that the shape of the vessel has a great effect on the freezing time. The boiling water took 54 minutes to freeze when it was placed in a tin cylinder, but only 31 minutes when placed in a tin pie tin. When the pie tin was used there was little difference in the freezing time whether the water was at the boiling point or 140 degrees cooler (31 and 29 minutes respectively).

The trouble with most experiments is that they are not made under carefully controlled conditions. Freshly boiled water is in a different state from unboiled water. Heating drives dissolved gases out of water. As water cools it will regain some of the gases, finished articles were returned and another supply of yarn and sewing distributed. A wash cloth knit by Mrs. Oakley, a lady 90 years of age, was donated.

Old Kid Gloves and Suede Leather Used to Make Jacket

Red Cross Displays Article in Hydro Shop Window —Soft Leather of All Kinds Needed

NEW PHASE OF WORK

Passersby on Front Street this morning paused at the window of the Belleville Utilities shop to inspect a jacket designed for the crew of minesweepers. The making of the jacket went old kid gloves, soft suede of various kinds, and old fashioned ingenuity. It demonstrated the usefulness of this material, so often discarded after a season, and now very much in demand by the Red Cross. Pieces were carefully stitched into a lining for the beige flannel jacket worn under coats by the crews on the minesweepers, as additional protection against the weather. In this particular jacket the back panel of the lining was made of an old Masonic apron.

The making of such jackets is a new phase of Red Cross work just being started by the local branch, with Mrs. Gerry Graham as convener. For this activity the committee is anxious to get donations of old kid gloves, suede belts, old suede purses, soft leathers of any kinds that are in cupboards and bureau drawers will probably be considered suitable for such articles, for which the owners have no further use. Anyone wishing to contribute these to the Red Cross may get in touch with Mrs. Graham at 970, or bring them to the Y.M.C.A. on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday when Red Cross meetings are held.

Aero Mechanics And Engineers Asked to Register

Demand for This Type of Skilled Labor is Urgent

An urgent appeal for all aero engineers and aero mechanics to register at once at the various Employment Offices throughout the Dominion, was issued yesterday by the Department of Munitions and Supply, through the Department of National Development Superintendent W. D. Ross of Ottawa on Saturday.

While the demand for this type of skilled labor is acute, it is very short time, due to the speeding up of operations in production and manufacturing, that the demand will greatly outstrip the available supply, he stated.

A special registration of aero engineers and aero mechanics is now taking place and all men qualified in this phase of skilled labor are urged to register.

The engine is the heart of every plane, the announcement received here stated, and in order to ensure that engine operation of war planes frequent overhauling and inspection is necessary.

Marked Decline Shown Of Water in Flooded Creeks and Fields

Indicative of the heavy fall of rain that inundated fields in the northern areas, and sent the waters of the Moira River to the highest May level in a number of years, flood waters filled the city quarry last week.

According to City Engineer Charles Mett this is the first time in the history of the city, that flood waters have filled the quarry after the spring freshets had subsided. Drainage over the weekend, however, emptied the quarry and workmen resumed their jobs today.

Overflowing creeks and rolling bodies of water in the northern part of the county subsided to a marked extent over the week-end although lake levels are still high. Water that washed over highways at various points has receded and main arteries of the roads are now clear.

The warm weather of the week end, diminished ponds and areas of water that inundated pastures and grain fields, and a marked difference was noted over a period of twenty-four hours.

The Moira River levels, however, show little signs of lowering. These will likely be maintained until creeks, ponds and other bodies of water are drained to normal levels.

For Tuesday, June 4

UNUSUALLY favorable for completing and deepened problems may come to the surface on this day, requiring a little thought and mutual aspects. While there may be surprising and quick developments, with some sort of devastating or disturbing influence, lacking new ventures of moment. Not much effort attached to get yet such effort attached to get large profits. political or fraternal bodies, or other hidden sources of public influence will be successfully managed. Writings and documents will be quick to be seen. In private relations a similar unexpected and baffling disturbance may be looked for.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of surprises and quite unforeseen adventures, especially in their realms of circumstances. In disturbance and doubt it would be well to confer with political, fraternal or other behind the scenes influences for organization and success. Be shrewd and wary with writings or documents, which hold peculiar pitfalls or distortions. In romantic or emotional affairs there should be also pleasant surprises. A child born on this day may be shrewd and profound with much subtlety and craft, despite its good intentions. It will succeed in life financially and creative ability in connection with large corporations or political bodies.

FOUR BOYS PLEAD GUILTY TO MANY POLICE CHARGES

Two Are Sent Back to Bowmanville Training School and Two Given Suspended Sentences

ENDS CRIME WAVE

"Personally it is my belief that the city fathers should legislate some kind of a curfew law. Why it is common occurrence to see teen-aged boys out on the streets selling papers after midnight. The only way to solve this problem is to introduce a curfew law in Belleville," held Jacob Goodman, local police magistrate who presided in special session of Juvenile Court held before Magistrate J. E. Hunter, K.C., here today. Goodman was representing a Juvenile Judge, and together with three others, ranging in age from 14 to 16 years, charged with crimes of breaking, entering and theft from a number of homes in east Belleville. The quartette of youthful burglars pleaded guilty to a number of such charges.

The apprehension of the four boys brought to a close a crime wave that had annoyed householders on the east hill. "These matters were of a serious nature. These boys are old enough to realize right from wrong and should be punished," stated Crown Attorney G. C. Jeanneret, K.C., who prosecuted the respective parents of the children as to why they were permitted to be out of large at night.

"Well, when he goer to the show, how do we know he is out on the beat?" asked one parent in reply.

"This boy will not pay attention at school or was absent four days last month," revealed Mr. Callaghan, Truant Officer for St. Michael's Academy.

The boys were not given chance into the custody of Mr. Ruston, while the other two proceeded to be of good behavior for a given a chance. The heart-rendering sobbings of the broken-hearted parents rendered back to the Boys' Training School was referred to locally. "After the court room as her son was carpareted from jail that he was out of little a wall and did not teach you boys a lesson", warned His Worship.

Brooklyn Team Whacks Game Off Reds' Lead by Winning Doubleheader From the Cubs

Both Games Won by One-Run Margin With Wasdell's Bat Playing Prominent Feature

YANKS ARE COMING

Bucky Walters Wins Ninth in Row for Reds by Downing Boston Bees 11-1

(By Judson Bailey)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The best "Sunday pitcher" in the baseball business right now is that grizzled veteran of Chicago White Sox, Ted Lyons, who man and boy has been with the one club for 17 years.

Born in 1900, the same year as Lefty Grove, Lyons came to the American League direct from the campus of Baylor University in 1923 two years before Grove, and still is going strong.

In fact he is the strongest gear in the Sox' well-worn driveshaft today with four victories and two defeats. Chicago has played nine games in the last seven days and won three. Of these three Lyons won two.

This Spring he has pitched every Sunday except one that it rained and he showed up at Fenway Park, Boston, yesterday on schedule. The result was his 4-0 shutout of the league-leading Red Sox on six hits. It was the 225th triumph of his major league career.

The Red Sox recovered from this masterful going over sufficiently to edge out Chicago 10-3 in the second game with Jimmie Foxx noticing his 13th home run with one on in the ninth inning.

The fact that Cleveland Indians also divided a double bill with Philadelphia Athletics left the American League squabble in status quo. Bob Feller achieved his eighth victory 7-3 over the A's, giving eight hits. But Philadelphia turned the tables in the nightcap by rallying for seven runs in the seventh inning and a 12-6 conquest.

Brooklyn Wins Two

In the National League Brooklyn Dodgers whacked a game off the margin separating them and the pace-making Cincinnati Reds by squeezing two one-run decisions out of Chicago Cubs, 3-2 and 5-1.

Jim Wasdel hit a double for one Brooklyn run in the second inning of the first game and then doubled again in the ninth for the other two. In the nightcap Manager Leo Durocher doubled two tallies across in the second inning.

The Reds divided two games with Boston Bees. Bucky Walters bagged his ninth victory without defeat and his ninth victory without a loss in the first game, 11-1, aiding Boston batsmen by five hits and getting the help of two home runs by Jim Hsmes. The second game, which Boston won 2-0, was a scoreless duel between Dick Errickson and Jim Turner for seven innings. Then rain interrupted the play and ended Turner off to the point of giving up the pair of markers in the eighth.

Pirates Edge Out Giants

Pittsburgh edged out New York Giants 2-1 in the eighth inning after Bob Klinger and Hal Schumacher each had pitched seven runners apiece. The New York bounced back to take the second game 7-5 although, outhit 11-10 and outhomered 2-0.

At St. Louis two pitchers chalked up their first victories of the season. Boom Boom Beck of the Phillies whipped the Cards 4-3 on seven hits in the first game and Bob Bowman gave the same amount in winning for St. Louis 9-2 in the second. John Mize hit his 13th and 14th home runs in this one.

The world champion Yankees continued their upward surge at the expense of St. Louis Browns with two triumphs and 11-1.

Detroit took a single game from Washington Senators 8-6. The Tigers were outhit 12-9 but starting with Hank Greenberg's two-run homer in the first they piled up all their tallies in the first four frames and coasted in.

STILL GOOD

Coming within one stolen sack of tying Commy Dickey's old record, Bill Hubbell, veteran of the New York Giant's second staff, showed that he still has plenty left on the ball when he pitched the Giants to a 7-0 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the first game of a doubleheader, which put the Giants back into fifth place to eighth.

The percentages come out this way: Natural 419; Toronto 396; Syracuse 394; Buffalo 389.

The cause of all this was that Chiefs could not win both games of a twin bill yesterday and lost 3-1 and 4-3 at Windsor to the last inning each time to beat Buffalo 8-4 and 4-3. George Fallon's ninth-inning home run with the bases full won the first game. The second went into an extra inning before the Wings found the range for their second spurt and put over six runs.

Chiefs Out of Cellar

Syracuse Chiefs came out of the league cellar and into a shared rush that gave them a 3-1 second game victory over Jersey City after losing the opener 4-2. Montreal's eight rally was the highest spot of a pair of slug-fests, marked by nine home runs. DAMAGED GOODS QUEEN OF TURF

Filly That Passed Through Stable Fire Wins Acorn and American Oaks Stakes

New York, June 3—(AP) — The "comeback" girl of the race tracks this spring is a leggy little filly with enough Cinderella in her background to be written up in a book.

Her name is Damaged Goods—and that's just what she was when she came down to Edward A. Benjamin's New Orleans stables from Arthur B. Hancock's breeding farm at Paris, Ky., a couple of years back. She had been through a stable fire that left her frightened half to death, her coat seared and her hide barred by the flames.

But now she's the queen of the American turf for this year, winner of both the Acorn and the American Oaks at Belmont.

With her victory in the Oaks Saturday, the finely-bred daughter of Jacopa and Imprudent has piled earnings for the year to a neat $26,635.

When she is now can all be laid to the faith of trainer Johnny Jacobs. He wasn't give up despite her juvenile showing, or the fact that yesterday was against him. He'd taken a liking to her ever since she turned up in his barn. Her coat had been seared. He had taken one look at the marks of the flames and didn't have to look twice for her name. He registered her immediately.

He trained her tirelessly as a two-year, finally got her over her fright and calmed down. But still he is some three times behind her burns. She has to wear a thick pad under her blanket.

SECOND DIVISION OF ONT. LEAGUE IN CLOSE RACE

Buffalo Loses Twin Bill and Drops from Fifth to Eighth Place

TORONTO ADVANCES

Win on Saturday and Split Even With Newark Bears on Sunday

(By The Associated Press)
If you think you've seen some close baseball races, take a look at the second division of the International League.

The constant chase isn't so hot right now, what with the Rochester Red Wings edging their way into a three game lead over Jersey City and Baltimore, which are virtually knotted down in the other half but it's so tight that when Buffalo lost a doubleheader today and three other clubs split even, Bisons tumbled from fifth place to eighth.

The percentages come out this way: Natural 419; Toronto 396; Syracuse 394; Buffalo 389.

Forecasts Will Have to Change

Cleveland, June 3—(AP)—Forecasts of the winning score for the National open golf tournament came in for some changes today in view of par-cracking preliminary rounds by the game's heavy hitters.

Canterbury's 6,933-yard par-72 layout was so rain soaked over the week-end that water sloshed under foot and balls took almost no roll. Temporary greens were used in advance of the regular holes.

But Ben Hogan, the Texas phenomenon, blasted out 36-33—68, four under par. Jimmy Thomson, one of the game's longest drivers, came in with 34-36—70. Johnny Bulla, another slugger, had scored a 71.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)
Ted Lyons, White Sox, and Jimmie Foxx, Red Sox—former shut out Boston on six hits to win first game while latter's 13th home run with one on in ninth inning won second game.

George Selkirk, Yankees — Hit homer in each game to lead big batting attack on Browns.

Bob Feller, Indians—subdued A's on eight hits in opener.

Bucky Walters, Reds—Allowed stifled Boston on five hits for his ninth straight victory.

Hank Greenberg, Tigers—Hit two-run homer and doubled to lead assault on Senators.

From far off Brandon, Man., comes communication to this department regarding Wally Hamilton, local boy who was connected with the Quinte Motorcycle Club, when George Pepper rode the colors of that speed club to lofty heights in world racing events. Although somewhat of a novice when he rode in district meets here, Wally Hamilton has improved his riding ability since taking up residence on the prairies. In the results of annual Brandon Motorcycle Club races and hill climbing meet Hamilton won the 45 cubic inch displacement class with his 500 c.c. machine and was the only rider to drive his machine over the top on its own power. Hamilton was riding a B.S.A. 500 cubic inch machine, which he says "looked like a cottontail along side of a prairie jack rabbit," in comparison to the large American machines used by the Western riders. Wally also won the free-for-all sprint race by a margin of seven seconds, as well as several other novice races. Local riders will be pleased to hear of Wally Hamilton's riding successes on the prairies.

Although the rain had come and was still coming, the annual Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. track and field meet was carried out to a successful finish Saturday. The Stirling hosts made the best of rather disagreeable weather conditions and all-in all the smaller schools enjoyed a real day's sport. The Belleville Collegiate Institute proved the regulate dominated the meet by entering too many athletes, that the smaller schools were able to successfully cope with the larger schools, but win the day's honors. To Napanee Collegiate went to the front honors and meet title, Coach Egan's athletes attaining the grand number of points and the district championship for the third time. Georges Secondary of Trenton, won the senior title, Deseronto the junior. The presentation of the title and R. Wortman of Napanee the junior boys' championship, then passing around the plentiful, then passing around the various honors to the individuals and teams from competition was also seen in the girls' events, that were included in the day's program.

The local footballers are hoping for better weather conditions this week as several games have been caught up owing to last week's postponements. Tomorrow night the girls come back to the Armouries, when the K-nines hook up with Coach Bosko's Vikings. In the Senior City loop, Secretary Harry Knott hopes to get in at least one game this week, but in the meantime four games are on the books, tonight it's the Cementmen vs. "Oilers," Wednesday, Ameliasburg Imperials take kids here while on Friday the "Oilers" journey to Picton, County A.C., meet Point Anne here. The Neighborhood and Kil-Y boys also have games to catch up.

Do you remember when Lou Gehrig, slugging New York Yankee first baseman, made baseball history eight years ago today when he smashed out four consecutive home runs at Philadelphia, to help Yanks beat the Athletics 20-13? Ed Pehants did the same trick in 1896.

It is estimated that Wilbur Shaw will collect in the neighborhood of $100,000.00 for his winning of the 28th annual Indianapolis speedway race last week, taking into consideration his chances to capitalize on endorsements and other commercial financial remunerations. Reigning Ed Pehants did the long 500-mile grind, but "so happy I don't know what to do" dapper Wilbur quickly spirted rumours that his third triumph would be his last race. "Retire?—absolutely not," he declared. "I'll be back next year shooting for No. 4."

"It really was a grand race," said Shaw happily. "I've never seen fellows so nice in my life. It certainly was happy thing they turned out the way it did."

Glancing back over the glamorous years of past baseball history in the Central Ontario zone, Cec. Perdue, sports columnist in the shade of the Quaker Oats building in Peterboro, says:—"It is as true as the tradition of Britain's war that the same the senior diamond game has had its ups and downs in the line of ups and downs in Ontario. Especially downs and especially in Central Ontario. But it is equally true that Peterborough has continued to serve up top flight ball yearly to fans. Right now, only Oshawa—which was out last year—and the Peten are representing the old C.O.B.L. Which once embraced Kingston, Napanee, Belleville, Bowmanville, Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay, Peterboro, Oshawa and Bowmanville. And the local club will continue to carry on—there are lots of diehard Peten fans here and in years to come, barring war disturbances, there will be baseball in it (and it is a life-sized IF) the ball fans continue to support the club."

SPORT SPICE — With the Yankee baseball guns booming loudly behind Joe McCarthy's world champion seem to have struck their stride at last. They won a doubleheader yesterday from the first division and only five and a half games out of first place. Rocky Walters hung on his ninth consecutive victory for the Red and Greyhounds of baseball beat the Bees 11-1. . . . Bob Feller chalked up his win for the Indians, chalking up eight wins of the season yesterday. Wee Joe Jakafoy hurling screwless ball, the Peten broke into the Intercity league win column with a 4-3 victory over the Tar-Heels of Toronto over the week-end. . . . See where the Lift-Bridge City nine has received another farmer (?), Kowalik by name. . . . And they've found a third baseman in Casserman of Galvin. . . . How them Lifties included the services of two field baseball players in the wilds of Peterborough. Both of them outstanding, if not miraculous. . . . Oshawa won over the Tweed-Grads 4-3, after losing out in the second to win 4-3.

MR. CHURCHILL WILL SPEAK ON TUESDAY

London, June 3 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill is expected to make a statement in the House of Commons tomorrow (about 11 a.m. EDT) on the withdrawal of the British Expe'ditionary Force from Flanders.

German Flier Unable to Sink Boat With Machine-Guns, Fires Ring of Oil With Tracers

A Southeast Coast Port in England, June 3 (AP).—A British sergeant returning from Flanders today told how a German flier, unable to sink his boat with machine-guns, set fire to the water and escaped.

The sergeant, who waited two days on the Dunkirk beaches before boarding a ship for home, said the scene was brightly lighted and illuminated by fires that made the night almost like day.

He said German bombers, for some unexplained reason, kept away from the town but continued to raid the troops on the beach as well as the various ships.

This sergeant vouched for the story that the pilot of a German plane, unable to sink a large rowboat, carrying many soldiers either with his bombs or with his machine guns, resorted to a shower of oil and tracers.

This he then fired with tracer bullets, turning the sea into flames.

"They didn't have a dog's chance" said the sergeant.

The sergeant lieutenant said his unit returned through Armentieres during the withdrawal.

"We don't know it was the same place," he said. "There was nothing left anywhere."

The latest arrivals from Dunkirk, though weary, were in high spirits and, still were cracking jokes. Many did their best to clean their clothes to improve their appearance while they stood in the train corridors.

Nurses Stay on Job

How long the nurses stayed at their posts while co-workers were being killed in the terrific air and artillery bombardment in the gradually closing Dunkirk perimeter was told by wounded members of the B.E.F.

Sometimes, they said, spurned all advice to leave until the last of the troops had gone, and then left only drawn across the Channel to safety. They cannot describe what we feel about our girls," said one wounded Tommy as he debarked from one of the ships that brought the first retreating forces across the Channel under constant fire.

"Out on that dreadful beach with German shells and machine-bullets hail and shells bursting all the time, the nurses just carried on—sometimes for days past.

"Angels is the only word you can use to describe them. I have seen some of them killed as they have gone about their work."

Decline to Return

Australian Air Scheme Not to be Altered Until After September

By J. B. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 3 (CP).—(Copyright Cable)—Hon. J. V. Fairbairn, Australian Air Minister, said yesterday that Australia's program in the Empire air scheme will not be altered before departure of the first trainees for Canada, in August and September.

Thereafter, he said, modifications may be made because of inability to obtain the number of machines originally promised by Great Britain and the United States.

There is no indication here as yet whether the changes will necessitate sending fewer recruits for training in Canada or Britain.

The first recruits both to the air force and the Australian Imperial force will number 1,000.

Money also is pouring into the treasury daily either as new gifts to the national fund or interest free loans. Offers are also pouring in for adoption of British and Allied war orphans.

Count Von Luckner On "Spy Mission" To Australia in '38

London, June 3—(CP)— A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Melbourne, Australia, said that investigations had disclosed that Count Felix Von Luckner, famed German sea raider of the last war, carried out a spy mission in the vicinity of Australia in 1938.

An official watch on the gathering Von Luckner was started immediately after the outbreak of the war, the dispatch said.

Captain Fred Ben Hinstein, who was arrested May 24 in Britain's drive against "fifth columnists," said Von Luckner had "disappeared mysteriously" and that he believed the Count was in a concentration camp because of his anti-Nazi views.

British Warships Attack Germans In Ranafjord, Report

London, June 3—(CP)— Norwegian refugees reported that British warships have forced their way into Ranafjord and attacked German forces in Mo, northern Norway, says an Exchange Telegraph Agency dispatch today quoting the Swedish newspaper Ugeblader.

Communications between the frontier and Mo are interrupted and have been down for two days, and the dispatch said that if the fighting reaches Mo, refugees would be in danger of being cut off in the rear at Mo.

Roland Young and Ray Milland consider the possibilities of Anna Neagle as a fashion model, in this scene from "Irene," the happiest show of the year, featuring May Robson, now on the Belle screen.

An officer said the nurses had been asked to return to England but that they declined.

The ship was patched me up said when I asked her to leave: 'My place is here looking after you.' That's what I am here for and I'll stay while there are any wounded here.'

Survivors said the nurses ignored day and night shelling to aid army doctors who worked frantically attending the wounded on the hot sands of the Dunkirk beaches and in casualty stations and small tents. They even set up first-aid stations in bomb craters.

Many Nazi Machines Downed

Members of the crew of one well-known pleasure steamer which took more than 200 weary, grimy and hungry men off the mole at Dunkirk said they were forced to leave under heavy shell fire and had to leave behind hundreds of others who had been marked for gone back to the beach to dig in, but the men were in unusually high spirits.

Bitterly a ship returns without visible traces of German attack, such as splinter scars and bullet marks.

A former movie theatre manager took charge of the cruiser, which broke down halfway across the Channel. The men were also on board another vessel, although they were not aware of the seriousness of the operation.

"As we went into Dunkirk there were constant airplanes overhead all the time," he said. "We were told that they were British and not falling constantly. Some of the ships in the harbor were busy working with children's spades to try and dig themselves a bit of shelter.

"A man with me got a machine-gun bullet in his leg. I took him back to the ship and the next time I saw him he was in bed with a bullet out with his sheath knife. Because of the shortage of drugs he him do anything he got annoyed. So he went up there and got the bullet out of the ship's machine gun, firing at the German planes."

Added he: "It was awful," he continued, "a bomb dropped so close to our ship that it blew off the ship's compass.

"When I got back I had been recommended for a commission. We scrambled aboard a yacht which was in dock there. There wasn't a half inch of room for me in the ship, but we got there. I was given a cabin boat over, but they wouldn't let me."

MOST INFLUENTIAL BRITISH FIGURE IS MR. CHURCHILL

British Prime Minister is Subject of Sermon by Rev. Dr. J. Semple

HIS VAST EXPERIENCE

"What a blessing it is that a man has at his head the greatest empire in the world at this time of crisis," commented the Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister of Bridge Street United church on Sunday evening when speaking on Prime Minister Winston Churchill whom he called "the most brilliant figure in British Public Life."

During the service Faber's hymn was sung in which the words appear:

"And in the darkest battlefield Thou shalt know when to strike," and the lines
"For right is right, since God is God
And right the day must win.
To doubt would be disloyalty,
To falter would be sin."

Dr. Semple recalled how as a high school boy he saw Mr. Churchill in Belfast and at that time he felt that this statesman, who was then going to be heard from.

Speaking on the words of Chronicles, "Men that had understanding of their times," the minister went on to show how Mr. Churchill "has understanding of the times." He is one of the most colorful figures in the England of his day, and his mother was universally popular. Mrs. Everest his governess, was the most influential factor in the development of his personality for she was the only mother he knew. "To her he poured out his troubles and found a solution," he said, "because a gentleman cadet he went with his father to the theatre, he political influences, to the races and made wide contacts with Mrs.

His earliest impressions were of Ireland. A man who could write laughingly that he rode a donkey.

His schooldays he said, were dreadful. He failed to distinguish in Latin or Greek or mathematics. He spoke of "the lithographic regions of examinations," and "I did not do well in my examinations," he told my teachers."

One of the chief points of interest about him is his imagination. He was responsible for the evolution of the tank which has revolutionized modern war. He is a man of prodigious energy working fourteen hours a day. He studied his Anglo-Saxon people and at the same time was a member of the British Parliament and outstanding in political life. He is a man of thoroughness. He knows every day the position of battleship.

He sings to himself when excited and his favorite tune is "Sun, Rain and Shine."

On his desc in Downing-Street is a telephone, a glass of water and a box of biscuits.

He reads five papers on his desk and everything is tidy. He brings a feeling of a personal nature to his office.

Walking has been one of his hobbies and exercise. He has an estate 30 miles from London which he built on the ruins of a brickstayer and has been a member of the house. He is a painter of note. Everything he has done has prepared him for that wisdom of life he is now utilizing as Prime Minister.

The minister pointed out instances of stiff Churchill's wit and irony, and his meticulous gift to which the House always listens. His career is only equaled by that of the Younger Pitt, said Dr. Semple. He has held no less than seven of the great offices of state under Conservative or Liberal administrations and has never been defeated.

When the crisis came many thought he would become Premier but nothing could have kept him from the post.

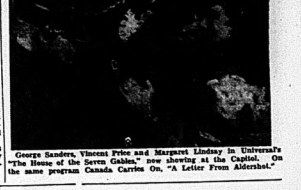
He is a master historian, an outstanding figure in journalism and writer of twenty books.

One of the points to which Rev. Dr. Semple drew special attention was Mr. Churchill's foresight. As far back as May 1938 he predicted that Germany was re-arming and offered facts and figures. In 1935 he stated that the air fleet was the equivalent of $60,000,000 pounds sterling in peace time. Still Mr. Churchill was disregarded. In 1937 he warned against the Rome-Berlin axis and the Nazis and Communists.

APPRECIATES WORK OF P. C. TAYLOR

There is at least one resident of this city who appreciates the work of the Belleville quoiting fraternity when streets are congested with lorries on busy days. The following note signed by the writer's name and the nom de plume "Appreciative Driver" speaks for itself.

"A pat on the back for P. C. Harold Taylor, of the local police force, for his good work in directing traffic moving on Saturday night."



George Sanders, Vincent Price and Margaret Lindsay in Universal's "The House of the Seven Gables," now showing at the Capitol. On the same program Canada Carries On, "A Letter From Aldershot."

FINDS MUSHROOMS GROWING IN OLD BOOT

Had the 'Old Lady who lived in a Shoe' or her husband, been dwelt on a farm near the Bay Shore, her food problem would have been solved.

Per while mushroom hunting the other day, Mrs. E. J. Earle, 394 Front Street, discovered in her healthy exercising, growing out of a discarded boot that was more or less embedded in the soil at the side that borders the Trenton-Belleville highway.

Picking the fungi which were growing in profusion in the boot, Mrs. Earle removed a piece of leather sticking out of the ground. Investigation revealed it to be an old boot, filled with soil and from which the fungi were growing. They were of good size and quality.

They were brought to the offices of the Ontario Intelligencer today on their last visit of inspection before gracing the Earle steaks.

FOR JEANNE WAS

A WARM-WEATHER OFFENDER

SCIENTIFIC FACTS ABOUT 'B.O.'

Jeanne Twee so beautiful she thought she didn't have to bother with anything beside her appearance. But beauty or good clothes, or even money and social position won't stop you from becoming a "Warm-Weather Offender."

For all of us must perspire to live—just as we must breathe. Warm, sticky weather increases perspiration—and what is worse, its speed-up decomposition of sweat deposits. Left on the body, under the arms, around the waist, these sweat deposits go stale—decompose—then YOU have "B.O."

"B.O." can ruin romance, business and social chances. Check it before it starts by using Lifebuoy regularly. Lifebuoy contains an exclusive, deodorizing ingredient not found in other leading toilet soaps. Used in your daily bath, Lifebuoy stops "B.O." Its rich, creamy lather washes stale perspiration deposits away — protects you from offending others—assures personal cleanliness. It is also kind to the skin—20% milder than many so-called "beauty" and "baby" soaps, by actual test.

The adult skin has 2 to 3 million sweat glands (which) act as a cooling system, giving off from 1 to 3 pints daily—more when we are sitting still. If perspiration stopped, we would die from hyperpyrexia (heat stroke).

Because much of the water in perspiration evaporates, we do not see or feel it. Summer heat, nervous excitement, heavy clothes or warm rooms quickly decompose this sweat deposit—turn it stale—cause offensive "B.O." (Body Odor).

LIFEBUOY IN YOUR DAILY BATH Stops "B.O."

Fashion Flashes

CASUAL yet exciting to wear is a dinner dress in pastel silk sheer. The high waisted skirt is finely knife pleated. The casual shirt-waist bodice has big buttons and tucks inside girdle etched with silver embroidery.

PLAYING AROUND in the garden little boys and girls alike we dressed in overalls of cotton gardine with striped Bermuda shirts. Pale tan with red and white striped shirt is one color idea.

TOP OFF your dark town outfit with a hat of starched white pique. A small, off-face model has the brim pressed into sharp, knife-edged pleats. A small sailor has a pleated double brim.

Plenty of compliments await the smart matron wearing a silk crepe jacket frock of mist blue, the frock bodice in matching blue lace. The bolero jacket boasts lace bows at the high-placed pockets.

THE SUN IS HOT but the lady is cool if she is garbed in black chantung, the dress closing down the front with small gilt buttons. Sleeves are just above the elbow, the high neck is round. White hat and gloves should go along.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 3 (CP).—Trading was sluggish on a weak market today. Only 89,000 shares changed hands.

Papers and foods displayed firmness and steels, utilities and miscellaneous issues were inclined to heaviness.

In pulps nearly all active issues, including Macassa, East Malartic, Pickle Crow, Preston and Upper Canada, were down fractionally. Nickel and Ventures were weak spots in Base Metals.

WALL STREET

New York, June 3.—(AP)—Traders, awaiting the next war shift, moved warily in today's stock market. Near the fourth hour offerings were insistent and losses of one to two points were well distributed. Bonds and commodities were mixed. "Free" Sterling and the French franc dipped in terms of the dollar.

Attracting mild support were Montgomery Ward Southern and American Smelting Du Pont, Preferred, Dolphin Pennsylvania and Great Northern.

Canadian issues generally were easier, though Distillers Seagram moved against the trend with a gain of 1-4. Canadian Pac., Int. Nickel, Mines and Lake Shore were off fractionally in the Bond market. Canada 4s were unchanged.

Toronto, June 3—Firming tendencies were evident in butter prices on the Toronto open produce market, while eggs held steady.

No change was reported in the situation on the egg market. Supplies of eggs appeared to be about balanced and prices held steady. Storage pullets and government inspected lots of graded eggs were still at premiums of ¼ cents to cent per dozen.

Skilled Labor Needed

Speeding up of country defence preparations in the country in connection with the Joint Air Training Plan establishment has resulted in a heavy demand for skilled labor of various types, according to Dominion officials today.

In order to co-operate with the government in the fullest extent, and to get an idea of what phases of skilled labor are available in this district, the following classes are requested to the government employment service with Employment offices as soon as possible.

Clerks, equipment assistants, standard (fifties) duties, motor transportation drivers, airplane mechanics, carpenters, fabric workers, instrument makers, instrument repairmen, machinists, sheet metal workers, metallizers (armourists).

Clerks, stenographers, senior typist, senior, and general inspectors.

NAZI ATTACKS FAIL

The Allied planes, it was said, shot down large numbers of German fighters, bombed lines of communication and strafed the swift torpedo-carrying motorboats with which the Germans have been attacking transports.

The Anglo-French forces in Norway reported quiet, with only isolated activity which resulted in no change of position.

Situation Summarized

The French spokesman summarized the situation along the southern front this way:

Along the Somme, "almost complete calm."

Along the Aisne, feeble activity of contact units.

Between the Aisne and Chiers River, near the northern end of the Maginot Line, light artillery fire on both sides without definite results.

Light artillery fire in the Rethel region, approximately 100 miles northeast of Paris.

East of the Moselle River, on the upper end of the Maginot Line, "violent artillery duels" and small size attack French outposts were repulsed.

Observers Predict Lull

While French and British troops entrenched in Dunkerque fought a "last-ditch" battle against overwhelming German numbers, which were reported to have been thrown into the action, military observers in Paris expressed belief there might be a lull lasting anywhere from three days to two weeks before the Nazi machine is ready for another assault.

They pointed out that the 40 German divisions which forced the Allied northern army to the sea had suffered tremendous losses on land and in the air and said both the Allies and the Germans had been using the "waiting game" in which each side is preoccupied with preparations."

The emergency withdrawal from beleaguered Dunkerque was reported all an end, as a fleet of 300 or more Allied warships and merchant vessels of every description sought to ferry the last French, British and Belgian troops to safety.

While the rescue ships arrived, took on cargoes of evacuees and steamed away again, German infantry, wading waist-deep through the shallows, reached Dunkerque's beach a barrage of artillery fire from the Allies covering the retreat and waiting hopefully for the appearance of the last units of the rearguard of General Rene Jacques Adolphe Prioux.

Germans Use 15 Divisions

It was General Prioux's tanks and armored cars which played a vital part in covering the Allied withdrawal from Lille to the sea after King Leopold III's capitulation exposed the Allied northern flank. The remaining units of the French rearguard early today were reported only 15 miles from Dunkerque.

Forced to abandon their tanks because of the flooding of the ground in front of Dunkerque, the Germans were said to be using 15 divisions—200,000 men—in a final attempt to overpower the Allied defence line there.

But the imminence of completion of the Dunkerque evacuation (as indicate) by a High Command communique which, assuming the loss of a number of vessels already completed, said the "greatest part" of the British Expeditionary Force had been brought home.

In London, War Secretary Anthony Eden said four-fifths of the British Expeditionary Force had been brought home.

Mr. Eden declared it was reported a small British garrison still was holding out against German occupation of Calais, on the coast 20 miles from Dunkerque, and only 22 miles from Dover, England.

He was provisioned by parachute, and the garrison, reinforced by the British field Calais' 17th-century citadel, whose thick walls and casemated galleries were proving stout protection against German tanks and guns, he declared.

Two Deer and a Bear Seen in N. Marmora

Marmora, June 3 (Special).—Deer and bear have been roaming the north Marmora district of late.

Alex McCoy encountered a bear when on the way to his work at Deloro on Friday evening. Blinded by the lights of the car, the animal made frantic efforts to get through a wire fence before successfully vaulting it. Another deer was seen in the yard of George Brown on Sunday morning. Also a bear and bear crossed fields belonging to John Lough. The three animals were sighted over a very small area.

Madoc Red Cross Sends Blankets to Hdqrts.

Madoc, June 3 (Special).—In response to the appeal from the Red Cross Society, Madoc branch shipped to headquarters, Toronto, on Saturday, sixty-five flannel blankets. The flannel blankets were given by Harold's unit and four were given by Hart's Red Cross unit. Generous contributions of money were given to the collectors which will be used to purchase new blankets and these will be forwarded promptly to the headquarters in Toronto.

NATION

Hitler's "behind the scenes" military mastermind described, with the pink cards which call up reservists delivered at soldiers' homes every mail.

Await Word of Duce

Throughout Italy the population, convinced that war is inevitable, was far distant, anxiously awaited word from Premier Mussolini as to what would be struck in behalf of longagitated "National aspirations".

Theoretical neutrality, however, in their mail pink slips ordering them to report to their regimental depots they hastily exchanged civilian garb for uniforms.

The individual notification system obviated the necessity of posting a general mobilization proclamation, but any doubt that the army is being put on a war time footing was dissolved by the authoritative Fascist Editor Gioacchino Anzaldo in his weekly broadcast to Italian troops.

"Mobilization is under way!" Anzaldi, editor of Fascist Militant Count Galeazzo Ciano's newspaper, Telegrafo, at the agency, declared.

Fascist circles found cause for optimism in the statement made by Premier Reyfid Saydam of Turkey broadcast yesterday to his nation. Although Saydam declared that Turkey was ready to take up arms to defend the Balkan Entente, he failed to mention Turkey's mutual assistance pacts with Great Britain and France—a fact to which Fascist commentators attached great importance.

BRITONS WATCH

While the nation rejoiced on the rescue of these men, it braced itself for continuation of the heavily blitz that will follow when the relatives of the dead, wounded and missing have been informed.

A thousand and what was to come appeared yesterday with news that the 27-year-old bride of Flying Officer Noel Agazarian, coal mine owner and lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Air Force, had been killed in the Dunkirk retreat. At Ashtead, Surrey, Agazarian and his bride, Evelyn Boscawen, 23, lieutenant in the Colditstream Guards and niece of Lord Falmouth, Agazarian was killed in the same action.

Meanwhile, it continued its drive on fifth columnists, helped by the discovery of a new spy ring. The week-end bag was about 30 more Fascists, including Captain Archibald Ramsay, ardent Fascist and brother of William Joyce, generally believed to be Lord Haw-Haw.

Identity Established

The "Haw-Haw" question of identity has been cleared up by his former wife, Lady Ramsay, who has now identified his voice as that of her former husband.

During alien round up Scotland Yard interned a Nazi hospital.

The nation was cheered last night by Prime Minister Anthony Eden who told it in broadcast that the Royal Air Force strike at the British Expeditionary Force in Belgium had destroyed German aircraft as "tens of thousands of our French allies."

Mr. Eden also said was "in addition to what the French have done with their Army."

Cheering also was the news from Paris that German aircraft losses in bag of German aircraft destroyed or severely damaged by British and French fighters and bombers was 169, including "a destroyed on the ground." Allied losses were estimated at 37.

Allied Achievements Sent

Although large units of the Allied forces had been withdrawn from Dunkerque, the operations were carried out at the same time as being sent to the British-French naval concentrations in the Channel ports and even, it was said.

Allied successes said the Mediterranean Fleet has been "constantly" engaged in convoy work unfortunately and is now more than a match for any save the most powerful fleets in the sea forces of her entry into the war.

Mr. Eden also said the Allies had gone as far as they can go in appeasing Italy's dictator, Benito Mussolini for satisfaction of Italy's "legitimate aspirations."

Allies Ready to Avoid Threat

It was generally believed here that the Premier would bring an answer to all questions concerning Italy's intentions.

The Allied attitude, reflected by press and radio, appeared to be that there are no difficulties with Italy that cannot be settled without recourse to war if Italy will but solmil decides for war the Allies are ready to meet the threat.

There were unconfirmed reports that Prime Minister Winston Churchill, shortly after assuming office, had sent Mussolini a letter proposing that Britain's premier discuss Italy's territorial aspirations in an Italian conference.

Operations on the active war front, meanwhile, were high-lighted by the destruction yesterday of new British successes in the air over Dunkirk.

Bombers Flay Fort

American-built British bombers were credited with playing an important part in these air battles. Prime Minister Air Ministry said, broke up a formation of 50 German planes manoeuvering to attack a convoy, and in 13 minutes shot down three Junkers 87 dive bombers.

England, in the midst of intensive defence preparations, meanwhile, received a fresh air raid scare yesterday when an unidentified aircraft dropped two bombs in open country in northeast of London. No damage was done.

Late last night the sound of machine-gun fire was heard off the southeast coast and British fighting planes roared out to sea as searchlights swept the skies. Observers said they believed enemy planes had attempted to machine-gun shipping ships taking off in pursuit.

On the home front King George VI has launched a drive to help find a campaign to speed armaments production. Following the precedent set by Premier Churchill, the King visited a Birmingham gun factory and his visit was quoted as telling the workers:

"We must have all of you can give them weapons."

Mr. Churchill also stressed the necessity of stepping up the nation's war industries.

It was announced that Germany had made "great strategical gains" in the last days of the retreat from Flanders "she less to us in equipment and material than you keep."

The Ministry of Agriculture, R. S. Hudson, in Rue with a program to increase home production, announced that "all scientific objectors to military service must be conscripted for land work and that no farm workers would be permitted to leave the land."

As a defence against parachute troops, it was disclosed, thousands by plane all road signs were removed and trenches were dug across golf courses.

Refugees to Safety

Approximately 80,000 children, previously sent to rural areas along the east coast, have been moved to places of greater safety inland.

Mr. Churchill has declared that it must put all its resources into the war effort if victory is to be achieved.

Paul Bewher, war correspondent of the Daily Mail, declared that the retreat of the northern armies is "only a phase in a struggle of years to the length of war." He chided the British people for living in a "dream" from which even "the incredible rearguard fighting" of the B.E.F. has awakened it.

Britain Can Conquer

"Britain will not be easily conquer" he declared. "There is no doubt of that, but she must be prepared to take the most drastic steps and so suffer heavy losses in the end.

"The same paper, in an editorial, said: "Germany possesses a mechanized army out of all proportion to her population. It is positively absurd," the editorial declared, "that Germany should have more machines and those who follow Hitler's leadership should be more disciplined and physically fit. It is unfair to pit our own soldiers against otherwise."

General Henry AP Rhys Pryce, 66-year-old Welsh veteran of the first Great War, said in a letter published in the Times that Britain war would be won by attack and quick defence.

"Our real task now," he said, "is the recapture of the Channel ports. Let us concentrate on the German forces whose next move obviously will be to the Channel ports where they will certainly conduct certain operations to make us think it is their next objective."

The Manchester Daily Express, commenting on the possibility of Italy's entry into the war, declared that if she joined Hitler in further bunden to us not to be lightly disposed of."

"If Mussolini takes a step against us," it said, "the Italian people he dominates who will suffer."

FLEET OF BOMBERS

Most of the casualties, it was indicated, were caused by the terrific bombing attacks and in slum sections of the city.

Several bombs fell on a "particularly important building" in Paris but the Air Ministry immediately identified.

Soldiers Take Control

Soldiers took control of the bombed areas. With the swiftness and efficiency of a modern army, water and the wooden stocks were distributed among the people by the Channel crossing.

The heartening scenes from last fall, the authorities put squads of men to work clearing the streets and sidewalks.

Up and down some of the city's most fashionable boulevards and avenues, bombs smashed into buildings, leaving gaping holes in the sidewalks and post bouncing into the streets, and jolted trees to their roots.

Bombs crashed into homes where they live an apartment building caved in. Next door to it, the front of a house was sheared plumb through paneling, windows into a room where the minister of Supply, who conducted the tour, that he was greatly heartened by the lively spirit he found.

In an interview with Mr. Morrison, there's been a very real increase in output."

KING TRIES OUT MACHINE-GUN

His Majesty Got 60 Shots in or Close to Bullseye at 200 Yards

London, June 3 (CP)—The King "tried out" a machine-gun for a day and got 60 shots in or close to the bullseye at 200 yards.

While a party of army officers, munitions officials and newspaper men watched, the King blazed away happily.

"I had no idea it was so steady," the Monarch said as the last of 300 shot toward the target.

The King spent two hours in a Sunday tour of a gun factory where he saw the latest methods of manufacturing, examination now go on seven days a week.

The heartening growing steel being pounded into gun barrels under huge presses reminded Americans and workers tooling precision instruments.

He saw, too, the first rifles brought back from Flanders for overhaul. They were rusty with sea water and the wooden stocks were splintered from the hail of the Channel crossing.

Eyewitnesses Tell of Bombing Of Liner President Harding

Ship Strafed by Aerial Machine-Gunners Before Bomb Hits, Killing Four

CREW IN NEW YORK

New York, June 3—(AP)—Fifty-eight survivors of the Belgian liner Ville De Bruges, formerly the United States liner President Harding, which was bombed and sunk off the Belgian coast May 14, arrived here Saturday on a British liner.

Simon W. Crabbe, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., senior officer of the group, told of a terrific strafing by aerial machine-gunners shortly before a bomb struck the ship, killing four men, and causing her to be beached and later sunk. Two of those killed were Canadians and two were Belgians.

Survivors arriving here were all crew members, most of them Canadians. A crew or 118, including 62 Canadians, and a passenger list of 60 principally women refugees and a few children from Belgium, were saved. The refugees were taken to Britain and France.

The United States liner, flying the 13,260-ton ship to the Belgians after United States neutrality laws kept the American merchant fleet out of war zones.

First eye-witness story of the bombing of the Ville De Bruges was related in London, May 17, when the Canadian survivors arrived there. Crabbe told the story Saturday.

We left Antwerp about 4 a.m. on May 14 for Southhampton, with 64 Belgian refugees," he said. "At 6:50 a.m. when we were about 10 miles down the river below Antwerp, a plane flew over us and machine-gunned us fore and aft, but without hitting anyone or doing any damage.

Second Attack Ship

"Twenty minutes later a big Heinkel bomber, which may have been a scout or aerial torpedo, missed us but the second struck the ship aft of the main bunker. It tore a hole in the ship about 20 feet long and eight feet high.

"Within 10 minutes we were taking in 12 feet. Holdings without any panic, Volunteers were asked for engine-room crew. I kept enough steam up so that the ship could be beached on the port bank of the river and thus kept out of the channel, so she would not block shipping, which was done.

"The first assistant engineer, a man named David Dunn of Hamilton, Ont., volunteered and gave his life in the task. He was subsequently rescued from what below, Daniel Duffy, deck engineer, another Canadian, (formerly of Montreal) died afterward in hospital in Antwerp from shock.

After landing in Antwerp survivors rode 60 miles to Ostend by a truck into which 119 men, women and children were packed, with the German army only ten miles away and hourly getting closer, Crabbe related.

"The Ville De Bruges," he added, "was the last belligerent ship to leave Antwerp, and was in that port for four days after the beginning of the German invasion on May 10."

Antwerp was bombed 22 times in the first 24 hours, he said.

LORD ROTHERMERE VISITS CANADA

Noted British Publisher Refuses to State Nature of His Business in This Country

Quebec, June 3—(CP) — Lord Rothermere, British publisher, arrived here Sunday "on private business in connection with the war."

A statement to the Press said: "Lord Rothermere is making a short visit to this side on official business in connection with the war. The visit is no way political."

The publisher declined to enlarge upon the statement.

Lord Rothermere said "I don't know" when asked where he would go from Quebec.

Angels Only Word To Use to Describe Work of Nurses

At a southeast coast port, June 3—(CP)—Across the Channel in the gradually closing Continental net through which the Allies have brilliantly extricated their troops nurses are carrying on the great traditions of Florence Nightingale and Edith Cavell.

On the beaches of Dunkirk they are caring for the wounded in a storm of air and artillery bombardment.

Some have been killed, others wounded. But these Red Cross nurses have stuck to their posts and refused to leave until the last wounded have been brought safely across the Channel.

"I cannot describe what I've seen about those girls," said one wounded Tommy today. "Out on that dreadful beach with German planes continually overhead and shells bursting all the time, they have worked without stopping for days past.

"I have seen some of them killed as they have gone about their work.

"Angels is the only word you can use to describe them."

OFFICER'S BODY IS RECOVERED

Ottawa, June 3—(CP)— The mystery surrounding the Devil's Hole automobile crash of 16 days ago was lifted today with the finding of the body of Lieutenant John G. Edwards, 25-year-old officer of the Ottawa Cameron Highlanders, a unit chosen for the 3rd Division of the Canadian Active Service Force.

The battered automobile, containing the Lieutenant's body, plunged from the Chaudiere Bridge, connecting Ottawa and Hull, into a hole in the Ottawa River in the early hours of May 18. It was located yesterday by 52-year-old Aime Lapointe of Hull, a diver with 35 years' experience.

Lieut. Edwards, socially prominent member of the capital's younger set, was the son of Capt. W. M. Edwards, director of the Auxiliary Services of the C.A.S.F. in England. He was a native of Ottawa.

Forced Door of Car

Coming to the surface after completing the successful search, carried on intermittently since the crash, Lapointe made another dive, opened open the front door of the machine and brought the body to shore.

Edwards, the diver said, was in a sitting position in the front seat and was the only occupant of the car.

"The Devil's Hole current had swept the car through a natural underground tunnel 100 feet in diameter into a nearby stream, Lapointe said, and into the Ottawa River.

Lapointe became the first man ever to enter the tunnelled outlet to Devil's Hole and come out alive. He explored it from end to end.

"As soon as I'd found that tunnel and walked through it, I was sure I'd find the car," Lapointe said. "I knew it couldn't get through."

Edwards, the diver said, was in such a sitting position that he knew

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 4—(CP Cable) —Britain will never surrender and never give up the struggle against German tyranny, Prime Minister Churchill warned the world today from the ancient, lofty House of Commons.

"We shall go on to the end," the Prime Minister declared, "we shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air.

"We shall defend our island, whatever the cost may be.

"We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and streets and in the hills.

"We shall never surrender and even if, which I do not for a moment believe, this island, or even part of it, is subjugated and starving, then our Empire beyond the seas, armed and guarded by the British fleet, will carry on the struggle until in God's good time, the new world, in all its strength and might, sets forth to the rescue and liberation of the old."

30,000 of the B.E.F. Killed, Wounded or Missing.

In probably the finest speech of his career, several times members said it was the finest delivered in the House in years and years—Mr. Churchill announced that the gallant men of the British Expeditionary Force were killed, wounded or missing.

But in the "miracle of delivery," 335,000 men of the British and French armies had been evacuated from Flanders.

Wars Not Won By Evacuations.

But he warned that "wars are not won by evacuations". It was a tremendous effort and a great victory to snatch so many men from the jaws of death but Britain and France had suffered "a colossal military disaster" on the field of battle. That must not be forgotten; it must not be minimized.

This Would Prevent Them Co-operating With German Aircraft or Parachute Troops

CANADA MENTIONED

LONDON, June 4.—(CP) —War Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today that the Government is considering transporting interned aliens and prisoners of war to places remote from the British Isles in order to prevent their possible co-operation with German aircraft or parachute troops.

Canada has been mentioned as a possible safe place of internment for these prisoners, and aliens.

Mr. Eden said German parachute troops were equipped with "hefty" machine guns, infantry guns and light howitzers in addition to the usual side-arms.

The Secretary for War charged the enemy had "deliberately bombed" hospital carriers in circumstances "which had admitted no mistake" as to identity.

He said this was done "in contempt of the Geneva Convention" given hospital equipment by international agreement to which the German government was a party.

N. Y. Tribune Calls For an "End" To U.S. Position of Neutrality in War

New York, June. 4.—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune said today for an "end" to the United States' position of neutrality in the war, "it urged the sale of warplanes and other military material to the Allies, saying "forceful action is urgently needed now."

"In the judgment of this newspaper the time has arrived for the United States to stand up before the nations of the world and declare that, while reasserting its non-belligerence, its neutrality in fact no longer exists," the editorial said.

"This country cannot, in our opinion, longer remain bound by the rigid letters of formal neutrality. It has been specific. We have several hundreds of pursuit planes of late design ready for action. We believe that these fast planes should be in the hands of the Allies at the earliest possible moment to help save Paris and London from wanton destruction.

"The fate of the Allies is likely to be decided within the next few weeks. Backed by every material aid that this country can spare they can stand their ground and finally win. Regardless of the technical letter of neutrality, we urge that this aid be given."

Expresses Faith in Allies.

Expressing shock at yesterday's air raid on Paris, in which 45 persons were killed and 149 injured the New York Times said: "There will be a chorus of execration.

"Free men will not endure these things without a new resolve to destroy the forces of evil that have sent the civilized world reeling backward." The Times added. "The great columns of smoke and flame that rise from the ruins of Rotterdam were the flames of destruction, but they were also the first fires of a wrath such as our world has never known.

"If this kind of fiendishness continues, if Paris and London are to become shambles of ruined buildings and murdered civilians, the fires of hate will not be quenched in our time. The anger of civilized peoples will burn so fiercely that it will consume the hateful German system which has loosed these horrors upon the world."

18 Ships Sunk in Week Ending on May 26th

London, June 4 (CP)—Authoritative British sources announced today that 18 ships, of a total of 45,225 tons were sunk by German action in the week end May 26.

The total included 10 British ships of a total of 10,913 tons, it was said, four allied vessels of 22,500 tons and four neutral ships of 21,312 tons.

The British losses, it was said, were about one-half the weekly average for the 38 weeks of the war and the tonnage was said to be small, with most vessels under 1,000 tons.

The losses included the hospital ships Brighton and Maid of Kent, bombed and sunk in Dieppe harbor, the British listed known, and estimated German losses it was said remained substantially unaltered at 590,000 tons."

Penalties Against Hoarding of Commodities Extended to Libya and Ethiopia

Rome, June 4—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's cabinet approved today a series of measures to prepare the nation for war, but left unanswered the question if and when Italy would enter the European conflict.

In an anxiously awaited 90-minute session, with Il Duce presiding, the ministers moved to extend war preparations to Italy's African empire, to strengthen the navy and tighten discipline in the war industries.

But Italy's position as a non-belligerent ally of Germany remained unchanged by the meeting, to which the world had looked for days for a clue to Il Duce's next move.

The measure dealing with war industries provided punishment for "infractions of discipline which would interfere with output.

Further Speeded-up Production of Armaments for Tommy Atkins as He Calls for More Help

DIVERT MANPOWER

(By Sam Robertson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 4—(CP-Cable)—The Government today launched a national survey of a great assortment of industries with a view to further speeding up of production of armaments for Tommy Atkins who upon arriving from Flanders bloody fields grimly promised: "Give us the arms and equipment and we'll wipe the Huns off the face of the earth."

The survey is expected to reveal that a large amount of machinery and skilled manpower can be diverted to the production of munitions and other war equipment. It will embrace factories turning out products as widely diversified as torpedoes and fishhooks, chemicals and gold leaf.

Germany Denies Vimy Memorial Is Destroyed

Berlin, June 4—(AP)—An authoritative German source denied last night Allied reports that the Germans had destroyed the Canadian war memorial at Vimy Ridge.

He said "the report belongs to that series of desperate fantasies by which our opponents attempt to arouse anger in the western hemisphere against us."

(Soldiers returning from Flanders and France reported last Saturday the memorial, unveiled by King Edward VIII in 1936, had been demolished apparently in a deliberate act of vandalism by the Nazis).

Earlier the Queen visited Princess Elizabeth and Margaret Rose at a reception area in the country to which they were evacuated.

"KEEP OUT" SIGN AIMED AT NAZIS BY NEW U.S. BILL

New Legislation Would Forestall Any Land Claims by a Victorious Germany

BACKED BY HULL

Washington, June 4—(AP)—Democratic and Republican allies supported the administration today in its effort to post a firm "keep out" sign, obviously aimed at Germany, on the possessions of other foreign powers in this hemisphere.

Legislation to clarify any doubts about United States policy on that point was introduced yesterday by Chairman Key Pittman (Dem-Nev) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Chairman Sol Bloom (Dem-New York) of the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee. Bloom told reporters that the bill was backed by State Secretary Cordell Hull.

The House Committee was called together to approve the bill today. Chairman Bloom, a Democrative Hamilton Fish of New York, the ranking Republican member, announced his support.

Bolstering the Monroe Doctrine, by which President James Monroe in 1823 declared the American continents closed to future colonization by any European powers, the legislation would commit the United States to resist by armed effort by Germany—should it defeat the allies—the claim title to British, French, Netherlands or Danish possessions in the Western World.

Officials Believe Civilian Casualties Not Caused by Deliberate Attack—Allies May Bomb Berlin Area

Paris, June 4 (AP)—The government acknowledged today that airdromes, factories and railways had been damaged in the German air raid on Paris yesterday, and authorized sources said that in view of this evidence that the bombing was aimed at military objectives the French did not feel justified in reprisals for civilian casualties.

Military officials said that while bombs had been dropped in haphazard fashion, killing 64 civilians and wounding 200, it appeared there had been no "objective" aimed at in the city itself.

Therefore, it was said, the French feel that while they can now "justifiably" attack factories and military objectives around Berlin, attacks on German civilians are not justified.

Naval Officer Says Canal Will be Unusable by Germans for Several Months

'BLOCKSHIPS' USED

London, June 4 (CP)—The successful blocking of Zeebrugge Canal at the Belgian port of Zeebrugge by sinking ships filled with concrete was described today by a British naval officer who witnessed the action.

He said the canal would not be used by the Germans "for at least several months."

This eye-witness said that the "blockships" secret was warships and guided by small craft, steamlined nearly parallel to the Belgian coast under cover of darkness May 9. When the ships reached the point when one "blockship" grounded near the entrance the others sheered inside the mole leading to the canal mouth.

The naval force found the entrance to the channel marked by a big steamer, the wreck of the old

Wealthy Montreal Yachtsman Helped In Perilous Evacuation of Dunkirk

By FRED BACKHOUSE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 4 (CP. Cable)— Raphael de Sola, wealthy yachtsman from Montreal, told today how he helped in the perilous evacuation of 335,000 men from Dunkirk and came through with nothing but a tent in his steel helmet.

Mr. De Sola, who has lived in London for many years, was among the 300 amateur yachtsmen assembled at the port of Dunkirk when reserves were suddenly called for May 30.

All were given steel helmets and All there was a most dangerous job ahead and that if anyone wished to withdraw he could do so. Nobody did.

Many volunteers were prominent City men. With no time to go home to change, they went to sea in their dinner jackets, striped pants and bowler hats. However, Mr. De Sola borrowed a tin hat in changing to seagoing attire.

He was appointed "captain" of a lifeboat that was towed across the Channel behind a drifter. His crew were kids of 17 and 18 who tied their way into the job by claiming to be older.

They went machine-gunned by low-flying German planes. The drifter's radio mast was shot away.

Friday night they anchored off Dunkirk and Mr. De Sola and his companions hid in a ruined boat lying on the sand. A piece of shrapnel struck his helmet.

Later his boat helped bring off the Dunkirk beaches some of the thousands of exhausted troops.

Back in England naval authorities insisted on paying their temporary sailors. Mr. De Sola, a stockbroker and typically a millionaire, received about $10.

London, June 4 (CP) — British public opinion, aroused by the German fall of Paris, reflected grim determination today to back the government in any measures to wage war against all totalitarian powers.

The press declared that the Allied government must, besides blasting a huge fleet in the eastern Mediterranean, had other striking forces ready if Italy should enter the war on Germany's side.

The House of Commons hoited to Prime Minister Churchill for details of the epic withdrawal of the British Expeditionary Force from Dunkirk, in his review of the Allies' present position beginning about 3:30 p.m. (10.30 a.m. EST) today.

Premier King Listed As Conservative in Parliamentary Guide

Ottawa, June 4 (CP)—As typical of the appointment to the Canadian Parliamentary Guide, 1940, has come off the press, correcting an error contained in the first run-off which showed Premier Mackenzie King as a Conservative.

The reprint also fixes up an error in the listing of George James Tustin, member for Prince Edward-Lennox, by replacing the (L) after his name with a (C).

The prime minister, Liberal member for Prince Albert, appears in the alphabetical list of members by constituencies immediately before Mr. Tustin and in the first printing of the supplement their political affiliations were switched.

It caused considerable comment and considerable joshing on Parliament Hill but the supplement had been cast aside by a week before a reprint was available, making the error harmless.

The supplement became necessary when the House of Commons was dissolved last Jan. 25 and an election called. Just prior to that date the Parliamentary Guide for 1940 was issued and the election, of course, necessitated a supplement giving the new makeup of the Commons and adding the fifteen Senators appointed to vacancies in the upper chamber.

It is a 50-page booklet.

Great Britain to Call Maximum of Conscripts

London, June 4 (CP).—War Minister Anthony Eden said today that the maximum number of conscripts which can be trained will be called up this month, redoubling the normal rate.

A sufficient number of volunteers are available for the defence of London, Mr. Eden said.

He denied also that volunteers defending public utilities were armed with War Department weapons and that others detailed for specific duty either had War Department fire-arms or their own.

Why The Weather?

By MAJOR A. H. Thiessen
Dominion Meteorologist

The wind system! If we had a thorough knowledge of the circulation of the atmosphere, many of the present complexities would have been solved. The sun heats the earth unequally, sending in the air of the warmer parts expanding more than that in the cooler. This causes upward and downward movements of the air, called "currents", and horizontal movements, called "wind". The circulation thus caused would be relatively simple if the earth's surface were homogeneous (that is, all land or all water); as the flow from north to south would be regular. But continents alongside of oceans, the irregular topography of land surfaces, and local and general storms introduce almost unsolvable complexities.

Songs, yells, etc., prevailed, after which slides made up from actual photos, illustrating the camp's life during 1939 and plans for 1940 were announced.

Mr. Russ Wotten and Ed. Shortt as song leader led the community singing, while the General Secretary and Camp Director, Jos. E Shortt, looked after the procedure and supper. Jim Seymour superintended the games and swim. Several boys who, while they have never been to camp, had indicated their intention of attending camp this summer for the first time, were also present and shared the fun.

Six-year-old Keith Sharp, of Stockdale, sustained injuries and the motor car in which he was riding with his grandfather, Jonathan Powell, Stockdale, was badly damaged when it was in collision with a truck driven by Ronald Lawton, of this city, over the week-end. The two vehicles came into collision at a road intersection a mile near Stockdale. The force of the impact threw the lighter car, driven by Mr. Powell, into the side of a nearby culvert, when additional property damage resulted. The matter is under investigation by Det.-Sergt. E. A young man and woman travelling in a 10-month model passed the worthless note. Merchants and other business men are warned to be on the alert as these Mexican 10-pesos notes are an exact duplication of legal tender and can be easily mistaken for legal money.

QUINTE CONFERENCE DELEGATES TO SELECT NEW PRESIDENT

One of the most important features of the annual session of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church now under way in Port Hope will take place today when delegates will select the president for the coming year.

Four ministers have been nominated for this important position. These include the Rev. W. Cuff, Kingston, Rev. J. J. Black, Lindsay, Rev. J. G. Easton, Peterborough, and Rev. A. D. Cornett, Smith's Falls.

Minister Protests Against Inaccuracies Of News Stories

Ottawa, June 4 (CP)—Hon. J. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines and Resources, protested in the House of Commons Monday against inaccurate news stories.

Referring to a Quebec story (not a Canadian Press story) that fifty Germans had landed there, Income for the United States, the minister said there was "not a shred of foundation" for the report.

The question was raised by W. P. Mulock, Liberal, North York, who asked if the story was true and if any of the Germans remained in Canada.

"The report is wholly inaccurate," Mr. Crerar said. The fact is three refugees with American visas landed at Quebec.

"Newspaper stories of this kind have naturally a disturbing effect upon the people. I will receive letters and telegrams of protest and valuable time will be wasted. There is not a shadow or shred of ground for this story."

Belleville Citizens Seek Out In Tracing Source of Malicious Rumours Respecting Their Loyalty

Dr. and Mrs. George Stobie Appear Before the Anti-Subversive Committee With the Request That the Committee Prosecute the Persons Who Have Spread False and Malicious Rumours Recently

SERVED IN MEDICAL CORPS IN GREAT WAR

Prompted by malicious stories circulated in and about the city regarding the antecedents and family history of Dr. G. H. Stobie and Mrs. Stobie, the Belleville Anti-Sabotage and Anti-Subversive Committee went into swift action on a special meeting Monday night, and made it definitely clear in an unanimous resolution that those repeating slander are equally as guilty as those at the source.

The committee also pointed out most emphatically that the point of duty that lies with the general public, is not the repetition of slanderous statement, but if they are cognizant with facts which may lead to or cause the apprehension of those intimately connected with such a practice, to report such to the constituted authorities at once.

Perturbed by the very maliciousness of the rumors which have been in circulation during the past few days, Dr. and Mrs. Stobie personally sought the aid of the committee Monday night, to quell the stories which apparently have been aimed directly at them.

"This is, undoubtedly, the most cowardly attack I have ever heard of, and the parties responsible should be punished in some manner," stated Chairman Col. A. P. Allen after he had read a letter presented to the committee by Dr. and Mrs. Stobie. The Belleville Anti-Sabotage and Anti-Subversive Committee is composed of Col. A. P. Allen, chairman; Lieut.-Cols. Gribble, T. Y. Wills and J. W. Phillips; Inspector Frank Gardner; Chief Kidd; Mayor Thompson, and Fred Wiggins, president of the Army and Navy Veterans.

The committee took immediate action following the presentation of a letter by Dr. Stobie, and the following resolution emphatically condemning the repeating of malicious rumors regarding loyal British subjects, particularly, Dr. and Mrs. Stobie, where slander may result, was passed. Such persons are liable to prosecution.

Dr. Stobie's letter and the committee's resolution follow:

Belleville, Ont.
June 4th, 1940.

LA.-Colonel A. P. Allen,
Chairman, Anti-Sabotage and Anti-Subversive Activities Committee,
Belleville, Ontario.

My dear Colonel:

During the past week certain malicious rumours concerning myself and family have been gathering volume until at the present moment I believe the whole city and points outside the County are rife with the rumour that I am a German, that I have been arrested, that my wife is a German, that she has been arrested, that I have a secret radio transmitter concealed in the house and other statements of like character, all of which are known to be entirely without foundation.

The effect has become so unbearable for my wife and for me and our children that we are at the point of the utmost to stamp out the malicious rumours and I write to them to their source and if possible to punish the culprits.

You and all the members of your Committee are perfectly familiar with the origin of Mrs. Stobie and myself, but in this letter which I trust will be made public I feel it is due to both of us and to our entire family that my record should be publicly made known. I was born in Cobourg, Ont., Ontario, of Scotch parentage which may be traced back for centuries without any trace of any other blood. My wife was born in Cashtown, Ontario, of Loyalist Empire Loyalist stock and again without any trace of any other generations at least of any German blood. During the Great War following my graduation I enlisted in the Army Medical Corps and served in France as Captain and Medical Officer with the heavy artillery. During my service I received a severe injury commonly known as a broken back and I will carry disability from this all my life, and I have never asked my Government to compensate me in any way because I was fortunate enough to be able with my profession to earn enough to satisfy the requirements of myself and my family without outside aid.

I and my family have at all times conducted ourselves as loyal citizens and never in my life have I had a disloyal thought against the British Crown or its Dominions.

Surely with my record it must be considered by everyone, one of the gravest injustices that can be inflicted upon any man is to maliciously injure his standing in the community. Therefore Mr. Chairman, I present these facts to you with the hope that you and your Committee may find out means in some measure at least of correcting this ghastly injustice.

Yours sincerely,
Geo. H. Stobie

The Reason
Belleville, Ontario,
June 4th, 1940.

At a meeting of the Anti-Sabotage and Anti-Subversive Activities Committee held at Belleville on the 3rd day of June, 1940, the above letter from Dr. Stobie was read and Dr. Stobie and Mrs. Stobie were heard in person.

After consideration it was unanimously resolved as follows:—

1.—The Committee:—

(a) Certify unequivocally as to the statements of fact contained in Dr. Stobie's letter as to the antecedents of himself and his family, as to his loyal service to His Majesty during the First Great War, and as to the loyalty of himself and his family as public spirited and loyal citizens of His Majesty.

(b) This Committee emphatically denies the truth of the rumours referred to by Dr. Stobie and entities that they have absolutely no foundation in fact.

2.—This Committee emphatically condemns the practice of repeating malicious rumours and urges that the public be educated to the fact that such are contrary to law who repeats a slanderous statement is as guilty of publishing that slander as is the person who originates it and is in the same measure responsible as the party aggrieved.

This Committee desires to point out that there is a very great difference between being able to say "I personally heard a certain person make certain statements", or "I personally saw a certain person commit a certain act", and in repeating some idle gossip such as "I heard that so and so was arrested as a spy."

This Committee desires to again emphasize to the public the great importance of co-operating with the constituted authorities by reporting anything they see or hear immediately to the police and to refrain insofar as it is possible from discussing rumours which might have a damaging effect on innocent citizens. The police are at all times ready and willing to make any necessary investigations.

Lt.-Col. A. P. Allen,
Chairman.

Illegal Possession Of Game Fish Brings Heavy Fines

Charged with the possession and sale of game fish, known as black bass and taken from provincial waters, Clarence McDonald, Deseronto, and A. S. Williams, Amelias-burg, were investigated by Fishery Overseer Gus Gamm and Fishery Act. Before Magistrate R. Butler K.C. yesterday the two charges were preferred by Game Warden Harry Meadows and were the sequel of a case heard in another court on a previous date when Charles Lee of Deseronto was convicted of a similar charge.

The offence is said to have taken place on May 15th last, when Williams and McDonald are alleged to have filleted the bass from provincial waters and sold them, contrary to the Game and Fishery Act. McDonald was fined $50.00 and costs, while Williams paid a fine of $25.00 and costs. Both men pleaded guilty and Magistrate Butler made reference to the cases and intimated that was a resemblance of commercialism being gams fish arising out of such offences. The fines will be increased if other similar convictions are registered in this court. The taking of game fish at the time of spawning means the destruction of many thousands of our game fish," commented Magistrate Butler in summing up the case.

'War Will be Won in Air' Says Air Marshal W. A. Bishop In Address at Trenton Base

Compliments Personnel for Fine Showing and Strict Devotion to Duty

FLIES FROM OTTAWA

"We will win this war and we will win it in the air, but we are going to have to-win it after long, bitter and desperate struggle that will need everything in us that is good, steadfast and true," Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V. C., D.S.O., M.C., D.F.C., Director of Recruiting, R.C.A.F., told the officer commanding, staff, and personnel of the Trenton Base of the Royal Canadian Air Force on Monday.

Slouter than when he strreaked through the flaming skies of France twenty five years ago, to send seventy-six Hun planes crashing in aerial defeat, the great Canadian ace, following a tour of inspection, briefly addressed fifteen hundred aircraftsmen and officers from a flag-covered dais on the parade square.

Clearly his words rang out in the afternoon air. Above him fluttered the new famous R.C.A.F. ensign. On his breast gleamed the coveted Victoria Cross, Distinguished Service Order, Military Cross and other decorations awarded to one of the last World War's greatest flying aces.

He recalled the days 25 years ago, "when I was a young fellow of the Flying Corps, and the age of many I see before me now. And, like you, we were deeply concerned with the apparent success of the Huns."

"But," he said, "our leaders counseled us to stand firm, keep our chins up, and give two blows for one."

"Do Not Lose Heart"

"Remembering those words," Air Marshal Bishop continued, "those challenging words from our senior officers, I say to you now do not lose heart, and do not listen to those who may come to you whispering cowardly words."

In tribute to the staff and personnel of the base, the great air veteran said: "The assembled squadrons, that "smartness on parade is something which is not easily accomplished, and it means a great deal. It means that you each, individually have realized the great advantage of studying and accepting discipline, and the man who has accepted discipline has confidence within himself, a spirit of which he will always be proud. He has raised himself to a level much higher than the man who has not done so."

Discipline, he continued, builds up the esprit de corps that created the traditions on which this force stands, and upon which new traditions even greater than the old, are being built up day by day. "Every man of us has reason to be proud of being even one small unit in this great and glorious force."

University at The Air

Classifying the Trenton base as the Canadian University of the Air, he said that no better description than that fits it. "It is no wonder then that you take such pride in being members of this university."

Reminding the parade that the organization is held together because every one in it has an important part, no matter how small, to perform, Air Marshal Bishop said that "it is clearly obvious to me that you have been carrying out your duties well. I congratulate you all."

Turning to the present situation, he said the dark days through which they are passing in England and France will be followed by the equally dark days in which the Royal Air Force was born. "It came into being on the first day of April, 1918 in the midst of the blackest period for Great Britain and her Allies in the First Great War. It was in those black days that the great force to which we all belong first saw the light of day—the union of the Royal Naval Air Service and the famous Royal Flying Corps."

Spirit of These Gallant Boys"

Here the famous ace stiffened to attention. There was a distinct note of pride in his voice. "Again," he said, "we are threatened by tyranny, by evading Hun, and once again the Royal Air Force is carrying out her duties in a way that thrills the world. I say to you men, we have just reason to be proud of wearing the same uniform as those gallant boys who are saving their comrades on land and sea atthe Front today."

"Keep up this splendid spirit, and victory will be ours. Good luck to you all!" Air Marshal Bishop concluded.

Three hundred throats roared three lusty British cheers, and a "tiger" for the famous visitor at the conclusion of his address. Previously, accompanied by Group-Captain J. S. Sully, officer commanding the base, and members of his staff, Air Marshal Bishop inspected the assembled squadrons of airmen and officers.

The head of the station assembled on the steps of the Administration Building placed officers' marches during this phase of the visit.

The air marshal arrived at the station at four o'clock in a Hudson bomber. He addressed service clubs in Ottawa on Monday noon, and afterwards immediately "took off" for the Trenton air base.

Entertaining of Airforce Men In Belleville Homes Proposed By Rotary Club; to Make up Lists

Judge Cameron in Making Proposal Said All Ex-Service Men Appreciated Hospitality Shown Them by English People in Last War

HOSPITALITY CENTRE

Arrangements will be completed in the near future to have an adequate number of Belleville homes made available for the entertainment of R.C.A.F. men, both officers and men. A proposal to this effect was presented by Judge J. A. Cameron to the Belleville Rotary Club at its regular weekly luncheon meeting Monday. A committee was named which is to cooperate with the War Service Committee representing all service clubs to have a hospitality centre established. The Y.M.C.A. officer and the chaplain at the airport will be asked to co-operate in listing the names of those who desire to entertain in private homes.

Judge Cameron told the Rotarians about the effort to provide an R.C.A.F. hospitality centre. A double house had been secured just west of the airport which will be furnished and equipped to provide a place for officers and civilian women in the R.C.A.F., to visit with their husband and fathers. This, he said, would fill a great need. Belleville people were being asked to provide the furniture and furnishings and already had shown a willingness to respond.

Will Remember Hospitality

"We who served overseas in the last war well remember the splendid hospitality of the English people", Judge Cameron said in opening the matter of entertaining Air Force men in private homes. There are a considerable number of officers and men who were sent from England for the Empire Training Scheme who, undoubtedly, would appreciate opportunities of joining Canadian family circles for brief periods. Besides, there are hundreds of young Canadians from distant points who would welcome brief intervales of home life, Judge Cameron asked Rotary to consider ways and means of coping with this problem.

President Howard Clarke added Ross Neal to the Rotary War Service Committee which includes Ed. Bernstein, chairman, Bert Boyce, and Chas. Dolan, and asked them to work with the general War Service Committee under chairman F. C. MacLaurin, to develop the home entertainment plan as soon as possible.

It was revealed, in the meantime, that many members of Rotary already had been entertaining R.C.A.F men in their homes.

A letter from District Governor Owen Hertly conveyed a proposal of Oshawa Rotary Club that Canadian Rotarians offer to provide warplanes for training purposes for British and French Rotarians. The club members agreed that Belleville should be any need in this respect they would be willing to co-operate to the fullest extent.

Pay Tribute to Ken Dyson

Thanks were extended for Mr. Dyson's conscientious work as agent here and member of Belleville Rotary Club, and best wishes for success here.

President Clarke announced that Dave Martin was director-elect to take Mr. Dyson's place on the Rotary executive.

Bert Hoodless, newest member of Belleville Rotary Club, was officially received, Past President Fred Douglas performing the honours.

Jack Hastrick told of the progress made in forming a Rotary Club at Picton. The organization meeting is being held Thursday night, at which a number of Belleville Rotarians will attend. He said that District Governor Hertly was in Brampton presenting a charter to the new Rotary Club there. With the chartering of the Picton Club District Governor Hertly would have the distinction of chartering the greatest number of clubs under the aegis of a single district governor in Rotary.

THE THREE BRANCHES OF THE SERVICE

Every arm of service has been performing all that the highest standards of military conduct can demand of it. The Royal Navy and the auxiliary services with the French fleet bore the chief brunt of the first seven months of the war in the relentless vigil of the seas and in striking the enemy, sinking U-boats, capturing his shipping, and in guarding the passage of British troops to France.

The Royal Air Force and the French air force have been on guard night and day against the enemy, since the opening of the war. When the German despot let loose his hordes to break through the bars of the neutral countries, the Allied fliers were called upon for the heaviest duties and from that time to this have given one of the most magnificent proofs imaginable of efficiency and courage.

In the war in the Low Countries and in the defence of France the R.A.F. and the French airmen have performed deeds of supreme valor, personnel has proven itself more than a match man for man for the foe. These men have the tireless energy, with little rest because of the magnitude of the task, performed a service to the Allies which merits and receives their countries' praise. The spirit and skill of British airmen has made up for the reported superiority in numbers of the enemy airplanes and the records of the past weeks have shown three or four casualties among the Germans to one among the British fliers. Allied aviators' unflinching courage had dealt a severe blow at the Fuehrer's air force.

In the records of the Allied armies' annals nothing can surpass the valor that has been shown in these days. The latest achievements, the Battle of Flanders and the withdrawal from Flanders, is a proof of what can be done by British and French soldiers. In this evacuation the three services have joined to write a story which will endure for future ages and for the people of other lands to admire.

THE BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Why Insulin Increases Weight

As a youngster and even well up in my teens, I delighted in reading stories of the South Sea Islands and of the native tribes which inhabited them. I always laughed to myself as I read of the "delicacies" men of how they would boil the organs of animals and give the sick patient to eat.

Today we know that the soup of organs such as the pancreas, liver and stomach, extracted by refined scientific methods, has given the lives of hundreds of thousands yearly by preventing death in diabetes and pernicious anaemia. It would seem that almost every few months some new use for insulin (a fine insulin is extract of the pancreas) that is used in preventing death from diabetes was but one of its achievements.

Some months ago I recorded the experience of several physicians who had found insulin of great help in building up underweight children. Just how the insulin increased weight was still unknown but that it increased appetite was one noticeable result. An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association suggests that the insulin stimulates the nerve which causes the stomach walls to contract and so set up hunger-pains, and increases the amount of stomach and other digestive juices, so that more of the food that is eaten would be absorbed into the blood, thus giving more strength and increasing the weight. The fact also that insulin reduces the amount of sugar in the blood by enabling the body to use more sugar (instead of letting it be thrown out in the urine) also increases the hunger pains in the stomach. When hunger pains are present more food is naturally eaten.

One of the methods of stimulating appetite, particularly in nervous or mental cases is the use of histamine. That insulin is more effective in these cases is recorded by Dr. F. Horstmann, Pinland, who tested out both histamine and insulin in 62 such cases, one of which had the normal quantity and quality of stomach digestive juice and five did not. In all cases insulin was more effective than histamine and insulin caused the manufacture of digestive juice where histamine had no effect.

The value of insulin is thus shown in the treatment of anemia depressed patients without appetite.

"Duke," owned by a Mr. Galen Ward, of North Bath, Maine, was caught in a fox trap, was missing from Sunday until the Pulpwood Friday during one of the intense cold spells of the recent winter.

A neighbor of Mr. Ward's, Mr. Carroll D. Burnham, the owner of the dog called "Skeezix", according to the newspaper report, had wondered at the strange conduct of Skeezix who was much attached to the dog. Duke. On the Friday, Mr. Burnham's wife heard a bark which he was sure was from the dog. Duke, that had been missing so long. Mr. Burnham got up from a sick bed, put on his snowshoes, took his dog, Skeezix and told him to find Duke. The dog led him to his entrapped companion.

The strange thing about it was that for days Skeezix had been eating only a part of his regular meals, taking the rest in his mouth and disappearing. Also, if he got hold of a bone he would leave the premises carrying it with him. His owner thought that he was hiding his food. Come to find out, Skeezix had been carrying a part of his meals to the entrapped dog.

This story seemed so incredible to the wife of Mr. Burnham to discover if it could be verified. We have seen a letter in confirmation from Mr. Burnham in which he says, "The story in the Portland Press Herald is absolutely true." In addition to carrying part of Skeezix's meals and an occasional bone, Mr. Burnham says that Skeezix also had been going back and forth with mouth full of the fish and eating them after the dog. Mr. Burnham also says: "If she had not fed him I think he would probably have died, or he would have gnawed his foot off."

All lovers of dogs will find in this true story a new evidence of intelligence in the brains of these age-long companions of man akin to some of the finer characteristics of their masters.

One Ray of Light

Britain, it must be frankly admitted has little enough to be cheerful over in connection with the disastrous battle of Flanders. By a combination of treachery, mistakes and misfortune, she has suffered a crushing blow on the Belgian front, but not by any means a fatal set-back.

Out of the dark picture, however, there emerges one ray of light. It is now apparent that a considerable proportion of the British soldiers trapped along the Channel coast have been able and will still be able to get home safely to England. The thought of military advantages was almost forgotten by British people, their one concern being the safety of these gallant and despicably betrayed men. For a time it looked as though complete annihilation was in store for them, and grief descended over the Empire.

Impossible deeds of valor on the part of the armies itself and the heroic Navy and Air Force have changed the picture. Flanders is lost, but the British Army is not, and the people of our brave men, and we can go on with lighter hearts to the task that still lies ahead of us—Windsor Star.

The Balance Sheet of History

I am not among those who think and veneal.
that we are threatened with an Everywhere power has been diimminent invasion of the United States from the Nazis. It is something quite different with which we are threatened—the complete collapse of the world of which we are an integral part, and the redistribution and reorganization of that world, economically, politically, financially and spiritually, in such a manner as will menace our institutions, our way of life and our possibility of free and successful survival.

Readjustments that affect us radically, that will amount, in fact, to a revolution, will be made whether we stand helplessly by, unable effectively to protest or effectively to intervene, waiting to take what we are given—and like it.

x x x

The question is not whether we should go to war, it is, can the decision, because even if we should at this moment, we could not. In spite of the fact that this battle bring against the whole existing order, the Nazi government has been openly prepared for seven years, it has been the fashion to ignore it as a prime fact to be considered in the world today, and we have been panicky, war mongers and hysterical.

Now, it seems to me, the hysteria in the air is due to the fact that we are suddenly aware that we are in a planetary crisis, and that the world where we had the possession of force can influence events, we have neglected to develop it, and we possess force, we could probably influence events. We could determine the whole course of history without even leaving the room. A little more controlled what is happening now, not in Holland but all Europe, in the air but by his ability to make it.

There is nothing surprising about what has happened. It is only its speed. It has been coming inexorably—yesterday, and the day before that, and the day before that—this spring, and last spring and the spring before that. We simply were unarmed then, too. And many of the voices raised in panic and denunciation of our unpreparedness were those of men who have tried hardest in the past to convince the nation that there was no cause for alarm.

What we need now is not panic, but a realization that only intelligent action, but awakening, analysis and preparation for war can, eventually, but for the most blessed eventualities. And part of this preparation must begin with a ruthless and unsparing self-criticism.

The balance sheet of history is unmistakable. The democratic countries are bartering down frontiers, armaments, sovereignty, and in the whole world, because that world has offered itself to the Nazis for exploitation, and the day before that—this spring, and last spring and the spring before that—the democracies

NAVY SUCCESSFUL

Thetis, sunk in a similar British operation in 1918, but a small debutlement moving ahead to try to approach the canal gate was fired on heavily from machine-gun emplacements along the waterfront.

Warships Bombed Constantly

The warships escorting the "blockships" were bombed continuously for one and a quarter hours by a squadron of German planes, but were not hit, he added.

Although the British force could see the end of the smoke, a thick haze shrouded the harbor and the first concrete-ladden ships grounded and could not be refloated.

The naval officer said the British withdrew, but returned two days later and sank two ships immediately outside the canal gates which already had been blocked by a submerged dredger, apparently sunk by the Belgians.

The grounded "blockship" subsequently was refloated and sunk another, was sunk inside the mole at the entrance to the channel, he said. Although not completely blocking it, the officer said, they form a serious obstacle to navigation.

Both expeditions were completed without a casualty, the eyewitness declared.

The second trip, he said, was harassed by a German bombing attack and when the helm of the leading "blockship" broke down a small vessel was sent from a seaside to tow her to the canal gate.

When the skeleton crew left and tried to blow her up, the electric circuit failed because of a wire touched on a propeller, but gp a second attempt the ship exploded, he related.

15 Heinkels Attack

As the second turned into the harbor channel, he said, a second attack by 15 Heinkels attacked and the ship grounded. Working clear, however, it steamed to the canal gate, rammed the sunken dredger and exploded.

The officer said the second operation was completed in five hours from the "zero hour" when the first "blockship" entered the channel.

The crews of the sunken vessels escaped in boats, he said, to the canal to the warships which then steamed back at high speed, he said.

Recalling that in the last war submarine parts were shipped overland to Zeebrugge and were assembled along the canal bank, the officer said that in some ways the port would be the last base for undersea raiders that Germany could have.

He pointed out that the British expeditions lacked aid in navigation from sea and land or from protective forces on land, on the mole or elsewhere.

He compared the operation to the famed British landing at Zeebrugge which, led by Admiral Sir Roger Keyes in the last war, was in part out of action in a similar way.

SMALL BOY SAVED FROM DROWNING

Four-Year-Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Sanford Rescued from Fall Into Harbor Waters by His Mother

A near-drowning accident, which might have had serious results, had there not been older persons at hand to effect a rescue, occurred Monday afternoon when Tommy Sanford, aged four years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Sanford, 89 Front Street, fell into the Belleville Harbor, near Jack Robbin's, and beneath the Canadian Pacific railway bridge.

The little boy had been playing with a lad along with some other children in the near-by park when in the course of play the lad accidentally fell off the cement approach into deep water, out of sight.

Fortunately the lad's mother was nearby and hearing the other children raise the alarm, was able to jump into the water and pull her son to safety.

Dr. E. A. Noble was called and attended to the child at his parents' home and although it was believed the child had taken in some water, it was reported that he would soon be over the ill effects arising from out of his accident.

Air Havoc in Reich Said to Stir Nazis

Berne, Switzerland — Reports reaching here from neutral diplomatic sources concur that if Germany does win the war this Summer she cannot face another Winter because of mounting realization of the cost in lives and material of the conflict and because of wavering morale resulting from damage sustained by air raids and the high loses in casualties, states the New York Times.

According to these sources, who have no interest in spreading propaganda, the destruction caused in recent Allied air raids at Hamburg and other Rhineland and Ruhr industrial cities has been enormously beyond general awareness.

Not only ammunition depots, but oil tanks and communication centers have been so devastated that the police have roped off entire areas to prevent civilians from viewing the damage, which has already had serious repercussions on the morale of inhabitants in these regions, it is declared.

Trainloads of wounded continue to pour through, bound for Austria, the Moravian Protectorate and even Poland, where they are being shipped to keep them the country's full realization of the extent of the casualties. One day last week twenty-five trains landed with wounded passed through Hamburg alone, it is reported.

The British Royal Air Force raided Wilhelmshaven, the German naval base, on September 4 and again on April 4. Later in April the Germans charged that British fliers had bombed German "open towns" referring to the British raid on the German air base at Sylt in the North Sea on March 30 and the raid on Heide in Schleswig-Holstein.

Essen, German munition centre, and two other German towns were reported bombed by Allied planes which ranged land roads and rail communications east of the Rhine on May 15. On May 16, after the R.A.F. reported extensive bombing of roads and other objectives deep inside Germany, Nazi spokesmen again accused the Allies of bombing "open towns" and stated that "a number" of civilians being killed and wounded.

As the havoc caused by the German mechanized divisions mounted, the British force sent waves of bombers to destroy gasoline and other dumps in Germany, raiding Bremen and Hamburg and other points on May 17, and then in nightly raids scoring on Dusseldorf, the Ruhr industrial region and in provinces of Hannver and Westphalia, on Hanover and, in return visits, on Hamburg and Bremen.

Waves of Allied planes raided Aachen, Westwall city, on May 20 and during the Flanders campaign they bombed the German troop line from mid-Belgium to Aachen.

Early this week Dusseldorf and other rear positions were besieged by waves of R.A.F. bombers and since the British fliers began attacking important German production centres, including Duisburg, Dortmund, Hamburg, Bremen and Cologne.

May Was Month Of Many Fogs at Point Traverse

South Bay —(Special)— May was a month of many bad fogs and believed to be the worst in many years. Except for brief shut-downs, Dark Islands lighthouse tenders have had their fog alarms in operation for several days and nights, and were still in operation over the week-end as a dense blanket of fog settled over lake waters, retarding lake traffic to some extent.

So heavy was the fog on Saturday that all fishing craft at Point Traverse were held at their quays throughout the day.

H. Thompson and G. McGown Meet Within Thirty Feet of Animals

Bancroft (Special)—While Mr. George McGowan and Mr. Harold Thompson were driving Friday on the lower Faraday road about ten miles southwest of Bancroft they had the pleasure of seeing two elk browsing in a field adjacent to the road. It was quite a treat for the two men and they stopped their car and got out and had a good view of the animals which were only about thirty feet distant. Much of the splendour was robbed of the animals at this time of the year for they were minus their horns. These elk were likely a part of the experiment liberated near Apsley recently.

Every Nazi Crime Carefully Calculated Says Daily Express

London, June 4 (CP Cable) — Morning papers spread across their front page details of the Nazi air raid on Paris early today and unanimously voiced editorial condemnation but to the Daily Express the newest form of Nazi terrorism was not a surprise.

"We have had that Hitler would start this new phase of the war just as soon as it suited his purposes," the Express said. It believed the purpose was either to prepare a path for an advance toward Paris or to impress Italy.

The Daily Mail said the news of the raid "will be received in this country with horror and indignation and will arouse the deepest sympathy for the French people. It renews our own resolve to crush the authors of this outrage."

The Daily Telegraph called the raid an outrage on France's capital and its women and children who in due time will be avenged. It added that "Germany could have devised no surer spur than this to re-double the war effort."

The Express prefaced its comment with an admonition not to call the Germans barbarians as the word was a reminder of the indescribable acts of young German soldiers seeing blood for the first time whereas today every Nazi crime is carefully calculated.

The Express said "we are fighting deliberate, calculated ruthless men, not a horde of wild savages."

The Times did not comment editorially on the air raid.

"Irene"

Bringing to the screen America's most beloved musical comedy, Irene Dunne, Queen of the hit tunes which made it famous—RKO Radio will currently showing at the Belle, starring Anna Neagle and Ray Milland in the funny hit. Alexander Hall directs the first modern role of Miss Neagle, who has scored in "Nurse Edith Cavell", following her outstanding success in the British hit, "Victoria the Great".

Such well remembered tunes as "Alice Blue Gown", "There's Something in The Air", "Irene" and "Castle of Dreams" are retained in a colorful film version of the famous musical comedy.

Excellent Shorts

Three excellent short treats are presented on the same program, the popular Belle Newsreel, a new Disney Walt Disney cartoon featuring Mickey Mouse cartoon and "Letter from Aldershot" second of the series on Canada Carries On "A Letter From Aldershot."

Lovely Merle Oberon and Louis Borell who are featured with Ken Harrison in the outstanding technicolor production "Over The Moon," a gay comedy hit which is now at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The House of The Seven Gables"

Nathaniel Hawthorne's famous novel, "The House of the Seven Gables," has at last reached the movies. The screen dramatization by Lester Cohen, filmed by Universal studios, is now playing at the Capitol theatre.

Contrary to general belief, this great novel of early nineteenth century New England has never before been filmed.

Few changes have been made in the original plot. The screenplay preserves the mystery and menace of the ill-fated, gun-galled mansion visioned by Hawthorne and peopled with the Pyncheon family and under the rainfold-fining curse of the long-dead Matthew Maule, executed for practicing witchcraft.

Role Is Exacting

Margaret Lindsay is seen in the role of Hepzibah, first as a girl of eighteen and, in the later episodes of the story, at the stern, tightlipped, forbidding recluse in the gloomy house while she awaits the release of her imprisoned lover. Clifford, played by Vincent Price, survivors of the prison break; John George Sanders is seen as Clifford's brother on whom the curse of the Maules descends, while Nan Grey portrays Phoebe who brings light and happiness to the Pyncheons and who dissolves the curse that has blighted generations of the family.

Under the direction of Joe May, the story progression and action move at a lively pace and he has enhanced the dramatic elements of the story with well chosen photographic angles. The camera work, by Milton Krasner, is excellent.

On the same program a comedy riot "Venus Makes Trouble" starring James Dunn and Patricia Ellis.

An added featurette brings to the screen the second of the series Canada Carries On "A Letter From Aldershot."

You think of the telephone and electric light as public services, indispensable to modern life.

You may well think of the Bank of Montreal as a public service institution, organized for usefulness to all Canadians. Its service is measured only by the needs of the individual, or business, or industry for banking facilities.

One customer wants only a small money order; another wishes only safety for savings; a business needs to borrow to keep goods moving; a great industry needs financing. All are welcome here; all find useful assistance; each pays only for the service obtained.

ANTISIALOGOGUE

(By McKeown's Drug Store)

An excessive flow of saliva is sometimes checked by a simple prescription for antisialogogue, an agent to relieve this condition.

Medical knowledge has more than one arrow in the quiver when it comes to relieving the pain in bow. It is important that you realize that you don't have to remain annoyed by such a condition. There are other remedies and only the skilled doctor should advise what is best suited to your constitution and particular complaint.

Again, medication is so important that only the purest and best should be used. A doctor's advice is wasted, worse than wasted, unless his prescription is filled correctly by a capable, scientific druggist.

The Graduate Joins in The Job Scramble

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

The other day during a forum with high school youths, a boy asked: "What do you see ahead for us after we graduate from high school?"

My reply: I don't know your prospects locally, but for high school graduates the country over the picture is not very rosy. A few of you, of course, will go to college. But at this present rate, not nearly all will find jobs after finishing college.

Unless things change much for the better, there just won't be jobs enough to go around for all high school students whether or not they go to college.

A few of you will find jobs through the influence of your family and friends. Most of you, however, will have no pull but will have to struggle on your own merit.

Those of you who have been good students or outstanding school citizens (or both) will have, as a rule, the best chance to win in the scramble for jobs. With some of you, the kind of courses you have taken in high school may give you an advantage or disadvantage. You who can talk well and feel at ease when you are interviewed for a job will find that acquirement greatly to your advantage.

Holding Job and Promotion

After you have got a job, your holding it or winning promotion in it will depend almost entirely upon your sense of character—how dependable you are, how faithful to your responsibilities; how well you get along with others in your work; how you, boy or girl who is not afraid to work hard and who tries to do his or her best; who is eager to do not only what the boss expects but more; and who learns to get on happily with others, winning friends for the firm. The boy or girl most likely to hold the job and win promotion.

Nevertheless, in spite of all you can do, the job may end for you during the laying days. But remember this: how well you succeeded in getting a job will help determine landing your next job. Your record everywhere goes with you. Your reputation is a matter of concern; and your record has already begun and in your own community.

There never was a time when good qualities of character and personality were so valuable for getting and holding a job.

If you don't land a job at once, be ashamed if you don't keep striving to improve yourself. Keep on learning. If you can't go on to school or even take a correspondence course, you can improve yourself by reading good books.

No one needs to be idle. If you can't find employment, set yourself to a carefully planned job at learning something. If you have no public library within walking distance, organize a book club, (friends from five to seven), circulating books among whom you to go one. No better way to convince an employer that you are a stiff in you than to prove to him you have struggled hard to get self-improvement. As David Star Jordan said: "There's lots of room at the top but the elevator is not always running."

QUINTE W. I.

The regular meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Mitchell, 2nd line. The president, Mrs. Connors opened the meeting with a three minute memorial service for Mrs. W. C. Macdonald.

It being the business meeting the roll call was answered by members.

Mrs. A. Clarke and Mrs. S. Snider audited the books and found them correct.

A splendid report was given of Red Cross work by Mrs. H. Grills. After sending boxes to boys overseas, Mrs. Grills still has on hand 4 sweaters, 10 wristlets, 5 pairs knee caps, 7 scarfs and 34 pairs of socks. Letters from the boys from Chesley White and Clifford MacDonald now in England were read. Mrs. Connors, the ladies for boxes sent to them. The boys certainly appreciated the parcels sent by the Institute. Mrs. Melrose, thanked the Institute on behalf of Private Reginald Melrose, overseas. Letters of thanks for cards received by Lady Mitchell and Lorena Haight were read.

Mrs. Connors, President, thanked all who had so kindly helped her during the year and then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Murphy and Melrose who very ably conducted the election of officers for 1940 and 1941. The officers elected were as follows:

President, Mrs. Connors.
1st Vice, Mrs. N. Brown.
2nd Vice, Mrs. Anderson.
Sec. Treas., Mrs. G. Bradshaw.

Grey; Horticultural Research and Current Events, Mrs. S. Anderson; Community Activities and Relief, Mrs. H. Grills; Canadianization, Mrs. S. Snider; Peace Education, Mrs. Leo Rolof; Auditors, Mrs. P. Farrol and Mrs. A. Clarke.

Mrs. Connors thanked Mrs. Murphy for her very efficient help.

It was decided that $15.00 be sent to Toronto for federation fee. Miss Lorena Haight favored with a very pleasing instrumental. Mrs. H. Grills gave a splendid reading on "Mother." Sandra Goddard favored her listeners with two guitar selections. The collection was $2.12. The meeting was closed with "God Save The King."

Grace was sung after which Mrs. Mitchell and her conveners served a very dainty lunch.

What to Do For Shiny Noses

Dorothy Tree

By HELEN FOLLETT

If you are the kind of girl who whips out her powder pad on all occasions and puts the dull polish on her nose, you had better step over and read this. Relief is at last! Hooray!

There are cosmetics of this class that are suitable for the young skin and for daytime use. There are others, slightly heavier, for evening that make freckles go pale and cover up any little blemishes that may be lurking round. You need only to have the correct treatment. As David Star Jordan said: "There's lots of room at the top but the elevator is not always running."

The lady with the fine engine nail polish is no longer an orchid in the garden of beauty. She is like a poor little wild flower and does not attract as many admirers as the girl who has kept up with the fashion procession and knows what is doing. Her shades are much more flattering than the vivid tints that we have been using for years and years.

Thrilling the nails to match the frock isn't so nutty as it sounds. Turquoise blue talons are attractive, even if they don't look like anything that grew on human hands. Jade green is used a lot and is effective. The new corals, wines and mauves are more than interesting.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Travelling With a Fast Crowd

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I had been keeping company with a young man about six months and he was planning to be married in the fall. A friend in another province secured a fine position, but because of the nature of his work we could not be married right away.

We corresponded and he came to visit me once a month, then I received a letter saying he was travelling with a fast crowd. Just before Easter he came to see me, and said the only way we could marry would be for me to come down there and be married. I tried there, as it would be impossible for him to take time off to be married at my home. I refused. So we quarrelled, and I didn't hear from him for two months. Now I've heard from him that he's not working and is sorry for every thing that has happened.

I love him very much but am trying to forget him. Shall I answer him or just let things drift along? I believe he still cares for me. I am 20 and he is 30 years old.

Bewildered.

Despite the fact that you care a good deal for this young man, don't you think it would be well to let him prove his worth before you consider resuming your friendship with him? Evidently he let myself off his feet by the fast crowd he met when he was in the city. At present he is unemployed. Not a cheerful prospect for a married life together, is it?

Why not write him and tell him frankly that it's up to him to make good and get a job before you consider him?

Although Twice Her Age, His Companionship Is Ideal

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going with a man many years my senior. Although his actual age approaches that of seven over 35, he is 45 years of age. I am 20 years old and while I have a gayety and youth, I still am a serious type. I wonder whether this difference in our ages would interfere with our happiness should we marry. I am very much in love and am sure it is not infatuation.

This man's companionship is ideal. He is a splendid conversationalist in other ways as well. Should I take the plunge now or perhaps wait later in life I've made a mistake. What would you advise?

E. M.

When a girl as young as you are considers marrying a man twice her age, it might be well to do a little arithmetic before making up her mind. When you are 35, which modern psychologists think is when a man's fascinating as the average gentleman will be 58. It's more than likely that the armchair, the newspaper and the pipe will seem more attractive to him than going out of evenings with his wife.

Naturally, of course, more serious considerations in marriage than companionship are a man's wife are going to spend their evenings. It depends largely on the temperament of her husband, as you say he is, or whether under the handicap of her age affection for you, he's putting on a front to please you. Only time will tell.

It would be the square thing for him to talk this difference in your ages over with his family doctor. There are many cases where old men have been ideal husbands to young wives. DeSassure, the great French engineer, was one of these.

Distrusts Fiancee's Girl Friend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl friend has been associating with a girl I know not to be the right kind. She is subtle, crafty and has a way of getting people into trouble. They confide in her and she uses the information in an improper way.

I have told my fiancee, but she does not believe me. I certainly don't want her to be in the company of such a girl. What shall I do?

Fiance.

In attempting to break off this influence which you think is not best when you love her, you must be careful not to let her know you are trying to separate her from a friend.

There always a mistake to convert one person under the questionable influence of another into a partisan. In this instance, if your fiancee are jealous, or that you're doing this out of selfishness, she is going to stand up for her through thick and thin. Perhaps that is the reason for so many undesirable marriages. The parents see that the character of the other person is unworthy. They attack, and the deluded boy or girl rushes into the arms of the scamp. Be as subtle as the girl about whom you write, but in conducting your "cure."

How Shall Present Be Sent?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Where is it considered to be a luncheon in honor of a girl friend's approaching wedding? Also in one of the local hotels at one dollar per plate? Is the date graduation present at that time? If not, when should I take it?

ALS

It would be better form to send presents to the bridegroom's best man, messenger or mail, or leave it at the home of the bride-to-be before. Unless it's a shower, it's a bit tryting for some people, especially if it comes to receive presents before a group.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Puzzled Prospective Groom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. As a wedding gift to my bride I would like to buy her a gold ring that she may wear as a pendant. Would that be correct?

2. Does the groom give the best man a present?

3. Is the groom expected to pay for the dinner after the ceremony?

As a matter of fact, I'm very much puzzled as to my duties and "financial responsibilities" are. If you would be so kind as to tell me, I'll be very grateful.

Alec

1. I think the cross would be a charming gift for you to give your bride. This is just what she would like. I think you should talk it over with her, have her definite ideas and then they prefer for this important purchase.

2. The groom gives his best man a present. Cuff links, a pocket or fountain pen, a travelling set, a pen and pencil set.

3. The bride's family pays for the wedding dinner.

As a matter of fact, practically all the wedding bills are usually paid for by the bride's family. The bride's father and mother are the hosts of the occasion, and they bear the expenses of the wedding dinner. The groom's and the groom's "financial responsibility are:

The wedding ring.
The marriage license.
The bride's bouquet (usually).
A wedding gift to the bride.
A corsage for the bride's mother and a corsage for his mother.

The gift or fee to the officiating minister.

Gifts to his best man and ushers.

The car in which he and his best man come to the church.

The expenses of the wedding trip.

Fiance Says "No Invitations" After Each Party

1. I am planning to be married in the near future. My fiancee is not having a reception, my fiance does not think we should send out invitations to the wedding ceremony, I would like to let a few close friends know of my coming marriage, and I don't know how to go about it. Will you please tell me the best thing to do?

2. Under the circumstances, would it be proper for me to wear white?

Uncertain

1. The fact that you are not having a reception does not have to do with your plans for the ceremony. Since you are planning an informal church wedding, the proper way to invite your guests is for you or your mother to write notes of invitation to the relatives and friends whom you wish to have come to see you married. Those relatives and close friends you might like to invite verbally—this is correct too.

2. Yes, for your informal wedding you may properly wear an informal white dress.

Colostrum

It is good news that a process has been developed that promises to make it possible to "can" mother's milk and stock it in drug stores and other outlets like other commodities. This means, of course, that it would be available everywhere in unlimited quantities, not just in larger cities where milk banks are established. It would probably mean that it will be available in various types and thus suitable to have on hand for feeding mother's milk or a wet nurse to supply exactly the food that baby needs with his particular newborn infant.

As I have explained here before, the first milk that the breasts secrete for mother's milk and, more particularly, baby's needs, is called colostrum. It is different from the food the baby will get after birth and for a number of days after. The milk at this time is apt to do the baby harm. Colostrum is exactly adapted to the baby's digestive capacity at birth and it supplies his needs.

I know that grandmothers and self-appointed authorities in general scold the crib and urge that baby, calmly ins or some other concoction be put on. Because for a long time and in many countries what I have had to treat children who have been fed some such substitute by mothers under the influence of misguided advice and I know the harm they can do. I recall one case in which a newborn baby was given a bottle of cream child had a very badly upset digestive tract for a long time and it was only that if the child had gotten colostrum, which nature provides for him to, there would have been no complications.

I frequently get letters from expectant mothers asking how soon they should put the baby to the breast and the baby. Of course, this is a matter that should be settled by the doctor after the child is born. However, I think that it is a good thing to put the child to the breast immediately.

In the period before milk comes in and the breasts are secreting colostrum, the baby should be fed about every four to six hours. However, if both mother and child are resting well at night, I think that the baby can go a longer period, to nurse the child at night. I think that the baby will get all of the greatest importance that the child receive the colostrum during these first two or three days, even if the amount received is very slight. Besides, this nursing during that time has another feature. The child's sucking helps to start the flow of milk.

I usually find that about the third day the milk glands will begin to secrete milk and the breasts fill with milk. We often find too, that for some time after the milk has come in the breasts are tenderness. This is nearly always true of primiparous women and is the reason why keeping them alive is so difficult. Such babies as the Quints were at birth, are too weak to be handled as normal babies are in breast feeding.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, June 5

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A FAIRLY progressive and pleasant day is forecast from the present aspect of the stars, though things are likely to move along more slowly than recently in the matter of real estate. Documents, writings, contracts, concerning the sale or purchase of property, and medical bodies seem to figure prominently. Persons born on this date in prosperous circumstances are inclined to be moving good will and constructive effort to new as well as the established channels. Social and domestic life are also under propitious aspects, though not spectacular ruin.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a pleasant, progressive and generally satisfying year, with both new and new interests developing nicely in routine grooves. Writings, contracts and documents of importance will influence in enhancing the happiness and productiveness of the year. Friends and relations are also moderately active and helpful.

A child born on this day should be generally talented, fortunate, progressive, ambitious and resourceful. It may have a well-mannered life, with success and happiness in a moderate way.

FORMER PREMIER LOSES APPEAL

Judicial Committee of the Privy Council Decides Against J. E. Brownlee of Alberta

By SAM ROBERTSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 4 (C.P. Cable) — The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council today dismissed the appeal of J. E. Brownlee, former Alberta premier, from the $10,000 award of $19,000 to Miss Vivian Dunbar in a libel action and upheld the time she was typist in the Alberta government service. Costs of the appeal were levied against Mr. Brownlee.

The appeal from the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada, which confirmed the damages awarded by the trial jury, raised a point of law on the interpretation of a section of the Alberta Seduction Act.

Lord Russell of Killowen, giving judgment, said that if the language of the Seduction Act were read in its natural and ordinary meaning it would, from other considerations, be intention to give an unmarried female who had been seduced a right of action in her own name for damages plainly appeared.

In Court Since 1934

The case has been in the courts since 1934 when a jury trial was held in Edmonton. At that time Miss MacMillan was 22 and Mr. Brownlee was 44. Miss MacMillan since has married Henry Sorenson, storekeeper of Edson.

Their Lordships agreed with the view stated in the judgment of Sir Lyman Duff of the Canadian Supreme Court, that the action had nothing to do with seduction, nothing to do with the relation of master and servant, nothing to do with loss of service.

The appeal was heard March 11 and 12 by Viscount Caldecote and Lords Blanksy and Lords Russell, Thankerton and Romer.

The alleged seduction occurred first in 1930 and 1931, when Mr. Brownlee was head of the United Farmer Government of Alberta and Miss MacMillan was a stenographer in the Attorney-General's and a frequent visitor to the premier's office.

Action against the Premier was launched in 1933 jointly by Miss MacMillan and her father, Allan D. MacMillan, a railway employee at Edson, Alta., claiming unstated damages.

DETAINED BY BRITISH

Churchill's Address in House of Commons

London, June 4 (AP)—The text in part of Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons today follows:

The German eruption swept like a sharp scythe south of Amiens, right to the rear of the armies in the north—eight or nine armored divisions, each of about 400 armored vehicles of different kinds.

Behind this armored and mechanized onslaught came a number of German division in lorries and behind them, again, there plodded comparatively slowly the dull, brute mass of the ordinary German army and the German people—always so ready to be led in the trampling down in other lands of the liberties and comforts they have never known in their own.

I said this armored scythe stroke almost reached Dunkirk—almost but not quite. Boulogne and Calais were the scenes of desperate fighting.

The rifle brigade of the 60th Rifles (now the Queen Victoria Rifles) with a battalion of British tanks and 1,000 Frenchmen in all, and about 4,000 strong, defended Calais to the last.

The British Brigadier was given an hour to surrender. He ignored the offer. Four days of intense street fighting passed before silence reigned over Calais and marked the end of a memorable resistance.

Only 30 unwounded survivors were brought back. Of the remainder we do not know the fate of their comrades.

Fuel Held Open

The time gained enabled the Germans to bring the British Army and held by French troops and made the port of Dunkirk secure and open.

The Belgian, French and British armies were almost surrounded. Their sole line of retreat was to a single port, and that choked with beaches. They were pressed on all sides by heavy attacks and were hemmed in the air.

I must tell the House today I asked the House to fix this afternoon for the occasion of a statement, I feared it would be necessary for me to announce from this box the greatest military disaster in the long history.

The whole root, core and brain of the British army, around which and upon which we were building the forces of the British Empire and armies of later years, seemed due to be cut off and destroyed.

King Leopold called upon us to come to his aid. He said his brave and efficient army . . guarded our eastern flank and that his line was the sea.

Without prior consultation . . he sent a plenipotentiary to the German headquarters and surrendered his army and exposing our flank and means of escape.

Compelled to Cover Flank

The surrender . . compelled the British command in all haste next note to cover a flank to the sea of more than 30 miles. . . It would have seemed impossible then that any large force could be spared for this.

The enemy attacked on all sides . . and this made possible the escape of the force, was thrown into the battle.

The enemy began to fire cannon along the beaches with enormous magnetic mines . . and sent remorseless waves of dive bombers . . sometimes more than 100 strong, to harass and destroy the vast columns that remained and on the sand dunes.

Their U-boats, one of which was sunk, and motor launches took their toll of the shipping.

For four or five days an intense struggle raged. The Royal Air Force, which had already been intervening in the battle . .

Behind the French coast a regular battle was fought out in the air, of a character and scale never before attempted, and attended with victory.

Wars are not won by evacuations, but there was a victory . . which must be noted.

This was a great trial of strength between the British and German Air force.

They tried hard and were beaten back. Frustrated in their task we have got the armies safely and they are now well founded for any losses sustained . .

Then one long series of very fierce battles now on this front and now on that . . fighting on two fronts at once—battles fought by two or three British divisions against an equal or sometimes larger number of the enemy and fought very fiercely on the old ground so many of us know so well. Our losses in men exceed 30,000 in killed, wounded and missing . .

We have had a large number of wounded come home safely to this country—there may be very many reported missing who will come back home some day. In the confusion of the departure it is inevitable that many should be cut off . .

Loss of Material Enormous

Against this loss of over 30,000 men we may set a far heavier loss certainly inflicted on the enemy, but our losses in material are enormous. We have lost nearly 1,000 guns and all our transport and all the armored vehicles that were with the army in the North. Those losses will impose a further delay on the expansion of our military strength. That expansion has not been proceeding as far as we had hoped.

Already the flow of munitions has leapt forward, but there is no reason why we should not in a few months overtake these sudden and serious loss that has come upon us.

Nevertheless our thankfulness at the escape of our army with so much of its materials and especially their loved ones who have passed through an agonizing week must not blind us to the fact that what has happened is a military disaster of the first magnitude. It is a colossal military disaster.

The French army has been weakened, the Belgian army has been lost, and a large part of the best equipped divisions in the British Army has been cut off and destroyed.

The whole front, core and brain of the British army, around which and upon which we were building the forces of the British Empire and armies of later years, seemed due to be cut off and destroyed.

BRITAIN IS READY FOR MUSSOLINI ON ANY FRONT

If Italy Enters War With Germany She Will Be One Certain Loser, Says Press

U. K. CONFIDENT

London, June 4 (CP)—Great Britain surveyed the possibilities of Italian military trends today with confidence that "we are ready for it Duce on any front."

The press reiterated that "one thing is clear: If Italy enters this war with Germany she will be one certain loser. A German victory will leave Italy in a state of vassalage to Hitler as it would Britain or France, while from an Allied victory Italy could expect scant mercy."

While the nation awaited Mussolini's decision whether to take an active part in the war it recalled that Premier Winston Churchill who regard military victories as symbolic of national strength, had "utterly mistaken."

Straining to London took the view that whatever direction Italy might take for initial attack "the Allies are prepared to defend their southern coast ports and industrial areas everywhere as more probable and profitably.

Regarding any Italian decision to extend the organization for war to the African possessions, British observers said an Italian action from Libya, Eritrea or Ethiopia "would from the start be handicapped by the impossibility of maintaining supplies for long."

Recent Italian claims have centered upon Italy's ability to control Gibraltar, Malta, Suez, Palestine and Tripolitania. In this session, Tunisia. These demands are considered as possible forecasts of committees of what sea attacks.

The fear of running up against Russia in the Balkans also was cited as likely to deter Italy from striking from Albania into Yugoslavia and Greece in order to hamper Allied sea communications with Turkey.

Suez and Palestine are within range of Italian air bases in the Dodecanese Islands, and the British Mediterranean fleet has strong Italian base at Pantelleria Island.

Gibraltar, long the world's symbol of impregnability, is considered in danger only if Spain decides to join Italy and Germany. In that event the Rock would be subject to great fortress. But British confidence in the strength of the Rock is based oh the Royal Navy which is literally concentrated in the Mediterranean.

48 Sponsors Are Ready to Back Youthful Entrants of Kid-Kar Derby

More Sponsors Needed—Sporting Event Promises to be Best Ever Held Here

PLANS COMPLETED

With forty-eight sponsors already signed and many inquiries of "backing" a car in the forthcoming Kid-Kar Derby, and many more potential backers who as yet have not been approached, the Trenton Rotary sports classic of the Belleville Kinsmen Club being held here on July 6th, promises to be one of the outstanding events of its kind ever held here, members were told at the fortnightly banquet held in the Quinte Hotel, Monday night.

Chairman of the various committees responsible for the many phases of the race reported "all under control" and plans laid down several weeks ago are rapidly rounding into completion.

Members, however, were urged by the chairman of the race committee to secure as many sponsors as possible in order to accommodate the large number of entries that have submitted. Each member present was asked to bring in six individual sponsor.

Discussion of the plan of the Hamilton Kinsmen to "Help Dick Hitler" stamps resulted in tabling of the request for further consideration, the Hamilton club would receive eighty per cent of the proceeds of this side line part of which would go to a war charities organization and the remaining twenty per cent to the local club.

Plans for the annual Stag Party to be held during August are in discussing and a definite date for this important meeting will be set in the immediate future. There are a lot of members, it was pointed out, who have as yet, not ridden the "official goat" and this traditional event will be carried out with the solemnity and tradition of forger fraternal orders.

President Geoffrey Marvell occupied the chair. There was no speakers.

Vikings Rally to Tie Mets In Seventh Frame of Tussle

Mets Punch Out Long Lead but Vikilngs Keep Nimbling and Earn 13-13 Draw

PITCHERS EQUAL

Coming from behind with a belated rally the Vikings battled the post-"Mets" to a 13-13 draw in a postponed Ladies' Mercantile Softball League game played at the Collegiate campus last evening. The game was a semi-hunting affair by mutual agreement and the contest declared a tie. Trailing badly in the sixth the Vikings pounced on the deliveries of Jean Mulr to score four in the sixth and rush three more over in a last inning rally, after coach Ron Steele's "Mets" lassies had garnered a substantial early game lead. This evening at the ar-mouries lawn the K-nines battle the Vikings in a regular league tussle.

The "Mets" pushed counters across the plate in every inning except the second, while the Vikings scored in all but the first and fifth, but were still three down going in for their final turn at bat. Jean Thompson's circuit blow with the bases loaded in the sixth paved the Vikings into the rumble and inspired them towards at least a draw, and a tie for second place in the league standing.

Six Home Runs

Each team counted three circuit blows, Adams, Hall and Cook hitting for the circuit for the "Mets" while Fleming, Hammett and Thompson smote four base blows for the Vikings. Besides being good ball in the Vikings Rita Rabble led her team mates with three safeties, Dent also getting a trio of hits. Mabel Adams with a homer and two singles led the Mets and deprived herself of another circuit blow, when she failed to touch second on the initial frame. Cook and Tufts were the other potent Met batters.

Pitchers Equal

Jean Muir, on the mound for the Mets struck out seven and walked one. Rita Rabble, her rival slab opponent duplicating this feat. Strangely enough both teams scored 13 runs and garnered 13 hits each. Fielding: Alexandra, C. Mets. Was forced from the game in the fourth inning after being struck in the face by a batted ball, Mabel Adams then took over the Mets' catching duties.

Ottawa Rough Riders May Play Exhibition Games in Winnipeg

Ottawa, June 4 (CP)—The executive of the Ottawa Rough Riders Football Club is considering a proposal to play two exhibition games in Winnipeg against the champion Blue Bombers on the nights of September 20 and 23, it was learned Monday.

Some of the executives were said to be in favor of the trip, which, it is understood, the Bombers have offered a $4,000 guarantee. Others, feeling the Riders might suffer the loss of some good players through injury, are disinclined to turn the proposal down.

The Bombers beat out the Riders for the National final in fall 8-7.

Winnipeg, June 4 (CP)—Manager Joe Ryan of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Canadian football champions, Monday confirmed that Ottawa Rough Riders, the team they beat 8-7 at Ottawa in the Dominion final last year, for exhibition games here Sept. 20 and 22.

Ryan said the games were requested by the Rough Rider executive which is to meet June 6 to consider a guarantee which Winnipeg has offered.

Sports Roundup

New York, June 4 (AP)—This will look all some of another of those lovely athletes, Jimmy Dykes says, only he doesn't say it that way. He says 190 grand—Joe DiMaggio and Bob Feller—which is why that tall man of the Cubs dipsliing out that much dough annually can't sit right out loud. The creepe hangers have been crying that neutrals would deal baseball a body blow in New York.

Well, let's see ....On Memorial Day, Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks set a largest racing crowd in New York history .... A few days later the Yanks played before a congregation of 67,837 and that was only the third largest crowd to jam into the stadium....And just across the Harlem River the Brad Xfield in the arena with 20,000 turned away.

It can happen here: The Alexandria (La) Ball Club saves dough by turning out the lights in the outfield when arguments start between players and umpires. Elsworth Dean's sight tended to stiffen and now charlie Gliitting, former New Jersey champ, has quit golf for tennis.... George Cloud of the Red Cloud (Minn.) nine was hit by a batted ball and had to give up baseball. And Dick Jerome of the Bisbee (Ariz.) Bees batted four in four hitters in one inning. (Catcher let the third strike on third guy get by him but nobody got excited at first. But Jerome whiffed the next one just like nothing had happened).

Bisons Climb Out of Cellar by Beating Syracuse 2 to 1

(By the Associated Press)

The current series between Rochester Red Wings and Jersey City Giants promises to be one of the real rousing events of the international baseball league season although it might be stretching things a bit to suggest that it could decide the pennant race.

They have been rivals for the league lead since the campaign got under way. The Little Giants were on top until the middle of May and the Wings have held the lead since then.

The Jerseys got the jump in the series opener Friday night, Rochester Red Birds couldn't touch Tommy Sivess' offerings. They made only three singles, got only one runner as far as second.

Two other first-division teams, Baltimore and Newark, also battled while Buffalo Bisons climbed out of the cellar by beating Syracuse 2-1 and shoving the chiefs back.

Royals Beat Orioles

Montreal's batters, who have been piling up a rapid pace lately to carry the Royals into fifth place, pounded out a 9-5 decision over Baltimore Orioles behind the six-hit pitching of Bill Crouch. Earl Webb, recent University of Maryland product, started for the Orioles but was relieved in the fifth with nine hits.

Toronto Leafs outslugged Newark Bears 11-9 with the aid of a homer, two doubles and two singles by Catcher Jean Ruddy Bates. Even that sort of snagging and six Newark errors nearly proved enough. Phil Marchildon, a product of Pennsylvania, was credited with his first victory of the season, went out in the ninth when Coach Sam Jones called in Tommy Sivess to put out the fire. Two more runs and coach Sad Sam Jones himself had to go in to get the last two men and save the game.

Dizzy Dean Waived Out of Majors By Chicago Cubs

Chicago, June 4.—(AP)—The ob-livion accorded worn-out ball players beckons to Dizzy Dean. But the old fireballer doesn't like it, insisting one more game will prove he still has what it takes.

Always a fighter with a great heart, Dean refused to give up hopes of again becoming a star big league hurler.

A few days ago Dean asked owner Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs for another chance. He got it Sunday when he was given the mound assignment against the Boston Braves. Recently Dean's arm was examined by Dr. George Bennett of John Hopkins hospital in Baltimore. The physician told Dean he was through as a big league pitcher. He suggested Dizzy try a sidearm delivery, Dean refused.

"We can't make changes on the suggestion in the big leagues", explained Dizzy's wife, Patricia. "The doctors, Dizzy says, don't understand what we want to go back to the minors and see what happens".

Nothing Short of a Catastrophe Can Keep New York Yankees From Winning Pennant Again

Team Scores 10th Victory in Eleven Games Behind Fine Hurling of Atley Donald

RED SOX BEATEN

Boston Made Four Infield Errors in Losing to White Sox 7-4

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The way New York Yankees are rolling now makes it difficult to imagine how a few weeks ago they could lose eight straight and slither around in the cellar of the American Baseball League by a wide margin.

There were good reasons, of course—injuries, illness and indisposition. But they are all gone now and nothing short of a catastrophe can keep the club from its fifth consecutive pennant and probably the world's championship.

The 7-1 shellacking the Yanks gave St. Louis Browns yesterday was the fourth in a row over the fast-enders and the tenth victory in 11 games.

One of the brightest factors in the new Yankee outlook is Atley Donald, the righthander who was a rookie sensation with 16 victories of last season. He won 13 games before being defeated for the first time in a major league record for freshmen. Then he developed arm trouble and was of little use at the close of the campaign.

This spring Donald bumped into a siege of ataxia and never started a game until last week. He did it that with four hits against Washington. Yesterday in his second appearance he held the Browns to five.

The league-leading Red Sox outhit Chicago White Sox but but were beaten 7-4. Boston made four infield errors and Jimmie Foxx was held to a lone single.

Leonard Stops Tigers

The third-place Detroit Tigers were 9-3 victims of Dutch Leonard's knuckleball. Washington Detroit was held scoreless for eight innings while the Senators picked up a dozen hits including home runs by Gerald Walker and Jim Bloodworth, each with the bases loaded.

Lefty Al Milnar, the American League's leading pitcher, chalked up his seventh triumph against one defeat by shutting out Philadelphia Athletics on seven hits. He was a pitching duel with Chubby Dean, but the Indians' eight hits numbered a two-run homer by Hank Mack. In addition Milnar was given perfect support while the A's made two errors.

The three ten clubs in the National League were all won to hold their positions firmly.

National League

Cincinnati Reds topped Boston Bees 3-2 with all the scoring being done in the first frame. Paul Derringer settled down to hurl eight shutout innings for his 6th victory and Lee Pete worked even more smoothly in relief for Boston, allowing only three hits in eight frames. But the damage was done.

Hugh Casey held Chicago Cubs to five hits and won 3-2. One of the runs against him was a pinch homer by Bill Nicholson.

New York Giants nosed out the unlucky Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 when a runner stumbled between third and home to end a two-run Pittsburgh rally in the ninth, opened by Harry Danning's eighth homer. The Giants collected 10 hits and dribbled four runs across in four different innings.

'CEMENTMEN' PULL SURPRISE WIN OVER THE OILERS

Win Puts Ox Point Squad in Tie for Second Place in Softball Loop

OILERS OUTHIT

Point Anne Scores Five Runs Twice in Game to Hold Long Lead

The Point Anne "Cementmen" pulled a surprise win over the Shell "Oilers" at the Coleman Flats last evening when "Ding" Luffman outpitched Merlin Knowles of the "Oilers" as his team mates went on to slug out an 13-8 victory. The win puts the Point Anne mudsiingers into a tie for second place with the "Oilers" in the Belleville Softball League, with the Juniors riding alone in the first position to win win against no defeats.

The "Cementmen" outhit the "Oilers" twice to nine as both pitchers were really touch with the willow. Everyone of the losers bingles were of the extra base variety, while the winners connected for six hits for extra bases. The losers, however with the exception of Ken Schreider during the middle innings spoiled all the counters of winning.

A double by Loft started the "Cementmen" off on the right foot as he went to third on a wild pitch and scored on an infield out. Two errors resulting in both half, however, as a muffled throw and a triple by Ronsky paved the way for the counters to put them in the lead.

Scored Five Runs

Point Anne came right back in the second inning and scored five runs as singles by Whalen and Hutchings, followed by an error by Ronsky, further allowed two runs. Loft's singig and Whitehead scored on Gul's double to left as the team a good lead and scored a moment later on a single by Bennett. "Oilers" were blanked in the second, but the Point Anne added five more in their half of the fourth to take a commanding lead. Ken Schreider momentarily control to walk four batters, which interspersed with hits by Loft, Whitehead and D. Bennett gave the "Cementmen" a five run lead.

The "Oilers" added one in the fourth as Cole doubled, went to third on a fly ball and scored on a wild pitch. They brought their total to eight in the fifth inning as Schreider led off with a double to left centre and scored on a single by Henn's bat. Ronsky was safe at first, when Whalen erred, but Henn was forced out with everybody being safe, Cole cleaned the sacks with a long triple to right and when he blasted a four bagger over the left field fence in the fifth.

Point Anne added single runs in the fifth and eighth while the losers garnered one in their half of the eighth to end the scoring.

Dicing for a run plate for the losers, connecting for three doubles while Ken Schreider got a double and a homer, with Rowboham and Schreider also connecting for doubles. Batting for the Cementmen, Whitehead was best with two triples and a double while Hutchings, Loft and connecting for two singles each.

Fights Last Night

(By The Associated Press)

New York —Pete Scalzo, 136 1-4, Philadelphia, outpointed Lou Ambers, 135 1-4, Syracuse, N.Y., lightweight champion, ten rounds.

Seabiscuit's victory was one of the most popular in the history of the turf. Twice defeated by a nose, he finally overcame Pompoon Prince to be through when he broke down last year. His return to racing form at an age when most horses are thought to be ready for the ranch, was one of the romantic features of the race. Another feature not quite so romantic was the fact that he ran this race, the race which made him the greatest money winner of all time, wearing aluminum racing plates. Within the past few years three plates have been increasingly popular, and have been worn by winners of all big turf events."

Bronze runs came aplenty as the Mets and Vikings battled to a 13-all girls' loop draw at the Collegiate last evening. New the fans have seen all six teams in Belleville league of girls' softball and although the kids are not exactly playing the class of softball as taught the accomplished local loop, the same willingness is there and a willingness to learn and will doubtless improve as the season progresses. The folly of standing behind the batter without a mask was again demonstrated last night when Catcher Alexander, Coach Ron Steele's first catcher, was struck in the face with a ball and forced to retire from the game. In the initial game of the league, Gladie Emerson, the Big 6 catcher, was struck a slightly discoloured optic in similar manner. The management of the girls teams should include a catcher's mask in their club equipment before some player sustains serious injury in the way of a broken nose. Every all that ball is only called "soft."

Remember Joe Beckett, the "horizontal" British heavyweight champion of two decades ago or so? Some of you old timers will recall Beckett was called "the horizontal" champion" as he was lying on the canvas more often than he was standing when defending his title. Among the latest news dispatches from "across the pond" we learn that his wife are being detained under the English defence regulations. No further details are available. Although Beckett was the British champion he became connected with the British Union of Fascists before the war.

SPORT EYE—How the mighty have fallen—just two years ago the Chicago Cubs were advertised as having laid out $185,000, and two players for Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, the scientific big right hand hurler then with the Cubs. Last week, after but a few years later, "Ol' Pie" is enroute to Tulsa, Texas to be farmed out to the Oklahoma league, but he is going "down the river" at his own request, and will pitch five-ball games. He will have to depend upon his mound craftiness more now that he has little doubt now but that the Cardinals took all that was left of Dean's arm in his eight years labouring on the Cubs' mound staff. And then Sam Breadon turned around and sold the broken down pitcher with a game arm for the above-mentioned fabulous sum to the Yankees. The Yanks' is the cry along Broadway today! Ha, ha! 4-F games and not a first place and going strong these days.

NAZIS WANT MORE FLIERS

Berlin, June 3 (AP)—Morning newspapers today published an appeal in the interests of strategic German youth to volunteer for training as air force officers.

The British Broadcasting Corporation, in a broadcast picked up in New York by the National Broadcasting Company, said an appeal had been issued for the German radio was indicative that Germany's air force had suffered heavy losses. The British war ministry has announced German's losses in the air at three to one in favour of the Allies.

When it was officially announced that Finland had been forced to abandon the 1940 Olympic games owing to warring nations, The U.S.A. Olympic Committee announced that the 1940 United States Olympic trials would be held on that country regardless as to whether the games were played or not. Actually there was a movement to introduce a pan-American Olympic series, but this also went into the discard. Today, however, the U.S.A. Olympic committee announced the complete cancellation of all Olympic games trials in the country and now the Yankee track and field stars will have to wait until at least 1944 before they have another chance to win competitive honours of an Olympic nature. In a mail vote taken of the United States Olympic Committee a "small majority" voted in favour of holding the trials, but President Avery Brundage says the majority was "too small to put the committee to the expense of Olympic trials, especially with no games in sight." Of course the final decision was arrived principally because of the unsettled international conditions.

As goes Johnnie Bawden, so goes that Oilers." At least that's what the softball fans of Belleville are saying after last night's game when the Point Anne "Cementmen" downed the Shell Oilers 13-8 in a fives dropping Coach Harold Bawden's league champions into a tie with the Oilers for nine for the second place, Red Townsend, Wes Hall and Ken Green enjoying the top rung in the league ladder, "Ding" Luffman allowing the Oilers' bats last night with nine hits and had it not been for the five errors chalked up for extra bases no doubt the "Cementmen" would have won by a larger margin. Eddie Schreider hurled for the losers, while Johnnie Bawden lumbered around in left field. Elongated Art Cole caused the locals plenty of grief on run and a double, while "Whitie" Whitehead, Point Anne catcher, had all batters with two triples and a double. Incidentally there may be a game on the City League gravesite soon, as the Oilers have shown a great deal of interest being taken. In the meantime the Oilers will continue to entertain the newly-admitted Picton entry at the Flats tomorrow evening.

The Kingston Sport Scribe Bill Walshe has apparently been showing around some pajamas with a "Bicuit's" shoes were made of the first aluminum. The comment about the race and the aluminum shoes is as follows:

"Making his third attempt to capture the richest racing purse in America, gallant old Seabiscuit, a seven-year-old wonder which could have been bought at one time for $2,500, came rolling down the stretch at the head of the field last month to win the famous Santa Anita Handicap and the $100,000 that went with it.

"Seabiscuit's victory was one of the most popular in the history of the turf. Twice defeated by a nose, he finally overcame Pompoon Prince to be through when he broke down last year. His return to racing form at an age when most horses are thought to be ready for the ranch, was one of the romantic features of the race. Another feature not quite so romantic was the fact that he ran this race, the race which made him the greatest money winner of all time, wearing aluminum racing plates. Within the past few years three plates have been increasingly popular, and have been worn by winners of all big turf events."

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES
If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the cause or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness is the painful passage of stool, treatment warming and proper treatment is usually secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender parts. Soon, Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when so simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

CANADA SPEEDS AIR AID FOR U. K.

J. S. Duncan, Defence Minister for Air, Says Some Aircraft Sent and More Ready to Go

Ottawa, June 4—(CP) — The flare of total war abroad will precipitate speedy expanded aircraft production in Canada and broaden purchases in the United States so that this country may send larger numbers of fighting planes to its Allies on the war front, Defence Minister J. S. Ilsley said of training plans for the gigantic British Commonwealth Air Training Plan on Canada's air fields.
The rapidly changing war picture has changed the tempo of the war materials program, he said in effect today. Heavy action on the Western Front and ominous rumblings from Italy have increased the need for great reserves of fighting aircraft.
Canada's reply to Britain's call was prompt, James S. Duncan, Minister of Defence for Air, told the Joint Service Clubs of Ottawa Monday. Fighting and bombing planes were dispatched quickly to England and others are ready to be sent. Supply of trained air crews was stepped up.
The British Government, said the air deputy, had told Canada that "as a precautionary measure" shipment of training aircraft to Canada for the air training plan may be delayed.
Under the joint plan of Canada, New Zealand, Australia and Great Britain, the latter was to send aircraft here for use in the $600,000,000 training scheme. British factories were to supply 1,222 fuselages and engines for the twin-motored Avro Anson reconnaissance bombers. Wings were to be made in Canada and the whole assembled here.
Assembly of these aircraft has already been under way here for some time. In addition, Britain was to send 1,000 Fairey battle single-engined two-seater fighter planes in crates for assembly here. While many of these type have already been received, further deliveries may be delayed for a short time.

Pilots to Go Monthly

The British Government is anxious that the training plan proceed on schedule, and pilots and other air crew members be trained as rapidly as they can be trained, Mr. Duncan said. Graduates would go monthly to the United States to purchase aircraft assigned to it, and it was understood here that aircraft factories across the border would be purchased in the United States to supplement Canadian production at least until the full rate of turning out aircraft from Canadian factories.
The Transport Department and the Munitions and Supply Department have been given special powers to carry along building of airports, construction of hangars and shops and to make and purchase all essential equipment.
There were 14 Canadian firms manufacturing aircraft and two large engine manufacturers on the outbreak of war, with six of the aircraft firms taking part in a joint program of building planes for the Royal Air Force. Many of these firms have expanded their plants to meet wartime needs, and productions plans are going ahead rapidly.

U.S. Standards Used

Last week Munitions Minister Howe told Parliament that United States standards would be used as far as possible in Canadian plants. Canadian firms have more facilities and better suited to Canadian production than the British standards. It was understood, also, that United States aircraft types would be produced in Canadian subsidiary plants to a greater extent than before.
In considering steps to be taken to meet changed times, Mr. Ilsley said Mr. Duncan, "we realized that now if ever was the time for Canada to show the stuff that she was made of, to fall back upon that spirit of improvisation for which she is justly famed, and to find ways and means of surmounting with courage, with initiative and with ingenuity the seemingly insurmountable difficulties with which we are confronting her."
Conservative Leader Hanson said in Parliament today that "important changes" were in the training plan announced by Mr. Duncan Monday. Mr. First Minister Power replied that he did not think so, and when Mr. Duncan spoke and that he considered his announcement in keeping with Government policy but rather of steps taken to accelerate the program already inaugurated.

Addressing the same club meeting Monday, Hon. Air Marshal W. A. Bishop warned against "the peaceful penetration" of Britain and urged on Canadians to be steadfast in their principles, to be their own army.
He told the club there was no question of the enduring qualities and the power of the British Empire, but that the methods of war have changed and "now we are confronted with a new enemy, one, new conditions and new tactics."
Amongst all the sinister weapons designed and developed by this enemy, Air Marshal Bishop said, "the most dangerous is defeatism." Bishop said:
"Let us be on our guard against pessimism or defeatism," he declared. "We must never be surrendered. We must never always possessing an unshakeable confidence."

ARMY OF TANKS FORESEEN IN U. S.

Funds for 1,600 Tanks Included in Measure — This Would Make Total of 3,000 Tanks

Washington, June 4—(AP)— A United States army of 3,000 tanks, invincible in numbers to the force which formed the spearhead of German drives through Flanders was visualized by authorities today in an appropriation bill to be laid before a House of Representatives appropriations committee.
Funds for more than 1,600 light and medium tanks are provided in supplementary budget request for the army and navy aggregating possibly $1,000,000,000 in arms and contract authorizations. They embrace the recommendations made last week by President Roosevelt.
This would make a grand total of more than 3,000 tanks of various types. The German army is said to have employed a force of approximately this size.

NATIONAL SAVINGS WEEK PROCLAIMED

London, June 4—(AP)— June 9 to 15 has been proclaimed national savings week and the public was urged in advertisements today to "swell the big total" and "put shillings into bonds which will help us win the war."
"The important fact for us all today—you cannot spend a single shilling on anything else reducing Britain's war strength," the advertisements said.

Ideals of Allies Will Ensure Final Success Says French Envoy

Rene Ristelhueber, Presenting Diplomatic Credentials, Says Tragic Events of War Draw People Together

Ottawa, June 4—(CP)— Rene Ristelhueber, new French Minister to Canada, presented his diplomatic credentials to Chief Justice Lyman P. Duff, administrator of government, and in a short address said that the present tragic events of the war "have only served to draw still closer the ancient, numerous and powerful bonds which unite our two countries."
The ceremony took place in the east block. Mr. Ristelhueber arrived Governor-General's office in the car in Ottawa last Thursday to succeed Count Robert De Dampierre, who left the capital several months ago for a new diplomatic post in Europe.
"In the same manner as 25 years ago, Canadian and French soldiers are fighting side by side for the realization of a common ideal, inspired by their faith in the cause of freedom and their conception of human dignity," said the new Minister.
"As 25 years ago, they know that, though victory may be hard to win and slow to come, the ideas for which they fight are so just and so powerful that they are bound to ensure final success."

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Holds Annual Meeting at Boston

Appeal is Made for Calm and More Faith in Omnipotence of God in Present World Turmoil

Boston, Mass, June 4—An appeal for calm and more faith in the omnipotence of God in the face of present world turmoil, featured the gathering here today of thousands of members of the Christian Science the world for the annual meeting of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.
"Trusting in the omnipotence of God," said Harry C. Browne, First Reader of The Mother Church in reading a message from The First Church of Christ, Scientist—Board of Directors, "enables one, through demonstration, to find freedom from the thought resulting from the unfolding of the characteristics of divine Mind as expressed by Christ Jesus. Germans Pay High Price To Gain Prized Territory

Estimates of Nazi Losses Run to More Than 500,000 Casualties, 2,000 Aircraft and One-Third Mechanized Force

MAY BE SHORT LULL

(By Gay Rhodes Canadian Press Staff Writer).

The second Great War has entered its 10th month with a comparative lull settling on the battle front while both sides recover from the fury of the battle of Flanders.
Evacuation of Allied forces at the port of their eventual retreat from the Flanders pocket neared its end and predictions by military leaders in Germany had paid a heavy price to gain about 10,000 square miles of territory and, so far, failed to consolidate a stranglehold on English channel ports.
They still were outside shell-torn Dunkirk, held up by those unbreached against them by the Allies and by the bombardment from the air. Their advance units, forced to withdraw from Abbeville, covered by three feet of mud and water over a wide area made doubly difficult by frequent ditches.
Apparently pushing France to find a new point for assault, Nazi planes bombed Paris, following a two days' lull, the second straight attacks over the Rhone Valley in the south of France.
French authorities expressed belief the bombers' raids had at least a partial "political" significance, that they were designed to encourage Benito Mussolini into believing that if he entered the war on the side of Germany he could rely on Nazi help in an attack on France.

Mussolini Still Aloof

Mussolini, amidst editorial shouting for the blood by the controlled Italian Press, nevertheless still held his hand, although it was clear the army was being mobilized methodically through a regulation of individual call-up notices.
Limited the British Expeditionary Force Minister Anthony Eden expected from Flanders about 140,000 men had been saved, and that had there and that "tens of thousands" of British troops had been taken to England in addition to an undetermined number rescued by themselves.
Estimates of German losses ran to more than 500,000 in casualties to personnel, one-third of its total mechanized forces and 2,000 aircraft.
Those figures were anywhere nearly correct, it appears likely the Germans would have to wait for replacements of selected repairs to offensive vehicles which were not total losses.
On the Allied side the pause provided an opportunity to strengthen their new positions along the Somme River. Already a number of civilians, scurried across the channel to help in the rescue work while windows on the English side of the channel flashed explosions and flames and smoke shot into the air on the French coast.
It might almost be argued that the Flanders episode, though it resulted in loss of considerable territory, was, in a sense, a victory. It was a contest of iron tremendous spirit and heroism and it was greeted in Britain not as a defeat but as an action of historic brilliance.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma was starting the bridge problem and I was on the floor wishing I didn't have to do my homework, and pop was smoking in himself in his private chair, saying, Well, young man, how about accompanying the thought with little appropriate action?

Yes sir, I was just going to, I said, and pop said, I've noticed that for the passed half hour. If you'd only use your imagination a little you could make yor homework a pleasure instead of a boar. The man of imagination never lets his work get him down. Even a prisoner breaking stones on a rock pile can have a good time by imagining that every rock is a lodge who sent him up at one time or another. So just imagine you're a squirrel storing up food for the winter, and then every fact you memorize will be like a juicy nut stored away for the future, he said.

Sounding like a pretty good of a idea if it wasn't so impossible, and ma said, Thinking of things to do, that reminds me, Willyum, you promised to fix that dining room screen today, it wont be long before the flies will be deluged with mosquitoes, and then your only consolation will be hearing me say I told you so, she said, and pop said, I cant table a screen on a full stummick, any carpenter will tell you that's the worst thing you can do to a screen.

Now Willyum give yourself a dose of your own medicine and just imagine you're throwing big bowling balls instead of tacking little tacks, ma said. You'd tear yourself out of a sick bed to go and throw bowling balls, so here's an ideal chance for yobr imagination, she said, and pop said, Remind me the first thing in the morning, the exercise will just start the day right for me.

Well how about somebody reminding me to do my homework then too, pop? I said, and pop said, That'll be too late, because you'll already have it done.

Being sad but true.

PRO-NAZI MINISTER

Jon Gigurfu, a pro-German engineer, has been made foreign minister in the Rumanian cabinet of Premier Ion Gigurtu. Gafencu has succeeded to the portfolio held by Gregoire Gafencu, long known as a friend of the Allies. Official reason given for Gafencu's resignation was ill health.

FRENCH SAY NAZI

It was explained that France had not altered her original policy in putting "blow for blow" in reply to German bombings, and that if London were "free" from restrictions it was open city the French will feel free to strike back to him.

Meanwhile the Air Ministry acknowledged the damage to military objectives in the scarlet city was rocked anew by the boom of anti-aircraft guns going into action to drive off German planes which appeared over the suburbs at about 4 a.m. (1 a.m. EDT).

No bombs were dropped, but residents were kept in a state of anxiety by the explosion of several time bombs loosed by enemy raiders. There were no immediate reports of additional casualties from these blasts.

War Front Quiet

The situation on the war front was described by the high command as quiet on all fronts except at Dunkirk, where the evacuation of British Allied rearguard was said to be proceeding "despite ever increasing difficulties."

The possibility that the inactivity along the Somme-Aisne front was a lull before the storm was not indicated, however, by reports of German troop concentrations behind their lines in northern France.

The Air Ministry said that it was unable, for military reasons, to give any details on the facilities damaged in the Paris raids participated in raids concentrated in the Seine and Seine-et-Oise Departments. About half of these were bombs, he said, and the remainder fire fighters.

As Paris awoke from this first night of bombing, there was confirmed that the formidable anti-aircraft defenses had proved good account of themselves.

After the sudden air raid in broad daylight yesterday dead and wounded were removed from the wreckage of the buildings in Paris and 91 in the outskirts. Many buildings not blasted apart were set afire by incendiary bombs.

Paris Mondial, the government radio station, estimated that 15 German planes flew over the very heart of the city after dropping bombs in the thickly-populated residential districts, and that 50 other enemy bombers ranged over the suburbs encircling the capital.

MEETING FALLS

The cabinet voted additional funds for subsidy payments, but the amount was not disclosed.

Provision also was made for the administration of Canadian interests in the Royal Naval Academy.

Regulations restricting the employment of women in public service were approved. A measure is also intended to allow women to replace men called to arms.

Public Discipline

The law aimed at tightening discipline in war industries was presumed in foreign circles to be under consideration.

Another measure provided concessions to permit the temporary importation of certain agricultural goods.

Penalties against the hoarding of commodities were extended to Libya and Ethiopia.

One decree aimed to speed up the requisitioning of copper. Details of the measure were not disclosed.

The Ministry of Guilds was given power to determine what stocks should be held of industrial and other goods most in demand with a view to rationing them.

The cabinet meeting failed to produce any indication of a date for Italy's long-expected entry into the war on Germany's side.

NATIONAL SURVEY

A census is already being taken of the machine-tool, aircraft and a few other vital industries.

Divided Into Areas

As a means of accelerating production, the war committees and garages working part time due to the wartime curb on motoring will be stripped of their lathes and other machinery for the establishment of more small factories. The United Kingdom has been divided into 11 areas and each area council will be set up in central plants of each area.

Britain came closer and closer to the conviction that before long the Allies will have a powerful armament in the war—Italy, Foreign office sources said, the lately expected comment on the Italian question, now view war with Italy as a distinct possibility." It was apparent that Britain faces that issue with equanimity.

Ready to Discuss Grievances

Foreign Office circles emphasized that "even at this late hour we are ready to discuss any real or imaginary Italian grievances."

Neutral military observers felt that Italy's potential contribution to Germany's campaign would come chiefly through the air, south on Marseille and the southern France industrial region.

This, they said, might be followed by an attempted Italian invasion of France while Hitler's armored divisions moved on the Somme and Aisne River line in the north.

The Home Office added all or parts of 19 counties to the area in which all aliens are under strict police surveillance, bringing together, it was explained, the entire area of the London Civil Defense Region.

The military leadership indicated the lessons on technical equipment learned in Flanders are being put into the refurnishing of the B.E.F. as it, the first line, "keeps up the new army" believed ready to take the field.

It was viewed as "absolutely necessary" that the new British Expeditionary force tank guns to stop Germany's mechanized units, and have powerful tanks of its own to counter Germany's.

National Service Week

While preparations were speeded up to meet Hitler, authorities announced that all British first citizens kept up their own fight on the home front by contributions to various funds.

It was announced that the week of June 9-15 will be called National Savings week when a concentrated effort will be made to get every penny out of hiding and into the war chest with money drawn from mighty corporations down to tiny tin banks.

The withdrawal of British and French forces from Dunkirk kept on steadily. An authorized source said, it would be "premature" to estimate the number brought out because operations by the British French navy were taken in France.

The disclosure that premiums in the form of their lives in the fighting in France was forewarning that the heaviest casualty list could be expected.

SIX DESTROYERS

Diplomatic circles said that Mussolini's decision to enter war on the Italian situation depended on developments in France, but that Premier Mussolini summoned his ministers to discuss "various matters" and that there was a meeting this morning.

The Admiralty, recounting the fleet's rescue of Allied forces from Dunkirk, announced the loss of six destroyers and 23 minor craft" had been sunk during the operations.

A separate announcement said that the paddle minesweeper Brighton Belle, reported last night to have been lost, had reached port safely, rescuing the crew and a group of minor ship losses from 26 to 33. The Admiralty issued a statement called the withdrawal from Dunkirk "the most successful difficult combined operation in naval history." It said the constant ferrying of troops from the beaches in defiance of the German air attacks, which constantly nearby bases was carried out in the face of "overwhelming odds and continuous air attack and increasing artillery and machine-gun fire."

It listed these losses in the week-long operations: Ten large and unclassified destroyers; 1,400-ton Keith, the 1,375-ton Basilisk, The Havant, one of a group of 24 ships for Britain to be taken over by the Admiralty when the war broke out; the 1,335-ton Grenade and the 1,100-ton Wakeful. The latter was reported sunk last Thursday.

Also lost, fleet minesweeper, the Skipjack.

One gunboat, The Mosquito.

One fleet A/S ship, the Grafton.

Five paddle minesweepers.

One minesweeper.

Eight trawlers.

Three drifters.

Two armed boarding vessels.

One yacht.

One tug.

The success of this operation, the Admiralty said, was made possible only by the "magnificent support of the Allies and of the services and by the never-flagging determination of all ranks of all concerned."

The British force alone included 222 special vessels and 665 other British craft. Gradually, it was suspended to an urgent Admiralty call for help. Large numbers of French and Belgian fishing ships also took part.

Britain, as yet to the future, the Admiralty announced they had blocked the Belgian ports against Prime Minister Churchill, lauded the "fine skill and bravery" of the fighting services and the merchant navy and Royal Navy Reserves throughout the port of Dunkirk "from disaster into triumph."

Allies Lands Over Germany

Heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force carried out extensive raids over northwest Germany, the Air Ministry announced today, the first time fire to oil tanks and tank cars, and machine-gunning troop concentrations.

At a railway junction east of Dortmund, large explosive bombs fell across a crowded railway yard and a train moving there.

Home defence precautions continued today as Britain urged by the government to register their children as soon as possible in safer, non-congested areas. Concern was expressed because only 100,000 of the 400,000 children still remaining in London had been registered for forthcoming transfer inland.

Workers proceeded with construction of artificial "hills" and deep trenches in parks and other open spaces to trap any bird troop carrying planes which might attempt night landings in an invasion of Britain.

General Sir Edmund Ironside, Commander-in-Chief of Home Defences, called meetings of the local defence volunteers tomorrow and Thursday to receive instructions.

"KEEP OUT"

It declares that the United States "would not recognize any transfer and would not acquiesce in any attempt to transfer any geographical region of the western hemisphere from one non-American power to another non-American power."

If such a transfer or attempt to transfer should appear likely, the statement says, "the United States will offer measures, immediately consult with the other American republics to determine upon steps which should be taken to safeguard their common interests."

El Republica Pledged.

The United States Republics, including the United States, are already pledged by the 1936 Declaration of Lima, to collaborate in maintaining the principles on which the Pan American Union is based, port and neighboring beaches.

In the event of any foreign activity or intervention that threatens the peace of this hemisphere.

Minister said the United did not specify Germany by name, it did say that "the present European war and developments" which "are affecting states which the possessions in the Western Hemisphere" and which "Any endeavor to transfer such possessions from one European country to any other non-American state" would "endanger the peace and security of the United States and other American Republics.

Besides the United States, Allies, and two of the countries she has occupied, Denmark and Holland, have such possessions in this hemisphere. Therefore, the effect of the resolution would be to forestall any such many as things now stand: should Germany conquer Britain and occupy as Italy, enter the war, its target could be widened.

'WE SHALL FIGHT'

Britain had ample munitions, supplies of material, guns and transport vehicles. The effort to make up the losses in France "is the task of our military strength" and he implored workers throughout the United Kingdom never to cease their efforts and their exertion, and to work "as never before" in this crisis.

Result of Flanders Campaign.

The result of the Flanders campaign was to leave France weakened. Belgium lost, large industrial belt in northern France in enemy hands, the channel ports are held by the Nazis, and Britain is fighting alone.

The prime minister told the House of Commons that the government is strengthening the defences of this country in every direction and pressing forward "as necessary for years, if necessary alone".

Reminding the House of his statement on the course of the war by declaring that "only a small strand could have saved the British and French armies" after the Germans broke through the Ardennes to the Meuse River.

The French high command had hoped "they would be able to close the gap" and "hold on on the Meuse, Mr. Churchill said.

The strategical plan of retirement was not "intended or prepared" he declared, because such retirement "involves in battle the abandonment of the fine Belgian army of over 20 divisions and the British Expeditionary force, into the battle concentrated on the beaches of Dunkirk."

The Germans began to fire with artillery on the beaches, they sowed magnetic mines in the sea bottom and "sent repeated waves of their air warfare, sometimes more than 100 strong," to bomb troops and the shipping assembled there, Mr. Churchill said.

Effort of Allies

An effort was made "by the French and British armies to keep the holding the right hand of the Belgians" and to give their own right hand to the newly-created French army which was to have advanced across the Somme in great strength to grasp it, Mr. Churchill said.

But, he added, "the German "eruption swept like a sharp scythe behind and cut off the line of armies and cut off all communications between the British and French army."

This movement "severed our communications" for food and ammunition and sheared its way "up the communications to Dunkirk," he said.

British forces holding Calais were given orders to defend it, Mr. Churchill said, and after four days of fierce fighting "resistance by only 30 wounded survivors, who were then rescued by the navy.

The German attacks on Calais or nite armored divisions, each of about 400 armored vehicles" in the vanguard which slashed Allied communications, Mr. Churchill declared.

Behind this armored and mechanized onslaught came a number of German divisions in trucks, and behind them "plodded the dull, gray mass of the ordinary German Army," he said.

German Army Ready to Trample Down

This army he declared, was always ready to be led, to trampling down any other and which has the liberty and comfort they have never known in their own.

"The struggle in the air," he declared, "will be intense tomorrow and Thursday to receive instructions.

The guards defended Boulogne for a while and then were withdrawn to the citadel, Mr. Churchill, he declared.

The British commander at Calais was given one hour to surrender, and with a rifle brigade of the 60th Rifles and Queen Victoria's Rifles, "fought on until the last," Mr. Churchill declared.

"Only one test remained" when the German dit impossible to impose communication with the main French forces, Mr. Churchill declared.

That test, he said, seemed "indeed forlorn" because the armies "were almost surrounded and their sole line of retreat was by way of their port and neighboring beaches."

In the event of any foreign activity or intervention that threatens the peace of this hemisphere.

Minister said the United did not specify Germany by name, it did say that "the present European war and developments" which "are affecting states which the possessions in the Western Hemisphere" and which "Any endeavor to transfer such possessions from one European country to any other non-American state" would "endanger the peace and security of the United States and other American Republics.

Therefore, the effect of the resolution would be to forestall any such many as things now stand: should Germany conquer Britain and occupy as Italy, enter the war, its target could be widened.

"Already the flow of munitions has leapt forward."

Reminding the House that there never had been a period when the British nation had been "an absolute guarantee" against invasion, Mr. Churchill declared that the chance one might be successful had been "taken and has dissipated the imagination of many transients."

No Temptation With Fire.

Mentioning measures against fifth column activities, Prime Minister said these powers will be used "without hesitation or tenderness" and that he was sorry for those "poor misguided friends of Germany" who are affected by orders against aliens.

He praised Germany's "originality of malice and ingenuity of invention" but declared, "we can certainly prepare ourselves for every novel device we may see, any kind of brutal and treacherous form of attack."

"We shall ride out the storms of war," he declared.

The Prime Minister added that Britain will fight "the menace of tyranny" for years and, "if necessary, alone."

"The British Empire and the French Republic" will defend to the death their native soil, aiding each other like good comrades to the utmost of their strength."

Lover Come Back"

BY BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

"Um-m-m. Reynall, I'd shake me. Is Sondra here? Send what ye told her in the cupola. Ye never took it up with the later, did yet?" asked Dynamite.

"I tried to once, after I'd had a talk with the Purest Man, and got worried about you both. I crashed my birthday party, and finally got Sondra to give me five minutes. She showed me into the dark library to wait, and the next minute someone in there knocked me cold and tossed me through the window into a mess of thorny rosebushes. I concluded it was a pallbearer job; that you had a couple of your buddies in there to give me a roughing. But the Purest Man has since told me I was mistaken."

"Holy ... sailor! Then ye had no hand in the blowin' of me safe?"

The Purest Man cut in, "Thinks all that, Captain, looking for your charts. Jean happened to stop in on him while he was preparing for the Job and in the dark fell an easy victim to Uncle Julius."

O'Moore shook his head. "The blasted rascal. I suppose he got in there with a costume."

The Purest Man explained, "He and Sharkey were identical costumes—the tall Killer Whale hats wound-up their heights. Heads and the costumes with the intention of taking advantage of the party to made a leisurely search of the premises. When Llane accidentally flooded the library—he was present at the time, you remember—and he found it to be closed that night, he saw an excellent opportunity to blow the safe under cover of the noise attendant on the flood of Llane's dances. With Starbuck managing Sharkey and the lights out, it didn't seem as if anything could go wrong. He did proceed to blow the safe—after he had thrown Jean out of the window! But he had no opportunity to search. First Alexander barged in on him; then Sondra; after he had thrown her out of his way, I complicated his escape by almost running into him as he dived into the reception room."

"And ye let him get away!"

The Purest Man smiled patiently, "I didn't know, then, all that I've just told you. I was merely enjoying the party and keeping an eye on Starbuck. I'm pointed me no end when the safe-wower managed to disappear so quickly that night. But now that you've told us about the reopening of the old banjo passage, I see he must have come in behind the carved panel."

"Aye. Bellie, he stayed there hell ed up waitin' till everyone left the house, an' he could come back and research the safe. Sondy told me when she took the Bates contract from the safe that night, she found it all set off for the fishin' grounds, she saw something move there by the panel under the stairs, and she just hadda' do somethin' to frighten the stranger at the time."

"Do that explains it!" exclaimed the Purest Man. "Sonda must have dumped to the conclusion that Sondra was accosting the copies of the charts. That's why he followed you out to the fishing grounds, and then why he pushed Sondra overboard there."

"Are ye tellin' me that hissing thing pushed my gurl overboard in the day?"

"Undoubtedly, Sondra told me she felt his hand on her shoulder and thought he just missed catching her. But Jean was watching him. He believes Ikeda supplied the additional information necessary to topple her over the rail, thinking he'd get possession of the envelope while rescuing her. At any rate, Jean, however, spoiled that one for him by getting to Sondra first."

The Captain made no reply, but sat with his head bowed and his hand on the table, slowly tightened into a white-knuckled fist.

O'Moore looked at it to change the subject. "By the way, Reynall, there's an item that might interest you. One of the sections in Ikeda's official report, seized today by the canned herring, details efforts made to secure fish and 'eliminate competitors.' There's a long list, and he mentions cutting your floating canning adrift one stormy night."

O'Moore and Reynall turned to look at each other, but before either could speak Captain Jack said, in "No contact with the Pelley pet, Captain Reynall," he hinted that I inferred a weak streak in Dynamite Danny O'Moore.

So deep was the Captain's mood we'll get that it had not yet struck him as odd that he should find his cabin exactly as he had left it fifty years ago. The solid, hand-carved bunk in the corner, with its gay, patch-pull blanket spread; the teak-wood stand beside it hold the ash receiver hollowed from the shell of a giant tun-sank. . . . On the walls the matched pair of walrus tusks, and the huge paintings of the Glory under full sail.

Chuckling to himself, the Captain rested his head against the chairback and gave himself up to memories of those days when he was the young master of the Glory.

But presently, though his half-closed eyes were fixed blankly on the opposite wall, he became vaguely conscious of something lacking. Something that should be hanging under that little model of an ocean-liner.

He focused his gaze suddenly, and sat bolt upright. His sextant. It should be hanging—but, of course, His himself had taken it down and off the ship—half a century ago. Yes, everything else in this cabin was the same as if he had stepped back into it after an absence of an hour. Even his head and blinkered, and, for the first time since his childhood, he began to doubt the tales of time and place.

"Jap Forward." Is it added in the head, "Ye gettin'?" he inquired aloud, staring at the chart spread out on the table. And then the corner was weighted by a battered, cloth-bound "Nautical Almanac" and an equally battered straight-stemmed briar. . . . Even a fish pipe—he jacked it up to examine it—his fish pipe with the crack in the bowl wound in a neat arrangement on a windy bridge. . . . And the book—he had went out to it.

"Bowditch!" he whispered. To all appearances it might be the identical "Nautical Almanac" that had served that audacious young sea-poacher, whom men called Dynamite Danny O'Moore. He opened the book. On the flyleaf, in the boy's scrawl, he scarcely read it in the soft glow of the oil lamp, was his own name: "D. O'Moore, Master. 1887. . . . Over fifty years ago he had written Proud, high old heart, master of his own ship, and he scarce past twenty.

Her perfume, used by no other woman he had ever known.

Reverently, he shut the book to hurt it into a corner, but stopped, overcome that same fragrance.

Miss Jacqueline, tall and slender in a robe of grey chiffon, was already faced the others. "Gentlemen, I believe you've all been assigned state-room accommodations. Captain, Captain, you'll take Aunt Jack—I mean you'll have your own and your charges the one on the master's cabin. Make yourselves comfortable, everybody. The gong on deck for a lookout."

Captain O'Moore moved to the door of his old cabin and stepped inside. Then he closed the door, sat out for a match to the little Dresden lamp on the wall. He found one, scratched it on his heel, and lit the old-fashioned oil lamp serving as a bedside table. Then, with a sigh of content, he sank into his big, soft mahogany armchair near the table and appreciatively rubbed his hands over the arms. He'd always been proud of this chair. Other skippers' eyes had stuck out to see such an unheard-of luxury aboard a sailing ship, but none had ever so much as hinted that it inferred a weak streak in Dynamite Danny O'Moore.

Why The Weather?

Heavy air. Now that summer has come people will say on some days that the air is "heavy". Those days will be hot with high humidity which may be from 85 per cent to 95 per cent. They will indeed have a heavy effect on our feelings, being often depressing due to heat, moisture in the air and lack of wind. As a matter of fact, the air is not really heavy in a physical sense on these days, but lighter than usual, as a cubic foot of water vapor is much lighter than a cubic foot of air. On a dry, cold winter day, the air is really relatively heavy; but we find great exhaturation and consequently think the air is then light.

The man in the street accepted Mr. Churchill's declaration that the Empire would fight on "until, in God's good time, the new world with all its power and might sets forth to the liberation and rescue of the old," as meaning the United States would go all if the worst should befall Britain.

The nation also looked toward further relations with Soviet Russia following announcement in Moscow

'DICTATORNATIONS HAVE DESIGNS'

Henry Wallace, U. S. Agriculture Secretary, Charges Them With Designs on New World

Washington, June 5—(AP)— A secret statement from the army and navy intelligence services of subversive activities in several Latin American countries kept hemisphere defense measures in the fore today in the crush of preparedness considerations.

The statement was added emphasis on the subject in the declaration of a cabinet meeting Agriculture Secretary Henry Wallace, that "the dictatornations have designs on the new world."

"If England and France are conquered," Wallace said in a speech last night, "the Americas will be the next objective."

Reasons for the army's manifest concern over the possibilities of conditions in some parts of the western hemisphere were outlined yesterday in a closed meeting of the House military committee by military committee by General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff.

Committee members, some members said later, named five countries in Latin America where the declared "Fifth Column" activities were cause for apprehension.

81 Grateful Tommies Seek Identity Of Hero Who Saved Them in Dunkirk

London, June 5—(CP Cable) — The Daily Express today asked its readers to help identify this war's strangest hero, credited by a group of Tommies with saving the lives of 81 men trapped in a Dunkirk cellar after an air raid and then disappearing —possibly killed.

Sizzling themselves "the lucky bunch from Flanders", the Tommies asked the paper's help in finding of their escape from death when their only exit from the cellar was a small crack in a three-foot wall.

The letter contained two pictures of the man they identified as their rescuer. One picture showed him in civil life, apparently as a stage magician, and the other in the British army uniform. The paper published the pictures.

"We had given up hope and the rescuer tried in vain to break through the wall so he got a lead pipe and scooped drinks down to us," says them going until he got a crowbar. He exploded a charge in the wall let-which made the breach.

The letter said the rescuer next brought a small truckload of wine and food. When they tried to thank him he replied in secret.

"That is my hobby, raking my way out and sleeping on the edge of things. I get a good kick out of life that way."

The letter writer added: "He then, for our amusement, went to a lorry and brought out a wee brown bag and started to do conjuring tricks for us on the trenches."

Bombs still were dropping but when the rescued men dared to look across the top of the trenches, they saw the side of his truck blown away.

"The only clue we have is this wallet," the letter writer said. "It was found in the pocket of his overcoat which was partly burned. We cut the coat up in small pieces to avoid capture of the man who saved our lives—an unknown bombardier."

Swedish Dispatches Say Under Bombardment of Land Batteries

Germans Yielding British Destroyers

Stockholm, June 5—(AP)—British, French and Norwegian troops advancing eastward along the Narvik railway were reported in Swedish Press dispatches today to have stormed the German defences at Sildvik, about half way between the ore port of Narvik and the Swedish-Norwegian frontier.

Narvik now is in Allied hands and Allied forces are trying to free the railway into Sweden from the Germans.

The dispatches said the Germans were yielding under the heavy rain of shells from British destroyers and land batteries.

"A final onslaught against the main German forces at Bjornfjell, about two miles from the Swedish frontier, is expected within a day or two if the present advance continues.

The Allies and Norwegians are now pressing in accordance with well laid plans.

The battle ground is a mountain railway which burrows through 14 long tunnels. Inside these tunnels the Germans are fighting furiously, in many places holding on to the last man. Into the mouths of the tunnels fly showers of bursting shrapnel from the guns of British destroyers lying in Rombak Fjord and around the captured tunnels. Casualties are reported heavy on both sides.

'PURGE CONTAGION'

London, June 5 (CP Cable) — Morning papers rang out a resounding "well done" in editorials early today in praise of Prime Minister Churchill's speech to the House of Commons.

They were particularly pleased that Mr. Churchill told the bitter truths of the British and Flanders episode.

The Daily Mail splashed the speech in blackface type across the top of its front page while the Daily Herald also blackfaced it on the second page with an account of the speech.

The Times said: "The Government's declaration of Prime Minister's speech breathed the spirit of Shakespeare's England. . . . The cooperation between the British Empire and France are unconquerable."

The paper forecast that Churchill in the meeting the struggle will continue "until the foul contagion is purged from the face of civilization."

CHURCHILL SPEECH APPROVED BY U. S. CONGRESSMEN

Pittman Says it is the Most Encouraging Proposed Action Given Since Holland's Invasion

BRINGS WAR CLOSER

Washington, June 5—(CP)—The declaration of Prime Minister Churchill that Great Britain never would surrender and would fight on even if the British Isles were subjugated was warmly acclaimed by some Congressional circles here yesterday.

Chairman Key Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee called Mr. Churchill's statement to the House of Commons "the most encouraging proposed action on behalf of the British Government that has come to the attention of the United States since the invasion of Holland."

"Churchill's assurance that Great Britain will never surrender even if the British Isles are subjugated and will continue the war against Hitler from Canada, substantially guarantees the continuance of war against successful attack for a long period of time, at least," Pittman declared.

Mr. Churchill did not specifically mention Canada in his declaration. In this connection his remarks were:—

("We shall never surrender. And if, which I do not for a moment believe, this island or a large part of it were subjugated and starving, then our Empire beyond the seas, armed and guarded by the British Fleet, will carry on the struggle.")

Pittman said he did not think that removal of the British Government to Canada would bring the war closer to the United States. Pittman, chief spokesman of Senator Gerald Nye,

Weary, Hungry, Sad Refugees Come, Every Ship Brings Quota to Britain

By D. E. BURRITT

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 5 (CP)—Seemingly endless, the parade of refugees continues from France.

Every ship that pushes into a Channel port brings its quota of Warships, freighters and even trawlers land pathetic bands of bedraggled, hollow-eyed Belgians, French and even German exiles.

All have had much the same experience. All were forced to flee their homes, taking only what they could carry in handbags. Some lack even these.

Weary, hungry, sad, they arrive. Many are ill. Some have been wounded by bombs dropped by Nazi airmen. Some have witnessed the sinking of other refugee ships. Somenot them have seen their kin till bullets are found for them.

lost. All relate heartrending tales of tragedy.

Some have rolled blankets, food baskets, haversacks, parcels of clothing. But not many. Hemmed by every group has its squalling babies. Many are carried, some are one on crutches or with cane. All carry their gas masks in cardboard boxes. These have always been given them by British authorities.

They all said stars around a dreary railway station, nibbling at sandwiches given them by charity workers who greet every new contingent. As soon as they arrive they "checked and okayed" by immigration and police officials, they are sent on by trains to centres where they are fed, bathed and given a home for a night or so until billets are found for them.

Police Blotter

The question as to whether or not pick-pockets are busy in the city crowded the police last night when Ross Akey of Point Anne complained he had been relieved of a wallet containing $35. However, when questioned by P.C. Evans relative to his loss, Mr. Akey was uncertain as to whether he had lost the purse or it had been "lifted" from his person.

Destructive boys are alleged to have broken windows and done other wilful damage to a motor car at 207 Ann St. last night. The owner reported the matter to the police today stating that mischievous lads had thrown stones through both glasses.

F. H. Pounsett, 137 Charles St. arrived at the police station last night to complain that his parked automobile had been damaged during the night. Apparently while the left parked in the downtown area and apparently by a passing motor vehicle, as the rear fender was damaged. The party responsible appears to be guilty did not stop to enquire as to the damage resulting or the ownership of the vehicle, Mr. Pounsett told Sergeant Arthur Booth.

B.C.I. GIRL CADETS HIGHLY PRAISED BY CAPT. PEARSON

'Dressing and Marching Worthy of Regular Army Corps' States Inspecting Officer

PARADE DOWNTOWN

The campus of the Collegiate Institute rang out with the heavy marching tread of masculine feet but with the muffled rhythmic thump of soft-soled shoes on Tuesday afternoon as two hundred and eight members of the Girls' Cadet Corps marched past the reviewing stand in the Drill Hall, inspection of such a unit in seven years.

It was an inspiring sight. Immaculate in their uniforms of blue skirts, ties and stockings, white blouses, and jaunty tam caps set at a rakish angle the companies, swung rhythmically and moved in perfect time, swung up and down the campus with the tramp of a large crowd of admiring spectators stood on the sidelines.

Inspecting officer, Captain H. S. Pearson, M.D. 3, inspecting officer, it was "magnificent". In his brief address to the companies drawn up in a hollow square followed by the inspection, he expressed surprise and pleasure at such an admirable showing. "I am sorry" he said, "that more of the District headquarters staff are not present to witness your parade. I will take back with me the message of praise I can bestow upon you. Your drawing and marching are worthy of experienced masculine corps, and as for your appearance, I cannot say too much. The movements I have heard from the public and from the press."

"I hope next year, that those of the student body who have not joined your corps will do so, for it will produce very fine material for nationalism, but of the school such as B.C.I. has never seen before. I congratulate you."

And the parade and manoeuvres executed by the four companies under Battalion Commander Lieut.-Major Bernice Keeler, was what the inspecting officer said it was.

Trained Short Time

In training for only a short period of time, the corps surpassed the fondest expectations of its most ardent admirers. With the precision and the lining up at the commencement of the line, the blue-and-white clad ranks swung up and down the campus in formations, that never warped.

Perhaps strange to the ear of the uninitiated, the words of command given in feminine voices, and the smaller, lighter rifles carried on the staccato accompaniments of the "Imperial Instructor", yet the officers of the corps gave their commands in tones, that demanded instant obedience.

Smartly, efficiently, heels came together at one, when the command "attention" rang out. Moving down the field, leg swinging as in two solid lines, the battalion manoeuvred, the platoon column of route, company and full review order, they wheeled into position like veterans. As they passed the reviewing stand where Captain Pearson, Chairman of the Board of Education, Reg. Moncrieff and members of the board, Rev. A. B. Payne, Lt.-Col. A. L. Geen, C. L. Hyde, John Deacon, and Principal P. C. MacLaurin stood, eyes turned sharply to the right or left, and officers' hands swung up smartly to the salute.

There was not a particle of difference in the bearing of the oldest and the youngest girl on parade.

No Hesitation

They understood every order given them. There was no hesitation at any time, they "stepped" like veterans, stood at ease in one motion and at the command "Quick March" strode quickly forward with no noticable difference in the lining between the lines.

The parade was a distinct credit to the school, the Board of Education and the officers who were responsible for the instruction.

In an interview with the Ontario Intelligencer following the inspection, Captain Pearson said, the marching and manoeuvres was by far the best he had seen given by any girl cadet corps, but only compared favorably with the majority of the Boys' Cadet Corps in this part of Ontario, but was a distinct improvement over the most of them. He was not seen the Belleville Boy Cadets yet, but in my opinion", he said, "they will have to be very good to better what I have seen Girls' Cadets do." addresses were given to the corps by Chairman Moncrieff, the Rev. A. B. Payne, and Principal MacLaurin.

Following the inspection, the Corps, headed by the Collegiate Band, which, incidentally, added the musical atmosphere for the marches past, paraded through the principal city streets, while hundreds of admiring spectators looked on.

Judge Grants 6 Applications For Canadian Naturalization

His Honor, Judge Madden, Admonishes Applicants to be Good Citizens

JURY TRIAL ENLARGED

Swearing their allegiance to Canada and the King, six applicants for Canadian naturalization pledged their willingness to fight in the interests of Canada and the Allies when questioned relative to their feelings and leanings at the opening of the County Court and General Sessions of the Peace held here before His Honor Judge J. E. Madden of Napanee yesterday, all applicants for naturalization, including two men born in Germany, signified their willingness to serve the Empire against any enemy, be it Nazi or otherwise, when they were questioned by His Honor, all six applications were recommended by Judge Madden.

"You are taking up your allegiance to the country of your birth to become British subjects. This is a very serious step in your lives, but you have all expressed your desire to live in this country and fight in the interests of the Empire."

Applicants Cautioned

"This present conflict may spread to this country. We sincerely hope not, but in any event you must caution you as to your duties as a Canadian. You may be approached and asked to do things against the interest of Canada and the Allies. If and when you are approached by any stranger or not discuss tnie question of the war with any stranger, but report any kind to strangers. It is now your bounden duty to remain loyal citizens to the police, your reeve or other official, especially when approached, concerning suggested actions of a subversive nature.

"If you are granted naturalization, and I intend to recommend each and every one here present, you will then be afforded the privileges of a British subject and will become a citizen of this country. I hope you will conduct yourselves in such and appreciate the great honor that is now yours," stated Judge Madden in addressing the six applicants collectively.

The applicants were presented for examination by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., who, before questioning them on their constitutional white gloves, traditional with the announcement there were no criminal cases listed for trial. "It gives me great pleasure to present you with these white gloves and to further announce there are no criminal cases listed for trial in this court," stated Mr. Donnan.

"Thank you Mr. Donnan, this condition will prevail long in this county," replied His Honor Judge Madden.

One jury case was listed for trial, that of Read versus Smith, with E. O. Butler appearing for the plaintiff and the firm of Porter, Payne and Arnott for the defendants. The case was laid over until another court upon the mutual consent of the counsel.

"I must congratulate both the parties concerned and counsel in showing such a commendable spirit in. This case was laid over by the court when those concerned were in public spirited enough to consent to the enlargement and thereby save the thousands of dollars that its ratepayers the cost of summoning a petit jury. I thank both the parties and their counsels should be commended for their courtesy and taking the interests of the public at heart," complimented Judge Madden when he heard of the decision of the counsel to adjourn the single case for trial yesterday. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan also submitted the names of three temporary County Constables and stated that they would be main permanent officials in that capacity. They are: A. B. Campbell, Point Anne; Wm. Lavender, Marmora and Thos. Thorne, Belleville. The appointment was granted.

Karl Waschuk, address Marmora, Ontario, who was born in Kiev, Russia, on the 4th of March 1904 and arrived at the port of Quebec in May, 1913. He is married and has four children, all of whom were born in Canada. The applicant is a laborer and has resided in Canadian woman.

Paul Dewinock, address, Corbyvers, Ontario, was born in Silesia, Germany, on June 20, 1869. He arrived at the port of Quebec City in May, 1907, and proceeded by rail to Clinton, Ontario. Mr. Maclaurin stood, eyes turned sharply to the right or left, and officers' hands swung up smartly to the salute.

There was not a particle of difference in the bearing of the oldest and the youngest girl on parade.

No Hesitation

They understood every order given them. There was no hesitation at any time, they "stepped" like veterans, stood at ease in one motion and at the command "Quick March" strode quickly forward with no noticable difference in the lining between the lines.

Edward Richards of Waupoos Faces Trial on Charge of Reckless Driving

Picton — The Prince Edward County Court is in session here this week, opening Tuesday afternoon at noon with Judge C. A. Cameron presiding. The Grand Jury heard the evidence in the charge of reckless driving against Edward Richards of Waupoos and returned a true bill. The charge was laid following an accident on the Waupoos road on November 1st last, when a car driven by Richards and a bicycle ridden by George Simmons collided with the latter being instantly killed.

Also the town council meeting Monday night, provision was made for the electors to vote on the length of the term for municipal council. This will be done at the September municipal election when the voters will be asked whether they are in favor of the council elected for 1941 holding office for two years.

Resolution Passed

Council also passed a resolution which has been submitted by the council of Burlington. This asks for the organization of a Home Guard system. The resolution reads as follows:—

"That in view of the tactics employed by Nazi Germany from the countries which they have now invaded—namely the setting up of subversive organizations for the purpose of disseminating propaganda and endeavoring generally to weaken the morale of the country—and in view of the fact that in a country such as ours there is acknowledged to be groups of individuals sympathetic to the Nazi cause and desirous of obstructing and even sabotaging our war effort—the Minister of National Defence be petitioned to organize forthwith the Home Guard in communities, where garrisons do not exist, of which the duty of the latter to be under the direct supervision of the District Military authorities, and that the Minister be petitioned to grant assistance in the formation of said Home Guard and that in every case

UNTRUE AND MALICIOUS RUMOURS

In the columns of this paper yesterday was the story of a Belleville physician and his wife who appealed to the Anti-subversive Committee of this city to trace, if possible, and prosecute the authors of cowardly and malicious stories, respecting their loyalty, which have been circulated widely throughout the city and district.

How these stories originated is as mystifying to the couple concerned as they would be to any other loyal British subject, who might have been the target of such machinations. The wide circle of friends of Dr. and Mrs. Stobie have been appalled by the extent of the rumours and gossip that have been circulated. Knowing them to be false because was no other course open than for the innocent victims of this intolerable situation to appeal to the Committee for action.

The extent to which the public allows the imagination to run uncontrolled probably is observed best in a newspaper office. Almost any day people call on the telephone to ask many preposterous questions. The same condition arose at the outbreak of war last September when rumours became current about a number of citizens, who it was said, had been arrested as spies. Those rumours gradually died away when nothing ever came of them. But recently other rumours started again like wildfire. The public is willing to believe almost any wild story and the crazier it is the more likely it is to be believed. With fears of subversive activities uppermost in everyone's mind the ground is ripe for malicious-minded people to spread stories that have no basis in fact. When they involve an honorable citizen and his family no matter why they might be, then it is time to call a halt and fight back. We sincerely trust that the police will be able to run to cover the originators of this gossip and mete out to them the severe punishment they so richly deserve.

In regard to this question of rumours, it may be said that most originate when stories are not the only people to blame. There is a vast number of people who gossip and peddle stories they have heard without making the slightest effort to verify them or prove their falsity the chief interest being to tell someone who has not heard. If a few of those who hear such gossip would forthwith declare they would not believe such gossip, it might help stem the tide of idle and malicious talk. No one should repeat what he or she knows may not be true, or cannot possibly be true. If a story told of another is not true it is possibly slander and the law provides a penalty for the slanderer whether he originates or repeats. The person who repeats any unfounded story which attacks the honor of another without the slightest basis of fact is held accountable under the law as well as the person who starts the story rolling. Such a person is very unfair, unjust and unmanly in repeating what he does not know for the truth. In common justice and under the golden rule, one should hold his or her tongue instead of being one of many who can easily damage the reputation of an upright citizen. At this time particularly there is need for restraint because to repeat gossip may prove a very unsettling effect especially when unjust and damaging remarks are passed about persons whom every one respects and knows to possess integrity of character. Such gossip and stories may become a valuable adjunct of any "fifth column" and as such ought to be avoided for the sake of truth and for the sake of our country. If anything is heard which may seem to be of importance or require investigation, persons would be well advised not to tell the story to others but to advise the police or the local Anti-subversive Committee who will investigate, and if the story is found without basis of fact, no injustice will have been done any citizen. The police and the committee can be trusted to sift out the truth and do justice by all.

'WE SHALL NEVER SURRENDER'

In what many believe the greatest speech of the public life, Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain revealed the whole small fight of British determination that German tyranny must pass. Great Britain will fight and she will not yield. These are the words he spoke in the British Commons:

If the best arrangements are made as they are being made, we shall prove ourselves once again able to defend our Island home and ride out the storms of war and outlive the menace of tyranny if necessary for years, if necessary alone. . . . We shall not flag or fail. We shall go on to the end. We shall fight in France, on the seas and oceans. We shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air. We shall defend our Island whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches, the landing grounds, in the fields, in the streets and on the hills. We shall never surrender.

And even if, which I do not for a moment believe, this Island, or a large part of it, were subjugated and starving, then our Empire beyond the seas, armed and guarded by the British fleet, will carry on the struggle, until, in God's good time, the new world, with all its power and might, sets forth to the liberation and rescue of the old.

Mr. Churchill praised the work of the young British airmen whose deeds make us be said, the story of the Knights of the Round Table fade into "the distant and prosaic past." To the young gentlemen of the R.A.F. he paid his tribute as adding to the defence against attack on Britain.

The story of the heroic deeds of the B.E.F. and of the French in the withdrawal reaches a height which makes the British Empire and the French Republic proud of their sons and more secure against the enemy.

335,000 MEN EVACUATED

The magnitude of the British and French evacuation through Dunkirk continues to grow as the story stands unfolded. Now it is learned that no fewer than 335,000 men were taken out of that port. Prime Minister Churchill praised the heroism of all the services and offered special praise for the young British airmen, whom he had seen in instances driven off four times their number of the enemy.

To conceive that the British and French rescued from the pocket numbered more than a third of a million men and raises one's amazed at the perfection of plans, the heroism and the care that was taken.

This was the final stage of the Battle of Flanders which had been the result of the German break through the line at the Meuse and of the later Belgian collapse.

These men are all battle-tried veterans who are waiting for another fight with the Germans. They had fought in the actions in Belgium, in France after the enemy pierced the defence at the Meuse. They had fought alongside Belgians until the greater part of these surrendered at their King's order. They had then faced the most terrific odds but all the Germans could hurl at them could not avail against their orderly withdrawal which cost the enemy many more thousands. With the aid of ships of the merchant marine and the British and French navies and the air forces of the two nations the evacuation was completed.

This evacuation will go down in history as the greatest operation of its kind.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Style Shows a Run Down Condition

"A style is really a small bolt and begins as a hard swelling which grows to a hard lump and causes a swelling of the whole lid and sometimes a bloodshot appearance to the surface of the eyeball".

In most cases it is due to organisms which cause an infection in the little oil glands. The opening of the oil glands get clogged, the oil becomes thick and a yellow pus forms.

When a style occurs, the first thought naturally is to get rid of this disfiguring boil or lump. The usual treatment is the application of hot cloths to bring the little lump to a head and then squeezing out the yellow pussy matter. In children, the mother may give a dose of castor oil as part of the treatment, which should do more good than harm.

Sometimes a style should be given more thought than just the treatment because little thing on the eyelid is an outward sign of trouble inside. In most cases it is really a sign of a run down condition. It may be found that the youngster has been staying up too late, staying indoors too much, and not playing much.

What is needed is a "building up" treatment. Get the child into the body so that the youngster will take a greater interest in school and play. The old fashioned style effective cod liver oil, plenty of fresh air, and attention to regularity in the bowel movement will usually prevent the formation of more styles.

In many cases the child's blood is thin and iron tonics and the eating of iron containing foods is desirable.

Our eye specialists tells us that some styes are due to eye strain and that the glasses will correct same in the majority of cases the youngster, and the adult also, is better put right. Styes can be thoroughly examination by the family physician and dentist.

When there is a succession of styes, something deeper wrong. It may be due to one infecting a nearby source and the eyelid is more likely to be among evidence that the patient requires a change and a tonic.

A stye may sometimes be prevented by applying after washing, by hot applications, squeezing out the opinions, and then using hot applications again.

A Father's Wish

When the Essex Scottish marched away so bravely the other day, war was brought home to them to us in Detroit, for we have grown to look upon those Windsor lads as a part of this community. Many of them worked in Detroit, they were Tigerfans, and mingled with us as comrades in all our amusements and in our civic affairs. Now they've gone —into the dregs of Europe to help save if possible the Empire and civilization as we have known it.—Detroit Free Press.

Ourselves and Others

Wait for the final whistle.

x x x

And it won't be long.

x x x

Or will there be a pay playoffs.

x x x

For as the Windsor Star remarks "it is still the United Kingdom".

x x x

When you get that down-in-the-mouth feeling about this war, conjure up if you can the sight of fresh-faced roy checked English schoolboys, evacuated from the Scandinavian, slipping morning coffee in a disgust. Nothing like rear end raiders. Cups clink down on stones in the mud. "Come along you chaps. We've a job to do" emits a good-looking youngster, the newness not worn from the "pips" on his battledress. They file, a long line, and on the dawn—to die. . . .

x x x

Or, in the wardroom of a destroyer ploughing through the wastes of the North Sea on ceaseless patrol duty. Officers are at "uffin". The alarm sounds. "Out of my soup bowl". The skipper rises to his feet —nods to his officers. Then they troop out of the small room. A few minutes later they pick up their conversation where it had been broken off. A few miles astern a large oily patch on the sea surface, tells its own story. . . .

x x x

Or, on the bloodstained sands of Dunkirk. Mid-summer heat. Thousands pouring to the beaches from the bloody hell of Flanders. Attending them are the heroic men of the British Army. Overhead roar million bombers and raiders spewing death among those heroes as they embark on craft that will take them to "Blighty". But the nurses do not go. Quietly as though they were rolling bandages in a hospital they move among the scores of wounded. A Red plane roars overhead. A stream of machine-gun bullets whistle through the air. A nurse staggers, falls. But the remainder, grim-lipped carry on their heroic work. . . .

x x x

Then think of the indomitable spirit of those deathless heroes, 335,000 of them who emerged from Flanders, with a smile on their faces, asking only for the chance to "wash up and have a bite to eat".

Then if you think that the Maginot Line, impregnable as such a nation, there is something wrong. For like the Dutch when he his first giraffe in a zoo, "It's a dom fine, there ain't no such thing."

Sea Laws Traced to English King

The recent activity of the librarian of Washington (the Congressional), of the Columbia and Harvard Law Schools to collect data on admiralty laws give timeliness to an article on the origin of these laws in the Law Notes of London Authority Monthly.

The greatest difference between the laws of the land and those of the sea is that the latter are based on national possession, while those of the sea from time immemorial have been regarded as a no-man's land, but few persons realize that an international attempt to turn the more or less accepted rules into a code of laws grew out of the Crusades, as did many words used in naval nomenclature today, and that the first attempt to codify the laws of the sea is to be found in the British Admiralty's Black Book—a which is the fountainhead of all admiralty laws of today.

The article in the London magazine traces the laws of the sea back to the days of Richard Coeur de Lion, when, at the instigation of his mother, Queen Eleanor, he summoned representatives of the Christian seafaring nations to meet him at Oleron, France, to frame a modern department of Charente-Inferure, France, in 1186, the year before he was imprisoned in Germany.

At the Oleron conference, on account of the impossibility of agreement among the delegates, King Richard Admirals to word taken from the Arabic "Amir" (meaning chief) and prevailed and compiled the Black Book. The writer thus describes its appearance: "Richard's code is the veloipment similar to that of the Constitution of Clarendon and the Magna Carta which Richard's successor, King John was forced to sign: "It is a thick parchment book in Latin, but its contents reflect much of the conditions of every day life compiled the sea for a living. It shows too that its officials were chosen on appropriative spirit existed as between owner, master, men and merchants, and that the latter had not the fact that in most instances the master of the vessel was also the owner or part owner, and the merchants traveled with their goods, so that they usually all in the same boat or anything happened.

Remembered Sailors

"Then again, sailors quite often worked on a wage system, calculated on the basis of number of share and part wages. Others worked on a mileage system, calculated on the distance covered by each ship. Provisions, health and tain well-known headlands, landmarks or ports.

"Such systems of remuneration were likely to induce a cooperative spirit among the crew and a high standard of efficiency, as it was to the advantage of all to get in as many voyages as possible in the shortest possible time. There was incentive to avoid taking risks, and those who did risk the safety of the vessel, her cargo and crew, the vessel."—N. Y. Times.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

While Italian intentions regarding participation in the war remain wrapped in the fog deliberately created by Fascist politicians and propagandists, British spokesmen affirm the Allies are ready for any Italian move.

The time and direction of the Italian blow are both uncertain but should Italy move in the Mediterranean the great weight of British history is in prospect. It would be a fight to the finish between the two most powerful Italian navy and the giant Allied fleet based at Egypt.

One of the main Italian objectives would be control of the Suez Canal and the settling Gibraltar and to yield that would mean the isolation of the Allied fleet. Unlike the German navy, which was all subject to severe penalties. Pilots were urged to consult of death if they offered themselves as pilots and then, due to negligence or ignorance, ran the vessel into danger and damaged her; they were bound to render relief to any part of the ship and the merchant whose goods were on board and been damaged. So laws of the sea were made:

"That the case of false, disloyal and traitorous pilots who lead ships purposely ashore, the law provides that such pilots ought to suffer martyrdom most cruel; that he ought to be made a gibbet very high upon the rocks, and upon the gibbet the accursed pilots ought to finish shamefully their days and the said gibbets ought to be left on the said spot in perpetual memorial to preserve as a landmark to others—Seek that shipwreck there. This is the judgment."

Penalties for Crew Members

"There are some laws relating to members of the crew who neglect the vessel and the lives of their messmates:

"That every managing owner or master of a vessel must have ship's watches on board both at sea and in port.

"Any one on watch who sleepeth while he is on watch or idle shall should have no wine for a whole day.

"If the ship be in a friendly harbour or roadstead, and the man on the watch sleepeth he shall have no wine or accompaniment to eat with his bread," and so on, the laws describe accompaniment as being cheese, meat, sardines, onions or fish.

"If by chance the ship shall be in sea-fighting moments, and he who sleepeth on watch, if he is a raetiner of the forecastle shall be loss his wine, his accompaniments with his bread for a whole day, and further he and he ought to be held with his head downward in a bucket of water.

"If any of the above-mentioned acts shall be committed on watch more than three occasions, they ought to lose all their wages when they come to the end of that voyage, and if they have already received their wages, they ought to repay them and be plunged into the sea.

"But it shall be at the discretion of the managing owner of the ship and the crew of majority of the ship's company to deal with which punishments to inflict, because the punishments are important and exposed to risk themselves, their messmates and the other on board of the vessel, her cargo and crew, the vessel."—N. "If the ship be in a friendly harbour or roadstead, and the man on the watch sleepeth he shall have no wine or accompaniment to eat with his bread," and so on, the laws describe accompaniment as being cheese, meat, sardines, onions or fish.

"If by chance the ship shall be in sea-fighting moments, and he who sleepeth on watch, if he is a raetiner of the forecastle shall be loss his wine, his accompaniments with his bread for a whole day, and further he and he ought to be held with his head downward in a bucket of water.

"If any of the above-mentioned acts shall be committed on watch more than three occasions, they ought to lose all their wages when they come to the end of that voyage, and if they have already received their wages, they ought to repay them and be plunged into the sea.

"But it shall be at the discretion of the managing owner of the ship and the crew of majority of the ship's company to deal with which punishments to inflict, because the punishments are important and exposed to risk themselves, their messmates and the other on board of the vessel, her cargo and crew, the vessel."—N. Polish Veteran of German Onslaught Discusses R.A.F. Defence Measures

London (CP)—An eyewitness of successful Nazi air-raids on vital Polish production centres is convinced that the only adequate protection for arms factories and other vital national interests against an attempted "blitzkrieg" is that afforded by a strong intervening organization on the ground and in the air, at a reasonable distance from the areas concerned.

S. Rogalski, one of the chief engineers of the National Aircraft Works in Warsaw, told the Royal Aeronautical Society in London that Britain possesses the nearest approach to the ideal form of protection in the Royal Air Force single-seater fighters. German bombers put the National Aircraft Works out of action in four days, he said.

Rogalski said local protection by anti-aircraft and machine guns, however strong and diversified, can only increase the risks of an enemy determined to bomb a factory. The balloon barrage is probably still less effective.

Frequent raids, even without material damage, greatly hamper output, he declared. At his factory, actual work practically stopped on the second day of the raid because of repeated raid warnings.

"The Germans used about 2,000 bombs in their Polish campaign," he said, and lost about 450—200 through anti-aircraft fire and 250 shot down by the Polish Air Force. The majority of Polish planes were destroyed on the ground. Only a limited number could be attributed to action by the air and to anti-aircraft "for a great part of which our anti-aircraft artillery was responsible."

Churchill Commended By New York Times For Magnificent Speech

New York, June 5.—(CP)—"It was magnificent."

The New York Times thus warmly commended today Prime Minister Churchill's address in the House of Commons yesterday in which he acknowledged Great Britain had suffered a military disaster in the battle of Flanders but declared in ringing terms that Britain never would surrender.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your digestive tract daily. If it is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harsh drugs only make matters worse. Don't rely on them. Get a mild, safe, purely vegetable laxative.

A more bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You want something that will act on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Little Liver Pills to get to the cause and make you feel like new. Purely vegetable. Mild but sure. Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. Don't be satisfied to relief but have no cathartic or necessity in taking. Ask for Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Little Liver Pills. Insist on getting them. Refuse substitutes. 85c.

No girl who has offensive breath can qualify for the beauty race. Even if she sits on the sidelines, nobody can sit beside her, no matter how attractive she is to the eye, she is handicapped. She may not be aware of this affliction and it is the duty of some member of her family to enlighten her.

Chronic throat and nose infections may be the cause. An examination by a medical specialist will find out about that. Unhealthy gums and teeth that are in need of the dentist's care are other sources of fetid breath. Intestinal disturbances are under suspicion, too. Girls who like to hold down stools at cocktail bars had better watch out.

In telling how many girls have the currents of their lives changed through lack of mouth hygiene, since an offensive breath puts one outside the social circle and is a dreadful drawback to the young lady who is out for a business career. Sulkers don't hang around very long. Romance goes some place else to seek a lady love who takes proper care of her health and her teeth.

After brushing the teeth, rinse the mouth with a salt and soda solution, one half teaspoonful of each to a glass of water.

Whiskers are in fashion's spotlight. They have to be long and slender, and many women have discovered R.C.A.F. when the same number of young ladies were the guests of the Club. The young people spent an enjoyable evening dancing. A delicious supper was served by the hostesses.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, June 6

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE AUGURIES for this day are read as having a father deep, kindly and generous, especially on affairs of moderate importance. Success will be achieved assisted by strange or unusual contacts, but with the menace of intrigue, or duplicity unless more than ordinary precaution and clever foresight exercised. Change or travel seem imminent, with elders favoring such. Living doubtful stands against innovation. In private affairs, romance figures possible with rather surprising or unpredictable twists.

Those whose birthday it is should be on ine eve of a fairly successful successful year, with their unique, original or clever accomplishments moving in fresh grooves or expressions. There is danger of self-undoing or being injured by the craftiness or eccentricities of others, unless much guarded against. Started against fraud, quackery, intrigue or undercover methods. Change, travel, romance are shown, with elders expressing much interest.

A child born on this day may be skilful and talented in original or novel way, and should attain fair success, although possibly subject to treacherous or peculiar menaces from hidden sources.

Most young men are willing to hold fast to their friend—if she is in the car with them.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Takes Her Out, Although He's Engaged

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A certain young man, who has been taking me out, is engaged to another girl, and goes to see her weekends as she lives in a nearby city. I have tried to get him to break off with me as long as he continues to see this other girl, but he insists on calling me on the phone and makes a date once a week at least, sometimes twice.

I don't intend to ask him to break his engagement, although I am terribly fond of him. He tells me he and his fiancee don't get along very well, and that she's the one who calls him and makes the dates. He has asked me to be patient. And I have been that for a year now. Don't you think that's long enough to decide on which girl he wants? He sees her as often as he did when we first met.

Wondering

I don't think this man is fair to either of you. You say he is engaged, spends as much time with the other girl as he does with you first met. Then he begs you to be patient, and urges this girl arrange the dates. The situation suggests a man who has said, "The woman tempted me."

This young man should come right out in the open and make a decision. His idea of keeping two girls dangling is ignoble. I'd advise you not to take him too seriously.

How To Spend Spare Time

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl friend and I are 17 years of age and do not have any boy friends. We figure we have plenty of time for that. However, we never know what to do in the evening, except go to an occasional movie, or take a walk. Neither of us has a lot of money.

We would very much appreciate some suggestions from you as to how we can spend our evenings.

R. B. D.

I don't wonder you find the evenings long with nothing to do beyond seeing an occasional movie. It's tragic to waste golden youth that way.

What would you think of starting a hobby? That can begin with hair a dozen girls. Inquire at the Y or similar organizations about their activities.

Why not start a home-maker's club, and learn about canning fruits and vegetables?

The other day someone told me of a jolly club. A group of young people went hiking, or on canoe outing every Sunday afternoon. The boys bought the franks or bacon and the trimmings, and the girls prepared the supper over a campfire.

He Asked for Photograph

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 years of age. I'm in college and like a certain boy very much. I think he loves me, but as much as I like this boy I don't believe I could ever love him. He is 25 years old and finished school in the eighth grade.

He asked me for my picture. I'm wondering whether I ought to give him a photograph and if I don't want to encourage him to think that some day I might love him.

In Doubt

Better not give the picture if you feel you can never have a deeper feeling than just "liking" for this young man. If you give a photograph it's distinctly encouraging and he might get the wrong impression.

I wouldn't encourage him to go on with the studies he stopped in the eighth grade school. Vocational Training and Adult Education are offered for just such boys as want to get a better education to help secure better jobs. That would be an act of genuine friendship. Women have often given inspiration, even when they have witheld love.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Have a Heart"—A Short Cut to Courtesy

I like the expression "Have a heart!" It is a short cut to courtesy, pleading for consideration.

Mrs. Hedley Pringle, Miss Dorothy Boyle, Miss Harriet Cronk, Miss Margaret Blaklee and Miss Joan Blaklee.

The home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. T. Aman and Mrs. A. Gilroy, while Mrs. J. E. Mastine was treasurer for the afternoon.

This plea for courtesy is significant in that the word "courtesy" is derived from the French word coeur, meaning "heart."

So if you are a courteous person you "have the heart" to consider the feelings of other people, to confess their heartaches. You enjoy being amiable and tactful. You want to make people around you comfortably with other people. You pay your respects to other people. Try not to do or say anything that will be painful or disagreeable.

This is another way of saying that it is your intention to live by the Golden Rule—"do unto others as you would that they should do to you."

This is the spirit—the heart—that is in and around the code of courtesy, of politeness.

Wedding Cake

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. What is put into the wedding cake—a ring, thimble or just what?

2. At a house wedding, how long after the ceremony does the bride cut the cake?

3. Does the bride cut the first piece of the cake?

L. A.

1. The bridal cake (which is a white cake, covered and decorated with white icing) usually contains two sets of "fortunes." The cake is marked in some inconspicuous way (sometimes by a silvered candy or nut) so that the section that contains the "fortunes" for the attendants may be distinguished from the section that contains the favors for the groom's attendants. Each cake should be scored with a silver foil. In one side is a tiny gold ring, for "the girl who will be married"; a shiny penny, for "riches"; a thimble, for "old maid", a wishbone, for "the luckiest." In the other side of the cake, for the bachelor; a shiny penny, for "rich girl"; a ring, for "a slice of cake, a tiny horseshoe, for "the luckiest"; and a ring, for "the next to be married."

2. The bride cuts the cake during the last part of the wedding feast.

3. Yes the bride cuts the first piece of the cake and shares it with the bridegroom. Sometimes the bride has a small silver knife of the cake, and, if the wedding is a formal affair, a maid will cut and a piece for each guest. But usually the bride herself cuts the first piece of the cake, or each guest cuts a piece for herself or himself.

Who Helps?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to have an informal wedding at my home.

1. Whom should I ask to serve at the reception.

2. How does the bride do with her engagement ring during the marriage ceremony?

Florence

1. If two or three of your cousins are to be at your wedding, you might invite them to help in serving. If so, regret that they will take place in the present tense.....regrets that he is unable to accept."

2. Normally, during the marriage ceremony, the bride wears her engagement ring on her right hand. If she prefers, she may have her engagement ring at home.

Courtesy Tip

When you write a formal regret to a formal invitation, do not write "regrets that he will be unable to accept." Use the present tense.....

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Rheumatic Fever

When I wrote in this column, a few weeks ago, about rheumatic fever in children, I don't think I gave proper emphasis to one point. It is not such a dreadful disease if the parents are well enough acquainted with the symptoms to recognize them and place the child under a doctor's care immediately. This is impressed on me by letters that I receive from parents, the following is typical:

Too often a child has no medical care at the outset of an attack of rheumatic fever. To the parents it just seems, that Johnny has been "growing pains," that's how he is sore, perhaps swollen. She puts him to bed, the pain passes off, down, the pale-leaves him, he gets up and goes back to school, apparently normal. The parents attach no significance to the sickness. Just one of those things to be expected among children, they seem to feel.

But, unfortunately, the complications of rheumatic fever are many, and they aren't over when the fever has receded. In a very large number of cases the heart becomes involved, and is affected more or less for life.

The figurative boy to whom we were referring just above may or may not go along for sometime apparently quite normal and well, but by a year before his playmates notice that he can't keep up with them in strenuous games any longer. When he runs around playing the games that children play he quickly gets out of breath. His heart begins to pound, and he has to take easy exercise.

Of course, these unfortunate children keep trying to measure up with the rest. They haven't any comprehension of what has happened to them. They puff and struggle, doing more damage to a weakened heart in everything they do. Finally, when the heart suddenly gets so weak that even walking makes the victim breathless, the end is called.

When the doctor comes, he recognizes that a wrong and puts the child to bed. By that time, however, chances are the child has become a chronic invalid. He may seem much better after a few days in bed, up, and resume normal activities. Then another attack comes, and the child finds himself getting his breath even when he is in bed, his legs and buttocks swell; fluid accumulates in the abdomen because the heart is too weak to keep up proper circulation. On examination the doctor will find the heart enlarged and sometimes filling most of the chest cavity. The pulse drops alarmingly because of the failing heart.

When a patient reaches this stage there isn't much hope for him, the heart just won't provide the drive for circulation and the fluid piles up in his body. But there isn't much suffering in this disease except in the final stages when fluid in the chest makes breathing difficult. Occasionally a child will suffer great agony in the form of an anginal attack.

This disease comes from a focus of infection in a child's system.

This infection shows itself long before the rheumatism develops and parents can avoid the serious complications of rheumatic fever by placing the child in a doctor's care immediately.

Soap and Water Beauty's Standbys

By HELEN FOLLETT

Daintiness is ace high in the beauty game. It is a quality of charm that no girl can afford to overlook. It is particularly necessary to cultivate it now that we are wearing lacy duds again, pretty collars and cuffs, cute bows, all sorts of do-dads that must be kept in a state of perfection.

Daintiness usually makes a strong appeal to the growly sex. Men folks don't like over fluffies and ruffles, maybe that's why they are crazy about them. Yet you'll hear a member of the tribe say that he admires a woman in slacks if she looks neat and well groomed. The girl with skewgee stockings and a run in her hose whose purse is a holy mess inside. The careless woman who hurries through her toilette has hair in disarray, finger nails patchy with dirty polish, clothes that need a stitch or two, complexion powder patchy.

Soiled handkerchiefs and unclerstain-laundered slips are unpardonable. Soiled neckwear is worse. Scraggy eyebrows spoil the beauty of a face. All little details and no trouble to attend to them; they are of tremendous importance in the sum total that is YOU or I or the woman next door.

Hands don't need lotions so much this season of the year, but they do need creaming, especially if you are a hard-working housewife who must kill the chores—dishwashing, dusting, washing the baby's clothes.

Unless hands are oiled at least twice a day, the skin dries out and there is a chance that they will soon be wrinkled and old-looking. Cracks and cuts that do happen.

Cold cream can be the chosen medium, but there are other substances that are more quickly absorbed. Cocoabutter is one, lanoline another. Keep on rubbing until they disappear. Have the massage at bedtime.

3,500,000 MEN NOW UNDER ARMS IN BRITISH EMPIRE

When Remaining Classes Called Britain Will Have Alone 3,000,000 Men

EMPIRE ASSISTS

By PAT USSHER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 5 (C.P. Cable) — Great Britain and the Dominions are mobilizing their vast resources of manpower in the supreme struggle to overthrow the Nazi military machine and thwart the German drive for world hegemony, and they have under arms 3,500,000 men.

When remaining classes are called Britain's army will total 3,000,000 men.

The strength of the Canadian Active Service Force, for reinforcements now totals 100,000 including the men in Canada as well as those overseas.

All unmarried males and widowers without children are liable for military service in Australia though service overseas is voluntary. Hitherto only the 30-year-old class totalling 30,000 has been called up.

Several thousand members of the Second Australian Imperial Force have been in Europe for months since February. The force is being expanded from its present total of 48,000 which with adequate reinforcements is expected to number at least 90,000 next year, or a year hence. Another division for overseas service is being raised.

New Zealand is making immediate provision for a compulsory service system.

The first contingent of the Second New Zealand Expeditionary Force landed in Egypt in February. The first echelon of 6,600 men has filled the day recruiting began.

About 80,000 men are required for the defence forces in South Africa. The government aims to bring the total up to 137,000. Under ultimate plans 12,000 men will be in voluntary oath the men undertake to serve anywhere in the world.

Thousands have offered to fight wherever they are sent. The government is organizing a volunteer mounted rifle service within, and outside the Union.

The Indian government has just announced its objective is the enrolment of 120,000 men in the Indian army. Under the present scheme of the country's capacity for production of war material.

Southern Rhodesia introduced compulsory part-time training for men between the ages of 18 to 25 though a number of men from recent registrations is expected. The first contingent of Rhodesian troops for the war area in the Middle East, arrived at Suez in April.

The Newfoundland government has called for 200 volunteers for the Royal Artillery. The call met with an enthusiastic response. The contingent is to be raised in the United Kingdom. The first contingent arrived here in April.

SPEECH STIRS SPECULATION

It is Thought by Commentator Words 'Alone if Necessary' Meant for Tonic

London, June 5 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill's statement pledging the nation to fight on "alone if necessary" against a foe many has "naturally aroused a lot of anxious speculation" about France, the News Chronicle's commentator, Vernon Bartlett, declared today.

Bartlett said, however, that the Prime Minister's reference to the possibility of fighting alone "implied no reflection on French courage," and pointed to "rebuffs by French elsewhere in his speech" to the House of Commons yesterday.

The statement of British determination might prove "an additional tonic" to the French if they needed one, he said.

The reason for this reference, Bartlett continued, "is presumably recognition that France has lost more heavily in men and perhaps in material than we have and may none the less have to bear almost the entire brunt of a new German offensive within the next few days."

Possibility of Attack In Brenner

"It has become increasingly probable that this would also be attacked from the rear by Premier Mussolini's unhappy Italians.

"Also, the resurrection in Spain of the one cry which might win very widespread support of all political colors—namely, the demand for Gibraltar, is disquieting."

Bartlett said the presence of 60,000 Germans in Spain, many in key positions, might make Spanish neutrality difficult to maintain, adding: "French Tie Foes Severe Odds."

"In such circumstances the French will have to face severe odds, and it is in no way a reflection upon their courage, as splendidly shown by the way in which they covered the British withdrawal to Dunkerque, to state that the odds would be in any case fight on.

"Indeed, it is held in important circles that knowledge of the British determination will be an additional tonic, if they need one, to the French."

Royal Navy Has More Destroyers Than at Beginning of War

New Destroyers Launched Faster Than Destroyers Have Been Lost

HALF ENEMY'S SUNK

(By Sean Robertson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 5.—(CP-Cable)—Despite the loss of destroyers in the one monumental evacuation of Allied troops from Dunkirk, Britain's total fighting and vital aircraft is greater than it was at the outbreak of the war. New destroyers have been launched faster than they have been lost.

When the smouldering embers were fanned into the flames of war last September Britain had a fleet of 184 destroyers. Six of them were Canadian and five Australian. To them has been completed for Brazil were impressed into His Majesty's fleet.

Those destroyers have been lost by British, Admiralty records show that 11 German destroyers have been definitely sunk and that two more have been so badly damaged as probably never to leave the dock-yard basin. However, these losses do not compare, as the Nazis had only 22 heavy destroyers at the start of the war. A number of others they claim for this class are really torpedo boats.

Two Airdromes to be Established In P. E. Co., at Picton and Mt. View

Options Taken on 900 Acres at Each Point — to Build Hangars, Barracks and Repair Shops

TO COST $525,000

Prince Edward County is to have two landing fields each with concrete runways, repair depot and hangar, according to an announcement made today by Sir Sidney Horne. Half a million dollars is estimated expenditure of the projects under the Empire Air Training plan, with $350,000 to be spent on the site in Picton and from $300,000 to $375,000 on the Mountain View site. Options were taken on 900 acres each point.

Both airdrome-sites will be graded to a length of 3,000 feet and a width equivalent of 16 miles of ordinary road in the runways at each field. Completion of the work is called for by October 15th. The announcement was made by Sir Sidney Horne, defeated Liberal candidate, on advice from Ottawa.

U. S. Paper Calls Hitler 'Ex-Guttersnipe'

Boston, June 5.—(AP)—The Boston Traveler said today that it had been "shocked" by the German Consulate in Boston because of an editorial published on May 26 which was critical of Adolf Hitler and the methods of warfare.

The following letter was addressed to the city editor of the Traveler:

"This Consulate has read the editorial 'Let Us Be Realistic', published in your issue of May 26, in which the head of a nation, with whom the United States of America entertains diplomatic relations, is insulted in quite unbelievable expressions that this Consulate in the future must refuse to give your paper any information in any matter it may be".

The editorial, reprinted by the paper today, denounced Hitler personally and said: "He is answerable for bringing the rules of civilized warfare".

The last such editorial followers.

This creature Hitler will never be beaten by the rules of civilized warfare". Somebody has got to get right down in the gutter with him and fight the way he fights, only more cruelly. Don't get an idea we do not want to defend ourselves by words. Probably it would be a good thing if we did. The group from the Collegiate was introduced by Lorne Briggs, who complimented the Maybee on the excellent results that he had obtained during his tenure of office. The appreciation of the club was expressed by Ormonde Mullin.

A group sang two numbers with an encore, this being followed by two delightful solos by Miss Bernice Saunders, a recent visitor at the club. Morley Anderson gave two difficult violin selections in a most pleasing manner and Jack Shadbolt and Bruce Woods, two boy aspirants, gave a duet and the whole program closed with the chorus, "There'll Always Be An England," after which refreshments were served.

Ed Willing made a presentation to Bruce Latimer, the genial secretary of a wealth of onions and was hopeful that he would be 'moved to tears' with the gift. The dessert used at the meal was donated by Frank Domenico and all passed favorable comment. P. C. MacLaurin explained the purpose of the "Hospitality Centre" being established at the Air Station at Trenton and asked for donations of furniture, kitchen utensils or other articles. He also advised that members of the club enter-tain personnel of the Air Force especially those who have recently come from England. This work was turned over to the War Services Committee of which P. C. MacLaurin is chairman.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS' BAND LAUDED BY CAPTAIN A. OAKES

Says Belleville Should be Proud of Such a Fine Musical Organization

FINEST HE'D HEARD

"The finest public school band I have heard in the many points of Canada in which I have conducted inspections," was the fine tribute paid to the Belleville Public Schools Band by Captain A. Oakes, M.B.E., inspecting officer, who reviewed some of the finest school cadet corps here this week.

"Belleville should be proud of such an enthusiastic organization whose fine performances bespeak excellent training and marked ability with their various instruments" he added.

The Public Schools band, under the leadership of Arthur Cooper, furnished the musical background for the inspections of all four public schools of the city, and also the open-air concert given at 4 times under weather conditions which were not conducive to good playing, but which drew praise and admiration of not only the student body but the school staffs, but of the large crowds of citizens who witnessed the various inspections.

B. C. I. BOY CADET CORPS INSPECTED

Companies "B" and "C" Awarded Cups for General Efficiency

Displaying a smart military appearance in their march past the inspecting officer, the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School drew admiring comments from the crowd of spectators, pupils and staff as they undergoing their annual inspection this morning before inspecting Officer Captain H. G. Pearson of Military District No. 3 headquarters, Kingston.

Falling in at the armouries, the cadets, some four hundred strong, paraded to the Collegiate campus, headed by the band and received the compliments of Capt. Pearson for their general appearance on parade and the manner in which they executed their drill movements.

Maintaining fine order, the various companies passed before Capt. Pearson as he took the salute in the review order, close column, and column of route parades. Very good training was reflected in the drill exercises as the cadets handled their rifles with the precision of veterans.

One of the features of the inspection was the Collegiate band with the "General Salute" said short work in affording a real military atmosphere to the inspection ceremonies.

Companies "B" and "C" were awarded the cups for general proficiency in appearance and drill exercises.

"No Complaints", Says Officer.

Prior to the presentation of the cups by Capt. Pearson, he briefly addressed the officers of the four cadet companies and complimented them on their efficiency. "There are no complaints to make," said Capt. Pearson, as he offered a few suggestions to the cadet officers concerning drill exercises.

Chairman Reg. Moncrieff also briefly addressed the cadets complimenting them on their fine appearance with loud cheers resounding on the campus as he proclaimed a half-holiday.

The ceremonies concluded with Cadet Major H. Theobald calling for three cheers for their Commanding Officer, Capt. Pearson, for their cadet instructor, Mr. L. Shiels and for the King. Following the closing ceremonies the cadets marched back to the armouries for dismissing.

MUSICAL PROGRAM GIVEN MEMBERS OF KIWANIS CLUB

Pupils of Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School Delight With Many Numbers

G. MAYBEE CONDUCTS

A delightful musical program arranged by Gordon Maybee, director of music for the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School and given by pupils of the Collegiate was the highlight of the luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club on Monday at the Queens Hotel.

Bill Anderson, the president, was in the chair with Charlie Richardson as sergeant-at-arms and Harold Carruthers as song leader. Les Briggs accompanied on the piano and the boys being by no means a number of patriotic songs were sung but it was remarkable the number of verses which they knew of the words. Probably it would be a good thing if we did. The group from the Collegiate was introduced by Lorne Briggs, who complimented Mr. Maybee on the excellent results that he had obtained during his tenure of office. The appreciation of the club was expressed by Ormonde Mullin.

A group sang two numbers with an encore, this being followed by two delightful solos by Miss Bernice Saunders, a recent visitor at the club. LATE GENERAL HUGHES' FUNERAL IN CITY ATTENDING O.B.C.

Brigadier General Hughes' passing recently in Ottawa recalled the fact that the general spent his early days in Belleville, for in the 1880's he was a student there at the Ontario Business College, living on Everett Street. He was interested in military affairs during his sojourn in Belleville, and organized all boys of well-to-do Belleville into a cadet corps. He was a most efficient drill instructor and held the boys together for a term.

Upon graduation from the O.B.C. he was appointed to the office of the warden at Kingston penitentiary. He was familiarly known as "Will" Hughes to all the young cadets and affectionately remembered by many to this day.

KI-Y SOFTBALL

Playing out a postponed game in the local Ki-Y softball Series last evening at the Queen Victoria School grounds, the "Big Shots" lived true to their name when they downed the St. Mike's lads 19-6. The winners established a first inning four run lead which they never relinquished and adding one run in each of the third and fourth innings scored four in the fifth, to salt the game away. The losers scored twice in the initial canto, three times in the fifth and one in the sixth. Jerry Bonisteel officiated. The teams:

St. Mike's: Mascaro, Cronin, Shepherd, Whalen, Semple, Wilson, Meagher, J. Cronin, Mohler.

Big Shots: Smith, Callaghan, Mills, McIntyre, Evans, Eaves, Aylesworth, Ellis and Smith.

Gananoque, Ont., June 5—(CP)—A civic spokesman said today town council has made provisions for the enforcement of a by-law passed recently to collect $100 duties from boats visiting Kingston this summer.

James Ryder ordered United States passenger boat companies to pay the $100 annual charge. Should the $100, according to their boats' capacities, Ryder said. A shipping company already has objected to paying the licence claiming that town council has no right to pass licensing bylaws under the Ontario Municipal Act.

Question of Evacuating Children From U. K. is Being Given Study

Canada and Australia Are Mentioned in Reference in Government's STATEMENT EXPECTED

London, June 5 — (CP Cable) — Geoffrey Shakespeare, Under-Secretary for Dominion Affairs, stated in the House of Commons today that the question of evacuating children from the United Kingdom to Canada and Australia is receiving earnest consideration and that he hoped to make a statement on the subject at an early date.

Approximately $00,000 school children from congested areas are now dispersed over a wide area in England, Scotland and Wales. Another 1,100,000 are living in reception areas and evacuation will be ordered in the event of invasion.

Nearly 50,000 school children moved from east coast towns June 2 to areas regarded as safer from enemy air raids.

Indians Split Doubleheader With Senators to Move Within Half-Game of Leading Red Sox

Lefty Al Smith, Castoff of Giants, Gets Credit With Fifth Win and No Losses

REDS DEFEATED

Brooklyn Cuts Game Off Cincinnati's Lead by Defeating Cards Under the Lights

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

As long as everyone (let all discenters arise) is certain New York Yankees are going to keep following the trail that will lead to their fifth consecutive American League pennant, it may seem time wasted to consider Cleveland's improved Indians.

But a team with all the sterling qualities that the Tribe boasts deserve, to get a word in edgwise.

The Indians were the only one of the American League leaders able to improve their position yesterday, splitting a doubleheader with Washington Senators 9-7 and 3-2. This mediocre feat brought them to within half-game of the pace-making Boston Red Sox.

Lefty Al Smith, a castoff of New York Giants whom the Indians rescued from the minors this spring, got credit for the victory in the nightcap to bring his share of five victories and no defeats. Al Milnar, another lefthander, has won seven and lost but one. Bob Feller, the non-pareil, has won seven and lost two.

Mel Harder, who could make the club go higher, had his arm pinned back again in the first game as the Senators rallied for five runs in the fourth and the Tribe was not able to overcome this handicap. In the second game Smith held Washington scoreless until two were on in the ninth and Feller came in to make sure of the final out.

Boston Red Sox Stopped

Boston Red Sox were stopped 5-3 as St. Louis Browns ended a seven-game losing streak.

The Yankees' parade was detoured by Cleveland White Sox and the lefthanded slants of Ed Smith and a six-hit shutout hurled by Joe Kuhel's 10th and 11th homers of the season. The score was 7-3.

The third-place Detroit Tigers also were stopped 5-4 at Philadelphia after getting four runs in the first frame. The A's bagged on Tommy Bridges and three successors for clusters of runs, among them homers by Bob Johnson and Wally Moses.

Cincinnati Reds skidded to a 5-4 defeat at the hands of New York Giants and lost a game of their lead over Brooklyn Dodgers. It was the fifth consecutive triumph for Carl Hubbell, the slugfest home the deciding run.

The Dodgers trounced St. Louis Cardinals 10-1 in a night game, scoring five runs in the first, when Leo Durocher hit a home run with one on. Joe Medwick hit "five for five" Pochiddu's three doubles.

Pittsburgh Pirates roused out of their lethargy under the lights, also crushing Boston Bees 14-2 behind the five-hit hurling of Joe Bowman.

Chicago Cubs smashed 15 hits in thumping the Phillies 15-6.

According to well-informed baseball circles, Riddle Miller, cracker-jack shortstop of Boston Bees, is going to the Chicago Cubs for $100,000. The deal will include Lennie Merullo, a Boston boy and former Villanova college star who is with the Tulsa, Okla., club of the Texas league now. Club officials denied there is a deal pending.

'Foundries' Win Over Dairymen 19-18

Garnering and early game lead the "Foundries" nine eked out a 19 to 18 win over the Montrose "dairymen" in a scheduled Neighborhood Softball League game played at the Coleman Plats last evening. The Montrose nine rallied strongly in the dying frames, scoring seven runs in ninth inning to finally leave the tying run stranded on the runways by a belated rally.

Arnott hit for the circuit for Montrose and registered the only four base blow as several other extra base hits were seen. The Foundries team was leading by an 11 to 2 score in the fourth, but Joe Litizzi's nine made many interesting as the game progressed.

The score by innings:

Foundries ..... 204 106 200—19 runs
Montrose ..... 021 030 327—18 runs

K-Nines Defeat Vikings 26-10 Moving Team into 3rd Place

Winners Garner 27 Safeties Five of Which Were for Extra Bases

IMPROVED GAME

With solid base blows the K-Nines moved up a notch in the Ladies Mercantile Softball League by soundly trouncing the Vikings 26 to 10 at the Armouries last evening. Some 800 fans saw Coach Barrett's K-Nines garner 27 safe hits, five of which were for extra bases. The win elevated the Barrett-led nine into sole possession of third place in the league standing.

On Thursday night at the Armouries the league-leading Big-Z nine meet Ronnie Steele's second place Mets.

The K-Nines pushed four runs across the plate in the initial frame and added seven more in the second inning. The winners scored runs in every inning except the fourth. The Vikings were kept from the score sheet until the third when they scored two, their big inning being the seventh when Coach Hooke's charges pushed five runs across the plate.

One Home Run

Wilma Clarke with a home run, double and two singles led the K-Nines, while Mary Orr's big bat bounded for a circuit blow and three other safeties. Helen Richardson scored six runs in seven official times to bat for the winners. Jean Thompson and Woodcock had three hits each for the Vikings, Woodcock and Fletcher getting the only extra base hits for the losers. Errors paved the way for many of the K-Nine counters, however.

The winners gave Mary Lickfold, their pitcher, little support, but the feature catch of the game was made by Fletcher of the Vikings when a wire running catch of Mary Connell's liner in the fourth. R. Hammett also made a fine catch of Wilma Clarke's drive in the initial frame, while both infields played an improved brand of softball as Belleville's newly organized girls' softball loop. Corbins and Zellers are now leading the league with one win and no losses.

Montreal Royals Playing Big League Ball and Win Last Three in Row

TORONTO LOSES

George Washburn Allows Leafs Only Seven Hits in Winning 7-1

By the Associated Press

Montreal Royals, studded with former major league players sent down by the Brooklyn Dodgers, have really been playing big league ball the last few days. In fact, they couldn't have done better if Larry MacPhail himself had been watching them.

Royals have been hogged down the second division since May 8, and although they've still below .500 mark, at the end they've been travelling lately, it won't be long until they're knocking at the door of the first division.

Last night the "Little Dodgers" won their third straight game from Baltimore Orioles, and in doing so tighten their grip on fifth place in the International League. Bert Haas led Royals' 13-hit attack on Orin Collier, with a home run, two singles and a double. Tom Ross and Jimmy Ripple also hit for the circuit.

Newark Bears got an even break with Toronto Leafs, winning the last of the four-game series behind the six-hit hurling of George Washburn.

Buddy Blair rapped out three singles to lead the Bears' 12-hit barrage on Pat McLaughlin, Toronto starter, and Johnny Puccinelli two-hit relief in the seventh. A four run outburst in the first after Toronto had scored a lucky tally gave Washburn plenty to work on and for the remainder of the game he was never in trouble.

With a nine running catch of Mary Connell's liner in the fourth, R. Hammett also made a fine catch of Wilma Clarke's drive in the initial frame, while both infields played an improved brand of softball as Belleville's newly organized girls' softball loop. Corbins and Zellers are now leading the league with one win and no losses.

Matter of Time

"Of course, of course", laughed Mr. Picobac, "it's only a matter of time. The Empire to which we belong may lose a battle once in a while, but it never loses a war."

He struck a match on the post of Herb Smith's verandah, and applied the flame to a pipe freshly filled with fragrant Picobac tobacco.

"There's no doubt about the final issue", continued he, "not a doubt in the world. But you don't suppose the war could have any effect on the Burley crop, do you?"

"Not a chance!" said Herb. "Besides, they store ample supplies for three years ahead and keep it maturing in the wood."

Billy Conn to Tackle Heavyweights After Meeting Lesnevich

Detroit, June 5.—(AP)—It's no secret that heavyweights pay the biggest purses in the game and the boxers. That's the principal reason Billy Conn, 23-year-old Pittsburgh Irishman who prefers dollars to a title, will make his third defense of the 175-pound championship tonight his last. Hereafter, Conn says, he'll campaign among the big boys for better or for worse.

Conn, who climbed to the championship only 11 months ago, meets a man he has already conquered—Gus Lesnevich, of Cliffside Park, N.J. They fought over the 15-round route.

The decision of coin is not Conn's only reason for quitting as the 25th light-heavyweight champion in history. In recent months the six-foot-one-inch battler has emerged only physically and appears destined to grow into a full-fledged heavyweight.

Conn came with a rush in the closing rounds to beat Lesnevich in New York last Nov. 17. At that time Lesnevich had been idle for nearly six months and his followers blamed his defeat on lack of endurance and sense of pace.

An inventor has given a clothesline prop a wide base that stands squarely on the ground without puncturing sod.

Canned tomatoes and tomato products accounted for nearly four fifths of Canada's canned vegetable exports last year.

MAN'S EARLY BUT HE'S TOO LATE

Here's a case of a man being Early, but being too late. The man is Jake Early, catcher for the Washington Senators, out at second base during a game with the Cleveland Indians in New York. Joe Gordon, Yanks' second sacker, tosses the ball to first for a double play.

CALLING 'EM
Between the Lines
By Ken J. Colling

With the signing of Chuck Klein by the Phillies, we find two old heroes of the Quaker City finishing their major league careers there. The other is Al Simmons, with the Athletics. With the Phils, Klein became the home run star of the old circuit. He was sold to the Cubs, then brought back to the Phils, sold to the Pirates, and then in the sere of his career, sold to Mack's team in Philadelphia for the third time. Simmons, however, has had considerable financial success, and could have got more money from the Dodgers. But he had a yearning for round pants for old Connie Mack, for the scenes of his starting.

How much would that pair have been worth six or seven years ago?

It is interesting to trace the downward trend of the great ball player in the recent years, thusly:

1922—Sold by Milwaukee to the Athletics, for $45,000.

1933—Sold by Mack to the White Sox, with Dykes and Haas, for $150,000.

1935—Sold by Chicago to the Tigers, for $75,000.

1937—Sold by Detroit to the Senators, for $15,000.

1938—Sold by Washington to the Bees, for $5,000.

1940—Signed by the Athletics for nothing.

Pounding out 27 base hits for 36 runs "Slub" Barrett's K-nines handed the Vikings a 26-10 shellacking in the fourth game of the Ladies' softball loop last night. The K-nines showed much improvement over their initial league appearance, as they did not seem as nervous as the first time out. However, the score was the highest yet registered in any official game, as the wire services scored in every inning, except the fourth. Generally speaking, the ladies' game is improving, as was demonstrated with the fine fielding performances accepted by the girls last night. Wilma Clarke's home run was the big noise with the timber for the K-nines, while Fletcher's long ball was the big blow of the game, a hard smash, that carried the ball across the centre field to the Post Office. Helen Richardson was the batting star for the night, Miss Woodcock and Jean Thompson run second and third with the Vikings. Mary Lickfold's slants to any degree of consistency. Tonight's league game will be played there Thursday.

Members of the Belleville juvenile hockey team featured the annual field day at the Ontario School for the Deaf yesterday afternoon, when they romped to victory in the track and field events, including the low grade baseball game, competition throughout the day.

Do you remember when Primo Carnera knocked out Meyerkl Christer, Akron, O., rubber worker, in the fifth round or three minutes and 10-round bout at Detroit 10 years ago today, it was not only Christer's first loss, but the first time he was knocked off off his feet. Carnera won the heavyweight title from Jack Sharkey three years later.

Bill Pigden, Belleville's one-man track and field team, captured the intermediate pole vault honors at the Eastern Ontario track and field meet held at Malden Station last Saturday. Bill had little difficulty in disposing of all his rivals and easily set pressed, however. Incidentally Bill hopes to attend the Ontario Athletics' coaching school at Lake Couchiching this summer, during which he entertains hopes of entering the air force, but his desire to take up aeronautics is a little premature, as he is only 17 years of age at present.

The executive of the Belleville Softball Association met last night, the result of which we have not been much comment tomorrow. However, and in the meantime, "Red" Townsent's juniors are playing Picton at the Pirate this evening. A great shake-up in the local O.A.S.A. picture is contemplated headed by a more co-operative spirit and less individualism is on the books. Inclement weather has mitigated the league's efforts to date, but at least two of the clubs in the league favor moving the venue of their games to the Pats' grounds proper. Let's not forget to remember what happened to baseball under the same roof.

Remember Dutch Reuther the veteran pitcher who hurled for the Cincinnati Reds back when they had a world's championship team? Wasn't that some? Well Riley was supposed to have been able to control the emery ball as well as Eddie Ciccotte? Regardless the veteran Dutch Reuther has been coaching the Cubs. His theory is he is to tutor Dizzy Dean in the art of side arm delivery. Ol' Diz is now depressed, as a matter of fact Patricia, his wife, says—"we'll be back" and she means it.

SPORT SPICE — King Carl Hubbell stalked it up to his fifth consecutive National League victory when he beat the Leaguer-leading Reds yesterday.....Apparently the Yankees just couldn't stand the strain of success, yesterday they lost to the White Sox, and today it's to a fellow named Smith turned the trick.....There's saying skiddoo, Broadway—all that is needed to beat the Yanks is to employ a pitcher named Smith and any good lefthander will do the trick.....Think if they got a combination of both same sunny day!.....Billy Conn is ready to defend his light heavyweight title tonight against the sturdy Gus Lesnevich.....Twice previously this fight has been cut, but I'll bet a pin to pin tonight.....Gerald Drillon, of Toronto Maple Leaf hockey fame, is going to be with the Danforth Aces this season, but he seems to be more successful at scoring goals, than scoring suits, we hear.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Ed Smith and Joe Kuhel, White Sox—seven-hit pitching of Smith aided by two home runs of Kuhel helped Sox bankers 7-3.

Carl Hubbell, Giants—scored fifth straight victory by downing Reds 5-4, batting in decisive run himself with single.

Wally Moses and Bob Johnson, Athletics—their home runs helped down Detroit 8-6.

Joe Bowman, Pirates —"allowed Bees only five hits as Pittsburgh rolled to 14-2 victory.

defensive lines. He does not attempt to minimize the threat to our shores. But he also establishes the failure for the time of Hitler's massed might to carry out its will."

The Liverpool Post said Mr. Churchill's visualizing the possibility of a long and continued struggle which might lead to the New World setting out to rescue the old, may be a distant view but we can imagine Mr. Churchill's reference to it as having a marked effect in America."

Churchill Knows British Spirit

The Daily Mail declared "Mr. Churchill correctly gauges the spirit and backbone of his countrymen. We want the truth, good or bad, and here it is. The heroic achievements of our fighting men equaling with our own grim situation, will inspire the British people to fight on."

The Glasgow Herald said: "Very wisely the Prime Minister did not mince his words describing the worst that could befall us and intensifying the world whatever that worst may be, Britain and her Empire will not fail to fight on until victory is secure."

Clarion Sounded

The Daily Telegraph, calling the speech "instinct with high courage" said: Mr. Churchill "sounded the clarion of the spirit of attack."

The Yorkshire Post said that Mr. Churchill "is telling the nation the hard truths, Mr. Churchill yet kindles his faith in the ultimate victory from the flame of his own unalterable resolve."

bonne, former French resident-general in Tunisia and ambassador to Republican Spain, as ambassador to Moscow in place of Paul Emile Naggiar, also was cited as a factor in improving Soviet-French relations.

A Russian source said, however, that Britain "must show by her deeds as well as words an honest desire for friendship with Russia."

Appointment Approved

While the choice of Bullitt, left-wing Laborite member of parliament, for the Moscow post was considered a step in this direction it was said that the Soviet Government feels that Britain acted somewhat reluctantly in taking this step.

Sir Stafford, who is expected to succeed Sir William Seeds in the post, already is en route to Moscow. He left by air from Britain on a special trade mission before diplomatic arrangements with Moscow were concluded. Moscow refused to accept him in such special status and Britain agreed to name him her regular ambassador.

Formal announcement of the appointment—Moscow's agreement having been given yesterday — is expected today.

Russian informants said today it was believed that improved trade and general Anglo-Russian relations could be expected to follow but that there is no chance, "at least for the present" for military co-operation with the Allies.

HITLER DECLARES

Text of Order of Day

The text of the order of the day follows:—

"Soldiers of the west front—Netherlandish and Belgian, Englishmen and Frenchmen and Englishmen have been taken prisoner as the remainder of one-time great armies. An untold amount of material has been captured.

"(The German claim that 40,000 prisoners have been taken has not been confirmed from Allied sources.)

"Thus the greatest battle in world history has been concluded.

"Soldiers! My confidence in you is boundless.

"You did not disillusion me.

"The most audacious plan of war history was realized through your bravery, your unparalleled devotion through your energy of withstanding the greatest strain, and through hardest exertion and hardships.

"Soldiers, you have in the hardest fight, often against really valiant opponents, forced two states to capitulate, defeated France's best divisions and defeated the British Expeditionary Force, taking a prisoner or chasing it from the continent.

"Thus you, the stormed force on land and in the air excelled each other in the noblest rivalry of ethics for our people and the great German Reich. The courageous men of our navy have participated in these deeds.

Assails Britain and France

"Soldiers, many of you have sealed their loyalty with life, others are wounded. The hearts of our people are with you in the deepest gratitude.

"The plutocratic rulers of England and France, who once pledged each other to avoid with all means the blood of a new and better world, want a continuation of the war.

"Their desire shall be realized. Soldiers, beginning today the west front of the German Reich is built. Numerous new divisions are assisting you who for the first time will see the defeat or an opponent.

"The struggle for the liberty of our people, for being or not being now and in all the future, shall also be continued until the destruction of those enemy rulers in London and Paris who forced us to war being the better means for realization of their plans to enslave the peoples.

"Our victory will be their historical punishment."

Address to German People

The text of the message to the German people follows:—

"To the German people:—

"The biggest battle of all time has been victoriously concluded by our soldiers.

"Within a few weeks more than 1,200,000 of our opponents have been taken prisoners.

"Holland and Belgium capitulated.

"The British Expeditionary Force was destroyed in greater part. The rest were captured or chased from the continent.

"Four-fifths of the B.E.F. was evacuated from Flanders.

"Three French armies have ceased to exist. The danger of the enemy's break-through to the Ruhr region thus is definitely abolished.

"Enormous booty in arms, countless and historic deed was gained in a bloody battle of all time.

"Therefore, I order the flags out in all Germany for eight days, beginning today. This is to be an honor for our soldiers.

"Furthermore I order bells tolled for three days. Their sound may unite with prayers with which the German people from now on will again accompany their sons. For this morning German divisions and air squadrons began anew the battle for continuation of the fight for the liberty and future of our people."

MALTA PREPARED AS ITALY CRIES "PERSECUTION"

Intensive press (controlled) attacks on Great Britain by Italian newspapers, which allege British persecution of Italian minority in Malta, tactics employed by Nazis before an invasion, is viewed by observers to presage early entry of Italy in the war. It is believed Mussolini's first target will be Malta, sixty miles from Sicily (map, RIGHT) great Allied naval base. TOP, is Valetta waterfront, with British ships in the harbor. Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, saying to me, Pardon me for interrupting that look in your eyes, but what do you say to the idea of going the entire evening without turning on the radio?

Well I must say that's an original idea, but why? ma said and pop said, To prove we haven't quite lost all touch with the primitive life and pleasures of our ancesters, to prove that we still have the moral courage and the mental stamina to cling to our own fireside with no visible means of support except spirited conversation and good books, just as our fourbears did. Can you face the thought? he said.

Why Willyum I think it's a wonderful idea, we ought to do it often, ma said, cmly the other evening F. Willis Jinkie had a very intristing article about people losing the power of reading because of the thousand and one distractions of modern times. And he claimed that it's the more than any thing elts that has lost the arts of conservation and letter writing, she said, and pop said, I believe he knew what he was talking about for a change, It's hard to imagine that a time ever existed when a man could commune with his own thoughts and let his mind dwell on the nobility of goodness and the baseness of barbess without being interrupted by the Blues sisters singing Swinging the Blues and the Hootcha Swing, he said.

I know just how you feel, Willyum, and I'll gladly find your medicin and share your relief, ma said, And now that we've decided to leave the radio to its own resources, why cant we go to a movie? she said.

Yes gods, it's a woman's world, pop said.

Meaning what was a use?

I was walking along with Shorty Judge just walking along and we started to go passed the barber shop and Reddy Merfy was in there getting his hair cut Shorty saying, O boy what a idea chance to get in there and get fresh with him while he's all tied up in that big sheet.

He wouldn't leave a little thing like a sheet stand in his way if he got really mad, I said. Good night, that guy thinks he's the only one can do any boxing around here, and the trouble is he's right, I said, Shorty said. Well G. winnickers, we might wait all our life and never have a chance like this again. I tell you what, let's just go in and start something and as soon as we see he's starting to get mad; we'll quick go out again while he's still got the sheet tied around him and give him time to cool off, he said.

Sounding dangerous but tempting, and we went in the barber shop and started to stand there watching Reddy getting his hair cut, and pretty soon he said, What's you think it is, a side show? and I said, What's you doing, Reddy, having your hair cut?

What's you think I'm doing, popping pop corn? Reddy said.

Being a good sport, and Shorty Judge said, I thought maybe you were trying to hatch an egg, and I said, Boy did I know what you might be posing for a statue of a monument, and Shorty said, You kind of looked like somebody trying to ride a fire plug to a fire, and I said, I had a idea you were up in a tree trying to remember how to get down.

Hay, what is all this, hay, Reddy said, and I said, We got to go now, and Shorty said, We're going now.

Which we hurry up did, and I haven't seen Reddy since so I don't know if he's cooled all a ways off or not.

WALL STREET

New York, June 5 (AP)—Shares rallied along the length of Wall street today as pessimistic views found only cause for optimism as reports from the battle front spread in around three points and at a faster rate toward the fourth hour.

Leaders on the downturn included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Caterpillar, Douglas, United Aircraft, Martin, Consolidated, Westinghouse, Eastman, Dupont, Monsanto, Armstrong, Bendix, Hupbonde, American Smelting, Kennecott, and International Paper.

Bonds and commodities were lower with rubber and hides among the heavier losers.

Canadian issues were easy. Lake Shore and Dome Mines, Canadian Pacific and Distillers Seagram slipped fractions. Hiram Walker was steady while McKinney was unchanged. Canada 4s, among bonds, dipped slightly.

C. HOWIE 'DUNKED' AS PUNT UPSETS

Potential Admiral' Clings to Hull While Companions Swim to Rescue

Any intentions Cliff Howie, popular post office employee had regarding entering the navy received a dampening bath Friday when figuratively, yesterday in the waters of the bay at Quinte Beaches

Cliff, whose ambitions are to become an admiral, if he can be decided to start at the bottom (he very nearly ended there) and, accordingly took a few lessons in sailing a boat.

He manoeuvred the twenty-foot sailing punt to a point one hundred yards off shore, but did not reckon with a sudden squall that came out of the southwest. Companions on the punt thought the potential "Beatty" suddenly leaned his starboard side. Then the squall struck and the boat turned completely over, the punt climbed aboard the hull and shouted frantically for help.

His companions immediately took to the water and swam to shore but one non-swimmer had to remain on the hull of his boat, wrist watch in his mouth and a shoe in each hand.

Outside of the sudden "dunking" Cliff was none the worse for his experience.

FLOODS RENDER MANY HOMELESS

Five Out of Six Members of Family Swept by Water to Death

Omaha, Neb., June 5 (AP). Stories of suffering and heroism were told today in the wake of torrential rebounds that created a flood that claimed five lives, and in which at least seven others were reported missing.

Hundreds are homeless as a result of torrential rains that sent flood streams raging out of their banks in a score communities, causing damage estimated at millions.

Edith Lipp, 20, only member of her household of six known dead or missing, told this graphic story:

"We were in the yard loading goats in our truck when the water hit us. We grabbed onto a clothesline but it broke. I saw my father drop off.

"Finally I couldn't hold on any longer. The water washed me down into a ditch and I swam forward. I was there for at least eight hours before they rescued me."

FLYING, TRAINING BRANCH EXPANDED

Sir Archibald Sinclair Says Preparations Made to Protect Airdromes

London, June 5.—(CP) — Sir Archibald Sinclair, Secretary for Air, told the House of Commons today that the flying and training organization of the Royal Air Force is being expanded "on a considerable scale" to meet "all further requirements".

Sir Archibald said a large number of training schools have already been or are in the process of being established overseas in the dominions, most suitable to the purpose".

"The great importance of protecting airdromes in the country and other possible mass landing grounds for troop-carrying planes is fully recognised and defensive preparations are being accordingly pushed forward.

Sir Archibald said he had no knowledge of any "understanding" whereby British "should not bomb military objectives in Italy until they bombed us".

The Air Minister, he said, had made "a number of successful attacks against military objectives in Germany".

POLICE CHECK

Clamor for Italian Blow

This continuous highlight characterized the attitude in Italian capital today from indications given by Fascist writers' descriptions of plans for attacks on British and French Mediterranean territories with conquest of the Suez canal as the main goal, perhaps to be followed by a move into the Balkans.

Gen. Marshal Italo Balbo, governor of Libya, and Premier Mussolini yesterday reproduced only excerpts of premiers regulations and left still undisclosed the date and place of possible Italian participation in the war as a German ally.

Premier Mussolini during the time of an Italian plunge into war ranged from a few days to a week to the end of the month. One source close to the government declared that no definite decision was likely.

Italian lines sold tickets for sailing of the liner Rex for New York June 11, after nearly everyone had concluded that the United States liners President Harrison and Roosevelt, now en route to the United States, would be the last ships to leave for the United States before extension of the war to the Mediterranean.

HEAVY ARTILLERY

to the Channel coast, the Nazis appear to have put in fighting machines of the type they have been accustomed to use in the Polish campaign.

Between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning no enemy formations were in the air, action anywhere along the front.

The British position of attack were in the vicinity of Amiens, where the German penetration is deepest, the south bank of the Somme River, and east of the Oise on the Aisne front. Here, in the famous heights of the Chemin Des Dames, scene of some of the most desperate combats of the First Great War and before that of the Napoleonic wars.

The new German push began when heavy artillery began pounding French defence positions. Behind the artillery came motorized shock—dive bombers—began mass attacks on the defenses. They immediately afterward huge bodies of infantry began to move.

The morning staff communique said: "All information received from the front during the early hours of the day indicates that a new battle has begun in earnest for the enemy was concentrating heavy artillery fire between Amiens and the Luce-Selincourt Road, on the hills of the northern heights. Attacks which were evacuated through Dunkirk early in the night, have left the allied troops steadily in position along the Somme-Aisne battle front where the new battle started.

Some British units which did not go into Belgium with the rest of the B.E.F. were in reserve behind the front line of the Somme defence.

Drive Against Heart of France

The battle was begun just one day after forty German divisions in formal end of the Battle of Flanders in the north. Between one day after the Flanders incident was closed with evacuation of the last allied troops from Dunkirk.

It seemed to confirm advance reports that the Nazis would start clearing out the trapped Allied armies in Belgium before starting a great drive against the heart of France rather than first against Britain.

No one could guess how far the Nazis might go in this drive. The air might go and Paris, where 254 persons were killed and 900 wounded by German bombs November, was ready for any eventuality.

The Air Ministry announced that Allied bombers already had struck back in retaliation for the night raid on Paris and one of four Nazi forays over the Rhone Valley and the port of Marseilles.

Great Success

Striking deep into Germany, French planes were reported to have made "extremely successful" military objectives in the vicinity of Munich and Frankfort 220 and 140 miles respectively from the frontier.

Factories, railway lines and munitions factories were showered with bombs from the planes according to the Air Ministry. Among the targets was a factory in which has been hit was a large airplane motor factory. All the French planes returned safely.

At the same time the British Royal Air Force was reported to be bombing the Ruhr Valley, where the German industries are concentrated heavily.

Reynaud to Meet Council

French military leaders kept a close watch on developments in Rome. War measures taken yesterday by the Italian cabinet convinced most observers that Premier Mussolini's entry into the war is probable within the next few days.

Premier Paul Reynaud was scheduled to meet with the army committee of the Chamber of Deputies today to review the general war situation. It was expected that the Italian situation would receive attention at that session.

In announcing the abandonment of Dunkirk yesterday, the French command paid tribute to the allied rearguard whose task it was to fight stubbornly at 3:30,000 British and French troops to escape. It was this achievement, it said, that British air force and fleet.

The allied defense of Flanders campaign were acknowledged to have been heavy, but a very satisfactory account they had been held to "a strict minimum."

No actual figures were given on losses or on the number of rearguard troops which might have been captured by the Germans when they broke into Dunkirk.

The fall of Dunkirk left the German army in possession of all of Holland and Belgium and of the French Channel coast as far as Somme Estuary.

Military estimates of the casualties resulting from the German air raid on Paris Monday, first set at 254 dead and 900 wounded, were revised sharply upward by an official announcement in Berlin.

Of the 254 listed as dead, 195 were the grounds, 59 were children under 20 children. Of the 652 wounded, 354 were civilians.

The bodies of German raiders originally reported shot down was increased from 26 to 31 in today's count. The Ministry of Information said that "Numerous bombs over Paris had been seven pursuit planes," while 18 others were wrecked on the grounds.

Expect Armored Division

Except for the use of dive-bombers, the new German attack on the Somme River front today followed in the classic style more reminiscent of 1918 than of the early days of the present war. French military quarters, however, said that intervention of the armored division used with such effect in the north was expected before long.

The Laon-Soissons road formed the right hand side of a quadrilateral on the east of the Oise, which was possibly the strongest. This zone is marked by the towns of Laon, Coucy-Le-Chateau and Chauny.

The fact that the new German attack was not preceded by massive aerial attacks on the allied rear areas and remote as was the case consistently in Poland, in Norway, in the Low Countries and in Flanders.

Battered After Break-Through

The new battle front was established by the German break-through in the north. Parts of it were won only after fighting that lasted days after hard fighting and at heavy cost, especially in the Somme bridgeheads.

French defensive preparations have been made in depth and these have been facilitated to an important degree by the topographical features of the areas which form the front of the new offensives.

The western section of the 200-kilometre-front extends roughly, from the Somme estuary to the Oise, and here itself ended suffers a considerable obstacle to new battle because the Somme valley is fairly narrow but is swampy. The river is navigable and canalized as far as Abbeville by a deep canal. A week ago the French commander-in-chief established on the north bank and established a general system of all the coiled south of Abbeville.

Favorable Defense.

The southern side of the valley forms a broad slope and the region is cut by a number of deep ravines—the Yvres, Avre, Noye, Selle, Authie, Bethune, and still smaller streams all of which are bordered, like the Brelle, by heavy forests, impenetrable to motorized troops.

Around Amiens the situation is less favorable to the Germans since a small bridgehead on the south bank of the Somme. There has been fighting for possession of this point. It has been known only that the French had built a new defensive railway station at Longpeal, a suburb southeast of Amiens, and that a new railway bridge crossing the swamps formed by the confluence of the Somme and the Noye River. The road and railway run through Montdidier to the French Strongpoints Fontaines.

Along the entire course of the middle and lower Somme above Amiens the point where the German drive began, 1,200 fighting troops were engaged in strengthening the positions of the British and of Flanders and the evacuation from Dunkerque were in progress. This fighting took place in the Albert region of Perronne and Ham where the Germans attempted to cut the retreat organized in depth as fast as it was reconquered from the German.

In this region between the Somme and the Oise the British have built a canals linking the Seine and Oise canals to the Northern-Eastern direction north is like a line of water. The Oise itself is along the line of the Aisne and the Aisne canal.

It was on the right bank of the Aisne that the British Expeditionary morning launched one of their principal attacks, Nail infantry debouched from the Forest of Compiegne Forest along the Aisnite Canal. The attack was successfully converted into a canal to link the Aisne Canal with the Oise. Should the German attack develope, it will come up against the defences on the Aisne.

CHURCHILL SPEECH

North Dakota Republican.

"Of course," Nye said, "if all this happened, it most definitely would change the war picture. It would have the tendency of making the war easier for Britain to win. However, I don't anticipate any such developments. I fear the necessity of such recourse."

Senator James Byrnes, South Carolina Democrat, said: "I believe the people of Great Britain would prefer defeat than surrender."

"It will guarantee the existence of the British fleet and at long as that fleet exists Britain will have somewhere on earth governments recognized by the United States," he declared.

Other comment:

Senator Danaher, Connecticut Republican: "At least, Mr. Churchill candidly keeps his government informed of his future plans."

Senator Claude Pepper, Florida Democrat: "It certainly shows that the war in Europe is nearer to us than ever before. I think this reason we should act now to keep the war in Europe."

Senator George Norris, Nebraska Republican: "That's a brave statement. It won't bring the war over here."

BELIEVE U. S.

that the Soviet Union had agreed to accept Sir Stafford Cripps as ambassador.

The morning papers forecast a formal announcement in the House of Commons today that Sir Stafford has been named to succeed Sir William Seeds, who returned home on sick leave in January.

Sir Stafford, who started for Moscow recently as a special trade envoy, has walled in Athens since the Soviet demolished a fully accredited ambassador to conduct trade negotiations.

His first object in Moscow, it is believed, will be to begin discussions of a war trade agreement which probably bear results. He is then expected to go into outstanding political questions.

Withdrawal Completed June 3-4.

The War Office announced that withdrawal of Allied forces from the French port of Dunkirk had been completed during the night of June 3 and 4 and that troops were operating south of the Somme River "in conjunction with the French" and that others were under "active contact" with the German forces operating along the Maginot Line.

In another communique the War Office described removal of British forces in the Rock area of Norway as "successful" and that 2,000 tons of supplies and other shipments of arms and ammunition had been left behind.

The ship carrying these bombers was ordered back without waiting for the completion of the loading operation and the shipment had been ordered in April, 1939.

Ready For Action Once

Mr. King referred to Defence Minister Ralston's statement several days ago that Canadian troops had been sent to positions of service in Norway but these plans were changed, more than once Mr. King said. Troops would have been at embarkation ports since the invasion of Holland and Belgium, under orders to join the British Expeditionary Force and the French armies, in northern France and Belgium.

The fact the Canadian troops did not go was due to decisions reached at the last moment, Mr. King said, that time the division was on, the point of embarkation, under Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, Divisional Commander with a group of officers, made a personal reconnaissance of the battle area and presented a report to the Chiefs of Staff, the Imperial General Staff and the War Cabinet.

Ready Now

A Canadian contingent has been ready for service in British Britain regular troops on garrison duty in the West Indies, Mr. King said, "every encouraging which were not named, was conveyed part way to its destination by a unit of the Royal Canadian Navy.

Canadian destroyers, destroyers for service in British home waters and another minimum in the evolution of the British Empire into a partnership of free and equal nations. Royal units of the overseas Dominions served in various spheres during the Great War but this is the first time the Canadian Navy has participated in the defence of the shores of Great Britain.

Under a re-arrangement of naval forces, ships of the Royal Navy will operate in Canadian waters, assuming the coastal and port defence duties formerly performed by the Canadian destroyers sent overseas.

"This re-arrangement," said Mr. King, "will be to the mutual advantage of making certain operations more effective."

Other comment regarding aircraft and air personnel made by Opposition Leader Hanson: "Canada's air plans necessitated by the rapid sweep of German forces through Holland, Belgium and northeastern France.

Recalled the plan was that Canada would send only army corps to England, reserving for service in direct contact with Canadian divisions in the field and that through the British Commonwealth air training scheme Canada would serve as a reservoir of manpower and training centre for the Royal Air Force of the British Empire. Britain was to supply Canada with aircraft and bear the cost of the plan.

Under the Battle of Flanders raged, it was impossible to disclose these measures to the people, said Mr. King. At that they did report the full extent of the steps being taken by the British government. Other measures involving all three services were projected and under way.

The Prime Ministers statement opened another day of solid business during which final reading was given to a number of bills, including Canada Air Lines "initial period," by which it was agreed that all training charges would be avoided.

In a military emergency, the 15 day transport plans in Canada-Canada Air Lines would be turned over to the Royal Canadian Air Force immediately, but there is little prospect of such an eventuality, Transport Minister Howe said.

Trained Pilots Ready

"But if the time comes when these 15 planes can be used for military purposes, they will be available from operating the Trans-Canada Air Lines, and will be manned at once" the Minister said.

Mr. Howe also announced with all metal low-wing Lockheed 14 monoplanes with retractable landing gear, carrying a maximum speed of 200 miles an hour with ten passengers, mail and express and the crew—a pilot, co-pilot and steward—and equipped with a variety of luxury furnishings and seats and converted quickly into bombers, reconnaissance or patrol planes.

The T.C.A. planes are really sister ships of the Lockheed Hudson bomber-reconnaissance planes recently built by Canada Cars for the British and Canadian Air forces, and also for Australia, the military version of the plane mounts a gun turret and transparent windows in the nose for a bomber-observer.

"Lover Come Back"

By BARNETT WILLOUGHBY

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

Sondra turned for a last quick look at the approaching ship, and a lump leaped into her throat. It was the Clipper of the West, regal, breath-taking, worthy of the name she bore! She was coming swiftly, her sails radiant with sunlight, her cut-water slicing the green seas into fountains of spray that rainbowed around her prow.

The ship was still too far off for Sondra to see the golden figurehead, but she knew the outthrust hand of the laughing mermaid was pointing toward her. And on the Clipper's deck, with strong glasses trained on the Dragon were anxiously searching for some sign, some news, of her. As she closed the port, she sent up a silent prayer that the watchers might soon be reading that news from Kemp's semaphoring arms.

She was slipping off her sandals and slacks in preparation for swimming, when it occurred to her that Kemp, in his note of instructions, had said nothing about wearing her own escape, from the Dragon. But that thought was wiped from her mind by a faint crackling of the roof above her head. Kemp! He was now, ready to attempt his signaling. If only Ikeda would remain asleep a few minutes longer!

She stood still, tense, listening. Kemp's waving arms must now be spelling out their fate. In just a little while they two would be swimming together toward safety. Swimming . . . a pang of fear went through her at the thought of the tumultuous sea through which she must fight her way. But Kemp would be at her side. Kemp would—

A cough sounded in the next room. Ikeda! He was moving! . . . If he was out of his bed! Any moment he would step out on deck and see Kemp signaling from the top of the cabin. Then she risk calling a warning to Kemp? Should she rap against the ceiling?

Before she could do anything, she heard Ikeda step out of his door.

Weak with relief, she waited for the sharp words that would announce Kemp's unmasking. But Ikeda stood, she heard his quiet, polite greeting from the top of the cabin. "Morning, Kemp. Quite a gathering you've had on this deck. Eh?"

Ikeda answered in the middle of a yawn, "What ship is it?"

"I can't make out her name, but she looks like an Alaska Packers' cannery ship. We're right in the lanes of their windjammers bound for Bristol Bay, you know."

Sondra missed Ikeda's reply, because she was startled by a muffled thump against the outer wall of her stateroom. She peered through a slit crack between the curtains and saw Kemp's dangling legs. He was sitting on the roof, his canvas-shod heels gently swinging against her wall. Was it a warning? Or merely a signal for her attention?

Before she could decide, he lowered himself to the deck directly outside the port. He stood there with his back to it, his heavily raised his glasses, training them on the Clipper.

That was her cue to go to the porthole. "For that fool on the windjammer to take a second sail. If he doesn't want to lose a mast."

It lt time. . . . Sondra was about to start for the trap door when Ikeda's voice stopped her. "Let me take the glasses a moment, Lieutenant."

She waited, weak with apprehension. Through the glasses Ikeda would read the name on the Clipper. Then—

"Here you are Commander. Oh—sorry!" Something thumped on the deck. "Clumsy of me. Wait till I wipe them—"

"Never mind. I want my coffee now. I'll relieve you of the watch as soon as I've had it—and ordered Ayres O'Moore's breakfast. No doubt she will be surprised when I bring her tray in myself." There was something sly and baiting in the man's tones.

Without waiting to hear more, Sondra let herself through the trap door and crawled back to the lazarette.

The hatch cover was lifted a few inches, as before; but it was some minutes before Kemp came aft and squatted beside the opening. Under cover of lighting a cigarette, he whispered, Ikeda's in the galley cooking breakfast. All right so far?"

"Yes."

"Don't be afraid, darling. Reynall will pick you up quickly. Now hand me the gun."

Sondra gasped. "Oh! I left it on my bunk. I'll go back—"

"No, no. Never mind this time."

"But—it leaves you with no weapon."

"I doesn't matter—now. When I slip off the hatch cover, you must—SCRAM!" He took the gun and leaped to his feet. "Hi, Ikeda!" There was a note of mockery in his voice. "Having trouble?"

Ikeda—on deck again! His was not a voice of mockery in his voice. "Trouble?"

"Yes. Can't you see? Reynall will pick you up quickly. Now hand me the gun."

Sondra's heart leaped. "Oh! I left it on my bunk. I'll go back—"

"No, no. Never mind this time."

"But—it leaves you with no weapon."

"It doesn't matter—now. When I slip off the hatch cover, you must —SCRAM!" He took the gun and leaped to his feet. "Hi, Ikeda!" There was a note of mockery in his voice. "Having trouble?"

Ikeda—on deck again! His was not a voice of mockery in his voice. "Trouble?"

"Yes. Can't you see? Reynall will pick you up quickly. Now hand me the gun."

"Evidently the lady has her own ideas about when she wants breakfast."

Ikeda's response was a sharp command in Japanese.

Kemp moved farther toward the stern. Sondra could see him standing erect on the trap, facing southward toward the Glory. He began signaling, profiling himself, holding his arms straight out from his sides. Then, abruptly dropped them.

A moment longer he stood there, a lounging, debonair figure in white shirt and slacks. Only a faint tightening of the hard steel muscle under his jaw betrayed the strain he was under.

He was moving forward her again, when there came a sudden crashing sound of splintering wood. Then another, and another. Ikeda. He was breaking the door of her stateroom with an axe.

Aboard the Glory, Captain O'Moore had his glasses leveled on the Dragon's deck. He could see Kemp on top of the cabin to signal. "Starboard, by heaven! It's semaphore! "No one else on deck. But of course they're not expectin' pursuit, and certainly not from a windjammer!

"He's semaphoring." Reynall hastily wiped his eyes and glasses and raised them against his eyes.

"Can you read 'em, Jean. I'll set it down." The Forest Man had out pad and pencil.

"Wait—the first of it. But now —" Tonelessly he repeated:

"Kemp to Ikeda . . . stand by . . . Swimming . . . only . . . chance . . . for . . . Sondra. . . . period. . . . When I . . . spread . . . arms . . . standing . . . stern . . . you . . . head . . . outstanding . . . that . . . position . . . pick you up . . . period."

O'Moore burst out: "Sondra! Overboard in a sea like this! The sharks!"

Reynall's voice was droning on: "If . . . obliged . . . to . . . abandon . . . mission . . . truck . . . and . . . dip . . . down . . ."

That's all, Reynall thrust the telegaze into the hands of the Forest Man. "Read it over, Jean. I haven't a flag aboard. I'll have to get a blanket—"

"Wait!" called Miss Jacqueline, already on her way to the after cabin.

Almost at once she came out, carrying Sondra's flag—Sondra a faded United States' ensign, folded so that a great blood-red cross the blue field. She brushed past Reynall and held the flag out to O'Moore.

"You mustn't think down, Danny," she said, "I think you should be the one to hoist it now."

"Me old flag, with the very hole Ramps Reynall shot into it from his high-ranging Lancaster!" O'Moore stood blinking, making no move to take the flag.

"Snap out of it, man!" cried Jacqueline. "Do you think I'd pack this flag around for fifty years, and not see Dan O'Moore raise it? Step to it, Danny." She thrust the ensign into his hands, and strode back to the after cabin.

O'Moore, with fingers strangely clumsy, bent the flag to the signal halliard. He hoisted it to the mast head. As the wind whipped it free, he dipped it once and left it there, fluttering against the bright morning sky.

"Starbuck sees it." The Forest Man was squinting through the long telescope. "Ikeda's on deck. Ikeda. He and Starbuck are talking now—excited. Ikeda's pointing. He doesn't seem excited. He hasn't recognized the Glory, yet." The Forest Man chuckled. "Smart as he is, he'd hardly expect to be chased by a floating cannery! . . . Now he's going into the galley."

"And Starbuck?" queried Reynall.

"Just standing easy like beside the deckhouse, training his glasses on us."

"Well, there's nothing for us to do but hold this course until we get his signal to turn," said Reynall. "I'll get the whalebout rarung out for instant launching. Captain O'Moore, you handle the ship; I'll take charge of the whaleboat."

"I'll go with you, Jean." The Forest man handed the telescope over to O'Moore.

O'Moore mounted to the poop with Mayes following. The intelligence officer had scarcely taken his Navy glasses off the dragon for an instant since coming on deck. The distance between the two vessels had narrowed now until even the binoculars brought out details with clarity.

Mayes spoke suddenly: "Kemp's moving aft now. He's just taken a look. O'Moore. That telescope's been trained on the Glory. And that's Ikeda's comin' out of the galley now, tailed by a messboy with a tray. Tom Kemp, who called out, "Evidently the lady has her own ideas about when she wants breakfast."

Ikeda's response was a sharp command in Japanese.

Kemp moved farther toward the stern. Sondra could see him standing erect on the trap, facing southward toward the Glory. He began signaling, profiling himself, holding his arms straight out from his sides. Then, abruptly dropped them.

Dimes For Diplomas

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Here is a thrilling story from a mother, which I print with permission:

Dear Dr. Myers:

My husband and I are breathing easier since our twins have their degrees.

The time to consider the finances for educating twins is the day they are born. A pair of boys came into our home the day after I decided they should have colleges courses if they wanted them. We laid 30 cents away that day to meet the expense. It just happened they were all the pennies the family purse held.

One day my husband came home from work and I told him I had bought a building lot. He became interested and spent all his spare time putting up a house. After renting the house a while we sold it and used the money to send my husband a college degree, so he could earn more to educate the children.

Before he finished he borrowed the boys' college fund to stretch his resources. This was paid back later at 6 per cent interest. As far as I know, they are the only sons who ever helped to finance their father's education.

When the boys began to deliver newspapers I persuaded them to save their money so that when they got big they could have a nice automobile, a big house or a business. I did not mention college because no boy of 10 is interested in a college degree. But that is what I had in mind, in case they had to go to college to prepare themselves for the life work they would some day choose.

We had to come up for air, however, when they informed us that one interested in study medicine, the other dentistry. Apparently they had not expected to be told that it could be done. The decision was all that concerned them.

We financed it by dividing the responsibility: father paid for meals, mother paid room rent and bought the clothing, the boys paid fees, tuition, and personal expenses from their earnings.

When they finished none of us had borrowed money or owed; there was no debt to burden us.

My husband did not have a large income, but I feel that we were ideally situated financially to make the boys do their best. They were putting into their education all they had saved for a period of years, and we were doing the same. It is not like the expression "After all I have sacrificed," in regard to children. It is only a joy and a privilege to have helped them reach their aim in life. Both boys are doing work they are happy in their work. And we their parents are thankful, so thankful. It isn't so much what the family income is as what the family is worth.

"When our boys wanted a car they had to buy it out of their own savings. I feel that no boy should own a car until he has earned the money to pay for it. It is a good experience for him. I think I should have the degree of D.S.—dollar stretcher.

I hereby grant her this degree.

AT THE CAPITOL

"I Could Happen to You"

MacKinley Winslow, a young advertising man, arrives home from a party, finds a murdered woman in his car and asks his wife and the world to help him. Thus begins the explosive beginning of the thrilling picture, "I Could Happen to You," Gertrude Messinger production, which opens next at the Capitol Theatre.

The role of Winslow is played by Brian Donlevy, and that of young and glamorous Mrs. Winslow by Gloria Stuart. Other featured players in the film include Raymond Walburn, Douglas Fowley, June Clark and Clarence Kolb. The screen play, based upon Charles Hoffman's prize story in The Saturday Evening Post was written by Allen Rivkin and Dorcas Cochran. Alfred Werker directed the picture and David Hempstead was associate producer.

The Second Feature

"Young Buffalo Bill"

Buffalo Bill rides again! This time it is "Young Buffalo Bill," whose youthful exploits will be cinematically portrayed in the Republic production of that title, starring Roy Rogers and featuring his intrepid side-kick, Gabby Hayes.

Young "Buffalo Bill" comes to the territory of New Mexico as a scout for the United States Cavalry. In company with "Gabby," and the two of join the command of the Colonel Calhoun, Gabby's daughter.

One of their first duties is to aid in the surveying of land and establishing boundaries. In this work they are opposed by the old land grabbers, who resent their grants generations back, from the kings of Spain.

Peggy Stone is one of these old-time land holders and he and his daughter, Rosita, resent the intrusion upon their land. Their opposition is upheld by Montes, a half-breed Indian who has ingratiated himself into their good graces but who privately seeks to overthrow Don Diego Montes, through his half-brother, Carlos. Montes medicine man also learns that there is an unknown gold mine on the Rosa property and with the Comanches know the secret of the mine's location, but Montes conceals all this knowledge from Rosita. Alfred Werker directed the picture and David Hempstead was associate producer.

AT THE McCARTHY

"OVER THE MOON"

Merle Oberon, lovely star of "Wuthering Heights" again brings to the screen another magnificent, romantic performance in her latest new technicolor production "Over The Moon" which is now playing at the McCarthy Theatre. Rex Harrison as her leading man also presents an outstanding characterization.

The story moves with tempo and suspense, with its gay and witty dialogue centred in London, Paris, Monte Carlo and the Swiss Alps. In addition to settings of spectacular beauty in natural color, the picture presents Miss Oberon in an impressive array of clothes designed by Rene Hubert, outstanding continental creator of fashion. She has recently recommended this line of clothes to you, as one of the finest of the season. Miss Oberon's co-star is Ralph Bellamy, well known radio and film actor.

Also on the program is a very amusing technicolor cartoon are part of the same program on view at the McCarthy.

"Lone Wolf Meets a Lady"

With Warren William in the title role and an excellent cast of other players featured, the newest of the Louis Joseph Vance Detective Stories, "The Lone Wolf Meets A Lady", is due to open next at the McCarthy Theatre and advance comment gives it top rating as one of the most entertaining productions that has been brought to the screen.

Jack Holt, one of Hollywood's longest time stars, in his newest release, "Hidden Power" is the co-feature attraction and it too is first class A entertainment. So you are well advised to not only see "Over The Moon" currently at the McCarthy, but also to see "The Lone Wolf Meets A Lady" and "Hidden Power", the next attraction.

AT THE BELLE

"Strange Cargo"

For the first time in three years Clark Gable and Joan Crawford, who co-starred with such notable success in five films in the past, team again in "Strange Cargo" which is now on the Belle theatre screen.

Picturization of the Richard Sale best-seller, "Not Too Narrow, Not Too Deep," "Strange Cargo" presents Gable as convict Verne Marsac, incorrigible iconoclast, in a South American penal colony, and Miss Crawford as Julie, cafe entertainer in the penal colony, who becomes fellow-fugitives after a daring escape.

In the supporting cast are a group of the most outstanding character actors in Hollywood. Ian Hunter—has his strongest role to date as Cambreau, the mysterious stranger with a Bible, about whom revolve the fates of all the principals. Peter Lorre portrays the role of Pierre Chanal, Frenchman, Paul Lukas wife-murderer, Hessler; Albert Dekker, Adolphe Menjou, Eve Arden, Billy J. Edward Bromberg the four-fisted murderer; Florence Bates, domineering Mrs. Cleaver and Chester Morris, Dr. Alexander Lucas, who must aid the survivors of the prison break.

The story tells of nine men who escape a tropical prison and head for the mountains where a ship is to carry them to safety. Seven perish before they reach it, including Julie, who has been picked up by Verne on his yacht. Four reach the appointed haven. But each one who perishes makes a splendid, sympathetic exit through the influence of Cambreau. Through nine of the most compelling characters ever written for the screen runs the underlying spiritual theme.

Into his direction Frank Borzage has injected all the qualities which made him a two-time Academy Award winner, combining the impact of a tragic theme with the subtler impression of an underlying spiritual theme which places the picture in the category of the best in entertainment.

A beautiful film of special feminine appeal is "Style Creator of the World," to be presented on the same program.

New Mother New Baby

A young mother writes that when her baby developed eczema, with crust and could not sleep, both she and grandmother tried Dr. Chase's Ointment. This she did and baby's skin was soon cleared of this annoying ailment which brings so much discomfort to baby and sleepless, worried nights to mothers.

This experience only goes to show how universally Dr. Chase's Ointment is used as a means of keeping baby's skin healthy.

The is wise to apply Dr. Chase's Ointment after the bath to any part of the skin which shows redness or other indications of infection. Chamois and powders contain nothing to kill the germs of infection and hence the use of this antiseptic treatment such as Dr. Chase's Ointment to make short work with the germs of infectious disease.

Gas Reserves in Excess Of R.C.A.F. Needs

Ottawa, June 5.—(CP)—Reserves of high grade aviation gasoline in Canada "now are very substantially in excess of the Royal Canadian Air Force and Air Training plan requirements during the coming year," the Department of Munitions and Supply announced Tuesday.

The reserves have been built up voluntarily by oil companies and the capacity of Canadian oil refineries is sufficient to take care of the expanding needs of R.C.A.F., and the air training plan in 1941 and 1942, the department said.

Twenty-Five Tanks Destroyed at Chaulnes — New Heavy Attack Launched by Nazis Well Held by French Outposts and Not Allowed to Reach Main Line

Paris, June 6—(CP) — French "fire" and anti-tank guns caught hard-driving German tanks in a tangible fire on the Somme front today in a battle seven miles in depth.

Other German tanks, pushing recklessly as far as they could go, fought through the battlefield and into the open only to be cut off from their bases.

Nests of French machine-gunners and 75-millimeter guns were alerted to have successfully held back the main German forces, preventing motorcyclists and truck-carried infantry from following up the tank spearheads.

The main German armies struck this directly at Paris, 70 miles away, and in the west toward Rouen.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Damage by lightning! Everyone may expect damage from lightning. The damage is done by the generation of heat and mechanical forces. Between the two, heat may be started and structures torn apart to say nothing about loss of life. In protection, the fundamental principle to be observed is to afford an adequate path for the lightning to ground. In this path there should be no possibility of gaps forming by connections corroding or otherwise giving away; for if there is a gap, there will be a spark and fire may start. Lightning rods do protect, but not, of course, in every instance; their job is to lead the electricity safely to ground; they do not prevent lightning strokes.

STRONG ATTEMPT MADE TO DESTROY R.A.F. AIRDROMES

Incendiary and High Explosive Bombs Dropped in Northeastern England to Kent

LITTLE DAMAGE

Six Persons Suffered Minor Injuries and One House Set on Fire

London, June 6—(AP)—Britain's "parachute," with rifles loaded, stood guard today against any attempted landings by German parachute troops in the wake of the Nazi air force's heaviest bombing attack on England since the start of the war.

Apparently in an effort to destroy the airdromes from which Royal Air Force bombers have gone out in pound military objectives in the Ruhr and other Nazi industrial centres, the German raiders dropped high explosive and incendiary bombs in a long, 270-mile stretch of coast from Yorkshire, in northeastern England, to Kent, south of the Thames estuary. It winds from London to the sea.

Work Begun on $13,000,000 Order For Military Motor Vehicles

Canadian Automobile Plants Can be Swung Into High Gear

LARGE SCALE WORK

Ottawa, June 6 (CP)—Work has begun on a new military motor vehicle order involving an expenditure of $13,000,000, a government announcement said today.

Canada's engines are being produced by the Ford and General Motors Companies while other companies are working on wheel and tires. Specifications for the special bodies involved are being prepared.

This new order is in addition to the one for $13,600,000 placed on March 30 and which will be completed within a month. By far the largest number of vehicles in the first order are already overseas, the announcement said.

The Canadian automobile industry can be swung into high gear immediately to replenish "in vast quantities" supplies of mechanized transport lost by the British Expeditionary Force in Flanders, it was stated.

Conversations are proceeding to determine if the British government desires such a speedup.

Munitions Minister Howe stated that the Canadian motor industry is already tooled up sufficiently to turn out 50,000 pieces of military mechanized equipment a year and this production can be substantially increased.

Although it is not possible for the Canadian automobile industry to manufacture tanks and heavy armoured fighting equipment at present, the announcement said, the production of gun carriers, trucks and other fighting equipment for motorized infantry, is possible on a large scale.

Between April 1 and June 1 over 7,000 pieces of motorized equipment for the Canadian armed forces manufactured and delivered by the Ford and General Motors Companies alone.

Allied Empires Now Control Diamond, Rubber, Tin, Tea and Rubber Supplies

London, June 6 (CP)—The Ministry of Economic Warfare announced today that Allied Empires have virtually control of the production of rubber, tin, diamonds, nickel, jute, kapok, tea, sisal, shellac and palm oil.

The German invasion of the Low Countries and the resultant alliance with The Netherlands Empire and a similar alliance with Belgian territories have given the Allies a near monopoly of these materials, it was said.

The Allies were able to remove from Belgium to a safe place six stocks of radium and cobalt.

Most of Belgium's oil reserve was destroyed before the German conquest, the Ministry declared, but the Belgian steel industry and iron ore mines fell to the invaders little damaged.

The Ministry considered it probable that large stocks of gold and securities privately owned in Belgian and The Netherlands have been seized by the Germans. Most of the rubberized or oilproofing industry is believed to be destroyed.

Besides controlling almost virtual by control, the Ministry said the Allies also have a large measure of control over mica, copra and wool.

The Rank - Cannon - Sinclair Shoe Company was placed on the Board of Trade black-list as being a concern trading with the enemy. The order applies to all of the 140 subsidiary companies of the giant firm throughout the world, except in Canada, Britain, the United States and in Allied countries not overrun by the Germans.

BLITZKRIEG RUNS BEHIND SCHEDULE, DIPLOMAT SAYS

Hitler is Said to Have Expected Capitulation of Britain and France by May 25th

MECHANISM LOST

Germans Glad at Most 15,000 Parachutists, of Whom Mostly All Were Killed or Captured — Transport Planes Nearly All Destroyed

London, June 6 (CP). — Adolf Hitler confidently expected the capitulation of Britain and France by May 25, a member of the Netherlands legation at Ottawa said in an interview here today. The diplomat is now stationed in London.

According to this diplomat, the Hitler blitzkrieg machine is running behind schedule. He also said, wrote Premier Mussolini of Italy that French and British resistance would be crushed in fifteen days following the occupation of Holland and Belgium. Holland was captured to have been over-run in a day. The time table did not work this way, however.

The German army did not have more than 15,000 trained parachutists, the diplomat said, and most of these are believed to have been killed or captured. Most of Germany's troop transport planes, he also said, were lost in the past few months.

Prime Minister Churchill Says That British Government's Aim is to Secure Effective Restoration of Belgium's Freedom and Independence

London, June 6 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill announced today that Britain recognizes the Belgian government established in France as the only legal government of Belgium. Hubert Pierlot as premier heads the government in exile.

Speaking in the House of Commons Mr. Churchill said he did not think it necessary to remind the House that the British government's aim is to secure the effective restoration of Belgium's freedom and independence.

COMMUNICATION LINES OF NAZIS BOMBED BY R.A.F.

Series of Attacks Carried Out on Lines Leading to Somme Battlefield

NAZIS LOSE 6 PLANES

London, June 6—(CP)—Britain's airmen, raiding from the battle zone in France to the industrially-important Ruhr Valley in western Germany, have attacked enemy supply bases, communications and lines of communications leading to the Somme River battlefield in renewed efforts to help the French halt the German drive on Paris.

The Air Ministry announced that medium and heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force "attacked enemy troop concentrations and harassed enemy movements behind the fighting front."

Other heavy bombers, the Ministry added, "struck at junctions and marshalling yards west of the Ruhr while others attacked military objectives in Germany."

The raiding force took a toll of six German planes, the Ministry said, while one British plane was shot down and two are missing.

Seared Direct Hit

STEAMER SERVICE HALTED BETWEEN MALTA AND SICILY

Italy Also Widens War Preparations by Declaring 12-Mile Danger Zone Along Coasts

ARE BEING MINED

Rome, June 6—(AP) — Regular steamship service between Malta, British Mediterranean base, and certain parts of the Italian island of Sicily was suspended today as Italy widened her war preparations by declaring 12-mile danger zones for foreign shipping along her coasts.

At the same time it was reported that a large number of Italians residing in Turkey have returned to Italy.

Italian authorities are notifying foreign governments that coastal waters are being mined, an authoritative source reported.

Whether minefields have been sown in connection with the creation of the Italian coastal danger zones was not made known in the announcement to shipping.

If the entrances to Italian ports has been mined, as experts said, the Italians have failed to comply fully with international regulations requiring publication of the limits of minefields.

In another sector of Italian war preparations, the German Minister

REYNAUD ASSUMES LEADING ROLE IN FRANCE'S DEFENCE

Takes Over Post of Foreign Minister in Addition to Premiership and War Portfolio

UNEXPECTED MOVE

Daladier and Other Holdovers from Earlier Regimes Dropped in Quick Cabinet Changes

Paris, June 6 (AP)—Premier Paul Reynaud became France's one-man director of the war today with lightning changes in his cabinet before dawn of the second day of the "battle for Paris."

Shortly after midnight, Reynaud announced that he had assumed the post of Foreign Minister, in addition to the Premiership and war portfolio.

Thus, while German forces pounded against the capital's Somme and Aisne defence lines, the 62-year-old Premier reached a new peak of political strength, little more than two months after he had won a vote of confidence by a bare one-vote majority in the Chamber of Deputies.

Former Premier Edouard Daladier, Air Minister Pierre Etienne Flandin and long had been a figure in previous cabinets, was dropped from the government, together with other holdovers from earlier regimes.

The dramatic and unexpected move, coming at the critical moment of the new German offensive and threatened Italian intervention in the war on Germany's side, was interpreted strongly as reinforcing the administration.

Allied Troops Lie Prone on Beach For Hours Before Being Evacuated

London, June 6—(CP Havas) — How thousands of Allied troops lay prone on the beach four hours awaiting their turn to be evacuated from Dunkerque was described over the radio last night by E. H. Phillips, Y.M.C.A. Secretary in charge of field canteens.

Mr. Phillips disclosed that the Y.M.C.A. had established north of equipment in northern France. He said 120 members of the personnel, including 30 women, were evacuated from Boulogne and Dunkerque and would return to France as soon as new equipment was ready.

Relating the troop withdrawal from Dunkerque he said:

"There was a lull in the bombing and there came a shout from the men lying on the beach. Over the horizon came a stream of dozens of ships. The navy had arrived.

"Everybody was ordered to remain under cover until the word was given. With darkness companies began marching onto the beach. For an hour there was little or no shelling. Then came a familiar drone.

"Lie flat", came the order, and thousands of men remained prone on the sand at the water's edge. The walking wounded and the wounded on stretchers were carried into the sea to small boats that began taking off men.

Thousands more lay on the beach unable to light a cigarette, motionless for hour after hour. As fast as the men were shipped others wriggled forward flat on their faces to take their turn."

Says Britain Must Learn Lesson Of Need of Fuller Peopling of Canada

London, June 6 (CP-Cable)—One of the great lessons Britain must learn from the war is the necessity for a fuller peopling of Canada, Rev. F. W. Norwood, Vancouver minister, said in an interview today.

Mr. Norwood left Canada June 1, prior to going to Canada, Dr. Norwood is here on a short holiday "to see how things are going" so that he may better interpret events and help inspire people.

"If we had 50,000,000 people in Canada, instead of 10,000,00, we would be very much stronger as an empire," he said.

British Farmers Urged to Produce Maximum Next Year For War Effort

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 6 (CP). — Robert Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, told British farmers today that "we are faced with a peril much greater than we were faced with at any period in the last war" and asked them to produce a maximum from the land in the coming year.

In an address before the annual conference of the Council of Agriculture, the minister warned that "we shall have to do things we can contemplated in the last war."

One delegate said that if Britons would cut alcohol consumption by half it would mean a saving of 400,000 tons of feeding stuff for cattle.

Another criticized the sight of a dozen men planting geraniums in gardens near Buckingham Palace. "Why not potatoes?"

Kennedy, Bullitt Forward Requests For Speed-Up

Allies Ask Permission to Buy 'Surplus Great War Armaments' Treasury Secretary Morgenthau Discloses — Vast New Purchases of Military Aircraft Planned by the Allies in United States

Sales of First Great War Equipment Not Violation of Law, Says U. S. Attorney - General — U.S. War Department's Surplus Includes 100,000 Lee-Enfield Rifles and About 70,000 Machine Guns and Hundreds of Field Guns

Washington, June 6 (AP)—Urgent Allied requests for arms—even hell-over weapons of the last war—were considered today by a United States Government intensifying its own national defence efforts.

Ambassador Joseph Kennedy and Bullitt in Paris are "telephoning and cabling and are asking that we do everything we can to speed up production of military essentials" for the Allies.

Purchase of New Aircraft

Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau revealed that the Allies are considering vast new purchases of military aircraft in this country. The Anglo-French Purchasing Commission has completed its first $1,000,000,000 plane buying program and has discussed with him the possibility of a new program, he said.

Morgenthau also disclosed that the Allies had asked permission to buy "surplus great war armaments" and he referred the purchasing agents to the War Department.

Attorney General Robert Jackson, it was learned, ruled that the sale of these weapons would not be a violation of the law. Early told reporters at his press conference that the final decision on any such transaction would be up to the White House.

No Details of Meeting.

All disclosed of the purpose of the day's defence commission meeting was that the session was called to further the "program for preparing the nation.

Stocks of thousands of guns apparently were placed within reach of the Allies—subject to Government and White House approval—by Jackson's ruling on the legality of sale.

U. S. Surplus of Arms

The War Department's surplus list includes about 100,000 Lee-Enfield rifles, out of approximately 1,800,000 of this 1918 model in storage, and about 70,000 machine guns of which 50,000 are Colts of Vickers, Marlin and Lewis manufacture.

KINGSTON FIREMEN CHASE GROUNDHOG

Kingston's firemen are ready for any duty claims the White Standard although their chief duty is fighting fires.

Fire Chief James Armstrong entertained members of the Kingston Fire Council here recently with the story of how the firemen at the Breck St. station spent part in a chase for a groundhog that had paid a visit to the fire hall that Friday afternoon.

According to the fire chief the groundhog came into the station and all hands joined in the chase to scare him off. One member of the staff got real close to the animal and aimed a kick at the intruder but it so happened that the captain of the brigade buried a hydrant wrench at the same time. The wrench missed its intended mark but hit the fireman's foot, inflicting a painful injury. The groundhog made good his escape.

MAYOR OF KINGSTON EXPRESSES OPINION

Doubt is expressed by Mayor H. A. Stewart of the city of Kingston whether there could be need of a voluntary civil guard to guard against possible sabotage activity.

Referring to a circular letter received from Hon. D. Croskett, attorney-general of Ontario in regard to the formation of a Volunteer Civil Guard in the city of Kingston, Mayor Stewart stated that he had been getting the matter before a meeting of the finance committee of the City Council, but stated, that in view of the fact that so many soldiers are stationed in Kingston, he doubted if there was any action being taken in Kingston.

WAR SAVINGS STAMPS TO BE SOLD IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS EACH WEEK

Commencing next week pupils of the Belleville Public Schools will be offered the opportunity each week during school hours of buying war savings stamps as part of their contribution to the country's war effort.

If plans suggested by the Department of Education materialize here, principals of the schools will be asked to make a special effort to the children every week until hostilities cease.

A circular letter sent to the Board of Education by Dr. L. E. Wallace, minister of education, endorses the move as being "one which appears to be particularly adapted to school savings."

"The scheme is sound," the letter states, "endows the savings plan with special meaning for the pupils of as great importance to Canadians, will take pride in doing their bit for their country."

Two Trenton Youths Rescued From Their Overturned Skiff

Completely exhausted after clinging to their overturned boat for three hours, Thomas Emerson, 20, and William Nelson, 22, Trenton youths, were rescued from their watery predicament in the Bay of Quinte Wednesday evening by Sergeant Probert of the Trenton Police force and James Kerr.

Hoisted by a farmer, when they were drifting near Indian Island, a mile and one half off the Trenton shore, the plight of the youths was given to police officers who immediately rushed to the scene in Kerr's motor boat.

Clad in only bathing shorts, the youths had gone for a sail in the skiff late in the afternoon. A sudden gust overturned the boat, and the boys took turns sitting on the bottom of the capsized craft and waving a sweater to attract attention.

When rescued, they were so exhausted and cold that they were unable to stand up. They were rushed to their homes and put to bed.

PARADE OF YOUTH BEING PLANNED

Reg. Moncrief, Chairman of Board of Education, Says Parade Will Comprise All Cadet Corps of City Schools and Girl Guide Troops

For the first time in its history, Belleville will have the opportunity of witnessing a Parade of Youth in the near future, if plans suggested by Chairman Reg. Moncrieff of the Board of Education materialize.

Tentative suggestions, as voiced by the chairman, include a grand parade through prominent thoroughfares of the city which will embrace the Boys and Girls Cadet Corps of the Belleville Collegiate Institute, the various corps of the city public schools, St. Michael's Academy, and troops of Girl Guides.

Music will be furnished by the Belleville Collegiate Band, the City Public Schools Band, and such other organization to be selected.

The parade will form past a reviewing stand at a place to be decided upon, where the salute will be taken by a prominent military official, in all probability Lieut. Col. J. C. Gribble, senior military officer of the city.

More definite arrangements will take place within the next few days, Chairman Moncrieff stated when the date and route of March will be decided.

One neutral observer said that the British Defiants can do better than the best German warplanes.

Vast Reservoir Of Junior Officers Being Created

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 6 (CP)—A vast reservoir of junior officers for the Canadian Active Service Force is assured by young men taking military courses in their spare time with Canadian Officers' Training Corps units at Canadian universities or with non-permanent active units.

As the need arises, many of these type soldiers will be taken into the C.A.S.F. and will have an opportunity to apply the military knowledge absorbed in the lecture room. Figures on the number taking the courses are not made known but it is understood there are several thousand men enrolled.

C.O.T.C. units are established at almost every Canadian university under jurisdiction of the National Defence Department. Undergraduates may join units at their respective universities, while a graduate may take his course at any university in the Dominion.

Commissions in militia units are not necessarily restricted to university graduates. Other applicants are accepted in the various branches and after obtaining their commission in the unit are given opportunity to qualify for rank.

P. E. Musical Festival Held at Picton Church

Picton, there were 20 competitions but five numbers were given by different schools on account of Fenwick, supervisor of music in Ontario schools, commended them and other numbers won the highest praise and Mr. Fenwick gave many helpful hints on singing.

The numbers reflected the great progress made since singing in schools has been taught and the results should encourage all musicians now—as never before—had the opportunity to play an important role as members of the British Empire. He declared we find ourselves drawing nearer to the time when we may well be chosen to act as host in association with the Motherland which no Canadian would be interested to it."

The grand finale proved a thrilling one with the great audience being stirred by the power of the choir of 400 young voices as they gave patriotic numbers "All through the Night" with Mr. Simpson conducting, brought out very ringing at its best. "Our Canada from Sea to Sea" words by Emma Becondo Twomey was both timely and stirringly rendered under direction of Mr. Simpson. Both were well taken and it is this feature that impressed the average listener as to the value of musical instruction.

"Canada Dear Land of Mine", was directed by Mr. Fenwick, under whose leadership the combined voices rose patriotically in this stirring selection. In conclusion, the National Anthem was sung as one seldom hear it, the whole audience joining the children as if in an earnest prayer.

To hear many school sing a number perfectly though separately trained was indeed a treat. Great credit is reflected on the young singers, music instructors, the teachers and those responsible for the festival, by their great performance.

Campaign Committee For Salvation Army Hear Brigadier Riches

Tweed—On Monday evening members of the Committee which recently conducted the campaign for funds for the Salvation Army War Fund and Red Shield were entertained at a supper at the S. A. Hall. Members of the committee which operated in Bancroft, Tweed, Enterprise, Sulphide, and other centres were present to hear Brigadier Riches of Toronto.

Before supper Mrs. Reid served the members of the Committee gathered about the table to drink the toast to "The British Empire" ably proposed by Mr. H. W. (King) Crosbie, a veteran of the Great War. Mr. Crosbie said that no one believes in his heart that the British Empire and all that it stands for will be broken up and lost. This was followed by the National Anthem. At the conclusion of the supper, Mr. R. B. Rollins vice-chairman of the local committee, took charge in the absence of the chairman, C. Ed. Way. Mr. Rollins reported receipts for the campaign totalled in cash and pledges $2263 which will be increased somewhat when returns are all received. These contributions are made up as follows:—Tweed $700, Sulphide $270, Bancroft $300, Deloro $300, Madoc $200, Marmora $140, Stirling $83 and Enterprise $30.

A very large share of the credit said Mr. Rollins is due to Captain Bugar of the local corps who arranged the formation of committees in the different centres. Mr. George Brown, chairman of Bancroft committee said that no difficulty was experienced in getting contributions once it was made known among the returned soldiers that the Salvation Army was soliciting money for its war effort. Constable Stan Palmaster of Bancroft and A. Corbet of Sulphide also spoke briefly.

Mr. Rollins in introducing Brigadier Riches said that for more than 20 years he had had a warm interest in his heart for the Salvation Army and that this feeling was general throughout the country was evidenced by the result of the drive for $1,000,000.

Brigadier Riches expressed the great satisfaction of Headquarters when it became known that Tweed and district had raised more than double its objective of $1,000. He cautioned his hearers, however, not to think that the S. Army was the only group that was doing useful work. He spoke very highly of the efforts of the Legion, the WLAA, and the Canadian Red Cross, especially the last named. For all of these organizations he had nothing but the greatest, respect.

The Salvation Army has been forced through these unusual circumstances which have arisen, to put other essential work aside for the time being.

The Army in 1939 had an officer in almost every military camp across Canada and was the first organization to request permission of the Dominion military authorities to establish recreation centres in the military camps. No financial profit is made from the canteens as all profits must be turned in to the government. There is a profit, however, in the good we can do to the soldiers.

Brigadier Riches drew attention to the fact that sixty per cent of all money raised is being used for war work and the remaining forty per cent for the usual work of the Salvation Army. In order to maintain a good front in France it is necessary to maintain a good base in Canada. Our work knows no colour or creed and we have good reason to thank God that we live in a democratic country where a man can worship as he pleases.

The Brigadier said that he was not one of those who think we are fighting only Hitler and a few of his ilk. We are fighting all the German people who have provided Hitler with his war machine. We people too must give until it hurts to provide what is required to defeat this vast machine.

Mr. F. W. Clark treasurer of the Fund, moved, a vote of thanks to Brigadier Riches for his fine address and the ladies for the splendid supper. This was seconded by Mr. Beatty.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell of Enterprise, also spoke briefly.

The meeting opened with a song service and devotional period conducted by Rev. W. A. Hunter, minister of the church, who was assisted by the choir of St. Peter's Church, Madoc.

Rev. Bonderau of Burnbrae, gave a very fine illustrated lecture on Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress. The excellent address and beautifully illustrated lecture was greatly enjoyed by everyone.

Bonderau, who recently won the intermediate championship at Tweed High School Field meet, was successful in capturing the Intermediate championship at the Central Ontario Secondary schools in the meet held at Stirling on Saturday, June 1st. He had a total of 18 points, beating out McCoy of Madoc, who had 14 points. This marks the first time a C.O.S.S.A. championship has been won by a Tweed High School boy.

Mr. J. Lincoln Heath who passed away recently at Arden was a former highly respected resident of Tweed, having for many years been proprietor of Queen's Hotel. He left Tweed about twenty years ago to make his home in Toronto.

Mr. P. C. Barnett, well known Tweed merchant, was rushed to Belleville General Hospital, on Thursday where it was believed an operation would be necessary. Latest reports are that his condition is decidedly improved and he has returned to his home and his work.

CZECH AND POLISH BATTALIONS FIGHT

Remnants of the nations which the Huns have assaulted and seized by blitzkrieg, rise against Adolf Hitler and his company and Germany for the deeds done in the past two years. Czechs, Slovakian and Polish soldiers have rendered noble service in the French army, the services of men who are not chained to the Nazi war chariot. Norwegians fight to the bitter death against the dastardly treacherous invaders. Belgian soldiers realizing the error of men who did not surrender but went lent their aid in much aid in the past few days and Hollanders too are in the Allied ranks.

These nationals can throw the fury of their peoples, who would be free, free, into every blow struck at the heart of the oppressor. Every blow is one more revenge for their country. Czechs have already struck at the foe and taken toll of the enemy of their land.

But then there are those other victims, those civilians, women and children who have been driven as wanderers upon the earth from their ancestral homes, to make room for Germans to be hounded, shot or crushed on the highways or fields at the will of a barbarous, whose penchant for causing suffering and agony is now so familiar to the world that all nations are emboldened to condemn the oppressor.

Germany can never purify herself against the stain of the destruction of these ghosts. They will sit in at every feast, they will battle and haunt her at every step of her way. They are the representatives of justice and honor and integrity—which Germany has spurned and ground under the heels of the goose stepper, but which do possess a vitality greater than any dictatorship.

GERMANY SUFFERED VERY HEAVY LOSS

Achievements of the British and French air forces are too close to the Germans, there is no doubt, for the Nazi Germans have lost probably half of their fighting plane planes and the destruction goes on at what must appear to be to them a alarming pace. British reports show about a three or four to one ratio in favor of the Allies.

This can mean but one thing, superior airmen and superior craft. The airmen superiority is due to the daring of the French and British races and to their strong development of individuality. The individual in the Nazi system is but an automaton turned out on the belt as it were like machines. Initiative and individual courage are the natural characteristics of the free life of the democracies and their unhampered spirit and it is not to be wondered at that these British and French fliers are superior to the machine-made and machine-minded Huns. Then too, English planes, for instance, are built with a great deal of care, the perfection that marks everything British.

This points to the future day when parity of numbers will appear and parity of numbers will mean a marked superiority of the royal Air Force and the French air fleet in efficiency.

At the present time the Allied airmen are performing amazing feats, some of the greatest deeds of all time being performed.

Despite Germany's monster tanks the German losses in the Nazi attempt to halt the exodus of British and French from the pocket in the Flanders area are also far in excess of those of the Allies. It was here that the Allies carried out a gigantic task while the Germans utterly failed. Their complete plan failed because they did not annihilate the British and French, overseas leaders declare. Huge German tank losses are reported.

In all Germany's losses in three weeks of war is forbidden territory which the Germans violated, may reach beyond three fifths of the 1,000,000 men that is 600,000. Losses in Flanders were a heavy blow to the Nazis.

PRINTING AND CHRISTIANITY

One of the most potent agencies in modern civilization is the printing press. Every phase of life has been influenced to some degree by printing which is the base of civilization and is one of the necessities of life.

On Sunday the church will celebrate its debt to the use of movable blocks of type, first tried five centuries ago, and will pay tribute on behalf of religious organizations and organized Christianity to the part that printing play in making possible the circulation of the Scriptures. Today the Bible is printed in greater and greater numbers and in new tongues, and religious literature is printed in great volume.

It was fitting that the churches should honor the fifth centenary anniversary of the first use of movable type which speeded up the printing press. Religious organizations could do likewise. The newspapers have done so in numberless articles and stories on the invention and development of printing.

In the course of time printing had to come. It was a natural development that the thoughts and ideas of man should find wider dissemination than by word of mouth or by drawings and that came with the printing press. There have been many developments but the underlying idea of the process remains the same, a record made on paper or other surface in relatively simple form were possible in olden days. Books were first manuscript, every book being an individual copy and a work of infinite labor and care.

SYMBOLIC OF GERMAN SPIRIT

Ottawa Journal thinks that was Vimy Memorial is again in civilized hands "it should be left untouched, in its ruins, to stand symbolic of the German spirit."

The world has not ceased to commend upon the savage Huns in their desecration by bombing of the Canadian Memorial at Vimy Ridge in memory of Canada's dead.

Canadian Youth Clamors For Chance to Become Pilots

The Huns, the heathless ones, were strafing refugees, women and children and generally outdoing themselves in the way of atrocities.

So a youngster in a small town sat down and wrote a letter.

"Dear Bill." It started, and went on to tell of his author's burning desire to become a pilot and give the German army an extended visit and contribute to saving civilization.

"I have never met you, Bill", it said, "but I know you read well, and that we will be great friends when I am a flyer. So I'm writing to you for some help.

Your new pal, Joe——"

Air Marshal W. A. (Billy) Bishop, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., D.F.C., had a smile on his face when he read a glint appeared in his eyes when he showed the letter to this interviewer.

"As Air Marshal," he inquired, "what do you do when you get a letter from a young fellow who addresses you as Bill?"

"I answer it."

A Friendly Man

So a lad in a small town will get a reply from the "new pal" and we are assuming, whether it will be worded in the stiff phraseology of official communications. Yet if the greatest ace of the First Great War has a quality to match his courage it is his friendliness, a quality which tends to sweep away formality in his relations with the multitude of the popular conception of a "Brass Hat." He does not, nor is he ever likely to fly into a fine fury of outraged dignity when somebody calls him "Billy" instead of "Air Marshal."

His office, these days, is in one of the upper floors of a tall building. The wall on the right of his desk is covered with maps—maps of France, of Belgium, of Germany—maps often pinpointed over which he fought the air duels that made him first a legend, later a friend. On the left is covered by a huge Air Force flag. Behind him are windows.

His secretary notices that occasionally he swings a chair around and stares through the windows at the sky, and she has a hunch that when he does that he is thinking of his pals gone on overseas, and is wishing he could exchange his Air Marshal's uniform for the old one.

He himself hasn't much to say on that point except that at the men who were over last time would love to be fighting for their country again. But it creeps into his conversation. We asked whether he had had a reject, as directors of recruiting for the R.C.A.F., many applicants who were "Over Bishop's" (perhaps) figure, answered, "I have. But not because they were too old to fly. Because they were beyond the age limit."

Compares Flyers

"How do present day flyers shape up with those of the Great War?"

"The flyers of today know everything about flying that there is to know. They are keen and keen on duty. In the old war - a training course meant about 25 hours of flying time and some boys went on their first trip with far less. Including training, the flyer may put 400 hours in which he shot down 72 enemy aircraft, had more than 300 hours of flying time during his training period.

"Is flying more difficult now?"

"More difficult to learn. The planes have more gadgets and controls. The landing is faster, and the takeoff, but the actual handling in the air is no harder."

"What makes a good flyer?"

"Eyesight—first and last. And physical condition. Modern aircraft flies so fast, there can be no room for the boy to be in perfect physical condition."

Girls Want to Fly

The Air Marshal said that that part of the Air Force which consists of encouraging recruits is no job at all. "Canadian youth consists of every day at a steadily increasing rate. There are any number who want to fly. There are also a surprising number qualifying to come over in other categories. Youngsters in lonely outposts and great cities across Canada clamored for acceptance to become pilots. Girls, too."

Letters from the girls are carefully filed for future reference.—J. Selanders in Ottawa Journal.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

An Open Letter to Congress of the United States

Navy, in the North Sea, in the Gibraltar and the French Army in France. For if you do, the British Isles has lost a war and lost its power, and will be the prisoner of Hitler.

x x x

Gentlemen, the British Navy is the defense of our eastern seaboard and the defense of the Panama Canal. If it goes, we are open on the whole Atlantic. And the Navy is twenty times the size in the Pacific. For one hundred and fifty years the British Navy has been a police as well as a defense because of the British Empire, and for no other reason whatsoever. In respect of the political independence of the American states, it has happened that Great Britain and we have stood as a matter of no importance whether that agreement was based on ideas, reasons or reasons of self-interest. The agreement existed, and it has been safe with a one-ocean navy to defend our outposts on the Pacific. Only the British Navy held the outposts to the Atlantic.

There is talk in Washington now of building a two-ocean navy. Gentlemen, if the British Navy goes into German hands our whole future will have been settled before a keel is laid.

x x x

Just as Great Britain and France gave to the Spanish Republic the most important outpost of their defense, and the Republic of the Maginot line and the productive forces of the two countries united, to have these divisions and these armaments been thrown against Franco's armies later—giving up resources which it would take months and many years to replace—so we, if we permit the British Navy to go into the hands of the Nazis, will have given them the strategic key to the Western Hemisphere policy and the independent existence of the United States will be doomed.

This doom will not follow five years after the fall of French defeat. It will follow immediately. It will be the signal for the Nazi Party in American history will be that though you can defy them with words, devices and of excellent intention, you acted too late.

x x x

There are times in history when a crucial decision is avoided. This is such a time. The choice of the future lies in the independence of our arms. There are the hardest words that I number in the days and words that I number in the days of my life, gentlemen, for those few of us who have realized the menace of Hitler. But we are going to happen and have tried to warn the people of the United States, have shackled our own tongues lest that our warnings were distorted, and have prayed that history might not be written in blood. We have hypersensitive to the cry of "war-monger." Gentlemen, that is finished. Now we have heard this cry from the lips of Hitler. It is the cry used to conquer the world by war and revolution.

We, too, have been influenced by the democratic hatred of war, but we have refused to believe anything so monstrous as a conspiracy to destroy democracy.

x x x

Yes, and now, there is certainly a way to avoid war. That is to capitulate. That is to say: This capitulation, this way of life, and all the ideals upon which it is based, we shall give up. We shall no longer the will or the courage to defend democracy. We remake it, as part of a remade world. We shall no longer have the secret the task and have the will to undertake it, have their way with us.

That is a point of view. It is held by many and by the finest minds of students in our universities, and by statesmen who have been called to no heroic or sensible communal task, and who say, "Why fight? Let Hitler run the world, and us too."

That is your view, gentlemen, a view held perhaps half-unconsciously by your finest minds, then take no action. But if it is not your view, then you are committed that the black cross of the Nazi flag shall not wave over the British Isles, and that the projects; if you are determined that the Nazi flag shall not wave over the Federalist" and of Lincoln, shall not wave over the United States, then you should go to war, and go now. How you may do it, whether you may do it over the time before that we are not neutral and that we are not belligerent, is unimportant. But you must decide no longer be non-belligerent is unimportant. But you must decide that America will not accept a world settlement that leaves her out, and that we shall stand with Britain and France, to achieve a new world settlement that will guarantee freedom, and our faith, that civilization will continue.

x x x

Specifically, this move on our part will mean immediately that the British Navy will remain under forces of England and France, including the British Navy, will be a part of our armed forces, while the naval policy here and control of this country will be part of the United States. Specifically, this will mean the retreat in Europe, the world is not lost. Specifically, it will mean that from the end of this earth to the other the hearts of men, and those who are preparing to fight, will take courage to endure what they must endure.

You will say that we are unprepared to go to war. It is true. Let us not tell each other lies. We are woefully unprepared. Our value must spring from the realization that we have nothing to lose. We tomorrow, if the British fleet is gone, we shall be infinitely less prepared. Today we have an Atlantic Navy, if we wish to share it. Today we have a British Navy in France, if we wish to hearten and fortify it. They are not our first line of defense. They are our last line of defense. But we can plans that they bring down, all the Germans and Italians in the world can help us, and what strategical retreats we may have to make, we would be made by all of us together.

x x x

Gentlemen, I have spent the months in Europe, in half a dozen countries, which though not at war, nevertheless, for the time they are all entirely dependent upon the British Navy. They have Allies. Our allies are the common man, whether he be in the streets of Ankara or Zagreb or Florence, or Zurich. All round this earth there is fear and admiration man is against the Nazis. Whatever their governments may say, the words "freedom" and "human dignity" have a meaning. Fight for him, in our country's name: The United States of America for! Fight with America do!" It is a desperate question and I know that the British Navy will raise more cohorts than you have. Only Mussolini, in Italy, will rise them among all who believe in the Nazi way of life.

If the British Navy goes, Spain goes. Do you think for an instant that Franco will not be dependent on Nazism with all Europe in his hands, with the Mediterranean Ocean as well? The ties of South America with Germany and Italy are with Europe. The Fascist fifth columns are there. In the United States with Western Hemisphere. If the British Navy goes, Nazi revolutions will be precipitated in South America, and they will not occur in the United States. You will have a space of weeks or months. Brazil and Argentina will not do that and it will happen. The idea of the conquest of South America, of the big German colonies there, from within and without, is the dream of the Nazis. Your time is at least as far as 1902, when the Monroe Doctrine was born. The British that he and they should make it. Then the United States, South America and that British should abandon support of the British Navy.

The logic of facts is inexorable. If Germany can build a two-ocean every ship not in the Pacific to the Atlantic, and within a few months, a few weeks, if a joint policy deems that necessary, can be made mobilize immediately the total man and material power of the British.

We must act, in order that the people of this land know that Italy is not entering to give a Mediterranean to Hitler, that Britain's war and to obtain for Mussolini a favorable position among the spoilers of the British Empire. We must act to prevent Spain and Portugal from entering the war. We must act in order to have a basis to the disposition of the world.

x x x

Otherwise our frontiers are lost: the gateways to the Atlantic and the Panama Canal. The Nazis will have bases in Africa, in the Caribbean and in South America. The Atlantic, with a Hackenkreuz over it, will be a Nazi sea—their Mare Nostrum.

And then, gentlemen, the "fifth column" in this country will attempt its task—the task laid down by Adolf Hitler, of conquering America by means within the land. It will be a Nazi sea—their Mare Nostrum.

We shall be isolated gentlemen. Isolated for the kill. And democracy may live in your day and mine, but democracy will die.

Blood Ties

King Leopold III of the Belgians, is of predominantly German blood.

He is the great grandson of the founder of the present Belgian royal line, Leopold I, who was the youngest son of Ernest, Saxe-Coburg Gotha at the time of his election to the throne of Belgium in 1831.

Leopold III is the son of the late King Albert and his wife, the Queen Elizabeth, Duchess of Germa Bavaria.

King Albert was the son of Russia Gets No Trade Gain From Nazis

No substantial growth of Russian exports seems possible. In 1930 the Soviet exported goods to the total of 2,900,000 paper rubles; in 1938 they totalled 1,200,000,000—far less than one of the combined Russian-European states. Soviet imports from Germany fell from 213,000,000 marks in 1930 to 58,000,000 marks (about 14,650,000) in 1938.

Since 1933 the Soviet Government has been deliberately cutting down its foreign trade. Crude oil exports cannot be increased without endangering the oil supply for tractors and, consequently, the food supply. Textile production is far below Russian needs; there is no surplus of metals; the only raw material produced in excess of the needs of the home market is manganese.

Machinery is no longer being used up at the incredible rate of the first five-year period, though it is still none too kindly treated; and at the cost of a great deal of current production of capital expenditure that completely disregards remunerative work. The Soviet machine industry has been built up.

The need for machinery imports is thus relatively small. Even if it is growing, greatly the need is great, but the means to import them on the scale that would make any impression on the vast home market do not exist.

The question remains whether Germany could send enough of the products of Soviet production so that the individual Russian could be induced to work and a surplus of goods be created for exchange purposes. Germany has about 40,000 foreign engineers and technicians in the Soviet Union, by far the greater part of them Germans, and the Germans are not all.

They have, however, behaved with great arrogance. Very soon the Russians discovered that these foreigners with their high salaries and their superior standard of living were Russians themselves, and in any case had nothing to teach them that could not be read up in foreign books and periodicals.

The experience gained with these highly paid specialists was a stoppage of the recruitment of engineers. Most of the German skilled workers were brought from abroad instead. Even the Stakhanovites are few. Every objection that could be taken to the German university men, their habit of shooting best about everything, their frightful tact in dealing with their Russian colleagues, their political blunders, could be taken also to the workmen.

And the engineers, with their big salaries, were at least able to secure a relatively tolerable existence. The more primitively trained technicians and workers, on the other hand, rebelled against their hunger and food and infected the Russian workers with their discontent. In the end the whole of the foreign skilled assistants were gradually dismissed and most of them left Russia from the country.

It seems altogether doubtful whether a foreigner can establish a fruitful position, "keep his end up" in a Soviet works. Many things are necessary for this purpose, and above them is the membership of an official slan.

No one can be enabled by own strength in the land of the Soviets. Success is due to a host of friends both in grades above and in those below him. Membership of an official clique is the thing that matters in Soviet life. If a factory manager is transferred from one factory to another within a few weeks all his friends and supporters will have followed him to his new place.

A new official is wanted and he appoints as subordinates a number of his own choice, the first consideration is "is he one of our men?" Security from denunciation, or not lying, is necessary and it is necessary to have a number of persons implicated with him in the same "hanging matter" so that they cannot denounce their mouths shut in their own interest.

Russia is the undergrowth of mutual relationships, of bonds which are literally a matter of life and death; for if any one goes under his friends and followers drag him down. The chief cause of purges into mass purges is that in the second will be personally impossible for an outsider to make a clean sweep because he and the foreigner can successfully find a place in this complicated system of intrative machinery. Thus there is little or nothing for foreigners. Apart from this, propaganda has immensely increased in importance among the Russian experts.

It is also possible, of course, and even probable, that Soviet Russia will give timely small supplies of this or other raw material when he is in a tight corner, but it cannot save him from premature collapse and capitulation. But on the occasion will he permit the intrusion of any foreign element into the structure of power of the Soviet Union. — N. Basseches in Manchester Guardian.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The second great battle of the war in the west has begun with a German offensive towards Paris following the seizure of the channel ports the isolation and defeat of the British Army in the north and the conquest of Belgium and Holland, Hitler has apparently chosen France as his next objective.

The big difference between the present battle and that one is that the element of surprise is lacking. Since the collapse of Allied resistance in the Flanders became obvious the French have had time to prepare for the present move.

It was obvious the Germans would strike in one of two directions, either at Paris or at England. The French army is the one powerful land force still barring Hitler's march to victory.

That army can expect little assistance from outside. The Royal Air Force troops are fighting with it. But the British Expeditionary Force is refitting and reinforcement after its harrowing experience in the retreat is brought back before it can again be a big factor in the land fighting on the continent.

The Germans followed different tactics in the first day of the new battle to those followed in the last few weeks. Infantry went forward first, aided by artillery bombardment and machine guns. The tanks and other mechanized equipment which enabled the Germans to drive long wedges quickly into Allied territory in the north were not employed.

Mary Forster and Her Pupils to Give Annual Dance Recital

Once again on Friday, June 7th, the Collegiate auditorium will reverberate to the sound of dancing feet as Miss Forster's pupils proceed to delight all present with their intriguing and beautiful dance numbers. This year's recital will be an extravaganza of beauty and color from the dainty costumes of the dancers, to the picturesque wheretos in evening dress.

Highlights of the evening will be the tiny tots of three, a five-year-old acrobatic dance and the Scottish-land dance routine by a wee bonnie Scotch lass four years old.

The guests artists of the evening will be Miss Joan Mirasky, talented reader and Miss Mary Alice Rogers, whose exceptional soprano voice will captivate all present. Miss Rogers is a pupil of Miss Leona Riggs.

In addition to these outstanding numbers will be a dance by Miss Forster herself with class and solo numbers in acrobatic, toe, tap and ballet dancing, topped off with a ballroom dancing exhibition of ballroom adagio to round out the evening's entertainment.

There will be an orchestra in attendance with Miss Grace Leeman at the piano.

This event has proven itself to be one of the outstanding attractions of the year.

Concert Features Tourist Camp Opening at Madoc

Madoc—Tuesday evening, Mr. Frank Smith, M.P., provincial Sheil gas dealer, held the annual opening of his tourist camp. The weather was most favorable for an outdoor concert which was given by the Sheil Gas and Oil Company, showing moving pictures of the gas and oil from the beginning to the finished product. Other pictures of interest were the visit of Our King and Queen to Canada during the United States last year, the Canadian Canada, Indian Encampment at Toronto, and many comics which interested the children.

Mr. Smith has one of the finest tourists camps, the cottages being equipped with running water, electric lights and all modern conveniences. During the evening the Customs officers are instructed to remove all such persons and all children intending to sail before granting a clearance to any ship or vessel. Customs officers also will see that no passport facilities are granted.

In certain cases, however, where it is proved that the voyage is not prohibition," the Secretary of State for External Affairs is authorized to grant permits to women, girls or children.

Penalties are provided for contraventions of the regulations. A fine of not more than $5,000 or not more than $500 or imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months, or both, at the discretion of the court is stipulated.

D.D.G.M. Pays Official Visit to Picton Lodge

Picton, June 6—Bl. Wor. Bro. Alexander McIntyre, D.D.G.M., paid an official visit to Star-in-the-East Lodge No. 144, on Friday night and was received by two hundred Masons from Prince Edward County and the Bay of Quinte district and greetings on this occasion as this is his home lodge at Wellington.

W. Bro. D. H. MacDonald, Master presided at the occasion in an able manner. The toast to the Grand Lodge was proposed by W. Bro. Rev. Dr. Ferguson, Grand Prior of Masonry has been a shining tradition through the years and while old St. John's and glorious deeds of the past, today are trying to tear down the principles and ideals that have governed the church would be the first to feel its effects. It is founded on faith and it is a man loses faith, he loses his sense of worth. Civilization today is in danger.

One thing is certain however, if civilization is to be preserved it will require all the principles of Free Masonry to help bring order out of chaos.

The task facing us is to erect kindness and reason which these times need. Much of this work can be done and will be done when family returns to the world of peace and love.

Rev. E. N. Grant, Wellington, responded to the toast to the visitors with response by Bro. Carson Hubbs of Picton, who felt that though Masonry was suppressed in some European countries, it was progressing. He traced the history of Masonry in an interesting manner. Solos during the evening were proposed by W. Bro. W. S. Ainsworth, Picton, and Mrs. Ainsworth, and Miss Helen MacDonald, head of the Girls' Choir of the Bay of Quinte at Wellington, who catered for the event.

Majestic, Snowy Peaks

(By TEMPLE MANNING)

With the European war changing the travel picture for this summer, thousands of Americans are turning their thoughts towards Canada, just as Canadians think in terms of a holiday in their friendly neighbor, the United States. The old-world charm of Quebec, the seafaring villages of the Maritimes, and the majestic snow-capped peaks of the Canadian Rockies, provide the glamor and interest of a foreign land without the hazards of an ocean voyage. The train, the airplane and for most of the folk, the family auto, provide the transportation.

In the East are the Maritime provinces, a friendly land, steeped in traditions of the sea. All up and down its spume-blown coast are wide, shelving beaches unspoiled by commercialism with rugged cliffs and sunny harbors where fishing boats find shelter. Close to the mainland are Prince Edward Island, a rolling pastoral country of incredible charm, peace and beauty, and the Province Island whose rocky cliffs and scenic loveliness are rivalled only by Lake Louise. Historically it is rich from town to meet the sea.

Both islands now boast a new national park. Historically the most important province is Nova Scotia, the original "Acadia" of Champlain's expeditions, is encircled by fine motor roads. Halifax, strategically on the tip of the peninsula, you pass through Lunenburg, Yarmouth, Digby, its really magnificent harbor and across fertile valleys, through apple orchards, to Evangeline Land. Here, close to the Bay of Fundy, are the villages of Grand Pre, and Grand Pre, surrounded by three-century-old willows, stands a simple stone church known, as in memory of those unhappy Acadians whose story has been so poignantly told in Longfellow.

Across the Bay of Fundy, whose freak tides play amazing tricks with coastal formations, lies New Brunswick, where thousands of American colonists loyal to the British crown settled during the War of the Revolution. Today their homes and tree-lined villages bear a startling resemblance to the New England countryside, while old St. John, often called the "New-port of the North," is a favorite summer resort for Americans.

Home of the Dionnes

Ontario is a most interesting province, with much to interest and delight. Her landscapes range from peaceful farms to primeval woodlands. The countryside is dotted with lakes, streams and rivers that it is a real holiday-land. Of course, there are countless miles to parade all the other charms of Ontario and remain on the beaten track, but travellers who watch these five lovable little girls as they go through their daily routine, will find one, now sweetly solemn, could spend a delightful and profitable vacation.

Canada's western provinces were this great North American lands to succumb to the romantic westward urge of the white man. Today this immense scenic playground, with Switzerland in the north, is world famous. Its national parks, including Jasper and Lake Louise, territory, is all delight. Stretching northward to Jasper, through mountains of breath-taking grandeur, lies the new Columbia Icefield Highway. In the green valleys filled with Alpine flowers and surrounded by glistening peaks there is adventure. Here there is joy and exhilaration of climbing through lofty mountain passes by foot or pack train.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Revival of Old-Fashioned Parties Aids Cupid

High-pressure methods in courtship, as well as high-pressure salesmanship in business, are destined to failure. So sometimes it seems as though much effort is expended in producing the result in the most complex often ensues.

I've had a letter from a group of girls who tell me, with a dash of humor, that while they entertain entirely honorable intentions towards certain young men, they find themselves somewhere else when they were when the snow began to fall last year.

They've rushed about in automobiles at sixty miles an hour.

They've danced, tapped, swung. The pace had been so hectic that the young men haven't had time to think about anything that suggested domesticity. They were always rushing somewhere, rushing to go somewhere else. No one ever seemed to spend a quiet evening at home.

Then a number of one of these girls, wise in her generation, suggested a return to less violent methods of companionship. They started back not only to day but to her mother's day. The spending evening at home and old-fashioned parties were just too quaint for anything—but it seems to be producing results. Among these antiquated diversions was the box social or apron and necktie party.

The box social as you know, or if you've ever read Edna Ferber's "So Big", gives a chance to show what a good cook she is in contriving the "eats" for her box. Boxes are auctioned off for a worthy cause—milk fund for undernourished children, for instance—and the young man who bids in the girl's box has the privilege of eating supper with her. Boxes revealing delicious fried chicken, tomato surprise, and good, dependable homemade cake have a way of turning the young man's thoughts to love in a hurry.

The tie-and-apron party probably will be confined to the kitchenettes—that's the way they used to propose in his day—even before he realized it. Again the worthy cause was sought, and the girls made the aprons and most feminine aprons. These were auctioned, and bid in by the admiring swains. The next move in the game was to find neckties that matched the girls' aprons. The girls made the neckties too—the whole charming business ended with suggestions of delightful domesticity.

Rent-and-mend can be combined because only the other day, at Mrs. Roosevelt's White House Conference on less vigilantism, Chairman of the Woman's Division of the Red Cross told the thousands of dinners held all over the country to open War Relief the box social was a prime favorite.

Picnic days are here again. If my young friends would only go to the trouble of these old-fashioned parties so antiquated that they seem positively new, I am very glad to send them a party menu. I'll gladly write me, enclosing a self-addressed three-cent stamped envelope.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECHMAN

Welcome Girl to Family

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My son has been accepted by his girl and now is going to talk things over with his parents and mother. I have met the girl's mother twice, and do not feel at all anxious to do everything graciously and correctly. Is there anything else I should have it?

1. Must I call as soon as everything is satisfactorily talked over with the girl's mother, or should I wait for the announcement of the engagement?

2. When I call, what must I do and say? How long should I stay?

3. What I invite the girl's family to my home? Or is it their social duty to call without an invitation?

M. R.

1. As soon as your son has had this important talk, you (and your husband, if he can) should call on the girl and her mother. The time of your call is the welcoming of the girl into your family. By it you show how happy you are about the engagement, how proud you are of your son's choice, and how enthusiastic for her fine qualities, and your eagerness and cooperate with your plans.

There is, of course, no rule about how long you stay, but you might plan on about half an hour.

2. Although it is taken for granted that the girl will return the mother's call, you might if you wish suggest that she do so. Perhaps you will see in the opportunity of welcoming you very soon to her home.

What happens after these two "musts" depends entirely on the circumstances of both families. You might, for instance invite the girl and her mother and sisters and brothers, if there are any, to come home to dine or for a cup of tea on a Sunday afternoon. Or these social obligations might be properly done from the girl's family.

Hat At Home
x x x

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Should a hat be worn to an informal dinner dance or should it be worn only to dance and plans to wear an afternoon dress?

M.

If you are planning to wear an afternoon dress to the informal dinner dance, it would be more appropriate for you to wear a hat, perhaps a hat of the type now so fashionable, a wisp of a flower or feather, but I do not like tiny feathers. After you arrive, if you feel that you rather miss one of your hat, it's very easy to do so.

Wed in Home Town

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Would it be correct for me to have a church wedding in my home town, where I have many friends and make our home after our marriage? I have been married before, very often and I know the pastor very well.

My home town is just a few miles from my fiance's home, but I am now living in a town some thirty miles away. Most of our social activities are centered in fiance's home town, and most of our friends live there.

Daily Reader

I should think that it would be natural that you would wish to have your wedding in your own home town, among your friends. This would place the church-connected ceremony in the town you belong, in your church instead of in your fiance's church.

DR. DAFOE'S Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

One Year Olds

Any family doctor knows that many parents do a lot of unnecessary worrying about their babies. He has to spend a good deal of time reassuring mothers and fathers who are upset because it appears that Johnny isn't walking as soon as he should, or Mary is backward in learning to talk, or Susie doesn't seem to understand things as well as a neighbor's child of the same age. I get numerous letters from parents, apparently deeply concerned, who want to know "if that accomplishments are to be expected in normal children by one or two or three years old.

It is impossible to lay down any set rules because the development of children may vary a lot in different children, even in the same family, being influenced by many factors. Of course, parents should watch their children for any signs of mental retardation or deficiency but they should not become unnecessarily concerned if such backward condition will manifest itself in ways that are almost unique. If a baby seems slow in one or two things there is no reason to worry. It's when baby is backward about most things that the matter should be given serious thought.

At one year, a baby can usually pull itself up from sitting to a standing position, and can sometimes walk without help. Occasionally babies walk at the age of six months, sometimes not till a year and a half before they begin. Most one-year-olds need to hold on to something to keep balance. One can toddle all over the house and can at least manage to say a few words and a lot of expressive sounds that stand for various feelings—like disgust, excitement and so on. At a year and three quarters George can, if one join two words in his speech and can repeat fairly well the sound of things said to him. At a year a child has learned to co-ordinate its senses—connects the sounds it hears with the movements responsible for them. By the approach of the second year, baby is entirely taken up with things around it. It is busy trying to imitate adults—feeding itself, trying to dress itself, trying to sweep the floor and do other jobs it watches adults do.

GOING OUT a great deal means plenty of clothes, and plenty of jackets. A good evening jacket will be worn as an evening dress in quite pink silk crepe into a dinner model. It is cut on the princess lines with enormous pocket appliqued in deep pink and wine felt flowers on the skirt.

"Lover Come Back"

By BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

Kemp ran toward the Japanese, arms reaching out ahead as if to meet the other's fire halfway. The flat, snarling report of the automatic sounded across the water. Kemp lurched, faltered, but kept on. More shots followed swiftly—five of them. Yet the white man plunged straight on, his bare hands feeling all the way until they were past the smoking automatic, and found on Ikeda's shoulders. There was a flash of movement; then Ikeda's body, arms and legs grotesquely outspread, rolled through the air to land heavily against the Dragon's low-slung deck. Ikeda lay motionless. Kemp wavered, stumbled, and went down on his face. As he struggled to rise, the master came to life and leaped at him, swinging the axe. Kemp twisted sideways, and his hand came up holding Ikeda's gun. The gun spoke once, and the measley sparsh-ut forward across Kemp, the axe flashing down into the deck beyond.

The shooting had brought the Japanese crew boiling out on deck where, at sight of the unconscious Ikeda, and Kemp feebly crawling from under the body of the dead master, they stood in an undecided huddle. From their excited pointing at the body and the axe, it was even the defensive Kemp had run amuck and attacked their two bosses. The helmsman, in the wheel house, unable to see the action on the after deck, held to the course that had been given him; a course which, every moment, was taking the Dragon farther and farther from Glory and the swimming girl.

Kemp, dragging himself to his feet, shook his head to get his feet and was staring toward the stern, walking stiffly like a man in armor. He tripped against the grating and went down on hands and knees. Unable to rise again, he crawled the last few feet to a pile of sacked coal, fumbled there a moment, and then, with some object between his two hands, twisted his body toward the stern rail. Sprawled there, with his arms hanging over the stern, he dropped the object into the sea.

A green wave lifted it high and held it for a moment, glittering like a gil lon the sun-bright crest. O'-Moore let out a cry. "Ma little ship! The model of the boy where I kept me secret charts."

"Aye," Mayes' voice was harsh with emotion, his knuckles like marble as they gripped his glasses. "And where they're kept safe—if I know anything of what lends strength to crying men. . . ." He caught his breath, and pointed toward the speeding Dragon.

With labored precision, Kemp was again getting to his feet. His movements were spaced and jerky, as if each one required a separate and agonized effort of will. From the jewel group of Japanese clustered about Ikeda, one detached himself and trotted aft to offer assistance to the swaying white man.

Kemp weakly thrust the boy away. Alone, unaided, his white shirt crimson from breast to waist, he drew himself up and as if on parade. He was facing the Glory, but his eyes were lifted to something far above her deck—the faded Stars-and-Stripes that fluttered from the old ship's mizzen-top. His right hand snapped up in salute . . . wavered . . . dropped limply. Then all the stiffness went out of him. He willed down to the Dragon's deck and lay there, very still.

"Navy, by heaven!" Mayes' voice broke.

Captain O'Moore slowly lowered the telescope and wiped a mist from his eyes. "Aye," he said, gently. "And a man, moreover. A sailor man."

A shout from the forward lookout jerked The Captain to attention. Not far ahead he could see the white flash of Sondra's arms as she breasted a curling wave. Time to stop ship, and lower the whaleboat.

With mainsail aback, the Glory spilled the wind from her courses and came to a shuddering stop. The whaleboat splashed into the water and shot swiftly away.

The Captain watched Reynall help Sondra in over the whaleboat's stern, and nodded proudly when the girl took her place on a midship thwart as one of the oarers cast. "She's safe, God bless her. Unharmed."

The whaleboat was picking up the little model of the Glory, when Sparks spoke at the Captain's elbow. "The Pelley will be here in thirty minutes, sir. That must be her smoke we can see now on the northern horizon."

An hour later the Glory lay hove-to near the Pelley. The Miss Dragon, in charge of Pelley bluejackets, rose and fell on th waves between.

The destroyer's commander had just come aboard the Glory, and now sat in the master's cabin with Reynall, O'Moore, Mayes and the Forest Man. "I certainly needed that drink," Commander Ellsworth declared, setting down his glass, "after what I saw aboard the Dragon."

The others waited for him to continue.

"Ikeda—we found him in his stateroom. Had an O-sword. Quite a mess—boy lay dead, shot through the head. Afi on the grating, equally dead and with enough lead through his middle to sink him, but apparently hospitalized, eyeing the civilians present.

"We all know," Mayes put in quickly, "that the nerves of all nations pretty much on edge, and with anti-Japanese feeling in Alaska running high because of friction on the Bering fishing grounds, a full and public report of this affair might rock the world. I'd welcome your advice in the matter."

"The world has heard never a peep of it—yet," Captain O'Moore suggested, meaningly.

"But it mighty soon will, once the Dragon and what's aboard her reaches port," retorted Mayes.

The Forest Man leaned forward. "Neither the Dragon nor what's aboard her need ever reach port," he said quietly. "Oh, don't think I'm suggesting that we sink them, Commander," as Ellsworth flashed him a startled glance,—"but we know there's a Japanese cruiser just a few miles over there, waiting for Ikeda. I suggest that you give the Dragon's crew their liberty, and a course which will take them to that vessel. Let them take their Dragon and their deceased compatriots, and do all their explaining on the high seas—to their Japanese commander."

"Ye-e-es," Ellsworth nodded consideringly. "But what about—Lieutenant Colfax?" He glanced at Mayes, and they both looked inquiringly at the Forest Man.

After a moment the Forest Man spoke with a gentle deliberation which added emphasis to his words. "In all by investigation of the case, I don't remember ever finding the slightest evidence of treasonable activity on the part of Lieutenant-Kemp Starbuck Colfax."

The Navy men faced him expectantly, a warm glow of approval in their eyes.

That was the hint of a smile in the Forest Man's own eyes, but his blond-bearded face was completely grave as he went on: "I shall report to the chief of my department that Lieutenant Colfax, working alone in an effort to establish his innocence in that Cornelia Beach affair, discovered instead the plot of a radical group of foreign militarists. A plot which, if consummated, must have wrecked grave injury to the United States. . . . That Lieutenant Colfax then, with the utmost courage and self-sacrifice, did take the only measures possible for the frustration of the plot and the elimination of the danger. . . . That he was killed in the struggle; that he paid with his life for his success. . . . Are those the approximate facts, as observed by the Navy, sir?"

Every man present nodded assent. Mayes silently shook hands with the Forest Man, then turned to address Commander Ellsworth. "I shall hand you a similar report, sir, officially, within the hour."

The Commander replied formally, "I shall be happy to approve such a report, Lieutenant Mayes, and to forward it through channels to the Secretary of the Navy. Now"—he rubbed his glass—"I think that report . . . and to him."

The glasses stood and, facing west, silently drained their glasses.

x x x

Close-hauled on the long-running swells, the Glory of the West slipped along in the moonlight, a lazy shadow of water under her forefoot. Yesterday's half-gale had fallen to a gentle breeze. The laughing merriment of the Dragon's people pointed the way toward home.

In the master's cabin, Captain O'Moore and Miss Jacqueline, each comfortable in a pair of riviera, were bending over a map spread out on the table. The Captain's eyes were lively and youthful, and his brogue richer by several thicknesses. Miss Jacqueline's face, singularly gentle under the white braids wound about her proud head, had never looked so handsome. Names, like music, ripped off their tongues — Juneau, Panuco, Baka Hiva, Manga Riva, Singapore.

In the big marcoil leather chair just beyond the circle of light, Sondra in one of Miss Jacqueline's gowns sat watching the pair with unseeing eyes. She was thinking of Kemp, who had given his life that she might be here, unharmed. Thinking of his last, swift words to her, as he swung her toward the Dragon's stern for her dive into the sea: "Good-by—dearest in all the world." And she was remembering her last glimpse of him, that afternoon, as the Pelley steamed slowly past the ferry's rail. Kemp—stricken sed so still on the after hatch of the destroyer, a bright navy U.S. ensign covering him, a guard of honor standing at attention on either side.

Suddenly her thoughts were plunged with hot, aching tears. She rose hastily, and went out on the mail deck.

The sheer beauty and splendor of a deepwater ship under sail in the moonlight, lifted her out of her sorrow.

As she stood there, Jean Reynall suddenly appeared before her, his tall figure and blowing hair outlined against the light of the moon at his back. With an old-fashioned courtesy, he pretended to lift a hat from his bare head.

"Mistress O'Moore—" His voice had taken on her grandfather's rich brogue. "On nights like this, when the sailin' master makes inspection of his deck, 'tis the custom for him to invite the fairest of his young women passengers to join him and be instructed about the moon and stars—as a aid to navigation." He bowed low, from the waist. "Mistress O'Moore, will you honor me with your company on the night for a tour of astronomical observations?"

Sondra, holding her skirt out on either side, bobbed a curtsy. "I thank you, Captain Reynall." And came back primly. "I have always been deeply interested in the celestial spheres. I shall do my utmost to profit from your kind instruction, sir."

"Excellent, Mistress O'Moore. First, then we shall decide on the matter of position." He stepped very close, his face close to hers, smiling down at her. "Now,"—his arm slipped gently about her,—"having fixed my position with relation to a—er—heavenly body, I—"

She laughed, and tried to say, "Idiot"; but somehow the word was lost in the middle. And then, in the moonlight, the two laid low the single, still shadow on the Glory's deck.

From the master's cabin came the happily argumentative voices of Captain Dynamite Danny O'Moore and Miss Jacqueline Reynall with, presently, a peal of laughter from the latter. "Oh, Danny, you mule-headed, hard—nosulted Mick! Never in all my wanderings over the big wide world have I found anyone who was such darned fun to fight with, as you!"

The ship's bell struck, and the youthful voice of the forward lookout called a report. Eight bells—eight of ancient formula of the sea:

"F-o-u-r bells—all's well—clear, calm night, with all lights burning bright, and a-l-l's w-e-l-l!"

Healthy Babies Put Yun Winkle On His Mettle

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

The very young baby ought to sleep practically all the time when not being fed or bathed; at least for three months, nineteen to twenty hours; at six months, about twenty. A should sleep about twelve hours at night with only one regular afternoon nap at night for feeding. He should also have, both morning and afternoon, a nap of about two hours each period. These naps, which grow gradually shorter, should continue at the age of a year, with a twelve-hour period at night.

Later, the morning nap may grow shorter and shorter and finally will be abandoned at the age of two or so. Thereafter, until school begins, the afternoon nap is very essential.

Nothing so essential to good sleep habits are strict regularity. A variation of fifteen minutes may entirely upset them. A separate bed is important. There should be enough cotton pads and blankets so these articles need never be left wet after the baby's clothing has been changed.

Sewing Troughs

The temperature of the sleeping room should not be over 60 degrees, but well ventilated without draughts. The windows should be open all night, preferably with a canvas screen. Though there should be no disturbing noises, the infant will easily adapt himself to the family home routine.

After several weeks, sleep out-of-doors may be desirable. Some recommend that the baby should not be out in temperature much below 40 degrees. In a crowded city, a well ventilated room may be better. If you have followed such a program strictly and your baby does not go to sleep readily, or sleep restlessly, consult your physician.

Be sure you do not allow yourself to train your baby to command you to take him up. Do not take him into bed with you, to lie down with him or beside him, to feed him off schedule, and the like. Most sleep problems in young children grow out of the human frailties of their parents—easy to say, hard to correct in some cases and as hard for others whom we advise, to correct. Always was, always will be, good luck.

Q. The father of a little boy I know grabs the little boy by the ears and pulls him along when he does not come when called. Don't you think this a dangerous thing to do?

A. It certainly is; besides it is barbarous.

Sparkling Eyes Need Rest

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

Synthetic aids fall down, and millions of the gay are suffering from strain and fatigue. Eye shadows, demountable eyelashes, mascara-limned wishes—one might as well not bother with them; they only make more apparent the lack of vitality and sparkle. You have to get down to first principles, find out what's wrong and correct it.

When the first spoonful makes you want to SING

THESE ARE THE FLAKES FOR ME TRA-LA!

They'll really give you the "lift" you need

The busier you are, the more vital is a breakfast that does three essential things: (1) rouses your sleepy appetite; (2) gives you the quick energy you need; (3) helps sustain you through hours of driving work.

Proven first in flavour, rich in energizing "carbon hydrates," Kellogg's Corn Flakes help keep you going for hours. Time-saving, too — 50 seconds to serve . . . no pots to clean.

Get Kellogg's Corn Flakes—several packages—tomorrow! When you breakfast out, insist on the wax-wrapped individual package! Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

THE ORIGINAL AND STILL THE BEST

"Kellogg's five to one," say families across Canada. Yes, that's the preference in every province answered this question: "What ready-to-serve cereal is favourite in your family?" five times as many said "Kellogg's" as said ANY other kind of corn flakes. The trained palates of flavour experts, tasting all four brands of corn flakes, backed up this housewife's vote. One of many to take this impartial test, M. Claude Bonjard, Chef of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, Montreal, says: "This corn-flake contest decisively proved to me that Kellogg's are the favourite!"

ECONOMICAL! A few pennies provide the family's Corn Flake supper when you serve fresher, crisper Kellogg's Corn Flakes. Ask your grocer for the new family-size packages tomorrow.

Learning to Read

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Frequently in this column I have urged parents to train the child in beginning in his second year and continuing until he enters or enters school. Thus a parent not only gives a child wholesome pleasure but also cultivates ease and force of expression in him, fires his imagination, fills his mind with facts and motivates him to learn to read by and by, on his own.

Something else happens when the parent reads daily to the child for years and years. The parent improves his own speech and style of writing. I can testify. I used to speak and write more laboriously than at present. When I wrote my doctor's dissertation I toiled for weeks and months over it after all the data was assembled; and then it was finished it was hard to read. For a number of years thereafter I could wrote with great difficulty, having to revise repeatedly.

Helpful to Parents, Too

But, beginning with the first child, about 1914, I read to him, and continued with him and the other children as they came along. I eventually developed a clear and simpler style and slowly aggured writing. And not only help him but it also help yourself. You improve your own speech and writing.

Time was when nearly all reading at school was oral reading. By and by it was discovered that many children could read well without knowing what they read. Then there developed a strong movement at school on silent reading so that many children now in high school can scarcely read aloud even a page of average difficulty. Naturally such a person does not read aloud for pleasure. Fortunately, the pendulum is slowly swinging to more oral reading.

The youth or adult who wishes to improve his vocabulary, his ease and forcefulness of speech and writing, should read aloud every day. Abraham Lincoln read aloud not only when a boy but also when a man, even while in the White House. This fact may help explain the simple pellucid English he employed.

Habit of Reading Aloud

Lincoln's speeches are good material for an effort on children to read aloud. So also are some of the books Abe Lincoln read, including Bohnson's Rasselas, Pilgrim's Progress and the Bible. There's no better English to read than the Psalms, Isaiah or the Gospels, in the King James Version. Fortunate the family where its members often read aloud to one another. When all alone in a hotel, where a Bible usually is in every room, I often read aloud, hoping to improve my style of speech and writing. Anyone who does so can improve his expression "without money and without price."

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Would you spank a tot of three who deliberately had thrown a block at the mirror, in order to make him pick up the block after he had refused to do so?

A. No I would not. I would command him to pick it up then. I would make him pick up the block after he had refused to do so?

Q. Can we at home help educate would not to do or repeat. I wanted him not to do or repeat. I would not. Please suggest what our children against cheating at I wanted him to do or do again. school?

W. Masterson, Senator Hurler Throws Four-Hitter Against Cleveland to Easily Win 6-1

Indians Did Not Lose Ground as Boston Red Sox Defeated by St. Louis

ROWE WINS FOURTH

Schoolboy Rowe of Tigers Assisted His Own Cause by Knocking in Four Runs

(By Dalton Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

Washington Senators, who have had little enough to cheer about this spring, are rightfully cheerful over the suddenly sensational pitching of young Walter Masterson.

This lithe righthander, who won't be 30 years old until June 22, set Cleveland Indians on their ears yesterday with a five-hit pitching performance that was the day's brightest achievement in the Major Leagues.

What made the effort more exciting for the Senators, however, was the fact it came upon the heels of a three-hitter Masterson hurled May 30 in a seven-inning game against Philadelphia Athletics.

Plagued by injuries, Washington hardly has been able to hold its head erect in the American League skirmishing this season, but good pitching would solve most of the club's troubles.

They got masterful pitching by Masterson yesterday. He shut out the three tight innings before giving a run trickle across in the ninth. The verdict had been sealed in his favor by a five-run flurry in the fourth, when Jim Bucheck's home-red with its bases loaded.

Pesky Brewers Win

The pesky Chris Brewers nudged Boston Red Sox into their third straight, 6-3 in 10 in the innings, to preserve the one-half game margin between the Sox and the Indians at the top of the standings.

The Browns pushed across two runs in the ninth to tie the count, and placed their trust in the hands of young Harris who allowed but seven scoreless innings in relief and slugged the winning run across with two out in the 10th.

Schoolboy Rowe pitched and batted Detroit Tigers to a 8-1 triumph over Philadelphia Athletics for a night game, their seventh straight in acquiring his fourth victory without defeat and batted his total of Detroit's runs.

New York Yankees jumped on Lefty Thornton Lee for 13 hits and stopped Chicago White Sox in Cincinnati Reds improved their station in the National League with 7-3 conquest of New York Giants in another night contest.

In the only other game in the senior circuit Chicago Cubs edged out the Phillies 3-2 on the field at Jessandro accounting for all Chicago runs on a double with the bases loaded.

Yesterday's Stars

(By the Associated Press)

Schoolboy Rowe, Tigers—Limited Athletics to seven hits and knocked three runs home in winning fourth straight.

George Selkirk, Yankees — Got three hits, including homer in 6-0 and 12-hit assault on White Sox.

Walter Masterson, Senators—Allowed Indians only four hits for 6-1 decision.

GRADS WIN LAST GAME

Edmonton, June 6 — (CP) — Edmonton Grads, International Women's Basketball Champions, defeated Chicago Queen Anne Aces 49-43 here last night to take the three-game, total points exhibition series 163-136. It was Grads' last appearance as a team as they disband today on their 25th anniversary.

National Open Golf Tourney Opens at Cleveland

Cleveland, O., June 6 — (AP)—Golf's greatest show—the National Open Championship—sent an all-star cast of par shakers into the circle against wind and distance at Canterbury Golf Club today.

The defending champion is slender Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., and he said him are some 169 other top flight professionals and amateurs. And up against it are them are the 6,231 yards of Canterbury's terrain, hazards and tiny nerve-cracking, steady Lake Erie breezes.

"Slamming Sam" Snead and Ben Hogan are rated co-favorites at 6-1 to take the crown Nelson won after last year's double playoff at Philadelphia. Snead has been exceptionally long and straight off the tee, while "Hustling Ben" not long enough to produce three subpar rounds in consecutive practice jaunts.

UPTOWN JUNIORS DEFEAT PICTON BY BRISK RALLY

Down 4-2 in Sixth Frame but Emerge Winners 10-6 When Picton Infield Falters

HOOK THE WINNER

Yarrow is Heavy Sticker With Three Doubles and a Single

Four glaring errors in the fatal sixth inning, when the visitors were leading 4-3 with the game apparently well in hand, allowed the Uptown "Uptown" Juniors to score seven runs to take a commanding lead over the Picton Thomlinson at the Coleman Flats last evening with the game eventually being called in the eight inning with the Juniors leading 10-6.

Up to the stanza the visitors seemed to have the Juniors' number and with the aid of a timely two run lead with Tuttle, the visiting hurler, having the Indian sign over the locals, when suddenly the visitors started breaking for the bag and the game was won and lost when four miscues combined with only three hits allowed the winners their big scoring spree and the game.

Powers glanted on the mound for the Juniors but had considerable difficulty in finding the plate with four walks being issued in the second inning, when the visitors scored three times and he was replaced by Hook who finished the game. With the exception of the seventh, when the losers got to Hook for two runs he was completely master of the situation. In the six innings he worked, Hook retiring the side on strikeouts in the second, eighth, ninth and tenth batters, walked one and allowed only three hits, which were scattered to keep them well scattered. Tuttle for the visitors worked like master on the side on strikeouts in the first inning and although the kids were getting runners on base in every frame, their hits were kept well scattered and only in the seventh did the entire Picton infield slipped badly, when three runs were scored in that frame by Attsly, who stemmed the tide for the locals when he drove in the run in the next inning but the fire works broke out afresh in the sixth when the Juniors made their runs account of darkness.

Picton got first when they counted three in the third but the Juniors came back with a like number in their half. The visitors added another in the next frame and as there was no more scoring to exticnce until the sixth when the Juniors batting order completely changed managed to count twice in their half of the inning before the Juniors adding one for good measure to complete the count.

Yarrow was the heavy sticker of the night connecting for three doubles and a single with Gibbs batting out two two base hits. Yarrow batted in seven runs to start the eighth but before the batting was completed darkness had intervened and the game was called.

Picton: Claus 3b, Frederick ss; Mason and Newmonde 2b; Minaker lf; Tuttle p; Attsly cf; Hartnett rf; Wilbanks rf; Attsly lb, and Tuttle p.

Uptown Juniors: Whitney 3b; Gibbs rf; Vaughan lb; Yarrow rf; Clare cf; Braddon c; Mansfield ss; Cook and Sharpe rf; Powers and Hook p.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, June 6—(AP)—Tuisto Makl is working hard in Camp Finland as a deck hand on a freighter, but Lauri Lehtinen, who is persoring in Ray Doan's baseball academy, will wing down the first of a 10-day appearance in Chicago. . . . May sound strange, but the Yanks are a better position right now than they were two years ago at this time of the year. Everybody hooked when Mike Jacobs announced the Joan Leslie-Joe Louis exhibition would be staged in New York than out here in the far west where dogs bark at strangers.

The forward surge of the Yanks hasn't changed Connie Mack's mind—he still says they'll finish second. . . . Jimmy Foxx will be withdrawn from the American Football league all star game to give the nucleus for a new pro loop to be formed in the east. . . . Jimmy Foxx is a great breeding along and around here they're regarded as a red hot pennant threat.

PREMISES RAIDED 19TH TIME

Brantford, Ont., June 5—(CP)—A 19th time in the last 10 days after burglars had raided the premises of the Egg Peel Company for the 19th time in the last 10 years. Ergo has become accustomed to the break-ins that nothing is left accessible to burglars and the thieves last night went without booty.

They were just wasting time and might better have had a night's sleep, police said this morning. Ergo said this morning.

GUS LESNEVICH EASILY DEFEATED BY BILLY CONN

Loses Light-Heavyweight Title to the Holder but Conn Likely to Become Heavyweight

CAN'T MAKE WEIGHT

Conn, a Slow Starter, Came With Rush in Late Rounds to Get Unanimous Decision

Detroit, June 6—(AP)—Gus Lesnevich, a dogging pugilist from Clifton Park, N.J., lost his chance to win the light-heavyweight boxing championship of the world last night but he woke up today with the knowledge that the title will probably be his within a few days.

Billy Conn, the champion, regained his crown from Lesnevich a few minutes after receiving the decision in a 15-round defence of the crown.

Lesnevich was in a shower cooling his body when Billy Conn walked in.

"It was a nice fight, Billy," said Gus. "I have no alibi."

"Don't feel bad," answered Conn because the championship will be yours in a few days. This fight proclaimed me as a natural lightweight any more and from now on I'll campaign in that class with the other light-heavies."

"But I don't want the title that way," said Lesnevich. "I want to win it in the ring."

"I'll make no fight me again because a heavyweight," said Conn. He said he intended to take a shot at heavyweight champion Joe Louis.

The fight, one of the most sensational pounding bouts in Detroit's history, was a replica of the first battle in May in which the boxers between the men. Conn, a slow starter, apparently piled decisions in the early rounds and then closed with whirlwind rush in the last few minutes to win a unanimous decision of referee Sam Hennessy and Judges Michael Burke and Harry Hall.

Only in the final round Lesnevich's legs betrayed him as he constant as the final round after Conn's left hook on the chin sent him to a corner where the canvas had been made slippery by water splashed from a bucket.

JOHNNY PAYCHEK TO QUIT RING

Chicago Negro Heavyweight Knocks Out Paycheck in Tenth Round at Chicago

Chicago, June 6 (AP)—Johnny Paycheck is through with the ring.

He decided today to hang up his boxing gloves, following his 10th round knockout by Lee Q. Williams last night at the hands of Altius Allen, Chicago Negro heavyweight. Paycheck said he has lost all desire for boxing; that since Joe Louis knocked him out in nine rounds nine weeks ago his coordination had been impaired.

Allen, 24, was unknown when Allen's right cut Paychek's left ear. The crowd of 4,000 saw a savage fight. There was no question of Allen's punching.

In the 10th round, Allen crashed over a short right cross that dropped Paycheck for a nine count. A similar punch then knocked Paycheck flat on his back.

MEMBERS SUGGESTS ALL INDUSTRY BE TAKEN BY GOV'T

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. National Chairman, Speaks During Unemployment Relief Debate

WOULD CO-OPERATE

Ottawa, June 6—(CP)—A suggestion that all industries capable of producing war materials should be taken over by the Dominion Government was given the House of Commons yesterday by the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation during the unemployment relief debate.

The dire Allied need for war materials made such a move imperative, M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar) told the Commons.

"We have the materials, we have the men and we ought to be organizing the entire economic resources of this country immediately in order that we may render the maximum aid possible," the C.C.F. national chairman said.

His proposal came during debate in yesterday's short session on the general resolution preceding the government's annual bill for unemployment relief and agricultural assistance.

The large body of unemployed continuing in war time and the plight of the farmers of both the prairies and eastern Canada were pictured to the House as the discussion proceeded.

"I say now, while it is not too late, that we should repair our mistakes—and let us admit that we have made mistakes. I am not accusing the government of having made all the mistakes," Mr. Coldwell said.

Explains Plan

Instead of wrangling over past mistakes, to deal with particular problem; instead of talking about unemployment, let us try to end it, at least for the duration of the war.

"In doing so, never mind the contracts; never mind private interests. Let us take over every power plant, every mine, every factory, every shipyard that we need, as we need them, not all at once, and organize our labor force to give the material aid our Allies need."

Mr. Coldwell said factory workers and farmers would gladly cooperate if they saw the nation's economic strength being exerted to the utmost, without profit being made out of the necessities of war or from their labor. Compensation for plants taken over could be arranged later.

In planning such a productive effort the government should keep in mind that, in maintaining conservative activities which may arise when the war is over, that "we must maintain our standards of living and see to it that the conditions under which labor and the farmers produce are conditions worth fighting and making sacrifices for."

If there were no poverty and discontent, subversive organizations could not exist, he held.

If Parliament did not solve the problem of employment, there would arise, as there had arisen in other countries, "organizations which will endeavor to supercede this Parliament."

HUNGARY FRIENDLY TO AXIS POWERS

Budapest, June 6 (CP-Havas)—Hungary's foreign policy remains based on "friendship for the axis powers", Premier Count Paul Teleki declared in parliament today in reply to a question from an Arrow Cross (Nazi) Deputy.

"The orientation of Hungarian policy is founded on friendship for the axis powers and in the future the government will also pursue the same policy," Premier Teleki announced. Political circles said that the government and Nazis were as one now on the question of foreign policy. Hungarian Nazi opposition henceforth will be confined, they predicted ,to matters of internal policy.

FINANCE, OIL ARE WEAKEST LINKS IN NAZI ECONOMY

Recent Repressive Measures Disclose Growing Difficulties Under Demand of War

Germany's economic measures designed to meet the exigencies of war become more drastic week to week. Press reports and official announcements are the basis of this statement and they are reflected in the synopsis of developments given in this article.

"Financing a war, though alleged, as far as dictators are concerned, to be just juggling, is in fact becoming more and more of a problem for the Nazis, who entered the fray with an admitted national debt of nearly 100 milliard Reichsmarks, and who, even before the current adventures began, were adding to that debt at the rate of about 4 milliard Reichsmarks per annum. For purposes of comparison, it should be noted that Germany entered the last war with a national debt of 5.2 milliard Reichsmarks.

The crux is how to maintain interest payments. Reading between the lines of Herr Funk's speech at the general meeting of the Reichsbank (April 19th), it is clear that the reduction in the rate from 3 1-2 per cent. for the first time in seven years) is simply the prelude to a large-scale compulsory conversion which will enable the state, with the same expenditure on interest, to borrow on a vastly increased scale. It is also clear that the present quickened pace of the war will consume resources at a rate unexperienced hitherto. Even the reductions are proving shattered at the possibility of having to compete with a second winter, and are also the harbor in strike before Germany's financial resources fail.

Pressure on taxpayers — mean, time, the effort to extract every possible penny from taxation continues, by press and wireless, in the name of a more intensive assessment. Under a new decree (Reichs Gesetz Blatt, 1940 Stück) a fine of two per cent. is now levied for delay in the payment of any tax, without the issue of any official reminder. Only "Taxation Calendar for the Month," which takes form of a dreary announcement on the wireless, will in future stand between the taxpayer and heavier contributions.

The first such calendar, issued to farmers on May 6th, is the subject of payments to be made chiefly before the 10th, included, besides the normal taxes, a special citizen tax and ground tax, a "new ground income tax" which came in to force on May 1st" and, for deductions at source, the wage tax, the unemployment insurance and the defence tax and the war tax. In addition to the wage tax, "employers must themselves pay" tax to calculate all these taxes himself was reminded. The non-fulfilment of this duty might have unpleasant consequences. This was coupled with a suggestion that ready reckoners could be obtained from any publication to government offices.

Extraction of tax from foreign interests in German securities is also assuming growing dimensions. Dividends sent abroad are now subject not only to the normal ten per cent. taxation, but also to a 50 per cent. war surcharge.

Fleecing the Pensioner

Despite the "socialist" tenets of National Socialism, funds are also being raised by slinting on old age and other pensions. Over three months ago, the Fuehrer entrusted Dr. Ley with the task of creating a "generous socialist old age scheme" for old age, but, owing to war pressure on finance, nothing more tangible has yet materialised than Ley's picturesque assurance (Kleier Neueste Nachrichten, April 26th) that "a socialism such as the world has not yet seen will run through your lives from youth to the old age pension like a red thread." But while waiting for this thread to be transformed into cash down, the elderly German worker is worse off than before the Nazis came into power. What is more, he is liable, up to the age of 69, to be conscripted for industrial labour.

The spectre of inflation grows more and more alarming as the German note circulation increases month by month. The latest week for Reichsbank returns—those for April 30th—show a week's increase heavier than any experienced since the last inflation of evil memory, and display a rise to a new high level of 12,479 million marks. This figure, which covers Reichsbank notes only, does not include the 1,100 million Retenbank notes which have been called in, but which have been re-issued in recent months. Neither, the latter notes issues in circulation amount to the total figure for the actual average note circulation at the time when the Nazis came into power—5.2 milliards—increased in the last twelve months alone is 5.061 million marks, or more than the whole note circulation in any other country.

It is small wonder that the rush to invest in goods continues apace throughout the country where the hands on articles of permanent value. In this connection, one of the most revealing news items of recent weeks was the case brought against a famous antique dealer for selling spurious antiques. The enormous prominence given to the affair, particularly in the S.S. paper Das Schwarze Korps, suggests that the Nazis are hard pressed to prevent a flight from the mark, due to the antique furniture which is one of the few stable commodities left to the.

Oil and the War.

To take the German position first. Despite all her efforts with synthetic plant, Germany who consumed in peace time between 7 and 8 million tons of oil per year was up till the war obliged to import about 53 per cent of her motor spirit and nearly 90 per cent of her diesel oil. Of these imports, she received just per cent. (1939) from across the Atlantic, and only the Rumanian and Russian contributions (in 1938, 9.1 per cent. and 1.6 per cent. respectively) are at present available to her. Nor can she hope vastly to increase supplies from these sources, both because of transport difficulties and also for her own ever accumulatable reasons. The first is that Russia, despite a big producer, consumes nineteen-twentieths of her own production and exports at most 5 million tons a year; the second is that the Rumanian yield (which is limited) is so extensively bought by customers with stronger and more desirable currencies than the Reichsmark that Rumanian producers, during the first six months of the war, sold to Germany 383,169 tons only —that is, 100,000 tons less than in the same period of the previous year.

Even if Rumania could place all her surplus oil at the disposal of the Reich, she would still be able to supply less than half Germany's peace-time requirements of gas and diesel oil, less than two-thirds of her fuel oil, and a mere pittance of her lubricants.

A glance at the oil of the world production shows that the Allies are far and away better placed. The leading producers (1938) are: U.S.A. 60.9 per cent; U.S.S.R. 10.6 per cent; Venezuela 10.3 per cent; and Iran 3.8 per cent. Of the total produced all over the globe, no less than 75 per cent comes from countries bordering on the Carribbean Sea. Further, Allied transport is available. Over 31 per cent. of the world's tanker tonnage belongs to Great Britain and France, and a further 19 per cent. to Norway. There should therefore be no difficulty in retaining access to overseas sources.

To sum up, German stocks are an exhaustible asset and once they are taxed, Germany cannot keep pace with the Allied powers of replenishment. This war, now that fighting has begun, is an oil war, and judging by the fact that the Polish campaign cost Germany two and one half million tons in three weeks, it seems that long campaigns are a venture the Nazis cannot easily afford.

Trans-Radio News . Ordered Stopped After July 1st

Ottawa, June 6—(CP)—A statement read last night over radio station CKCO and ascribed to Herbert Moore of New York, President of Trans-Radio News Service, said that the broadcasting of trans-radio news had been ordered stopped in Canada July 1 next.

Mr. Moore's statement said the order had gone out from the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and that the ruling would be fought both diplomatically and legally.

The statement added that Trans-Radio had always been prepared to obey instructions of the censor and that trans-Radio had maintained a neutral attitude in reporting the war news.

It was not immediately possible to confirm the statement with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. Officials of the C.B.C. could not be reached.

GAYDA THREATENS INTERVENTION

Fascist Editor Warns U.S. Intervention Would Not Fail to Provoke Reprisals

Rome, June 6 (AP).)—The authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, today threatened intervention in American affairs if the United States aids Great Britain and France.

The warning, printed in Gayda's newspaper, Il Giornale D'Italia, was understood to reflect the view of the Italian government.

American intervention in the conflict, Gayda wrote in his editorial, would be an "ostentatious, rash taking of side in favor of a small part against a greater part of Europe."

Gayda said American intervention "would not fail to provoke the necessary reaction today and tomorrow." It would, he added, "automatically give European powers the right of reprisals on American territory applicable today or at any other moment of American entry."

Gayda contended that it was "difficult to see" why European powers should not intervene on behalf of "any American nation in conflict with the United States if the United States should set a precedent by intervention in a "European war."

"Actually American intervention on behalf of England and France began from the first day of the war," he asserted. "It rapidly expanded from week to week. It can increase still further without changing the picture of the European war."

NO GROUNDS FOR EXEMPTION

London, June 6 (CP)—Britain's chief rabbi, Dr. J. H. Herts, issued a statement today condemning Jews who claim exemption from military service on religious grounds.

Dr. Herts said: "There is no basis for such a claim in Judaism, which holds dear duties of a country among the supreme duties."

An excellent murder mystery with plenty of humor as well as melodrama and suspense will be found when the new 20th Century-Fox film, "It Could Happen To You," opens at the Capitol.

The film, now playing, which was directed by Alfred Werker, tells a thrilling story of a young advertising man who returns from a gay party and finds a murdered woman in the back of his car.

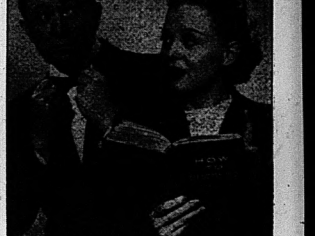
The list of featured players, headed by Stuart, includes Raymond Walburn, Donald Powley, June Gale and Clarence Kolb.

"Young Buffalo Bill"

Roy Rogers features two new songs in "Young Buffalo Bill," his latest Republic picture.

"Slow Stream Blow," by Peter Tinturin, is destined to take its place in the roster of songs of the great open spaces.

"Sweet Music to Santa Fe" is another number which will be effectively introduced in the current film.



He's a young and writer accused of murder! Above, Stuart Erwin and Gloria Stuart in "It Could Happen To You," now showing at the Capitol with an added feature "Young Buffalo Bill" with Roy Rogers.

"The Lone Wolf Meets a Lady"

The Lone Wolf is again on the screen at the McCarthy theatre, in the most thrilling of the series which has made him as popular as The Lon eWolli...s...g.

The Lone Wolf Meets a Lady" is the title of this new release and again Warren William, portraying the role of the Lone Wolf, surprises his last brilliant performance seen here.

The fine supporting cast includes Jean Muir, as the Lady in the case, Warren Hull, Virginia Weidler, Eric Blore and Fogrt Pryor, all of whom do their share in making "The Lone Wolf Meets a Lady" one of the most enjoyable melodramas of the season.

A $100,000 diamond necklace is the prize the Lone Wolf is after in his latest escapade and if you love both excitement and thrills, you'll most certainly get plenty of both, in this one which is the most dangerous adventure the Lone Wolf has encountered.

Interesting and powerful drama, is Jack Holt in "Hidden Power" an also now at the McCarthy theatre, as a companion feature presentation, while in addition an amusing short "Little Lost Sheep" and a new episode of "The Shadow" serial complete the fine entertainment evening program.

Olivier, star of "Wuthering Heights" and "Rebecca," Ralph Richardson the screen's funniest comic, and Valerie Hobson, delightful heroine of "Drums," has by popular request been arranged to be presented again at the McCarthy theatre next week. It is one of those sort of old motion picture laugh hits which we know will be enjoyed for many a long time before to see it and to those to whom it will be the first time of seeing it, we can say "Clouds Over Europe" is going to be your pleasant surprise package during the past five years—you'll call it swell entertainment, a five star comedy and just the thing for ideal summertime entertainment. *

AT THE BELLE

"STRANGE CARGO"

The studio which broke precedent with "Hunotchka", which departed from the stereo track and scored astandingly with such other unique films as "Goodbye Mr. Chips", "The Wizard of Oz", and "On Borrowed Time", again presents one of the memorable productions of this or any year in "Strange Cargo", a thrilling, unusual and startling departure from traditional screen entertainment, which will now on the Belle Theatre screen.

A cast headed by Clark Gable and Joan Crawford, as though in spired by the theme and subject matter of its script, plays "over its heads" to etch every characterization deeply into the minds of its audience. Gable, as convict Verne Rollfinger, is at his magnificent best, his own strength and endurance carrying him through the many gives on of the outstanding performances of his career. Miss Crawford, as Julie, the clinical cafe entertainer, lives up to all her former promise of dramatic power and continues the adance which she began as Crystal in "The Women."

Story of six desperadoes and a girl who escape a South American penal colony, "Strange Cargo", presents a group of performances which would do credit to half a dozen ordinary screen productions. At the head of his supporting group must be placed Ian Hunter, who in the certain portrayal of the mysterious stranger, Cargo Andrews, has such influence on the lives and deaths of all around him. Peter Lorre's contribution to the action revolves, and the stalwart understanding of this fine actor has given his finest part to make all the rest of the story understandable.

Peter Lorre is both despicable and likeable as the Devil's Disciple, sleur Pig, played with restraint and complete self-confidence. Paul Lukas is satisfyingly wise and ju-t-sufficient as Hunter, the murderer. Albert Dekker, as the gorilla-like Moll, has one superb scene in which the splendor of the spirit finally penetrates his dull brain, reached there only by physical manifestations. Edward Brophy as Flatnose, waving a knife at the edge of insanity; Edmund Gwenn as the similarly deluded Telez; and John Arledge as the weakling Dufour, all contribute unforgettably to the delineations. And acknowledgement must be paid to still others who, though in set like gems in the pattern of "Strange Cargo"; Frederic Worlock, Bernard Nedell and Victor Varconi.

Frank Borzage, directing, has interwoven the clashing physical forces of the story with its underlying spiritual theme in such a way that he achieves the complete enthrallment of the audience, gripped by the melodrama, the unique background and a quality of both mystery and timelessness.

A film of unusual feminine appeal is "Girls in Centre of the World", preceding the feature attraction.

Pontiff Will Remain In Vatican City Despite What Happens

Rome, June 6—(AP)— Vatican circles reported today that Pope Pius XII has informed his intimates that he will not leave Vatican City under whatever happens in Rome.

It was reported however that the Papal Secretariat of State would prepare to a neutral country, possibly Portugal, in order to maintain communications with other belligerent countries should Italy enter the war.

A Dominant Germany Would Menace U. S. Says Col. Knox

Prominent Republican States His Country Should Give Every Aid to Allies

DANGER VERY REAL

Chicago, June 6 (AP)—Colonel Frank Knox declared tonight that the United States furnish France and Great Britain with everything short of soldiers to help win the war.

"Our neutrality has been a status" said the publisher of The Chicago Daily News, a prominent Republican vice-presidential nominee in 1936. "We have always been for the Allies, and anything we have done to help them will be a direct contribution to American security." He declared it was "absurd" to suppose the aggrevate the danger facing America by any half-hearted steps he took.

Colonel Knox recommended that the United States keep strictly to first line fighting planes already in the hands of the Allies while there was still time to use them.

"We might also sell the Allies our over-age destroyers without impairing our naval strength," he said. "It would be much better to send them our ships and planes now than our boys later."

Colonel Knox was sternly realistic about the consequences of a German victory.

"The balance of power about which you have heard so much will mean our security in the past," he said. "With it destroyed we may have to face two ways in the next generation, if not already Germany in Europe and a triumphant Japan in Asia.

Atlantic No Longer a Bulwark

"We have falsely believed that the Atlantic Ocean was a bulwark of defence. Contemplate for a moment the result of a German conquest—what her position would be as regards the warships and a merchant marine.

"She would have her own effective fleet, the fleets of the bases of Italy and the fine facilities of Norway. She would have also a navy to join us one unless we increase our ship building capacity seven times.

"It meant that what we have always considered a bulwark became an avenue of attack, and that not only would Germany have within an absolute strangulation on our trade routes.

"A dominant Germany is a direct menace to the United States."

Colonel Knox asserted there would be a very real danger of attack from the direction of Mexico, and that if Britain went down Canada might become a part of the United States to help repel it. Japan would become a dominant force as work in South and Central America.

"Even a revolution right now in Panama, right next to the canal, forecasts no doubt by German influences.

Provinces Give General Approval To Tighten Laws

Organizations Included Communist, Nazi and Fascist Bodies—Membership in These Bodies Now Will be Considered Illegal

POWER GIVEN R.C.M.P.

All Commissioned Officers and Police Force Now Justices of the Peace—This Will Save Time in Organizing Searches for Subversive Activities

(by The Canadian Press)

General approval of the provinces has been given a move tightening the Defence of Canada regulations to outlaw in the Dominion 14 organizations, including Communist, Nazi and Fascist bodies.

Announcement that the organizations—and membership in them—will be illegal was made yesterday in the House of Commons at Ottawa by Justice Minister Lapointe who tabled an amendment to the defence regulations a "very important" section which will give effect to prior publication in the Canada Gazette of the authorized list, Order-in-Council.

Another amendment to the regulations also announced by Mr. Lapointe will make all commissioned officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted police justices of the peace for the purpose of issuing search warrants. This is expected to strengthen the hands of the police and save them time for investigating searches.

The Government decision was welcomed in Manitoba, where Attorney-General W. J. Major said: "This will hasten the decision we have been trying to get through our courts."

(Mr. Major previously had announced his intention of going back to outlaw the Communist Party through the civil liberties section of the mid-west Clarion, Communist weekly.)

Mr. Major said he had been advised the National Unity Party—which has since been dissolved—had discontinued its activities in Manitoba under instructions from the leader Adrian Arcand, who is under arrest in Montreal.

Nazi Leader Co-operating

Attorney-General G. S. Wismer of British Columbia promised full co-operation of the Provincial Police with Ottawa in dealing with the illegal organizations. At Halifax, Attorney-General A. K. Maclean Quarrie of Nova Scotia said people of that province "generally recommend" the government's action.

"Helpful" was the way Attorney-General Gordon Conant, Ontario, described the move. "But" he added, "if it is to be effective in illegality through the courts it will accomplish very little. He explained internment of officers and members of subversive organizations.

The bodies declared illegal are:

Aulands organizations of the National Socialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartei, Deutsche Arbeitsfront, Hitlerjugend, Bund Deutscher Mädel, Deutscher Bund Fur Kanada), National Unity Party, Canadian Union of Nazidats, Communist Party of Canada, Young Communist League of Canada, Canadian Labor Defence League, League for Peace and Democracy, Canadian Labor Partner Temple Association, Finnish Organizations of Canada, Ruasian Workers' and Farmers' Clubs, Ukrainian Cultural Association, Hungarian Workers' Club, Jewish People's Association, and Canadian Ukrainian Youth Federation.

Make no Comment

A. E. Smith, National Secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence League, made no comment on the announcement the association would be outlawed. Tim Buck, former moderator of the Manitoba conference of the Methodist church and a leader in the formation of the Manitoba Legislature, refused comment on the announcement his league was not connected with the Communist Party.

A resolution urging confinement or internment of Communist, Fascist, Nazi or other subversive elements active in obstructing Canada's war efforts was adopted at Toronto by the executive of the Trades and Labor Council of Ontario. The resolution called for "drastic and immediate" action under the Defence of Canada regulations.

The association forwarded also to the Minister of Justice two lists of 111 persons it believed should be interned immediately. One list named 50 persons in Ottawa Government activities were brought to the attention of Ontario police, while the other contained the names of 61 persons known to have been active in Communistic organizations in the province.

SECRET SESSION WILL BE HELD TO DEBATE HOME DEFENCE

London, June 6 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill announced that the House of Commons will hold a secret session next Tuesday for debate on home defence.

G. M. Garro-Jones, Labor, asked if ministers would attend the secret debate.

"I hope that some of them, at any rate, will be attending to the war," replied Mr. Churchill amid cheers.

STRONG ATTEMPT

In Kent, a woman, her 13-year-old son and three-year-old baby had escaped by leaping over a flaming incendiary bomb which broke through the roof of their house, missed their bed by a few inches and burned a big hole in the floor.

Other incendiary bombs which fell in Kent started fires on the roofs of buildings, which were quickly extinguished, while another burned out on the front lawn of a house, damaging only the hedge.

With the Nazi air attacks approaching continually close to London, the government renewed its appeal to parents to register their children for withdrawal to safety areas in Wales and the midlands.

The Ministries of Air and Home Security said in a joint statement that minor injuries and one house in Lincolnshire, on the east coast, was the only damage reported after high explosive bombs were used in the first large attack. There was not any serious damage."

Incendiary bombs fell in the rural districts of Yorkshire, Lincolnshire and Norfolk, also on the east coast, but in all cases the flames were where docks, wharves and warehouses ablaze along the Thames most of the way from London to the river's mouth.

Two enemy planes are believed to have been brought down near the east coast, one by anti-aircraft guns opened fire after the enemy had passed inland.

At the east coast port a search light beam caught one of the raiders in its glare and anti-aircraft batteries roared as other searchlights were switched on to the target.

The raider appeared to escape the beams but two bombs were picked up again and attacked by guns from land and sea. Planes could be heard circling above the night sky in pursuit of the German.

Explosions shook houses on the east coast and persons who had not stood outside ran for cover.

A town on the southeast coast of the coast was shaken by terrific explosions but the bombs were said to have fallen in open land.

At a third coast point the searchlights turned on a plane and the crash of guns followed. Flashes of gunfire were seen after the raid was over, apparently there was no bombing.

Bombs fell on one village green. Two persons were killed and five were reported. In parts of the southeast coast, bombs fell and continued twice during the night by raids.

A plane which was said to have dropped bombs over the Thames was heard over the Estuary during the night. An eye witness said:

"Searchlights picked him out but did not locate the plane. I saw a number of flashes, apparently over the river. No air raid warning was sounded."

Incendiary bombs were dropped at Essex, the county immediately north of the Thames between London and the sea, but most of them fell in open fields. No damage was reported. Searchlights went into action when the raiders were over the district, and some flashes were seen. There were no explosions.

Some incendiary bombs fell near the Thames, but no fire fighting station services were ordered to operate. It was not necessary to call out the fire-fighting services.

Suggest Chamberlain be Dropped

While announcement of French Cabinet changes came too late for detailed comment by London Morning papers some editors suggested Britain might follow France's example by dropping Premier Neville Edouard Daladier by shelving his Minister of Coordination Leon Blum, later Chamberlain, who was retained in Winston Churchill's new war Cabinet as Lord President of the Council.

The clamor for a "purge" of the Munich remnants of the government, voiced in Labor and Liberal quarters with some Conservative backing, was led by the Daily Herald, Chief Labor newspaper, which said the resignation of Chamberlain and a number of former ministers was "widely demanded".

Other British Ministers under fire are Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Lord Hoare, Lord Chancellor, and Viscount Halifax, secretary for foreign affairs. Government critic also demanded the resignation of Sir John Simon, who was accused of "muddling" during the preparatory stage of the war.

The Conservative Times contended, however, that "recriminations and searches for scapegoats are not merely unpatriotic but definitely damaging at this vital moment."

The Daily Sketch of the latest German aerial forays on last night's series of R.A.F. attacks on oil refineries, fuel depots and railway lines in Germany, the express asked, "should we bomb Berlin?" and then answered:

"Not yet. Our duty at right is to attack nothing but aircraft works, petrol dumps, munitions factories and railway centres.

"Here is the reason.

"The only object of bombing centres of population is to spread panic. But experience in Spain and now in Paris shows that it does nothing of the sort. It stiffens morale and fierce determination to resist. It would have the same effect on the Germans, whom Mr. Churchill describes as a very brave race".

Strikes Banned

On the home front, Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin announced sweeping measures for mobilization of labor to speed Britain's armament drive. Under the measures, effective next Monday, bans strikes and lockouts and provides full right of control of all war jobs to make the best use of skilled labor.

The government took another move to divert all economic efforts into war purposes by placing drastic restrictions on sale of luxury goods.

The News-Chronicle said that resignations of Chamberlain and Wood, who "was Air Minister at the most vital period of British rearmament," were being demanded by an increasing number of members of parliament.

The newspaper said these members felt that the Chamberlain administration "must have been guilty either of culpable negligence or of deliberate underbidding of Germany's strength and intentions before and since the war began."

FRENCH TACTICS

Paris, June 6—(CP)—German "Panzer" armored divisions corps heading Hitler's drive for Paris smashed into the Weygand line along the Somme and Aisne Rivers today, but only to be engulfed and broken by the "quagmire" defence of the French.

The German plan for meeting a blitzkrieg were said to have entangled German tanks in forward areas permitting their destruction at will.

Germany's mobile fortresses, leading the shock of the new battlefront and miles from their Aisne-Somme bridgeheads, met military advices to have found the defences back of the Weygand line trained and equipped detachments which ringed them under full fire observation from "Maginot Line" type fortifications.

The "quagmire" defence —some call it a "pocket" system—requires no isolated attempt by outposts to oppose the heavy treat of the blasting tanks but rather a yielding which permits penetration as the defence zone—to final annihilation.

Defence Proves Efficient

Frenchmen declare that the first results of the new defence in the "Battle for Paris" in which 2,000-3,000 men are engaged, show the efficacy of the "quagmire" defence. Such observers declare the Nazi "Panzer" divisions—troops on wheels or caterpillar treads—have been stopped cold.

French outposts in the lower Aisne River valley, which Germans launched a new heavy attack, were said to be withdrawing in accordance with plan to be holding well.

The German drive further destroyed at Chaulnes, nine miles southwest of Peronne, the semi-official Havas agency reported, and at Abbeville region, at the mouth of the Somme, where it is across one of the fiercest German attacks in the battle.

The Germans used one mechanized division at each of four principal points of attack and as much as at least two less important sectors, Havas reported, in a battle for "corridors" through the Aimens, Somme and Weygand lines in the change of pressure to the lower Somme and easier some seemed to indicate a reversion to classic strategy of wing envelopment.

Little pressure was expected yesterday on the lower Somme where the German command started to open operations by sending flocks of tanks out in that region. Advance French posts were withdrawn to allow the defensive masses full scope.

This powerful German artillery barrage on the eastern wing was concentrated around the Rethel area. Smoke shells laid down by heavy guns blanketed the battleground, artillery men said, as the German command evidently hoped to blind French fire observers against Allied reconnaissance planes and artillery. French troops are expected and ready for infantry attack.

COMMUNICATION

The airmen were reported to have left their machines undamaged targets in Ghent, which was illuminated by the flames of burning oil tanks.

Over the R.A.F. fought to help the French meet the German attack, military circles here said the situation was developing progressively at certain points in the Aisne-Somme battle area and added that advances could be described as successful tests of the French defence positions.

It was said the Germans are hoping everywhere to find a weak spot upon which to deliver a fierce blow.

Britain's air activity came in the wake of the Nazi air force's heaviest bombing attack on England since the start of the war.

The Air Ministry announced:

"During yesterday, Royal Air Force medium bombers carried out a series of attacks on the enemy's lines of communications leading to the Somme battlefield. Our fighting aircraft operating from France maintained offensive patrols throughout the day.

"Reports so far received show six enemy aircraft were destroyed. One of our fighters was shot down. Two of our aircraft are missing.

"Aircraft of the coastal command made a further raid on oil fuel depots in Belgium."

DOMESTIC GRAIN TRADE IS WEAK

Experts Fear Further Price Decreases Would Cause Partial Paralysis

Chicago, June 6.—(AP)—Intricately geared machinery of the domestic grain trade was today in confusion by the Blitzkrieg on the western front even in spite of partial paralysis, market experts said today, should prices recede much further.

Instead of the booming market which has existed since grain men had believed would accompany war time, trade has collapsed and trading has been choked almost to a standstill in some instances.

As a result many trade experts are seriously concerned because the harvest time in the Southwest is approaching. However, John G. Lonsdale, head of Trade president expressed confidence that the market would be able to work out of the situation in its own way. He said that no action was taken by the Board of Trade that do not have the sanction of government agricultural officials.

It is rumored that Ettore Muti, secretary of the Fascist party, will command the corps of volunteer Blackshirts which formed along the lines of the German corps.

The government decided on a 12-mile zone around the coast of Italy and off the shores of her possessions in which the use of radio apparatus to navigation and required authorization from the Ministry of Marine.

The power of Italy's submarines, surface craft and air fleet backed the decision.

Ships Must Give Notice.

Ships now en route to Italian ports were warned to give port authorities twenty-four notice of the day and hour in which they would enter Italian waters, indicating their approximate positions.

Two United States ships which arrived at Italian ports recently continue their schedule under the danger of submarine attack with 1,000 passenger and freighter ship Excalibur, booked to capacity by American Export Lines, and the freighter Exmouth.

Thousands of Italian soldiers departed today to join 2,000,000 comrades mobilized in the northern frontier.

New blackout preparations, together with prohibition of the use of fire sirens and factory whistles except for bombing alarms, were ordered.

Secret Nerves.

Newspaper dispatches from Athens declared that Greece, sandwiched between Italy and Turkey, was nervous over a war threat in that corner of the Balkans.

A dispatch from Athens to the newspaper Il Messaggero insisted that Greece would permit Allied assistance pacts with Great Britain and Turkey to include passage rights to land troops on Greek islands in the Aegean Sea. The Turks have long had such a request.

Turkish troops were declared to be concentrated and ready to march, while Allied vessels raised among the islands.

The Istanbul, the Turkish government last night ordered removal of civilian refugees from the city and directed spraying of wooden roofs with a chemical solution to minimize the danger from incendiary bombs.

After supper I heard some of the fellows yelling and running outside, and I said, Hay ma, hay pop, can I out for about 20 minutes if I promise to be back in not more than an hour?

Well, if you put your rubbers on, ma said. The streets are still damp after all that rain, she said, and I said, Well G roomalem, ma, I mean rumbkers, none of the other fellows will proberly have theirs on, and they'll think I'm a sissy.

Well thinking isn't proving, ma said, My lands, Willyum, did you ever see such a boy! He's ready to endanger the actual state of his health for the sake of imaginary appearances, she said, and pop said, Petty conventions enslave us all. For instants it's against my principals to remove my hat in the elevator of an office building just because some representatives of the opposite sex happen to be among the passengers, but I generally find myself meeting my hat off after the other men in the car have removed theirs, he said.

Now Willyum, hats and rubbers are entirely different, ma said, and I said, Well anyways ma, if I wear my rubbers for a tiny little bit of dampness like this, why some time I'm libel to be caught out without rubbers when it's really actually good and wet and my feet wont be hardened to it and I'll really catch something.

Do you think there may be something to what he says, mother? pop said, as ma said, Yes I think there's a lot of nonsense, and pop said, It's a rather difficult situation, Benny, but I think it might be applied if you wear your gum boots. Of course the conditions dont call for gum boots, but at least nobody can say they're not manly, he said.

Verdier Admits He Had Been Member of National Unity Party

President of Verdier Aircraft Corp., of Deseronto, on Trial for Conspiracy Offence Against Defence of Canada Regulations

TRIAL ADJOURNED

Captain Andre Verdier, president of Verdier Aircraft Corp., Deseronto, who said he was born in France and schooled in Denmark, but is now a naturalized Canadian, was admitted in open police court, held at the Canadian Legion building, Prate K. J. Butler, K.C., today, that some two years ago he had been a member of the National Unity Party of Canada, but had since disassociated himself with that organization when he learned of its Fascist leanings. He denied that he resigned in court on charges of at diverse times he did make statements which might cause disaffection to His Majesty contrary to Section 39 of the Defence of Canada Regulations.

During examination in chief Verdier also admitted he was personally acquainted with Armand Arcand, leader of the Canadian National Unity Party and also on several occasions visited Arcand in his private home. In replying to questions put to him by Crown Counsel Charles A. Payne, K.C., pertaining to the aims of the Unity Party, stated that his associations with the Unity Party were severed when he learned when he learned of the party's connection with the European Fascist Party. He stated that he was a Canadian by birth and that he owed allegiance to His Majesty King George VI. Verdier expressed loyalty to His Majesty and his people. He stated he believe in democracy to be practised in the sense of the word, but not in the dictatorial manner as practiced in its present form," stiffly stated the accused.

Four Crown Witnesses

Four Crown witnesses were called, all of whom stated that Verdier had made a statement to their relative to the Allied cause and which might be of help to the prosecution. The defence entered but two witnesses, Verdier being the chief one.

After hearing the testimony Magistrate Butler adjourned arguments of counsel until after tomorrow's Unity police court, at which time judgment is also expected in the case.

Counsel Clash

On two occasions during today's trial of Verdier open verbal conflict very broke out in the court room and His Worship was forced to call the "order." The first instance came when Mr. Payne was cross-examining Fred Stoneman, Crown witness of Toronto when he saw Crown Attorney Donnan jump to his feet in protest as Mr. Payne asked the witness: "Have you read in the papers that Germany has the greatest mechanized army in the world?" Stoneman refused to answer at first and Mr. Donnan interjected: "I submit, my lord, witness as a public-spirited citizen not to ask His Worship to call upon the witness to reply to the question.

The second outbreak came when Mr. Payne charged the Crown Attorney with exercising "dictatorial rights in the court."

"I have the power to keep you within bounds, anyhow," replied Mr. Donnan.

Know Place in Court

"I know my place in court, which sometimes my friend does not seem to appreciate," snapped back Mr. Payne. It was at this point that Magistrate Butler called for order and told the counsel to proceed without further interruptions.

Fred Stoneman, of Toronto and supply employee of the Liquor control Board, was the first Crown witness called. He stated he was on duty at the Deseronto liquor store in May of this year. "What happened in the Arlington hotel dining room at noon on May 20th?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"I was having my lunch and listening to the radio when it was announced, that the British had sunk 3,500 tanks against the Allies. Verdier then came over and spoke about when Mr. Verdier thought to hit first, came to the position of attention and said: "I'm sorry, but the Allies are done. The Germans have the greatest trained army in the world. The French will lay down their arms in seven days and the English hike back home out of it in days. You know, because I've got information, after I heard these remarks and I contradicted them and end up leaving my dessert," Mr. Stoneman stated. He also added that Verdier had offered to bet him ten to one that his statements were correct.

Said he Was Abused

"Did you ever see Verdier again?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"Yes, he stopped me on the street and mumbled something about Inspector Gardner abusing him and asked me to get the Inspector to "lay off him", as he said the Inspector was getting statements about him," added Mr. Stoneman.

On cross examination Mr. Stoneman admitted he had given Provincial Constable W. E. Smith, a statement as to what he had heard Verdier say in the Arlington Hotel. It was during this cross examination that Mr. Payne and Mr. Donnan engaged in their initial controversy.

Next Hazel Poste, proprietor of the Arlington hotel, testified that Mr. Stoneman's testimony. "I did hear Mr. Verdier say that Germans would beat the French in seven days and send the English hiking home in five days," stated Mrs. Poste. John W. Lindsay, Deseronto, manager of Canadian Celanese that Verdier had made similar statements in his place of business. "I contradicted him and he got mad up and wanted to bet me $5.00 he was right," stated Mr. Lindsay.

Chief Witness

Dr. W. G. Blackwell, of Deseronto, was the chief witness called by the prosecution. "I have known the accused for about two years. He came to my office on several occasions and made disparagements which I did not approve of. During the early day, of the Norwegian campaign he said the Allies would never drive the Germans out of Norway, but that the English would be driven out," stated Dr. Blackwell.

"What else did he say?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"Well at the beginning of the Belgian campaign he said the Germans would drive the French out in a month. Later he amended this to three months in which he said the French would be driven out and then Germany would have a clear field at the Norwegians. He also said that Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the Fascist Party in England, would be the next British premier and Britain as he was the only one to save the continent," the witness added Dr. Blackwell.

Verdier Was "Secret"

In reference to the Verdier Aircraft Corporation, Dr. Blackwell stated that he attended to have the police wanted to search his papers and investigate, but said they could not do so as they were secret and private," he added.

"Have you any knowledge of the cause between Verdier and Hitler?" asked Mr. Donnan and Mr. Payne rose to object and again the counsel clashed. "Yes, he said that Blackwell said that Verdier had told him he was a friend of Armand Arcand.

"Who is Arcand?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"Leader of the Fascist Party in Canada, I believe," replied the witness.

In cross examination Dr. Blackwell denied that he was a director of the Verdier Aircraft Company. "Did Mr. Verdier ever show you official papers from the Department of National Defence pertaining to his negotiations with that Department in the matter of supplying arms, ammunition and aircraft to the Government?" asked Mr. Payne. "Yes, he showed me some confidential papers to that effect," replied Dr. Blackwell.

Charles Ayre, Ampitor salesman, was the first defence witness called by Mr. Payne and stated he was interested in an invention of Mr. Verdier's. "I concerned a combustion engine invented on fuel oil explained Mr. Ayre as he added he was in Mr. Verdier's office the day Inspector Gardner and his party arrived. I was surprised at the attitude of Inspector Gardner. He rushed into the office and openly stated that Mr. Verdier should have been in jail a year ago.

Says He was Born in France

In his cross examination, Mr. Verdier stated he was born in France of a French father and Danish mother, was educated in Copenhagen, Denmark, came to Canada in 1922 and was naturalized five years later. "I am the accredited Canadian representative of the Madsen Arms Corporation with world headquarters in Copenhagen," stated Mr. Verdier. Mr. Payne at this point introduced several letters from the Department of National Defence and other governmental departments to prove that his client had offered his services to the Canadian Government at the opening of hostilities last fall. "Here is a letter to prove that Mr. Verdier offered his services in any military capacity to Canada and a reply from the Deputy Minister of Defence thanking him and stating my clients name would be placed on file," stated Mr. Payne.

Verdier stated that the aim of the Verdier Aircraft Company was to "manufacture arms, ammunition and other modern weapons." It was also introduced that the Canadian Government had asked for a model of Mr. Verdier's type of aeroplane and also a letter from the Department of Munitions and Supplies regarding bullet-proof armour, which Mr. Payne said was proof that the Department of National Defence was in close communication with his client at all times. Mr. Verdier also has had communications from the British authorities regarding his "inventions."

Regarding his alleged statements, Verdier said he might have said "It is too bad, unless the Allies get planes and guns they are afraid the French will have to give up as it is a serious situation as 2,500 tanks and a strong mechanized force can do a lot of damage," stated Verdier, who added that his statements to Stoneman were only opinions drawn after listening to the radio and reading Toronto newspapers, and "I might have said we must pull out,our logging together and help right here in Canada. Why even the Toronto papers carried stories that the people of England wanted Mosley," added Verdier, as he added that he was naturalized in Saskatchewan and married in New York State.

Going to Check

"I hope that's true, because I'm going to check on these statements" said Crown Attorney Donnan as he opened his cross examination and turned to Constable Beatty of the R.C.M.P. and gave instructions in a whisper.

"What have you in the line of aeroplanes or your plant?" asked Mr. Donnan, without an answer being given.

"Let's see, aeroplanes—nil, ammunition—nil, arms—nil, so in all three cases" it's —nil," stated Mr. Donnan in his reference to the operations of the Verdier Aeroplane Company. Mr. Payne objected contending the question was irrelative.

"Have you addressed any public meetings in Canada during the past three years?" asked Mr. Donnan. The answer was "No."

"What no meetings?" prompted the Crown Attorney.

"I addressed a private meeting of some four or five in Montreal with a friend of mine, whose name is a secret," replied Verdier. Later when Mr. Donnan insisted Mr. Payne instructed his client to reveal his friends name.

"It was Senator H. Rainville," disciplined Verdier.

Mr. Donnan accused Verdier of being "a Jew-baiter," but he denied this, adding he was pro-Semitic in favour of the Jewish cause." It was at this point that Verdier admitted having once being a member of the Canadian Unity Party and at one time a personal friend of Armand Arcand. "Did you at that time tell Dr. Blackwell that Lord Tweedsmuir had been poisoned?" asked Mr. Donnan, "re," replied Verdier.

The court then adjourned with legal arguments and summing up of the case to be heard in Friday's court.

ALLIES IN NORWAY PUSH EASTWARD

Heavy Fighting is Expected at Bjoernfjell and Hundalen

Stockholm, Sweden, June 6 (CP-Havas)—Allied forces in Norway pushed slowly eastward from Narvik today, cleaning up isolated German detachments as they progressed.

Heavy fighting was expected momentarily around Bjoernfjell and Hundalen, where the Germans are reported to have 40,000 men concentrated. These troops retreated from the Narvik area and have been supplemented by soldiers landed by parachute.

A small French detachment captured 100 German prisoners during mopping-up operations along the railway in the Sildvik region, Sildvik, about 11 miles east of Narvik, was occupied Tuesday by the Allied forces.

The position of the Germans in the Bjoernfjell and Hundalen zone is considered critical. The Allies have cut off their access to the sea to the north and west. To the east of them lies the Swedish border. The only path open is to the south but this runs over wild mountain terrain difficult to cross.

GEN. DE GAULLE CHIEF ASSISTANT TO M. REYNAUD

He Predicted Motorization Would Change Technique of War, but His Beliefs Were Disregarded

Paris, June 6 — (CP-Havas)—Appointment of General Charles De Gaulle as chief assistant to Premier Reynaud in the new ministry was welcomed today as recognition for a man who has been a "prophet without honor" regarding present-day war strategy.

General De Gaulle was one of the first to predict that motorization would change the technique of war. His thesis was championed in 1935 by Deputy Paul Reynaud, now premier, who submitted a bill calling for the creation of 10 armored motorized divisions. Unfortunately, however, De Gaulle's beliefs were regarded as "heresy" by the general staff, which supported the thesis of defensive war, and the bill was defeated.

General De Gaulle, who was promoted from colonel on May 25 in the army reorganization following General Maxime Weygand's assumption of command, has written a number of volumes on tactics.

One boat owner, out on a fishing expedition in Big Bay, said that the waves at times rolled clear over his launch and the occupants were forced to don rubber coats to keep from getting drenched. The mob is alleged to have beaten Einhell and his wife, wrecked their home and stole money.

South River is about 30 miles south of North Bay.

Between 150 and 200 men are alleged to have taken part in the raid Monday night on the home of the crippled shoemaker, touching off a three-way police investigation by Provincial, local and Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Nazi Communiques Universally Discredited States Duff Cooper

London, June 6—(CP— Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information, replying to a question in the House of Commons as to why the Ministry "continually issued German official communiques containing false claims," said:—

"It has not been the policy to prevent publication of these communiques, the falsity of which has so often been proved that they are now universally discredited."

He added that any change in policy "might be misinterpreted in this country and elsewhere."

Mr. Duff Cooper said the press always has made it "perfectly clear" that they are German communiques and that the practice in marking them "passed for publication" has been discontinued.

He expressed the opinion that the government's policy "to allow the British people to see what lies the Germans are told" is a right one.

The report said that at least £56,000 pounds ($1,112,500) was wasted in connection with the acquisition of a site for a Scottish repair depot. The report said work on the site was abandoned after expenditure estimated at 278,000 pounds.

LIGHTNING HITS 220,000-VOLT LINE

Seven - Minute Interruption in Toronto and Affected Almost Whole of South-Western Ontario

Toronto, June 7.—(CP)—A direct hit by lightning on the 220,000-volt Hydro-electric line that carries power from Quebec Province to Toronto's Leaside station today caused a seven-minute interruption in Toronto and affected almost the whole of south-western Ontario.

Dinners were delayed momentarily in thousands of homes as the interruption occurred around the noon-hour. Newspaper presses rolling for noon editions, stopped suddenly, lights went out in homes and factories. The chatter of telegraph machines was stilled in newspaper offices and telegraph keys fell silent. Telephones likewise failed.

Dr. T. H. Hogg, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said the line was struck "somewhere in Quebec" during a violent electric storm.

Other authorities explained that in the storm, the trouble, a line carrying such tremendous voltage an automatic switch-over is made to alternate lines. This was done in this case but further delay was caused because it takes a matter of minutes to build up the power load to its capacity of 220,000 volts.

Government Announces Arrangements to Compensate Civilians for Loss of Property in Air Raids

London, June 7—(CP)—German raids on Britain during the night resulted in the death of one airman when bombs were dropped on an airdrome there, it was announced today.

An Air Ministry statement said: "Further reports of last night's air raids show that at one Royal Air Force airdrome bombs were dropped on the flare path, killing one airman. Elsewhere attacks were ineffective."

Bombs fell on the outskirts of a small town in North Yorkshire but caused no damage. A 60-year-old woman collapsed and died in an air raid shelter, however.

SITUATION ALONG SOMME-AISNE LINE IS 'PRETTY GOOD'

Military Circles Are Not Yet Certain There May Not be a Main Attack Yet to Come

MACHINE-GUNS HELP

London, June 7 (CP)—Military circles declared today that "the situation along the Somme-Aisne line is not too bad—in fact, it's pretty good." They added, however, that "we are not yet certain there may not be a 'main attack yet to come."

These quarters said that a great many armored divisions which engaged in the Flanders battle had been thrown into the present offensive against France.

They acknowledged that there may be still other German armored divisions which have not been used in either battle.

The machine-gun be use by the Germans were said to be not now up to full strength.

"Plenty" of Germany's best infantry divisions have been in action, these informants declared, but reserve divisions also are being used. One could describe these as first class and some of these have had a good time."

GERMANY ADMITS STIFF RESISTANCE BY GEN. WEYGAND

Nazis State New Defence System Presents 'Real Problem" to Blitzkrieg Machine

EVERY HILL DEFENDED

Berlin, June 7—(AP)—The German army ran into stiff resistance today as it tried to batter down the new Weygand defence system to get to Paris.

As the great offensive along the Somme-Aisne front entered its third day, the Nazis admitted that in this drive the French were not surprised, and that General Weygand's resilient "defence in depth" was presenting a "real problem" to their Blitzkrieg machine.

The German high command was modest in claims of ground taken and military observers even spoke of a "new Weygand strategy" that was being executed with ingenuity.

This strategy, according to the Germans, consists in making he most effective use of the terrain, making every stream difficult to cross, fortifying every hillock and using woods for concealment in great numbers.

Furthermore, the Germans said that the French were using heavy arms than they expected.

In short, the German machine was smashing against an extraordinary difficult defence system, stubbornly manned.

Claim Some Ground Gained

The high command last night merely claimed a gain of ground, without being specific.

The German armies driving hardest in their right wing, along he channel coast in the direction of Dieppe and Le Havre, and not across the Somme for some distance there (about 17 1-2 miles near Abbeville, Paris said but they were driven back part way late.)

The Germans crossed the river at Pont Remy over a pontoon bridge and claimed they gained heights on the south side of the river, but they met bitter resistance every inch of the way.

The pontoon bridge was laid an-

TAKE PRECAUTION AGAINST SURPRISE NIGHT INVASION

Three-Mile Curfew Zone for Merchant Vessels Around United Kingdom Announced

EFFECTIVE JUNE 8

London, June 7—(CP)—The Admiralt took a drastic precaution today against a surprise night invasion of Britain by declaring a three-mile curfew zone for merchant vessels around the United Kingdom.

Effective tomorrow, ships will be forbidden to enter this zone between sunset and sunrise except in organized British convoys.

Vessels failing to comply with the order are liable to be fired upon, the Admiralty announced.

An Admiralty communique said:

"As from Saturday, June 8th, no merchant vessel is to approach within three miles of the coasts and ports of the United Kingdom between sunset and sunrise except in an organized British convoy.

"This order does not prohibit vessels on passage from using a recognized coastal searched channel where this encroaches on the three-mile limit.

"With the above exceptions vessels inside the three-mile limit who are unable to make their destination before sunset must anchor or proceed outside the limit.

"Vessels failing to comply with this order are liable to be fired upon.

"Searched channels were taken by German agents which are patrolled constantly to keep them clear of mines.

Strong Detachments of Italian Troops Appear at Strategic Points in Downtown Rome

New York, June 7—(AP)— The Italian Line reported today that all Italian ships in the High Seas had been ordered into neutral ports.

Italo Verrando, New York manager of the line, said the order cancelled all sailings and that all Italian ships were safe. He said the order came directly from Rome.

Indications that the line was fore-warned of the move and prepared for any eventuality were seen in Verrando's comment: "We do not expect to get much more from Rome; we have our orders and will follow them."

Several ships in the Italian line flag rushed to New York—passenger liners Rex, Conte Di Savoia, Roma and others—but their sailings were postponed their sailings.

Asked if this meant war, Verrando said:—

"I don't know but it looks like it."

Several Italian vessels were in eastern United States ports.

Speed Necessary Factor

The Italian freighters Arsa, Attaa, Alberta, San Leonado and Brennero were in New York harbor and the Belvedere was at Philadelphia.

Verrando said other Italian vessels in American waters were expected to put into United States ports between Key West and Cape Hatteras by noon today, indicating that speed was a necessary factor in the Italian move.

The order from Rome told ship

London, June 7—(CP-Cable)—It was disclosed today that a man wearing the uniform of a British staff captain was arrested at the Hertfordshire Hospital at which Queen Elizabeth visited yesterday and was handed over to military authorities.

The man had arrayed at the hospital with a contingent of wounded officers and men of the British Expeditionary Force from Dunkirk. Suspicion is said to have been aroused by his foreign appearance and the fact that he did not appear to be wounded.

Hospital officials said he tried several times to leave, saying he wished to telephone relatives.

'Largest Bomber In World' Made By Great Britain

New Bomber Has Been Tested Successfully and is Now in Production, Declares Lord Beaverbrook, Who Shows That British Plane Production Has Jumped Since May 11th 62 Per Cent Per Week and Engine Production 33 Per Cent

PLANE REPAIR OUTPUT

Minister of Aircraft Production Expresses Belief Germans Have 11,675 Aircraft With 16,000 Pilots of Whom 12,000 Have Had Recent Training—Makes Reference to German Troop Carrier

London, June 7—(CP)—Britain has more than made good her air losses in the battle of Flanders and started building a new mighty force —"the largest in the world"—Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, declared today.

Humming factories, working incessantly to fill the Royal Air Force's tremendous order for more planes and still more planes, turned them out faster than they were lost during the three-week battle drive across the Low Countries and northern France, Lord Beaverbrook asserted.

The new bomber, he said in an interview, has been tested successfully and is in production.

Aircraft Output Jumps

He added that the increase in Britain's aircraft output per week since May 11, the day after Germany invaded Holland and Belgium, has been 62 per cent, that planes per week, 33 per cent more engines per week, 198 per cent more planes repaired and 159 per cent more engines repaired.

Lord Beaverbrook was unable to disclose production figures upon which these percentages were based. As for German figures, he made specific claims.

Places German Aircraft at 11,675.

"I believe they have 11,675 aircraft, that they have 16,000 pilots of whom 12,000 have had recent training," he said.

"I believe that the number of their troop carriers is 505 and that these are able to carry 40 men or more each."

It was suggested to him that this would indicate an ability to carry 20,000 troops, since some carrier planes are known to be able to carry 32 men. Lord Beaverbrook nodded assent.

The minister said it would be about correct to say that two-fifths of Germany's planes are combat or front lines planes.

He emphasized that while the rate of his calculations was official figures the calculations were

R.A.F. BOMBERS SCORE MANY HITS

Bomb Roads and Railway Bridges at Principal Exits of Abbeyville

London, June 7 (CP).—The Air Ministry announced today that during "45 minutes of almost incessant bombardment" at Abbeville yesterday, Royal Air Force bombers scored direct hits on main roads and railway bridges at the principal exits of the town.

In the region of the Bresle River, about seventeen miles south of Abbeville, one wing of the Nazi forces is trying to turn the Allies' left flank in the direction of Amiens toward Le Havre.

Attack Fighting Columns

More than a ton of heavy bombs and a large number of smaller ones were dropped in an earlier ten minute attack on "columns of armored fighting vehicles, lorried infantry and supply lorries," the ministry's announcement said.

Important bridges over the Somme estuary were the objectives of the later raid, it said, reporting three direct hits on a "vital one."

The ministry said the raiders dropped to within 1,300 feet of the ground and met "intense anti-aircraft fire from mobile gun batteries."

YOUNG WOMAN'S BODY ON TRACKS

Miss Minnie Webb, 25, Native of Kingston, Was Stenographer at R.C.A.F. Headquarters, Halifax

Halifax, June 7—(CP) — The body of a young woman found on the Canadian National Railways' main line here today was identified as that of Miss Minnie Ethel Webb, 25, a native of Kingston, Ont.

The body, found on the tracks this morning in the cove of a suburban train, was identified tentatively by the discovery on the tracks of a pass bearing the Canadian Air Force headquarters where she was a stenographer. Later her brother-in-law, Sergeant T. A. F. Wood, R.C.A.F. positively identified the body.

It was believed Miss Webb was struck by the east-bound Ocean Limited while walking on the tracks late last night.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James from Ilres plains, Kingston. Her mother, who is unaware of the accident, is en route to Halifax on a visit.

Why The Weather?

Variability of rainfall! That rainfall varies from one year to another is a matter of common observance. Rainfall varies more for shorter periods than for long, more for a season or a month than for a year, and more in arid regions than in wet. Washington, D. C., may be taken as typical of eastern United States and Canada. The yearly rainfall there averages about 40 inches: the greatest and least yearly amounts varied more than 50 per cent above and below this normal. The record also shows that for individual months the rainfall was in one case 400 per cent above the average, and in another case 98 per cent below normal.

Compulsory Military Training Advocated by New York Times

New York, June 7 (CP)—The influential New York Times called today for compulsory military training in the United States "in the interests of self-protection".

"We say this as a newspaper which has never before believed in the wisdom of such a policy in time of peace," said the newspaper in its editorial comment. "We say it because the logic of events drives us unmistakably to this conclusion.

"The most powerful mechanized army that the world has ever seen is now striking at Paris. We must consider realistically the consequences of that army's victory. If we are not to be caught without warning, we must face in all frankness the worst that can happen.

"The worst is France defeated and knocked out of the war; England in no position to defend herself in 1940 hours."

owing to the loss of her supplies to Flanders; Hitler becoming the master of all Europe.

"We hope that these things will not happen, but we are bound to recognize that the chance of their happening is great."

The Times, in another editorial published today, declared that today that whatever the mistakes of the past "there can be nothing but admiration for the stand France is making today."

The spirit of France was not terrorized yesterday by the roar of Hitler's tanks and dive bombers along the Somme," said the paper. "It spoke in immortal language in the resistance of the French army, outnumbered but undaunted.

"When the enemy batters at the gates, France shows the iron that is in her soil. She has never shown it more superbly than in the last 48 hours."

Foreign Securities Quarantined, U. S. to Prevent Dumping by Nazis

Action is to Prevent Securities Seized in Invaded Countries Being Traded in

EFFECTIVE TODAY

Washington, June 7—(AP)—The United States treasury quarantined all foreign securities today to prevent Germany from "dumping" all securities that may have been seized in the invaded European countries.

Effective today, the importation of securities from any foreign country was prohibited unless the securities were submitted to a federal reserve bank for examination.

Customs and postal officials were authorized to open any packages coming from foreign countries to determine whether any securities were contained.

Treasury officials declined to say officially what the purpose of the order was, but made it plain that they were trying to prevent the use by Nazi agents of stocks or securities taken away from "rightful owners" in Belgium, Holland, Norway, Denmark and Luxembourg.

SLIGHT DAMAGE TO HOUSE ROOF

Starling presumably as the result of a defective chimney, fire on the roof of the residence of Mrs. Woodcock of 13 Foster Ave. caused firemen a run to that address at 6.15 Thursday evening. Only a small portion of the roof was burning, however, and no material damage was reported.

EXTENSIVE DAMAGE RESULT OF CRASH

Extensive property damage resulted as two automobiles were in collision near the intersection of Foster avenue and East Dundas street early today. The vehicle, driven by Austin Brant, Point Anne, and Dorland Bell, R.R. 4, Belleville, was travelling in the opposite directions on Dundas street and sideswiped.

Brant told P.C. Taylor he had intended to make a left hand turn into a laneway leading to a garage but had become blinded by the glaring sun. Bell stated he saw Brant's car veer to the north side of the street, but efforts a avoid the crash were futile. Damage of approximately $100 resulted to the Point Anne taxi driven by Brant, while at least $200 worth of damage resulted to Mr. Bell's car. The matter is still under police investigation.

ASSUME PRIOUX PRISONER

Paris, June 7 (AP). — French sources today said they assumed that General Rene Jacques Adolphe Prioux, who commanded the rearguard which covered the retreat of 335,000 Allied troops from Flanders, had been taken prisoner by the Germans.

There has been no word from General Prioux since reports that he and part of his army were surrounded by the Nazi armies in the north.

Local Chapters of I. O. D. E. Will Aid in Buying Bomber To Present to Government

$100,000 to be Raised Within Month by Dominion Chapters

DONATIONS SOUGHT

Mudmatted, bloodstained British Tommies returning from the hell of Flanders, smiling in their very weariness and pain, will carry back a message with them that has been echoed and reechoed throughout the Empire. "Give us more planes and we'll lick h— out of Jerry."

The vital importance of having planes in present day war tactics was emphatically disquotated in the Great Retreat. Planes and more planes, is the cry of the Empire's troops. British pilots are inferior to none in the world, but Britain has been handicapped, and daily, but they must have more planes if they are to protect the menace of the Hun from the flaming skies of Europe.

Governments of the Empire are speeding production. Factories and plants are working overtime in this vital hour of need. Throughout the Commonwealth of British nations private individuals and organizations, realizing the urgent need are raising funds to supply the much-needed planes.

And Canada once again has answered the call. Her glorious women whose activities in the last war, and in this stand out as one of the brightest spots in her history, are marching again.

I.O.D.E. Active

And at the helm are the chapters of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire whose names and activities are known from coast to coast. At their national convention the other day a resolution was unanimously passed to raise the sum of $100,000 for a Bolingbroke bomber to be presented to the government.

The clarion call goes out to the women of Canada. Every patriotic woman in the Dominion is going to do her utmost to answer the call of the Motherland.

The ways and means of raising the necessary money for this great act is being left for each chapter to work out to the best advantage for the community. But remember the work is not confined to members of the I.O.D.E. Every woman is asked to contribute.

Local Chapters Take up Duty

Here in Belleville the Argyll and Sir John Chapters, under the regency of Mrs. A. B. Grubb and Mrs. E. G. Neate, respectively, have launched themselves into immediate action. The vital urgency of the situation the money must be raised in at least a month, has not allowed the members to prepare any extensive plans for raising the funds. These are now being rushed to completion.

Mrs. Emily Neate, President of St. John's Chapter, called a meeting of the officers of that body and laid the matter before them. It was unanimously decided to raise funds at once. The appeal is urgent and action must be taken within a month.

Mrs. Neate, Regent of St. Julien Chapter stated today that a $25 donation has been received to the fund from the husband of one of the members to start off the campaign.

Gifts of Precious Metals

In the absence of the national president, it was urged that contributions of gifts of jewelry or other precious metals be made and it has been suggested that a bowl be placed in a jewellery shop window for such gifts of precious metals.

The words of the National President: "There can be no summer holidays for the daughters of the Empire" find acceptance among members of the I.O.D.E.

In the meantime every second counts. Those wishing to contribute should telephone Mrs. Grubb at Argyll Chapter at 1880 or Mrs. Neate at 1675M, and Mrs. J. Ernest Lang, treasurer of St. Julien Chapter at 2245.

Picton Chapter Gives $50

Picton—The Sir Thomas Lipton Chapter of the I.O.D.E. at their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, June 4, voted the sum of $500 to be their contribution toward a bomber costing $100,000 which the National Chapter I.O.D.E. is giving to the government.

The local chapter has many plans made for reaching the $500 objective and with the public aware of the need and realizing the need for planes and more planes, tanks and more tanks, to win this war, a quick and ready response is doubtless come from many.

All ready donations toward this fund have been contributed and individuals and organizations are invited to lend their assistance to the I.O.D.E. in this worthy effort. Those wishing to add to this fund may contact Mrs. Ernest Boulter, the Regent, or Mrs. S. J. Calder, Treasurer.

The I.O.D.E. is continuing its work of remembering members of Hastings Rifles, Prince Edward Regiment overseas, with comforts of various kinds, also sending hospital supplies direct to the regiment as well as large quantities of clothing for refugees.

The fund to purchase a bomber is a magnificent gesture on the part of the National I.O.D.E. and the local chapter is confident that Picton people will do their full share in aiding them to reach the $500. objective.

BULLETIN BOARDS ATTRACT LARGE CROWDS THURSDAY

News of Destruction of Hundreds of German Tanks by the French Cheering News

WEYGAND PRAISED

Bulletin boards, barometers of public interest, in the gigantic struggle now being waged in Europe, were the mecca for large crowds of people on downtown streets Thursday, when, as one observer puts it, "the best news since the naval battle off Norway" was given to an information-hungry public.

From the time the news that the French High Command's new defensive line had withstood in heavy losses to German tanks, a steady stream of people gathered to read the latest bulletins.

One old timer took up his stand across the street and never moved except to cross and read the news when bulletins were posted. Others cross section of city and district line, their faces alight with interest, eagerly scanned the boards from the last up to eight o'clock until dark.

Generally speaking there was an undercurrent of relief evident in the many remarks passed as the news was boarded. Old soldiers, without their service kit, in certain terms. Two elderly ladies breathed a fervent "Thank God." Staid citizens, whose emotion usually ever was to the surface, evinced sighs of relief and smiled at the good tidings. Others praised the brilliance of General Weygand and his heroic French troops. A few of youths let go a cheer when they read of Nazi tanks destroyed on the French front.

Today appeared to be a repetition of yesterday. Apparently cheered by the heartening news of yesterday, people again crowded around the bulletin boards this morning.

The service will be continued indefinitely, with Sunday bulletins published with the latest developments with the cable services.

Missing Canary Upsets Household

Tearfully, the young wife's voice tricked over the telephone to her fried hubby at his downtown office, or business this morning. "Dicky's gone" she sobbed, "and I can't find him, come home at once."

"I can't leave now, honey' explained hubby. "Look around the house, he must be there somewhere."

"I have looked, and I can't find him" and again sobs shook the little woman's heart. It is him only of its cage for his morning exercise and he has disappeared."

"He'll be back," soothed hubby, "he'll be back at noon."

"I can't help it. I wish you would come home."

And hubby went home. The family canary's cage door was open. He ran the house on the still yelling "Snooks" the family Angora, gaily frolicking with Dicky and purring contritedly. Nearby lay two yellow feathers.

The mystery was solved.

MORE ARRESTED

OBITUARY

MICHAEL MEEHAN

Michael Meehan passed away at his residence, 30 St. Paul Street, this Friday morning, as the result of a stroke which he suffered about a week ago. The deceased, who was in his 82nd year, was born in Tyendinaga Township, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Meehan. His parents' maiden name was Hanna Carney. He made his home in this district all his life and in occupation he was a sailor. He never married. In religion he was a member of St. Michael's Church and was well respected.

Surviving him are a niece, Mrs. J Still, Montreal and a nephew, Mr. Edward Gormley, Kingston.

Police Blotter

Sergeant Arthur Harman revealed today that summonses had been issued to several casual owners in the city charging them with having failed to procure their dog tags. Chief Constable Ellis suggested that the month of March each succeeding year and those who delinquent in the purchase thereof "will be arraigned in the court next week," warned Sergeant Harman today.

Considerable property damage resulted when two motor cars collided while rounding the Devil's Elbow on Highland Ave. yesterday afternoon. Traffic Officer Ellis investigated and found that a motor car driven by A. B. Ivey, Port Credit, struck a car driven by Mrs. Cranston, a resident of Toronto, the cars were travelling in opposite directions and sideswiped. The latter of damage which was accounted to at least $30.00 damage to the Ivey car, were amicably settled between the drivers.

No Arrests Necessary

No arrests were necessary in Belleville during the past 48 hours. Chief Constable Ellis reported Mrs. Sandraw, 169 Mary St., yesterday, to the effect that a fellow dog was complaining the children of the neighbourhood. County Constable Thompson has been instructed to investigate the matter.

Constable Ellis was not of a superstitious nature as 13 weary knights of the road slumbered without incident.

Police apprehended a local youth riding his bicycle on the sidewalk yesterday and charges will be preferred against the offender. "There have been several complaints regarding the riding of bicycles on the sidewalks and on the approaches. This is against the law and such violators will be prosecuted when apprehended," warned Chief Kidd this afternoon.

POLICE COURT

Stanley Archer, Belleville, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the residence of Mrs. Ida Allen and rooms when he was arraigned before Magistrate Peters, K.C. in today's local police court. Sentence was reserved in the case, however.

"I would like some consideration in this "Archer said, "I am trying to get this young man in the army and if the court will postpone sentence for a few days I believe we can place him in the service of the Traffic Officer Jack Ervine, who has received orders to join the Provincial police force in the near future," stated Crown Attorney B. C. Gilmour, K.C. Sentence was postponed.

Archer was charged with entering the Belle Billiards and stealing therefrom a quantity of cigarettes, cigars and other sundries, as well as $21. in cash. The recovered goods found by P.C. Taylor who arrested Archer, were produced in court during the case.

The case under the Masters and Servants Act was amicably settled between Mr. Allen, when a 16-year-old girl was fined one dollar after pleading guilty to a charge of assault, the charge being the sequel to the late hurtful throat slasher girl at the Belleville Beaches recently.

Thomas Hardy, transient, was given 14 days after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication. He could not pay the customary fine levied, he admitted.

'NAZI AIR FORCE

adian Naval Staff, said in an interview that the German air force scored hits on less than five per cent of the 540 round trips made by ships of the Royal Navy during the evacuation.

"The German Air Force has not beaten the Royal Navy and never will"—declared this veteran of more than 30 years' service in the Canadian and British navies. "An air force will only be able to perform the function of a navy when all command over the sea."

Proof Given At Dunkerque.

Admiral Nelles, a native of Brantford, Ont., is the first sailor, born and trained in Canada, to hold the rank of rear admiral. He has been chief of the naval staff since 1934.

On the basis of information received from overseas, he said he regarded the operation at Dunkerque as a convincing answer to the German claim that British seapower has been countered by the German air force.

At Dunkerque the German airmen operated under the most favorable conditions. They employed large numbers of bombers and worked incessantly. Yet they were unable to prevent the navy from doing its job or inflict serious losses upon it.

Less Than Five Per cent.

The British employed some 220 light warships and 620 other vessels in transporting 335,000 British and French soldiers from Dunkerque to the coast of England. Admiral Nelles said his figure of less than five per cent of hits on 540 trips applied to the warships engaged and not to the auxiliary craft.

The hits obtained by the Germans occurred only when the ships were either standing still or moving in crowded or narrow waters where manoeuvring was difficult. The enemy never were under the strike a warship moving freely in open waters.

FRANCE'S ANSWER TO GERMAN OFFENSIVE

French successes in the destruction in the first two days of "the Battle of June 1940," as French Premier Reynaud called it, of hundreds of tanks of the Germans was cheering news as it indicated the measure of the French answer to the German offensive on the Somme and Aisne Rivers.

In cheering words Monsieur Reynaud said that there was "reason for hope" despite the "grave present news" and he expressed his ringing confidence that victory is ahead. "The Battle of June 1940 may decide the fate of the world for hundreds of years. The regime of oppression will disappear. German dreams of control over Europe are going to disappear under French tanks.

"So we in France have but one thought; to fight for France and victory."

He answered the German lie that France was divided. "Today France is calm and united."

"Every country has one common interest, to avoid the control of Germany.

Then he said of the future "France is looking forward to the reconstruction of Europe in which the order and safety of all peoples will be guaranteed. The other peoples of the world must understand soon—because our task is immense."

All this was good news to the French and British, and to the waiting world whose one hope is as M. Reynaud said, to see the end of the attempted domination of the world by Germany.

Monsieur Reynaud made a statement which bears the Germans may understand if they are allowed to hear or read it. "Every French village or town attacked will be defended as in Cerbere and Hendaye. Every village or town attacked likewise." That may help to stop the enemy unless he is hopelessly mad.

One of the most encouraging remarks was that General Weygand has ex-pressed himself as "well satisfied" at the French answer to the enemy offensive on the Somme.

BLITZKRIEG WEAPONS TRAPPED

The Hitler blitzkrieg technique is mainly the element of surprise as well as use of special weapons as tanks, dive bombers and parachutes. In the gigantic struggle waging on the Somme and Aisne Rivers in France, as the Germans fight to press towards Paris, the commander of the Allies utilizes a new system of deep defences which have already stopped German tanks and nipped off these spear-heads.

It becomes like all other inventions or techniques when once it has become known, though it gives an initial advantage.

It is said that Hitler's parachutists have been largely killed or wounded.

As the war settles into something of what regular war has been, use of the special technique is expected, it is pointed out by observers. The blitzkrieg worked in Poland, was used again in Norway and in the Low Countries, but General Weygand has found an answer.

When it came to the final stage of the battle of Flanders it was found how stout British, French and Belgian hearts could perform a miracle and save with the aid of the navies and air forces of the Allies and volunteer seamen and merchant marine no fewer than 335,000 men.

CHURCHILL KNOWS BRITISH PEOPLE

"It took moral heroism to tell the story that Winston Churchill unfolded to the House of Commons. Anyone of small calibre would have tried to minimize the German victory, and would have boasted instead of the British triumph in withdrawing 335,000 men from the flames of Flanders. But this is not Mr. Churchill's way. He has always been able to look at facts without flinching. He believes in telling the grim truth in this dark hour because he knows his British people. He knows that they will respond, with all that they have and all they are, if they see that their heritage is in mortal danger." This is part of a comment of the New York Times on his speech. The comment went on, "In its proud defiance against odds, Mr. Churchill's speech was as brave in its way as the stand of the British army on the blood-soaked shore at Dunkirk. Its meaning will not be lost upon the British people or their enemies or upon those of the United States—Miranda, Bacon, Scott, B. Scott, B. Kellar, H. Bedford, C. Barnett, J. Jefferies and W. Goodfellow.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

Neutral Observers Tell of Conditions In Italy, Spain, and Germany

The following account of a visit to Spain, Italy and Germany at the end of 1939 is taken by permission from the current issue of an American business man. All the details are to be regarded as essential, but the picture given will serve as useful background.

We took off at Port Washington one morning early in November, 1939, and arrived at Lisbon, Portugal, thirty hours later after two refuelling stops—Newfoundland, Azores.

Four hundred miles out from Europe we flew over the Italian steamship, "Vulcania", headed for Lisbon, and further passed over a convoy of three oil tankers, seventeen freighters, accompanied by six destroyers.

On November 25th, at 8:00 a.m. I boarded a plane for Seville, Spain. I had been advised to carry food, by the British consul in Lisbon, who informed me that Spanish trains were without heat, and that hotels were likely to be without food suitable for healthy consumption. In Seville there are, apparently just recovering from the effects of economy, with most men in drab uniforms, and the only food obtainable was sour cabbage, shrimps, hard bread and wine.

On the 27th afternoon of the same day, I flew over Gibraltar and landed at Malaga, Spain, together with three German agents, returning to Germany from South Africa, Argentina, Brazil and the United States. These agents, (who spoke English), said that they had left the "Vulcania," and a British gunboat had stopped and the "Vulcania" for the purpose of taking them off. The "Vulcania's" captain defied two British warships, but the British Navy's guns three mile limit, where he remained until the Germans had been removed. This indicates the Italian government's favorable attitude to the Axis powers, whereas the Italian people themselves are almost entirely pro-Ally.

On arrival in Spanish Morocco, I stayed overnight in the night in Melilla, an Arab city of 72,000, but found it impossible to get host accommodations. I was considered by one of the agents that he arranged one room in the local hotel for the two of us, but that he was not included in German accommodations, despite the fact that I found it absolutely nothing edible in the city except rice with shrimps and hard bread. Melilla was the starting point for France's revolution in 1936. Conditions there are doing a good business and Rome itself is a bee-hive of activity, as compared to that, outside of large cities, conditions are bad, and the people desperately poor.

The most prosperous city in Italy is Milton, the great industrial centre of Italy. England is now making large loans +25 millions of dollars at present—to Italy, and participates in contracts for delivery of cannon and other war materials. One interesting observation in Italy was the statement of a group of wealthy manufacturers that Germany was delivered in the last ten months has been entirely of inferior quality, and future orders would go elsewhere.

A large army is maintained in poor uniforms and on labour scheme. Italy's navy is nothing to boast of, to do with the surplus of young men. I am convinced that both in the Italian Army and Navy and my opinion and this is the third time since 1918 that I have been in Italy) is that both the Army and Navy are no match for Allied forces. The ships of the Navy are dirty and poorly maintained, as much as they were eight years ago. The truth of the matter is, Italy has no great factories, nothing else—and a bad location, poor resources and no material physical condition of the people.

Berlin

One morning at the end of November I arrived in Berlin, London. On landing at Munich, we stopped on the opposite side of the field and had to walk across, in the rain, carrying my own bags. The sight of a German country was a gloomy one. Several officers tries to commandeer the German, but considered it wise to indicate complete ignorance of the language, and passed on. This occurred throughout my visit to Germany. A few days later, I met those same American sprucks, contained about ten newspapers, and were terrified at the conditions, one carton of American cigarettes and several magazines being considered a prize by group of small children playing store. The Germans seemed to have doubts about my being allowed to keep a six pound bar of soap, I also carried a pound and a half box of soap in Germany is at present a luxury, and cannot be obtainable at all. Another time I was interviewed by the Gestapo, and after about an hour the weather cleared and we flew on to Berlin. On departure from Munich I saw military planes scattered all over the countryside, evidently the air force plane factory standing idle. We flew low and formed an extremely low altitude, evidently under government instructions. In Berlin 300 miles to Berlin, I counted only 6 motor vehicles on the roads. About every ten minutes fast scouting planes would soon about in attacking position, flying extremely close to close-up identification.

We crossed over Czechoslovakia and entered Berlin from the Polish frontier, sixty miles distant, evidently in front. We avoid looking, although we might be coming from Paris, for it was Sunday and we arrived at Lisbon. Portugal, thirty hours later after and refuelling stops—Newfoundland, Azores.

Four hundred miles out from Europe we flew over the Italian steamship, "Vulcania", headed for Lisbon, and further passed over a convoy of three oil tankers, seventeen freighters, accompanied by six destroyers.

On November 25th, at 8:00 a.m. I boarded a plane for Seville, Spain. I had been advised to carry food, by the British consul in Lisbon, who informed me that Spanish trains were without heat, and that hotels were likely to be without food suitable for healthy consumption. In Seville there are, apparently just recovering from the effects of economy, with most men in drab uniforms, and the only food obtainable was sour cabbage, shrimps, hard bread and wine.

On the 27th afternoon of the same day, I flew over Gibraltar and landed at Malaga, Spain, together with three German agents, returning to Germany from South Africa, Argentina, Brazil and the United States. These agents, (who spoke English), said that they had left the "Vulcania," and a British gunboat had stopped and the "Vulcania" for the purpose of taking them off. The "Vulcania's" captain defied two British warships, but British Navy's guns three mile limit, where he remained until the Germans had been removed. This indicates the Italian government's favorable attitude to the Axis powers, whereas the Italian people themselves are almost entirely pro-Ally.

On arrival in Spanish Morocco, I stayed overnight in the night in Melilla, an Arab city of 72,000, but found it impossible to get host accommodations. I was considered by one of the agents that he arranged one room in the local hotel for the two of us, but that he was not included in German accommodations, despite the fact that I found it absolutely nothing edible in the city except rice with shrimps and hard bread. Melilla was the starting point for France's revolution in 1936. Conditions there are doing a good business and Rome itself is a bee-hive of activity, as compared to that, outside of large cities, conditions are bad, and the people desperately poor.

The most prosperous city in Italy is Milton, the great industrial centre of Italy. England is now making large loans +25 millions of dollars at present—to Italy, and participates in contracts for delivery of cannon and other war materials. One interesting observation in Italy was the statement of a group of wealthy manufacturers that German machinery delivered in the last ten months has been entirely of inferior quality, and future orders would go elsewhere.

A large army is maintained in poor uniforms and on labour scheme. Italy's navy is nothing to boast of, to do with the surplus of young men. I am convinced that both in the Italian Army and Navy and my opinion and this is the third time since 1918 that I have been in Italy) is that both the Army and Navy are no match for Allied forces. The ships of the Navy are dirty and poorly maintained, as much as they were eight years ago. The truth of the matter is, Italy has no great factories, nothing else—and a bad location, poor resources and no material physical condition of the people.

Injections to Prevent Poison Ivy May Cause Severe Reactions

As the poison ivy season approaches, victims of this type of allergy look around for some method of protecting themselves. As the symptoms of poison ivy are much like those of hay fever and asthma, it is natural that research workers and drug manufacturers should be experimenting with a view to preventing attacks of poison ivy just as with hay fever, eczema, and other allergic conditions.

The result has been various methods of treating the disease and not a bad location, poor resources and no material physical condition of the people.

Ourselves and Others

The second period has started.

The Nazi line-up — Goebbels, Goering, Hitler, in the front line, Mussolini still on defence).....

The blitzkrieg may yet prove to be a boomerang.....

Then there is the sweet young thing who thought Fifth Columnists were those who sang in the choir.

According to the Windsor Star, the Huns "drilled down the Belgian fairways in order to establish control, but they could not make the touchdown. Apparently they could not. They probably found out, too, that fairways are not suitable machine gun nests, and they made plenty of holes in one.

At long last, Premier Reynaud has "reorganized" the French Cabinet. French town and village bombed by the Nazis pounded by the Allies, and in similar measure in a German town and village in the front line. The law of Moses, but the only way to bring the war really home to the German people is to have them stuffed with propaganda from the Ministry of Propaganda. That gives a taste of the real thing. For too many years Germany seems to have been fought in foreign soil, and it is time, the Huns got a bit of bombing in their own police.....

The French people have always been famous for their generosity to those who are in distress, and to share anything they have with the needy. The Germans have taken the man tanks blitzed down the Somme roads yesterday, and today while with Nazi "tankers" removed the heavy steel man-hole covers from the top of the tanks, some much-needed air, the pilots appear to be in a hurry to get over-generous nature, tossed a few packages of cigarettes overboard as an "apology" and the advice "Share these among you, boys".

He had been walking with one of his friends, when he saw another in the pavement, and he was getting up. "Thank heavens! I thought he was lame!"

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

New French tactics and defence dispositions worked well in the first two days of the new German offensive from the north eastward on Paris. Nowhere was the enemy able to cut through the defences on the first thrust for the whole day-long rushes into Allied territory which they were able to make in Belgium and Holland although some penetration occurred on the second day.

The German policy at the moment appears to be to maintain heavy pressure along the entire front. That policy would quickly change however, if the pressure disclosed a weak point. A heavy concentration of power would probably be launched against the weak spot and as soon as that occurred the mechanized columns would pour through as before.

The French are literally fighting for life as they were at the Battle of the Marne in 1914. Then the Germans were within a few miles of Paris and no one knows how many of them are within a few miles of the capital.

But relatively speaking, having regard to the fact with which the German army of 1940 moves on wheels and tracks and to the speed of the foot-slogging German army of 1914, there is little difference.

The new French defence line is organized to a considerable depth and is designed to act as a screen rather than as a firm obstacle to the German advance. The defences become progressively more powerful towards the back areas and the advancing enemy correspondingly becomes progressively weaker as he approaches the strongest defences.

AT THE BELLE

"BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN"

You want to take certain precautions when you go to see Jack Benny in his newest comedy, "Buck Benny Rides Again", playing next at the Belle Theatre. We recommend an extra strong belt or girdle, to guard against side-splitting; and your oldest dress or suit of clothes against rolling in the aisles. For Benny's newest picture for Paramount is undoubtedly his funniest, and if you can contain your mirth when Jack mounts a horse and rides the herd, then you are a tougher audience than this writer.

We further defy you not to howl with laughter when Rochester does his imitation of Fred Astaire. And you'll be rolling in the aisles from Rochester-er-Buffalo in the aisles, unless you have iron-bound will power.

All of which is by way of saying that Jack Benny and his radio trope against a horse-opera background have the likes of their lives, and so will you. This picture is absolutely top in production value, with plenty of good music and dancing.

We are tempted to say that it is worth the price of admission to watch Jack Benny on his first attempt to ride a horse or twirl a lariat, since no one can register frustration quite as well as Jack.

The story of "Buck Benny Rides Again", starts with Jack and his colleagues at a broadcasting station. The shift to the wild west begins when Jack tries to impress his girl friend in the picture(played by Ellen Drew) with the notion that he owns a ranch in Nevada. Ellen takes him up on it, with the result that Jack has to be extricated from his difficulty by Andy Devine, who actually owns a ranch.

Thereafter, the scene is the range, where Jack goes through the motion of twirling a lasso, branding steers, and minding the herd—for none of which his past as a Waukegan cowboy had fitted him. By bribing the hands to let him mail them about, he builds up a reputation before his girl as a tough hombre, but complications ensue, as the fellow says, when he runs up against a gang of real bandits. How he extricates himself, with the critical assistance of Rochester, Phil Harris, Andy Devine, and other loyal members of his company, forms the denouement of something. Anyway, it all is swell fun.

The song hits, left to the expert hands of Frank Loesser—ames McHugh team of songwriters, are tuneful and easy to remember. You'll be whistling "My, My" and "It's My Kind o' Country" for a long time to come.

We take off our hats, in fact to any one who had a hand in the picture. Ellen Drew is elegant as the feminine lead; with Virginia Dale and Lillian Cornell lending added entertainment.

Selected Junior Features

"Ants in the Plant", a clever and funny comicolor cartoon, the popular Belle Newsreel, and an unusually interesting and entertaining Popular Science film in technicolor precede the feature attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"CLOUDS OVER EUROPE"

The sensational surprise hit of 1939! "Clouds Over Europe" which was so thoroughly enjoyed last year at its premiere showing at the McCarthy Theatre, will by popular request be again shown next week.

Despite its somewhat weighty title "Clouds Over Europe" is both swell entertainment and a motion picture comedy which has been surpassed by few films ever made.

"Clouds Over Europe" is not a war picture—"Clouds Over Europe" is just the thing for ideal summer entertainment, a real old-fashioned, rip-roaring melodrama that is crammed with action and thrills, and at the same time a comedy that will keep you in an almost continuous series of snickers, chuckles and guffaws.

Ralph Richardson, star of the Citadel, heads the cast of "Clouds Over Europe", is superb in the role of a Scotland Yard detective and just the slight of him in the picture brings forth peels of helpless laughter. Laurence Olivier, star of "Wuthering Heights" and "Rebecca", and pretty Valerie Hobson have the romantic leads and a charming, battling couple they are. All the rest of the cast is excellent, but it is Ralph Richardson who will be remembered.

Don't on any account miss "Clouds Over Europe." Perhaps it is your fault if you missed it here last year, but this time we recommend it as about the most entertaining picture you'll see.

"The Last Wolf Hero is a Lady"

Warren William in "The Lone Wolf Meets a Lady" also Jack Holt in "Hidden Power" now playing at the McCarthy Theatre are both top-ranking screen attractions and offered splendid entertainment, you'll enjoy.

A clever and amusing cartoon "Little Last Henry", and also a new episode of "The Shadow" serial, are two worthwhile added short subjects.

TANK PRODUCTION A COMPLEX JOB SAYS C. D. HOWE

Supply Minister Assures House of Commons "Canada Can Undoubtedly Make a Tank"

GO TO ENGLAND

Ottawa, June 7.—(CP)—Canada, in the words of Hon. C. D. Howe, "can undoubtedly make a tank," and in giving this assurance to the House of Commons the Munitions and Supply Minister said steps were being taken immediately to go into the problem of tank production in this country.

He warned however, that production would be a complex job and not a matter for any one firm. "It will mean the collaboration of the heavy industry of this country."

Mr. Howe, speaking to the Commons yesterday, said it is expected that a Canadian delegation will leave for England by the next boat "to settle this question (tank production) once for all."

The experiences on the field of battle during the past week had brought about development of a 65-ton British tank believed to be effective under modern conditions. This, the minister said, would be a tank suitable for Canada to copy.

Canada, previously received an order for 100 tanks, known as Mark 2 or Ballantyne tanks, Mr. Howe revealed in the Commons last May 29. However the tank design was altered and the order was withdrawn by the British War Supply Board April 2 after it had been decided to handle the order in the Canadian Pacific Railway's Angus shops in Montreal.

"Even after all information is obtained and all possible help has been secured outside of Canada, it will still be an extremely complex job for Canadian industry to build tanks," the Minister warned.

Comes up in Debate

H. A. Bruce (Con. Toronto Parkdale) brought on the discussion of tanks during debate on relief payments. He said a Hamilton, Ont., firm could produce plate up to six inches with alloy suitable for the manufacture of various types of tanks".

"We can produce in this country alloy plate of a thickness and hardness of two inches" said Mr. Howe. "The type of tank in the public mind (40 tons) has armoured steel of more than twice that thickness."

He said that since the first days of tank invented the invention of a gun to destroy the type of tank follows. Thus the effectiveness of a tank is dependent on its being proof against the latest type of gun designed to offset it.

British ideas of what constituted the efficient tank for ordinary duty service conditions differed from those of Canadian military authorities and the battle in Europe was developing some new facts about tanks.

Questions Ability of Plant

Mr. Howe also questioned whether the steel plant at Sydney, N.S., could roll the four-inch armor plating as suggested by Percy Black (Con. Cumberland).

Canada produced gasoline engines that could propel "some kind of tank" declared the Munitions adder, but he had in mind a tank propelled by a Diesel engine much larger than anything produced in Canada.

"It is folly to say that we cannot produce Diesel engines in this country he declared. "Canadian Industry can do anything provided it is given sufficient time and development expenses. In this case he does not think it may not be the right way to do the moment".

Canadians Will Need Passports After July 1st To Visit the U. S.

Washington, June 7.—(AP)—A new alien barrie was raised around the United States today to insure against entry of possible "fifth columnists" from neighboring countries and foreign possessions in the western hemisphere.

A state department order, effective July 1, 1940, removed passport and visa exemptions for citizens of Canada, Cuba, Newfoundland, St. Pierre, Miquelon, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, Panama, Bermuda and all other British, French and Netherlands possessions in the West Indies.

Heretofore citizens of these countries have been able to visit the United States temporarily without the formality of presenting passports and visas.

An effect of the order was expected to be a sharp curtailment of tourist travel to the United States from nearby countries.

It was expected, however, that the new order would impose no hardships on workers commuting over the Canadian and Mexican borders, Visas will not be required for each trip and the workers therefore need only display their passports at each crossing of the boundary.

UNITY OF CANADA*

UNITY IN OUR WAR EFFORT

BRITISH COLUMBIA is the reason for building railways across the Rockies; and the reason why Confederation had so great significance. It completes the provincial chain that spans this Continent, and she holds the key to the Pacific. Her population is nearing the 800,000 mark, and is producing close to $100,000,000 of wealth each year. Lumber, Fisheries, Farming, Fruit Raising, and the mining of copper, gold, silver, lead, zinc, coal, gypsum and silver represent only a part of her activities. In 1939 approximately 500,000 people and 160,500 cars crossed her border from the United States to avail themselves of her 20,000 miles of highways. Her tourist traffic for that year was estimated at over $300,000,000. She exports 60% of her fruit to the middle west, while no part of the Dominion is without some of her raw or finished materials. Eastern manufacturers are already locating plants within her borders and are bringing to her the ties of co-operation that will more and more closely knit together the whole Dominion.

Remember, when you buy a Canadian-built car you're helping to support an industry that distributes over $22,000,000 a year in wages and salaries to many families dependent on the industry itself. When you add to this the families that are supported by industries supplying raw and finished materials to automobile manufacturers, you get an idea of what this activity means to the Canadian home market from one end of Canada to the other.

Hon. T. D. PATTULLO, K.C., LL.D.

"AGAIN, WAR FINDS US READY"

"At this stage, it seems evident that production will be the dominant note in Canada's wartime activities and British Columbia inevitably must play an important part.

"Our industries are mobilized, equipped and ready to make available our resources of timber, base metals and foodstuffs. Many essentials for the successful prosecution of the war are here in abundance and we have the will and ability to adjust ourselves immediately to any demands that may be made upon us, including increasing ground and ship building.

"We are in this war with every nerve and sinew. No part of His Majesty's Dominions is more definitely British than British Columbia. Its people are resolute in their determination to do their full part and more than part in seeing the war through to successful termination."

T. D. PATTULLO,
Prime Minister of British Columbia.

Before Sun-Worship —Read This

By HELEN FOLLETT

Sun-kissed arms get by in the summer but with the coming of the pretty dollies are berry-brown. But autumn will eventually all-white. What then? Arms will be pebble, all-over beaded, clothed in chiffon sleeves to the finger. Take time by the cowlick, my children, and ward off that woe.

The Old Oil

There is a simple and excellent arm treatment that will keep the skin smooth, that is, if you have the insurance against goose flesh, and will discourage freckles. Give it to yourself twice a week.

Begin with a rousing scouring with warm soap and a hearty brush to nip off dead skin scales that are ever ready to leave with warm water and dry briskly, so the flesh will glow. Apply cocoanut oil, rubbing up and down, with the palms of the hands. Make a brassiere of your favorite oil, and rub it round, sipping from fingertips to shoulder. Don't be afraid to use it. Then the sun dried surface will lap it up as a kitten laps up cream.

Sprinkle a generous talcum which, combined with the oil, will form a delightful, invisible film. Enlist the services of a member of the family, who has a strong large turkish towels out of steaming hot water, wrap around your arms, then unwrap and rub the softened half a dozen times. Remove the paste with the same towel. Now, if it's Nice, soft white fins in the morning.

Clip Joints

Vacationists who spend the summer in the woods, far away from beauty shops, can give themselves a good haircut. It's easy, but it isn't.

After the shampoo is the best time for it. Divide the hair into small strands, clip off the ends with each one afterward rolling on spool metal curler. We don't claim that it's a professional cut, but it will serve at time being.

And don't forget that outdoor life means that you must keep your complexion and hands well oiled. Neglect them and they'll get leathery.

Teacher Should Help Ease Grief of Students

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Once upon a time, I wrote in this column that we parents do best for our children while they are young to help them attain sturdy self-reliance and then they must lose us they can carry on with a minimum of emotional distress.

How much does the average teacher know about the emotional background of her individual pupils? Nora tomboy has been absent for four days, submitting on return a written excuse, "Death in the family." How often does the teacher know what member of the family died? How often does she care? Not that she means to be hardhearted. She just assumes it is not her business. Does the teacher or the student organization make special attempts to help the bereaved student regain as easily as possible the learning losses which resulted from the absence? Or has this time of life facilities to divert his thoughts from grief?

Source of Care

In the schools there are students (and pupils) with loved ones very ill, loved ones who have long been invalids, or have been a constant source of care and worry and anxiety to those students and the other members of their family; there are students whose parents are unemployed, or are almost driven to distraction over money matters. There are students in trouble. There are students, too, whose parents do not love one another, or love all, or parents in continual discord, for whom love and happiness at home are hardly known.

What does the average teacher care about these matters, and why should she—except as any other human being—reasonably sympathetic should? Do her principal and supervisor, as a rule, the teachers under whom she had her training, and the textbooks which she studied, emphasize the human factor?

Some, fortunately, have begun to do so more, tomorrow will.

If I were teaching in the elementary or secondary school again, I would try to find many ways of cultivating human sympathy and tenderness in my students. I should also like to prove that I cared about anything which meant much to them. I should, each morning, try to be at school early—not there to write out lessons on the board, but to visit with the children, hoping they would talk to me about all sorts of things and that they informally would acquainted me with their homes, seeking me as the first person to tell of any sorrow, grief or worry, particularly any which I could help overcome.

I just don't know how well I might measure up to my ideal. I'm human at are other teachers. But I should like to try, hoping to improve gradually, finding all the while a great amount of satisfaction from the effort.

Argyll I. O. D. E. Has Active Month

The regular meeting of Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. was held on Thursday, June 6th, with eighteen members present. Mrs. A. B. Gribble, regent, was in the chair.

A motion was passed to the effect that the balance be paid to the Red Cross.

Mrs. Alan Lazier is to be in charge of the collection of papers for the month and Mrs. Scott are to be sewing conveners for the summer.

A motion was passed unanimously that the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. continue as in the past to direct their war efforts as an independent chapter.

A letter from the National President urging the raising of jackets, for utility bags, 7 shirts were sent to C.O.D.E. headquarters.

Sewing on Red Cross supplies for pillow cases and sheets has been rapidly proceeding.

A gift of 52 packages of cigarettes was presented to members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

The response to an appeal for clothing and blankets for evacuees has been very gratifying and members wish to take this opportunity to thank all who are making donations to their war efforts.

BELLEVILLE COLLEGIATE GIRLS FINE AT DRILL

CROWDS TURN OUT TO SEE THE LOVELY "CADETTES"

One of the largest crowds ever to witness an inspection turned out to see the girl-cadet corps of the Belleville Collegiate Institute, being inspected by Capt. H. S. Pearson. The "cadettes" were formed a little over a month ago, by a group of girls tired of remaining in the background while the boys were out having cadet drill. The girls, with the approval of the principal, formed the corps and within a very short time nearly 300 girls joined up, dressed in blue and white, the girls marched before Inspecting Officer Capt. Pearson and received high praises from the officer. The girls designed their uniforms of white middies, blue skirts, black tie and cadet hat. Under the command of Lieut.-Col. Bernice saunders the girls carried out various military movements with precision. Some of them are shown listening to their chief.

Wedding Menus Need Not Show Lack of Imagination

A breakfast menu should be served at a very early morning wedding. The first course might consist of fruit in some form, also cereal ation, iced grapefruit, orange juice. Then, usually, eggs, perhaps scrambled, with thin slices of crisp bacon, or eggs baked in ramekins. They look biscuits or rolls, toast, or toasted English muffins; marmalade, jam or some kind or guava jelly; and hot coffee.

What is referred to as a "wedding breakfast" although the menu is a typical luncheon menu, is served after a late morning wedding, for example a High Noon wedding, or one that takes place before one o'clock. This may be a sit-down meal, at a large table or separate small tables, but usually the buffet service is more convenient.

If the service is buffet, the table is set as for an afternoon tea, and the wedding (bride's) cake, if there is to be no bridal table, is used as the centrepiece. The flowers used on this table are usually all-white though sometimes white and pink or white and pale yellow flowers are used.

The first course might be fruit cocktail, or, in the winter, consomme. Hot dishes appropriate to serve for seated or buffet service are: chicken a la King on toast; lobster or crab Newburg; creamed chicken with mushrooms; chicken or shrimp patties; chicken croquettes.

Appropriate cold dishes are: an aspic jelly of chicken or tomato, or celery salad; ham mousse; sliced cold meats with salads or tomato aspic; cold meat and chicken sandwiches with vinagrette dressing may be used. And of course there is the perennial chicken or lobster salad; appropriate relishes should be served. There should be finger rolls (split and buttered and heated) or tiny biscuits, or thin bread-and-butter sandwiches or sandwiches with simple fillings. The coffee service is usually placed on a side table, as is the champagne punch or a substitute cold drink.

Dessert is usually ice cream or an ice. This may be served in individual molds appropriate to the occasion. There are dishes of fancy cakes, perhaps little cakes iced in white or white and pink. Or only the bride's cake may be served with the ice cream.

On the table, for decoration as well as for taste, are dishes of mints, bonbons, glass nuts, crystallized grapefruit or orange slices, frosted mint leaves, crystal mints, or candy rose petals, white or pink or both.

At the afternoon or evening reception the menu may be similar but it may be as simple as you wish—one dish such as chicken a la King with small cakes, or lobster salad with rolls or bread-and-butter and assorted sandwiches, ices, bride's cake, and coffee.

After an informal afternoon wedding, tea with coffee as an alternative, and appropriate foods may be served: thin sandwiches of assorted kinds, little cakes. After an informal evening wedding, sandwiches, small cakes, coffee may be served, perhaps the bride's cake and ice cream.

Fashion Hold-up

Remember the old gag . . . Why do I stencil my wash? Because I need red suspenders! Well, the girls are wearing suspenders of any color to hold up their shirts which they sew for sports or keep in slick trim for? town wear.

Suspenders? Right-o! Shirts? Yes, if you're patriotic color scheme. Blue is scarlet with white dots. Make the suspender a skirt and bodice of flax blue heavier weave. Since blouse and frock are separate pieces, a girl can wear any type blouse she's pleases with the main part of the ensemble.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Wedding Should Follow Graduation, Says Educator

How many girls are allowed to spend months on their graduation frocks without a suggestion from mother will go along with some sage advice about durability of material and how the precious gown can be depended on for a wedding evening effect after the diploma has been put away.

Yet we have the head of a progressive educational institution advancing the idea that "a college diploma one day and a marriage certificate the next" is advisable for Miss America. The choice of a husband, according to this authority, should be equally young and girl "should eschew the old fashioned man who is well established when there is likely to be too much difference in age and ideas."

Well, well, who's going to put up the money for all this youthful romance in a palace? If a girl marries immediately after graduation, and the man marries a equally youthful, they must have plenty of parental handout. Not the best way for the young pair to pay the bills. If they're independent young people, not utter parasites, they will probably object to a parental handout. But the best way to begin a young couple's life together is accepting a parental gift, even if the husband has to go into money in the family to make ends possible.

Concerning the marriage-after-graduation plan, there is a grim comment in the statistics which show that more of these marriages go on the rocks than those contracted by young people a couple of years later, when they've learned something of responsibility, self-discipline the worth of a dollar—in other words, when they have absorbed a good dose of common sense. If you'll look up the word "education" in the dictionary you'll find that it means, among other things, "discipline of the mind and character." The world is not, as the very young often imagine, a playground provided for their amusement.

It's not unlikely, if a girl has had one of those extremely expensive weddings, that she'll have some kind of a debut, a coming-out party, a few months before the graduates — possibly during the Christmas holidays. At that time she begins to get the impression that the world is a large red apple, of which she is entitled a good-sized bite. Next will come graduation with flowers, presents, well-wishers of friends and, the lovely graduation outfit.

After graduation things may be quite slow up a bit. Surely there must be something else on the calendar to keep her in the limelight. Yes, there's the wedding. The sweet girl graduate is engaged to be in love with love than she is with her very young fiance. With the exception of the few, some of these college-diploma-marriages are doomed unless they survive. But they are risky.

If youngsters will be exonerately married marriage is the only solution. It's better for them both to get jobs and stand on their own feet than to accept the parental handout. To go back a little, it's much more sensible for youngsters to seek an education that will fit them for getting. On the other hand, if they've had the type of education which is a little bit of this and a little bit of that, it's better to settle down to a course in vocational training before they apply for the marriage certificate.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Two-Year-Olds

Continuing from where we left off yesterday:

At two years of age the child should be completely trained. He should be able to wash and dry his hands and get himself a drink of water. He is feeding himself competently by then—or he should be. His attempts at dress and undress enabled are fairly successful, especially if the clothes chosen are specially designed.

Your average two-year-old has a lot of experience by now, and so he can be trusted alone in reasonably safe places. He is old enough to avoid danger. He will repeat the basic outlines of fairy tales that mother and father have been telling him and he recognizes the pictures in his story book and tries to explain them. He recognizes and names a few colors. He tries to relate experiences to his family and wants to have his mother to see things that he has made. He knows his full name and can spell it.

By the age of two, your child is conscious of a wide world all around him and now thinks of other things besides himself. Your pet dog becomes a real creature with paws and tail and mouth and eyes, whereas formerly it was just something to play with. The youngster wants to wonder about the dog, why it can't talk, or walk on two legs the stage is set for just beginning.

This curiosity and interest in outside things makes the child an incessant explorer. One frequently attempts at this stage is that the child will "run away", and this naturally distresses many mothers and fathers. Actually, the child is only trying to see what is outside his own backyard. Some children do of this age become almost inveterate wanderers and must be watched all the time. This thirst for drinking in the sights of the wide world has only one cure—satisfy the curiosity by taking the child on frequent excursions as often as possible. Take him on walks, take him on errands, take him on picnics.

This urge to explore makes the child reckless in his activities. He seems satisfied for days to play one place or at one game and the parents often begin to wonder whether this is a character trait coming out and if he will always be like that. Well, parents should-n't worry about this indication. The child is large red apple, of which she is entitled a good-sized bite. Next will come graduation with flowers, presents, well-wishers of friends and, the lovely graduation outfit.

After graduation things may be quite slow up a bit. Surely there must be something else on the calendar to keep her in the limelight. Yes, there's the wedding. Tomorrow we will follow the growing child further.

O.S.D. Children Display Remarkable Talent in Dancing, Home Craft And Art at the Annual Open House

Large Crowd Attending the Exhibition is Amazed at the Ability of Students to Play in Rhythm Band, Conduct Puppet Show and Dance Despite Handicap of Deafness

VOCATIONAL EXHIBIT PARTICULARLY GOOD

Demonstrating many phases of vocational training which contribute to the education of a deaf child, the program at the Ontario School for the Deaf Thursday featured an exhibition and sale of pupils' work and the vocational classes, a puppet show, platform entertainment, and a visit to the classrooms. Belleville public demonstrated its continued interest in the work of the O.S.D. by attending in large numbers, the evening's program being so well patronized that the Assembly Hall was crowded to capacity for the stage presentation.

A welcome was extended the visitors by Mr. W. J. Morrison, B. A., B. Paed, Superintendent of the School, who in his informal address during the program in the auditorium gave many interesting details of school life. The closing exercises would include not only yesterday's demonstrations, but the presentation of prizes and certificates for academic attainments next week. Field Day on Wednesday had concluded the year's sports program. All these special events showed the broad training students receive at the Ontario School for the Deaf, a training whose aim is to prepare them to take their place in the hearing world equipped in educational qualifications and physical fitness to find their places as useful citizens.

294 Students Enrolled

Students come to the school as early as five years of age and some hard of hearing children as late as 14, 15 or 16 as disease, particularly scarlet fever, rob them of their ability to hear. At present there are 294 pupils registered at the school, the only school for the deaf in Ontario. Day classes are held in Toronto and Ottawa, but the Ontario School for the Deaf is unique in the province, gathering its pupils from as far west as Manitoba borders, from Northern Ontario and from eastern communities. If the parents are not able to pay the fee for the education of their children, the province bears the whole cost, paying everything but the cost of the pupil's clothing and transportation. As many of the children come from needy homes, a Pupils' Benefit Fund has been started at the School and the proceeds of such entertainments as Thursday's contribute to the assistance of such children.

As the program continued, Mr. Morrison pointed out that the numbers given on the platform were part of the regular school work, the dancing aiding the children to have normal movements and the rhythm work giving them a sense of rhythm so necessary in speech teaching. Most of the children appearing in the dances were totally deaf, some having a small percentage of hearing, so that their proficiency was the result of long and careful training by their teacher, Miss Helen Keeler.

The Rhythm Band showed part of the work which is directed with outstanding success by Mr. Alec Gordon, who acted as accompanist for the program last evening.

Charming Dances

The audience was delighted with the beauty of the dances as various classes demonstrated many contrasting types of that interesting art. Tiny tots in rosebud costumes showed their skill in Dance of the Dolls, Song of the Sower and a spirited Dutch Tap. A group of little ones, slightly their seniors, was seen in the picturesque Dance of the Elves, the New Bo-Peep and her gambolling sheep and a Lullaby Ballet that introduced favourite slumber songs. The dances of many countries followed, with the Highland Schottische perfectly given by plaid costumed dancers, the graceful La France Minuet by dancers in old fashioned attire and the Black Nag, for which those taking part were colorful costumes complete with bandanas and bolero, being included in this group.

The three senior boys of the school gave an excellent performance in the Sword Dance, followed by the very appealing Gavotte in which white-wigged girls in period costumes, danced with boys whose costumes in mauve, rose and turquoise blue, were equally striking. The tempo underwent an abrupt change for the next and concluding number, Tap Routines, in which the children demonstrated their marked ability in this popular modern dance.

Adding to the interest of the stage performance was the appearance of the Rhythm Band, trained by Mr. Gordon, giving two numbers in faultless time. This achievement on the part of the deaf children is remarkable, and as in the dancing, the audience tended to forget that the young performers could not hear a note of the musical accompaniment but depended on the floor vibrations to catch the beat of the music.

Vocational Display

The Assembly Hall was full of interest even after the last number on the stage program. Here were collected exhibits of part of the work in vocational training given at the school. This begins with Manual Training by Mr. Carson Stanton for all junior boys before they select the shop for specialized senior course. The clever articles in wood and metal all had a useful purpose for the home as well as acquainting the students with the use of tools. The carpentry work under the direction of Mr. Thomas O'Hara reflected the careful training of the boys and their skill in this particular field. The ladders, well finished, laundry aids, and particularly the handsome tilt-top tables were greatly admired. Everything from the useful old fashioned serving curate to smart ultra-modernly designed end tables, chests and cupboards, all beautifully finished, were shown in the exhibit from the woodworking classes of which Mr. Harold Vaughan is instructor. The visitors continued on the rounds of inspection to the many useful farm utensils made by the boys of the agricultural course, during the wheat months, under the direction of Mr. John Hodgson, and the excellent custom-made shoes and expert shoe repairs done in the shoe shop which is in charge of Mr. Thomas Truman. In the Printing Department boys learn linotyping, hand composition and press work, and some examples of their splendid work were on display, this term's year book being of special interest. Mr. Lea Morrison is in charge of the Printing course.

Other branches of vocational work were demonstrated in the classes and showed the visitors the wide scope of fields in which the deaf child may find success in the world in spite of its serious handicap. The girls receive instruction in Foods and Homemaking given by Miss Katharine Daly and the Household Science room was thronged with visitors who enjoyed refreshments there and paused to admire the products of the bakery in which senior boys, Teddy George, and James Brown, are completing a course under the direction of Mr. F. Cook, baker. The beautifully decorated wedding cakes topped with the school colors, which will be part of the school's display at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto this Fall, were the work of the boys and were sincerely praised by the spectators. In the afternoon Miss Daly and her students served afternoon tea to the visitors the girls serving capable and gracious hostesses.

Sewing Room

The Sewing Room bright with flowers and gay with the many colors of the garments made by the girls was an interesting centre. The senior pupils, taught by Miss Hilda Waite, are thoroughly instructed in dressmaking, home crafts and power operating, and could make, with almost professional skill, dresses, suits, sweaters, children's dainty frocks, beautifully worked, towels and bath mats finished with touches of embroidery. The intermediate classes instructed by Miss Mildred Peacock showed skill and promise as needlewomen with their exhibit of beach pajamas, knitted articles, gowns, curtains and other useful sewing projects. A demonstration of the art of the exhibit, with the pillow lace and scarf made by the girls who also finished the draperies for a smart dressing table designed by the boys, on which were lamps also made by the boys.

Girls also receive expert training in hair dressing, finger waving, marcelling and manicuring by Mrs. M. Gilbert and the Beauty Parlour had many fascinated visitors watching the girls demonstrating their prowess. In the Art Room which is in charge of Miss Mabel Cass there was much to delight those who lingered there. Students showed the making and use of intricately patterned lino blocks, the making of large murals by enlarging squares, stencil and drypoint etching. In a corner of the second floor corridor a student demonstrated the making of baskets. This concluded the work on exhibition but the children also receive training in cleaning and weaving, business practice, barbering and home nursing.

Puppet Show

Brimming the evening to a brilliant closing was the play in the Puppet Theatre, and here the very young in the audience shared enthusiasm with their elders as puppets made and manipulated by the students created in miniature the adventures of the Pied Piper. The originality of the students was reflected in the many amusing little touches in the scenes of the familiar story which was read by Geraldine Taylor, a little girl who lost her hearing only last year and is receiving special instruction in lip reading that may permit her to continue her education with hearing children.

The scenes were beautifully reproduced by the art classes, and made a handsome background for the characters which made up the play, the people of Hamelin town, the mayor and the Pied Piper, the rats and rats and dogs, and finally the children, lost forever to Hamelin. The spectators were tempted to stay on and on, to see over again the splendidly arranged and appealing show which concluded a most entertaining evening.

Ex-Navy Man Again Offers to Serve

Picton—Alfred Ashcroft, who served with the Grand Fleet in the British Navy during the last war, has again offered his services in a similar capacity. Though he desired to be with the British fleet, he was ordered to report for duty in the Canadian Navy. He applied at Kingston this week and leaves for his new duties on Saturday. He will serve as a stoker, as he holds engineer papers. A resident of Athol township, he has been engineer at the Collver and Leavens Canning Factory at Cherry Valley. He is also well known as a musician, having his own orchestra for some years past.

Seven Return Home

Seven more members of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment arrived home from England this week. They were found medically unfit for further service overseas. They report an uneventful trip home and left other members of the regiment in good spirits.

Given Surprise Party

Thurlow Residents Annoyed by Flickering Lights

Flickering lights, whose brilliancy surges up and down with all the regularity, that would be evident if the power line were of a 10 cycle alternating circuit, are causing the residents of the eighth line on Thurlow no end of annoyance these days and the Hydro trouble shooters are at loss to explain the cause of the phenomena or to effect a remedy.

Farmers residing near the Madoc Road, where the power line on the eighth of Thurlow connects with the line running from Foxboro to Halloway, report the trouble there is hardly endurable but at the last extremity of the line the trouble is so annoying that residents are unable to use their radios.

Hydro employees have checked the line for all the usual causes of such trouble, such as for overhanging limbs, loose connections, etc., but still the trouble continues, very much to the annoyance to the residents in that district.

Jimmy Foxx and Lefty Grove Combine to Beat Browns 3-1 To Maintain Boston's Margin

Grove Allowed Only Six Hits and Foxx Hit Homer With One on

YANKS BEATEN

Dodgers Nurse Winning Streak to Five Games and Now Only Game Behind Reds

(By Judson Bailey, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Jimmie Foxx and Lefty Grove, who have been performing feats of baseball magic these many years, still can flit a rabbit out of a hat when occasion demands.

Occasion demanded yesterday and these two long-time associates of the St. Louis Browns let the reserve Boston Red Sox' shaky halfgame grip on the American league lead.

Grove has been tottering for weeks as a starting pitcher. He was getting knocked out in every game. And to what he stiffened the Yankees' big St. Louis Browns on six hits in this one he still was on the verge of losing 1-0 because one of the hits was a home run by Chet Laabs in the seventh inning.

Then Foxx, who has shared Grove's glory for years with Philadelphia Athletics and the Red Sox, came to bat in the ninth inning with two on and two out with two strikes against him, poled out his 14th homer of the season to win the game.

Infield Twins Help

Cleveland Indians' terrific infield twins, Ray Boudreau and Ray Mack, took charge of beating Washington Senators 5-4 in 11 innings. Held at bay by the fine hurling of rookie Sid Hudson for seven innings, Cleveland tied the score in the eighth when Mack homered with one on. Then in the 11th Boudreau singled home the run that won.

In the National League Brooklyn Dodgers enjoyed a new winning streak to five games and moved within a game of the second-place Cincinnati Reds by caging St. Louis Cardinals 9-5. They manufactured a winning margin by batting around for four runs in the third and pecked away a run in five of the six frames.

Pittsburgh Pirates battled Boston Bees into a tie for the cellar spot with a 7-6 triumph. Chicago Cubs set off their biggest display fireworks of the season to trounce the Phillies 11-5. Johnny Mize Bruins' 19 hits were two homers by Bill Nicholson.

Yanks Lose to White Sox

The world champion New York Yankees and third Tigers' bush were out-rallied to preserve the status quo of their scrap for first place in the American.

Pitcher Buck Ross hit a two-run homer as Philadelphia Athletics nicked Buck Newsom for three runs in the third inning. Then batted Ross out of the box in the eighth only to have the A's score three more runs in the last half of the same inning and win 6-3.

Chicago White Sox were held to three hits by Spud Chandler but eight home runs got three more and the ball game, 4-3, with a two-run homer in the 8th inning. New York had scored twice in the last of eighth to stake a momentary lead.

CAMPOLO K.O'D. IN FIRST ROUND BY BUDDY BAER

Kid Brother of Maxie Required Only One Minute and Six Seconds to Finish Argentine

MOST IMPRESSIVE

Victory Moved Baer Up an Notch in Jacob's Elimination Series

New York, June 7.(AP)—For about five years now the right hook has been looking at Buddy Baer, the big "little" brother of former heavyweight champion Max Baer, and sighing over the opportunities he was passing up.

"What a fighter he'd be—if he only liked to fight!" They would comment sadly. But Buddy seemed perfectly content to go on being Max's kid brother who occasionally fought in the prelims when Max was in the main bout. Now there's a suspicion that Buddy is really trying to win a big-time sport for himself.

Since his painful defeat by Gunnar Barland in March, 1938, Buddy has been looking more and more like a big man. Perhaps he has been trying to wipe out the stigma of being that way—a widespread around after his technical knockout at Barland's hands.

He has worked out Chuck Crowell, Big Boy Brackey, Nathan Mann and, last night, Valentin Campolo, and won a decision over Lee Savold.

Most Impressive Fight

His most recent triumph was by far the most impressive, although the opposition may not have been too strong. Campolo was billed as a "catcher" who could soak up punches like a sponge but Buddy managed to saturate him in a minute and 6 seconds of their scheduled 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden. Baer slammed the Argentine's midriff and final jaw count of six with the first punch, a right to the body. Then he began to came up they traded punches for a few seconds before Campolo found another opening to slam over his right and that was that.

The victory moved Buddy one step up in promoter Mike Jacobs' elimination series. He will meet Pat Comiskey early in August in addition to getting a guaranteed spot on the Max Baer-Tony Galento card on the night of July 2.

Comiskey, idle several months while his crushed hands mended came back to take revenge on his only conqueror, Steve Dudas, in the ten-round semi-final last night. Pat showed considerable improvement over his last fight with Dudas, but he still wasn't able to keep the lighter-weight veteran down after Dudas had flown at him for eight count in the first round.

'Mets' Rally to Score 9 Runs In 1 Frame to Beat Big-Z Nine

Jean Muir, Hurling for Winners, Helped Own Cause With Homer

COLDEN WILL STAR

Scoring nine runs, on four hits in the eighth inning, the "Mets" rallied to defeat the "Big-Z" nine by an 18 to 11 score in a scheduled Ladies' baseball league game at the local armouries last night. The win elevated the "Mets" into the league leadership.

Jean Muir, Mets' hurler, put his team in the lead with the game's only circuit blow in the eighth and then one aboard as the Big-Z nine booted the ball for four costly errors, that ultimately meant defeat.

11-Year-Old Pitcher

Coach Chuck Barnett's Big-Z took an early-game lead after which Barnett introduced 11-year-old Pauline (Pee Wee) Colden as a relief pitcher, the "slight mite" going well until her team mates blew up in the eighth to boot the ball badly and toss the game away. The Big-Z nine scored early and often getting two in the second and two in the third, before the Mets began to run around. After trailing badly, however, the Mets rallied to score four in the sixth, three in the seventh and ten in nine big runs to cinch the game in the eighth.

Chess Only Honor

Jean Muir with a home run and two singles led the winners to victory, although McBrien at second, but four safeties in six tries. Tubs and Hall counted three each for the winners. Helen Garner, with three hits, one a double, led the Big-Z team on the offence, Gladie Emerson and Benefit counting two each. Several fine romping catches were made defensively throughout the game.

"Slamin' Sam" Snead Scores Brilliant Round In National Open

Cleveland, June 7—(AP)—The field in the 44th National Open Golf Championship answered the second round bell today, convinced that "Slammin' Sam" Snead — knocked out a year ago by one of sport's greatest blow-ups — is off the floor and punching harder than ever.

Snead garnished his distance-getting ability with a brilliant display of putting and approaching yesterday to come in with a remarkable five under par card of 33-34—67, the greatest first round performance in national open history.

This gave the young Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., professional a two-stroke lead on the pack as it started a second 18-hole trek over the Canterbury course.

TORONTO LEAFS WIN AND LOSE TO JERSEY CITY

Lester McCrabble Scores Shutout in First Game on Five Well-Scattered Hits

ROYALS SHOW WAY

Continue March to First Division by Defeating Syracuse 10-5

(By the Associated Press)

A good relief hurler like John Berly is welcome at any team and doubly welcome to a league-leading outfit like Rochester Red Wings who depend mainly on their pitching staff to win games.

Wings are leading the International league by 4 1-2 games today, and Berly has played a large part in their success since joining the club a few weeks ago.

In seven appearances on the mound Berly's relief efforts have held the opposition successfully six times.

The 37-year-old veteran gave a typically convincing performance yesterday in relief—back a ninth inning uprising by Newark Bears to give Wings an 8-5 victory, while a pinch-hit Jersey City split a twin bill with Toronto.

Berly, working with one on and one out after the Bruins had got to the mound pitcher Hank Gornicki for two runs, allowed one hit and then retired the next two men on fly and ground balls.

Little Glants came back to take the nightcap with Toronto 5-1 after being shut out 5-0 by Lester McCrabb in the opener. Gene Henshaw went the distance for Jersey City in the second game, holding the Bruins scattered. His mates got eight safeties and all their runs off Ken Raffensberger in the first three innings but were held scoreless until Marchildon who relieved in the third.

Montreal Royals continued their stranglehold on the first division mark by knocking over Syracuse 10-5 for their fifth straight victory. A pair of two-run homers by Ollie Carnevale gave Carnevale gave Buffalo Bisons a 5-4 triumph over Baltimore Orioles.

Some major league baseball players still cling to some of the old superstitions, such as that a hat must never be thrown on a bed, and any mention of a no-hit game in the making of pending one is sure to bring it to the show. Another odd superstition, often exploded before their eyes, is that when a batter opens an inning with a triple he will not score. Still another is that when the combination 2-2-2 is on the scoreboard— two strikes, two balls and two outs— there will be no play on the next pitch. A foul ball or a called ball is no "no play," which gives that superstition more visible support than some of the others.

Howard C. Wilson, a linotype operator and vice-president of the Baltimore Typographical Union, won a bowling tournament.

The prize was a pair of fine military brushes. Wilson is as bald as a dandelion.

So, Howard raffled them off. The winner of the raffle wears a toupee.

Ronnie Steele's "Meta" moved into flight place in the girls' softball league as they took full advantage of the misues and errors of the Big-Z nine to win 18-11 in a game played at the Y by Jean Muir, their hurler, who hit the circuit clout in one of the game which incidentally counted when Colden, pitching relief for the Mets never gave up trying and deserved to win, despite the fact they scored nine runs in the eighth on only four hits. The Big-Z team had more than a little in typhoon and before the fullness debacle in the eighth had been done. Incidentally Coach Chuck Barnett might have pulled the game out of the fire by replacing his pitcher in the eighth with Ellis, little lefthanded sportsman, Barnett permitted his child prodigy to continue to pitch for the 11-year-old Pauline (Pee Wee) Colden, a mere mite of a girl who shows plenty of promise as a softball player, whom the fans took to be Betty Jane Rase in disguise. It was no fault of Pauline's that she was pressed as the losing pitcher, as her team mates loused the game away for her. She'll be back and before mid-season will be a star.

Both the South Hastings Baseball League and the Belleville Service Club softball loop get under way on June 12th, according to their respective schedules as published elsewhere in today's issue. Secretary Art Hall of the S.H.L. drafted a 30-game schedule, which does not include the league playoffs. Last year Cannifton won the South Hastings title, while the Kiwanis boys were runners-up and champions in the "no kick" league. The Service Club teams call their loop, the "no kick" league simply because no protests are entertained, but doubt a goodly number of local ball players will be seeking berths in the S.H.L. this season as there is no baseball being played in the city. Actually the South Hastings group sees the only baseball being played immediately outside the district, although there is a movement afoot to organize a junior baseball league in Belleville Wilmer Hillsek's good pacer, Lastie Grattan, the horse that broke track records all over Ontario during the past two seasons, is entered in the Canadian Pacing Derby at New Hamburg on Aug. 14th. Sixteen horses have been nominated for this outstanding stake race. However, Lastie Grattan failed to break his track record in Belleville, the record being held by Earl Keswick's Direct Rodney. It is rumoured there will be no harness races staged in connection with the Belleville Fair this fall. It would be too bad to discontinue harness racing in connection with the Fair, as the races are actually the big drawing card of exhibitions. The Fair Board is reported to have said that the races are a financial failure, but such would not be the case if the race committee would only be provided with an iron hand, rather than the soft, straight-arm of the wheel show. As the Belleville Fair is usually staged between the Ottawa and Toronto Fair race dates there is little or no reason why a good harness card could not be presented at the Belleville Fair as a revenue-maker and crowd-pleaser.

Although there are no games scheduled at the Flats tonight, two important matches are on the books in the Belleville City League baseball league. The Corbin Country entry, However, at Point Anne will be opposed by the Canadians when Gerald Barriage's Corbin A. C. invade Ox Point for the first meeting of these two teams this season. The league-leading junior Bjukans are idle and cannot be overtaken by any of the clubs in the league. However, in the girls' loop the "big-nickel" club will clash with the "Lock-makers" at the Collegiate campus in the only game scheduled in the city.

There was much written relative to Bucky Walters' ninth consecutive National League victory for the Cincinnati Reds recently, but the Redland hurler is still about ten lengths behind the league mark established by Rube Marquard of the New York Giants back in 1912. Marquard started off in sensational style by whipping the Cincinnati Reds, McGraw's charges that spring, in the tie record held by Tim Keefe of the New York Giants, Marquard opened his string of undefeated performances April 11th, which continued until after July 3rd of that year. Walters' record of nine consecutive games is a remarkable one with the Reds' ace left but Marquard's will take some beating; if ever.

SPORT SPICE — Both Oshawa and Peterboro' appear at the Maple Leaf Stadium this a.m. Inter-City senior loop doubleheader on Saturday. . . . Jimmie Foxx hitting, coupled with Lefty Grove's six-hit pitching gave Red Sox a 3-1 win over the pesky Browns yesterday. . . . Local softball heads are having difficulty in procuring umpires for their games, which is unfortunate as the largest number of the veteran players brush up on rules and get into the ability-er business. . . . After fall they're beginning to miss 'em at the ball so why not behind it?

Of United States planes, he said, "we will take and do take, all we can get from America and will take more if new American sources develop."

American Plane Praised.

Lord Beaverbrook spoke highly of the American Lockheed plane, called the Hudson here, recounting various experiences that such ships had had. It was a Hudson, he said, which located the German prison ship Altmark from which about 300 captive British merchant seamen later were rescued.

He called the Hudson the enemy of the Dornier 18, particularly, and told of one which returned from a flight of more than 375 miles with 73 shrapnel holes.

Hurricanes, a type of British fighter, now are being delivered from Canada, Lord Beaverbrook said.

He indicated numerous deliveries from America, but said he was unable at the moment to give figures. New Defiant "Immense Success".

The new Defiant fighter, which made its debut during the Flanders battle, has proved "immensely successful", Lord Beaverbrook declared. Already Defiants have accounted for 63 German planes definitely destroyed and 78 "believed" destroyed.

When he took the job of speeding up aircraft production, Lord Beaverbrook said, he tackled no simple job but a problem involving three factors:

Material—The most difficult because of a tendency for bottlenecks to develop. There, however, are being sought out and eliminated, he said, and the results already are shown.

Labor — Enthusiastically working continuously and unstintingly, regardless of overtime, to keep the factories in 100 per cent production seven days a week.

Energy—In great difficulty over energy, which has been provided by the driving power of a great number of factories, their executives, a staff of 4,500 working on the production side of the Air Ministry and by himself.

His estimates of German airplane strength are post-Flanders estimates and represent what he believes the Nazis have today, Lord Beaverbrook said.

Collegiate News

At the district field meet in Stirling last Saturday, Marion Warren came first in the Junior Women's dash. Bill Sharpe came second in the senior shot putt, and second in the junior 220 dash. Gladys Mackey Nicholson came third in senior girls' 75-yard dash.

On Saturday Bill Pidgen wandered down to McGill University and captured honours in the Dominion field meet there, winning a first in the pole vault.

On Tuesday, June 4, the B.C. & V.S. girl cadets held their first inspection in many years. Although their training period was very short they were able to present, through intensive drill and the will to cooperate, a showing both creditable to themselves and to their school.

Several weeks ago the idea of forming such an organization was brought up and, when Mr. Harcus of the Collegiate Staff agreed to instruct them, the girls' cadet corps had its beginning. It was not long before the girls had chosen officers, and purchased neat, colourful blue and white uniforms. At first the cadets were unfamiliar with this type of work, but it was not long before they were entirely adapted to their drill movements.

Under the critical eye of Capt. H. S. Pearson, the inspecting officer, the corps went through their various manoeuvres before a large crowd of spectators.

Ably commanded by Lieut.-Col. Bernice Saunders, the girls paraded on the campus in column of route, column of companies and in review order.

The School Band provided the atmosphere as they played several snappy military airs.

Those who said that the idea of a girls' cadet corps would not be successful were among the first to congratulate the officers, and their instructor, Mr. Harcus.

A short congratulatory address was given by Capt. H. S. Pearson and other personages, among whom were Mr. Monteith, Rev. A. B. Payne, and Mr. MacLaurin, also complimented the corps on their splendid drill movement.

D.R.S.

Red Cross units in the schools—Red Cross activities in the Collegiate have been greatly increased lately. Formerly a group of twenty-five, the club has been increased to six units of fifty each who are already doing a surprising amount of work. Each unit is under the leadership of two teachers. Quilts are being made, collections taken to purchase blankets, quantities of knitting and sewing are being done, and everyone is diligently saving tinfoil and tin cans. The Red Cross has sprung into prominence as we "do our bit" in our war effort.

Library Club

The Library Club although maintaining a silence is busily keeping up its usual record of good work. At present the club is electing a new executive and is planning a picnic on June 7th, for its members.

Exams Again!

Need we say more! Every year in the last two or three weeks of misery are endured by all wherein drug stores do a rushing business in aspirins and the thousand odd students of B.C.I.V.S. go around with weary, worried, exhausted expressions on their countenances, and black circles under their eyes. But even the worst things cannot last forever and in three weeks we will be free for a glorious two months.

Ah! How time drags by!

M.E.C.

On Wednesday morning, the 15th of June, the Boys' Cadet Corps, commanded by Harvey Theobald, was inspected by Captain Pearson of Kingston.

The boys marched up from the Armouries, about ten o'clock to parade on the campus. The general salute was given first, followed by inspection of the battalion by Captain Pearson, Mr. MacLaurin, the members of the Board. The cadets had been well drilled and carried themselves well, heads up, eyes front—owing perhaps to Mr. MacLaurin's pep talk that morning. After the march past, the companies drilled individually. For this company drill the cups were awarded to C. and B. Companies under D. Cook and M. Jack. The band, continuing its usual excellent record, was led by Drum Major Jack Zufelt, beton twirler of the first water.

As the corps started the route march, the large crowd of onlookers followed down to Front Street and the armouries to see the final dismissal of the battalion for the year. Then all wandered off to enjoy the half holiday awarded by the chairmen of the Board.

Under the present war condition the cadet corps took on new significance and this year the ranks were the fullest they have yet been. A grim determination was evidenced in the face and bearing of the senior cadets as they marched past.

NEW STERLING REGULATIONS ARE ANNOUNCED

All Current Foreign Business Must be Conducted at Official Sterling Rates

DENUDES FREE MARKET

Press Staff Writer)

London, June 7.—(CP-Cable)—The British treasury tonight announced regulations designed to ensure that all current foreign business is conducted at official sterling rates and to denude the free market for sterling.

No licenses will be given henceforth for the sale in the United Kingdom of securities owned by persons resident outside the sterling and franc areas, Canada is outside those areas, mainly because its dollar is so closely tied with the United States dollar.

Payment for Exports

All exports from the United Kingdom to the United States and Switzerland in future will have to be paid for in sterling obtained from the British Exchange Control at official rates or else in United States dollars or Swiss francs, respectively.

Exchange will normally be provided in their own currencies to residents in the United States and Switzerland in respect of commercial and current financial payments (including interest and dividends) due there.

Regulations Revoked

As regards transactions with other countries outside the sterling and Allied areas, broadly the same effect will be achieved by extending the system of payments agreements and special accounts which enables settlement to be effected in sterling through official channels at official rates.

Regulations requiring payment for certain exports in specified foreign currencies now has been revoked in the case of countries other than the United States and Switzerland, similar arrangements have been, or will be, made by other countries in the sterling area.

Exports affected by the revocation include jute, rubber, tin, whisky fur and diamonds to certain countries, including Belgium, the Belgian Congo, the Netherlands and the Netherlands Empire, and countries of South and Central America.

Ottawa, June 7—(CP)—An agreement has been reached between the Canadian and Australian governments, it was learned today, for closer control over all foreign exchange, similar to that in effect between Canada and Great Britain.

Three Sons of Late Lord Tweedsmuir Serving With Forces

By SAM ROBERTSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 7.—(CP Cable) — The three sons of the late Lord Tweedsmuir are serving with the forces.

William Buchan has donned Royal Air Force blue as an aircraftsman, age is 24 and volunteered. He has never been in the air and is undecided whether to aim for a post as pilot, gunner, bomber, mechanic or one other of the many branches of the service.

His other brothers are with the Canadian Active Service Force. John, the new Lord Tweedsmuir, is a member of the Governor General's Foot Guards, and is attached to headquarters Staff of the 1st Division. Alastair, youngest of the trio, is attached to Canadian military headquarters, in London. He is a member of Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, which is now a mechanized cavalry unit.

Mention of Whereabouts or Movements of Canadians Banned

This Ban Placed After Announcement Canadian Division Would be Used for Defence of England

ON ACTIVE SERVICE

(By Sam Robertson)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 7—(CP Cable)—The ban existing today on mention of the whereabouts and movements of the 1st Canadian Division was imposed following public announcement that they were being used for home defence purposes in England.

It is a matter of security—their security—for publication of their movements might bring a wave of German bombers bent on their destruction.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced in the Canadian House of Commons June 4 that Canadian troops more than once were ready to embark for France during the heat of the Flanders battle. The fact the Canadians did not go was due to a decision reached by the chiefs of staffs after Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, General Officer Commanding the 1st Division, Alastair, youngest of the trio, is attached to Canadian military headquarters, in London. He is a member of Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, which is now a mechanized cavalry unit.

Use of the Dominion's thoroughly trained fighting men for the defence of the United Kingdom at a time the Germans are occupying the channels ports across the narrow English Channel in effect places them on active service.

And there is no question that that is more than satisfactory to the troops themselves. Some of them have been training here almost six months. They have naturally grown impatient for action to replace day-to-day drudgery on the drill square and other confined training grounds.

An infantry sergeant from the Canadian Prairies built like a professional wrestler summed it up in this fashion: "Golly, it will be swell to get these hands on a German parachutist". Then he sang this line from the "keep your head down" song of the last war: "Oh, he'd never see his mother or his sister or his brother".

Canadian Farmers Asked to Produce More By the Government

Ottawa, June 7. — (CP)—For the first time since the war started, Canadian farmers now have the government's go-ahead signal to "produce more".

Agriculture Minister Gardiner gave the word last night when he told the House of Commons the Nation's farmers should "try to produce a better quality and a little more of that product if they can."

At the same time the Minister warned against trying to switch quickly from production of one thing to something else. Farmers could serve best by continuing to produce those commodities in which they had been producing.

He suggested enlargement of large numbers of men in Europe would increase the market and leave room for extra out of production during the current year.

Before the war reached its present stage Mr. Gardiner warned farmers in a meeting at Melville, Sask., not increase acreage as 1940 would be one of the toughest years for disposing of agricultural surpluses that was last April 25.)

Mr. Gardiner said: "What should the farmer produce" came during discussion of the first agriculture department estimates and added that he had received demands that something be done to lift living standards of the country's farmers.

Listen, Officer
It's all your fault!

You remember last week when I was stalled you told me to go to Baragar's and get some of that Nu-Blue Sunoco. Well, I did—and got one of their grease jobs, too—and now I just can't hold this buggy down. If I wave my foot over the accelerator she's away before you could grab your hat. That Nu-Blue Sunoco is a good bet for any car and gives longer mileage.

Butter Eases Slightly at Toronto

Toronto, June 7.—Slightly lower prices appeared for butter as trading maintained a slow pace on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Also easier were grade c eggs, while other prices held.

Because production supplies exceeded the prevailing poor demand, prices were cut 1-4 cent per pound for the Ontario product on the butter market but no offerings were accumulating. Buyers still purchased in small routine merely to cover their immediate needs.

Sellers dropped prices on grade c eggs on the part market, which had warmer weather increasing receipts. Domestic demand for this grade is lagging and it was pointed out that no shipments of grade C's were being sent to the United Kingdom. Trading picked up for other grades but quotations remained unchanged.

WIDE AREA BOMBED

The Air Ministry said German planes dropped the bombs from east at several points. Air raid alarms echoed in a number of coastal districts in East Anglia, Lincolnshire, Yorkshire, Norfolk, Suffolk and the North Midlands as well as in south and southeast coast areas.

A warning also was given in a Hampshire Town, where an airplane plunged a searchlight beam, dropped flares and then fled.

Residents of the southeast coast said they saw seven flares far out to sea and a "bright red blob' of light that plummeted to the earth and vanished, as if a plane had fallen in flames.

A resident of a town in Lincolnshire related that it "heard the drone of planes overhead and then a faint bang some distance away. Then came pandemonium which shook people in buildings a quarter a mile from where the bombs fell."

Light bombs fell in coast.

The bombs were light ones. One dropped on the roof of a building and another hit a wood shed, the eyewitness said, "adding that a number of men were caught in a shower of bomb splinters and debris. About six were injured, of whom three were taken to a hospital.

One man said "there was a terrific explosion which shook the building. The bomb was explosive on the roof of the building's chimney. Otherwise it would have come right through into the building and done more disastrous consequences. As it was, the amount of damage was relatively slight."

The government announced arrangements to complete civil claims for loss of property in air raids.

An Air Ministry communique said the R.A.F. for five successive nights had bombed the Ruhr valley and railway yards in the Ruhr Valley and near Hamburg, "with effect and in harassing the Nazi offensive against Allied armies in France."

R.A.F. bombers attacked enemy-held units, industrial installations and communications behind the German battle front, the Air Ministry declared, with hits registered on two convoys and a military train derailed.

The Ministry of Home Security, declaring "our enemies are without conscience," disclosed plans for immediate mass burial of the bodies of air raid precautions.

Home Secretary Sir John Anderson appealed to citizens to "be on your toes and be trained for air raids as well as for orders" before he sends when the bombs fall."

The British announced the faculty as a government order restricting luxury purchases by retailers to two-thirds of their 1939 supplies. Women were asked to scrap face glasses, as "cosmetics have become luxuries and the order cuts down supplies of cosmetics, silk hosiery and furs.

Appointment Praised

Lord Beaverbrook, Daily Express, commenting on the increased state control, said that Sir Stafford Cripps, new ambassador-designate to Russia, "will find it quick about the new Socialist Britain."

The newspaper described Britain as:

"A land where workers can be shunted hither and thither from job to job in the interests of the state. A land where strikes are forbidden and lockouts, too.

"A land where the government cuts down luxuries—corsets and cosmetics—and rations soap and cleaners.

"A land where Mr. Ernest Bevin, a minister of HIS Majesty the King declares that the system based on monopoly and competition has failed to deliver the goods and that a system of cheap has been planned."

Remarking that some persons "bleat that their liberties have been taken away and ask "What's the difference between them and the totalitarian powers?" the Express said:

Difference Pointed Out

"This is the difference—that when "Hitler secured his powers by terrible brutalities and bestial atrocities.

"Now we have given absolute powers to our government to put them of our own free will, so that Hitlerism cannot happen here. We give Hitlerism our power to (Prime Minister) Churchill because Churchill will use them to defeat Hitler. We know that Churchill will give us back our liberty, but that Hitler would not—not for 1,000 years."

It was reported reliably that the United States liner Washington, now berthed in Lisbon, has been ordered to Galway, Eire, next week to pick up American refugees from the war zone.

The Washington is due at Naples Monday and then is expected to go to Lisbon for about 200 American refugees. Reports from reliable sources said that about 700 of the 1,000 Americans in Italy, France and Southern Ireland would board the ship.

The United States liner President Roosevelt sailed from Galway June 1 with 720 Americans.

PLANES EQUIPPED WITH CANNON DIVE

Cannonading from the ground and the air was credited by the British with the destruction of about 400 of the 2,000 rolling fortresses in the first two days of the Nazi offensive that now is in its third day.

Germans Sent Over France

As if turning to another powerful Blitzkrieg weapon to speed up the attack, Germany sent about 200 planes over France. They came in waves, striking at Paris and the Paris region but passed around the capital.

The aerial armada caused "material damage" in raids over central France, the French announced, but no casualties were reported. The air attack in the central region lasted from 11 p.m. Thursday (6 p.m. EST) to 2:10 a.m. today during which time the sound of bombs could be heard in Paris.

The French defence line, hugging the marshlands, hills and river valleys from the Mediterranean to the Alps from its terrain, was said to have been "pounded" during the first third day—that is, holding in the fluid manoeuvre warfare against the hordes of hundreds of Nazi tanks which burst past outlying fortifications.

Western Wing Withdrawn

The British announced withdrawal yesterday to the Bresle River region, seventeen miles south of Abbeville, of the western wing of their mechanized monsters were said to have been withdrawn to new positions on flyspeck, every move ensuring them further to the west of tank trap which the Weygand Line has become.

Light cannon bolted to the motor blocks of Allied planes raised burstint spot on the face of the Channel where Achilles heel—while land gunners pounded them at point-blank range.

The military spokesman said that the Allied armies had withdrawn their infantrymen into the battle in the wake of the tank assaults. They fought to the last man in the Weygand defences for follow-through attacks.

Battle For France Begins.

Weygand's order of the day to the troops reads: "Soldiers of his predecessor, General Gamelin, after the Germans broke through the Sedan-Sevan extension of the Maginot Line to the Belgian coast, I ordered you, his men not to fall back, but to hold their positions or advance.

"You performed your duty.

"The order is to defend our positions, no longer thoughts of withdrawal. Look only forward.

"The battle for France has begun. Its issue depends on the stubborn resistance of the troops."

The High Command reported resumption of the Aisne-Somme battle yesterday, saying:

"After relative calm during the night the battle began again this morning in the Aisne-Somme conditions as yesterday."

The front, now about 135 miles from the English channel, where the Allies are fighting desperately along the Bresle River south of Abbeville, to the plateau between Abbeville and Amiens, the Weygand defensive system has taken on the form of a "hedgehog" tank and infantry assaults.

French machine - gunners were lodged solidly in consolidated bridgeheads at Amiens and Peronne, on the Somme River.

The Germans used at least 1,000 tanks yesterday in attempting to break through at Peronne. German tank infantry were reported in the Abbeville River section, but the French were still holding the north bank of the Somme and Aisne Canal, connecting the Aisne and Oise rivers.

Extensive reconnaissance flights were carried out by both belligerents in the central and western regions of France. Both sides continued to bomb each other's communications lines.

Acknowledging even Allied planes raided have with advancing German tank armies, the spokesman said, the swift-diving ships attacking the tanks from the top on their most vulnerable spot, the thin armor in thinnest.

Accompanying the cannon shots from the air, Allied artillery blasted against Nazi tanks and infantry and supporting units closed in behind.

The British spokesman, the spokesman said, the lines permitted motorized detachments to push through the German tanks in the battle remained at 2,000.

French Position Still Established

The French "battle points", part which the German tanks proceeded to by-pass, were being kept under supplid anew with food and munitions dropped by French planes, the spokesman said, indicating the French positions still were established in their own territory and that German infantry had not yet advanced into the rear.

The general front thus remained unchanged, while the important battle thundered on with the same violence.

While another mechanized German spearhead drove 17 miles south from Abbeville to the north bank of the Bresle River against the Allied rear guard, the French and Germans were reported locked in bloody combat on the ridge overlooking the Aisne River.

No tremendous was the battle that the boom of artillery and the explosions of bombs rained on the German tanks by French planes could be heard 30 miles away, halfway between Paris and the front.

Several Crossings Forced

The deeper of the Nazi drive, starting from Abbeville, was reported to have forced several crossings of the lower Somme despite doubtful resistance by the remnants of the river and canal which parallels its course.

The thrust then carried on across the swampland between the Somme and the Aisne, overwhelming the patches from the front, but the Aisne and Oise, behind which the two rivers were not believed to be threatened seriously.

The British Broadcasting Corporation, in a report heard in New York today by the National Broadcasting Company and Columbia Broadcasting System, said German tanks were proving vulnerable to the fire of light cannon on French warplanes. Flying at their rear and sides, it said the Nazi tanks could not meet this type of attack because they did not carry anti-aircraft guns.

Force Make Bread Claims

(A broadcast picked up by Columbia Broadcasting System on the French Government Radio's wavelength, said yesterday that one-fifth of the German air force's "famous dive bombers.")

The spokesman, however, speaking to the French people last night in the name of the French government or of the war effort, declared the Allied armies "remain strong. In Europe is going to break against French resistance', and then listed the Allied forces which he said Allied victory:—

The British troops from Flanders; the fact that the German bombing raid on Paris had failed to break down civilian morale, and the "satisfactory" development of the battle of the Somme, "a term by no authority of General Weygand.

SITUATION

believed that German dive-bomber pilots "are not super-men" — not because they lack courage but because they lack the spirit which forms of warfare which no human can stand very long."

There is evidence, according to these sources, that the light machine guns, holding fire and handled is very efficient against bombers.

"As a result of successful action by such guns and rifle-armed pilots, we know growing that many and more dive bombers will be destroyed.

It was said that the Allies are not hindered—nor the Germans helped —by refugee on roads of the new offensive nor would the German panzer (armored) divisions find stores of oil and gas awaiting them on their forays.

captains to "put into the nearest neutral port at once". Verrando said:

"Our ship captains are allowed to defend themselves with what arms to do," he added. "We do know that all our vessels are safe."

Ships in Spanish Waters

He said the lines Volcania and Saturnia, recently transferred from the New York-Italy run to the Italy-South American trade, also were safe in Italian ports, as was the Augustus.

Other Italian ships now in American waters are:

The Georgic Pasaic and Monviglois at Galveston; the Conte Biancamano, sailed from Washington Roads yesterday; the Magellano, at Baltimore; the Rex, docked Wednesday, and the 30,000-ton Conte Grande, three times larger than the Rex, at Balboa, the canal zone, yesterday to await further orders.

Rome, June 7 (AP)—Strong detachments of troops appeared at strategic points in downtown Rome today following the historic meeting between Premier Mussolini might be about to make his long-awaited speech on European affairs, but they turned out to be there for another reason entirely.

The troops "guarded" the streets while police demonstrations after dedication of a bust of Puccini to Mimi, heroine of the Pro-Italian Maltese Nationalist Party. The dedication was carried off quietly, with a speech by Fernando Mamberto, vice-secretary of the Fascist party, on the Gianicolo hill overlooking the Mediterranean Island naval base.

Mamberto said the Nationalist claims of British persecution of Italians in Malta, a committee for which was formed in Rome, is done to agitate for Italian interests on the Island, which has been in Mediterranean.

Italy watched for Mussolini's reaction to the latest French overtures for continued Franco-Italian peace as a potential indication of whether or when he may be expected to announce Italian entry into the war.

But it seemed to many that the last meeting does not mean Italy will forsake her non-belligerency nor renounce her pacts of steel. All the big shots of the Fascist party were told to hold themselves in readiness for a declaration of war, and the mass meetings to hear Mussolini speak.

No Hint Given

As usual under the Fascist regime there was no hint of when the meeting took place between the premier: palace in the Piazza, Venezia, might come. But it was in the Italian tradition that Mussolini's reaction to last night's speech by Premier Paul Reynaud of France was expected to prove important.

Of interest was Reynaud's statement that for "spectators of the battle of France" the time for action is "very important" and that there are no peoples with whom France cannot settle by peaceful means divergencies of interests which appear to oppose them.

One well-informed Fascist labelled the statement "very important" but there were widespread indications that Mussolini's call to arms might come quickly if he were not greatly impressed by the Reynaud's speech.

While the government issued new warnings against the spread of blackout restrictions two special trains were put into use today to transport British and French diplomatic staffs to the border in case a move should become necessary, and three trains painted with Red Cross signs stood by.

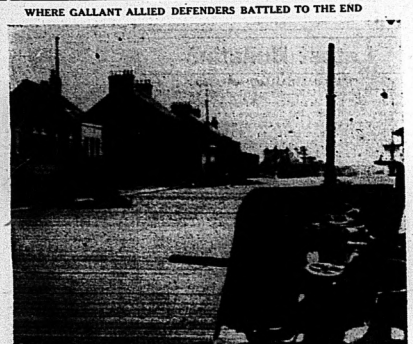
The call to the nation-wide mass meeting today was expected to overawe many doubters, possibly only a few minutes, to prevent, as much as possible, any further warning of Italy's decision.

The main meeting is to be held in the Piazza Venezia, but the overflow in Rome and similar gatherings throughout the country will hear Il Duce over loudspeakers. Mussolini is being set up today wherever they have not been installed already.

LOST PARENTS IN WAR TREK TO PARIS

At the Gare Du Nord, Paris, France, a nurse takes care of children who lost their parents during a flight along civilian-choked roads leading from homes in Belgium and the north of France. The refugees fled before the brutal German military machine which continually bombed and strafed them.

WHERE GALLANT ALLIED DEFENDERS BATTLED TO THE END



Deserted save for two pieces of military equipment, is this street in Calais where 4,000 troops, entrenched in the ancient citadel of the city, withstood the onslaught of armored German divisions, spurning a German demand for surrender. The small band of Allied defenders fought on until the end, thus enabling the Gravelines water line, between Dunkirk and Calais, to be held open for the evacuation of the trapped Allied armies. Prime Minister Churchill announced that only 30 unwounded survivors of the gallant defenders were brought back to England by the navy and that the fate of their comrades was unknown.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, June 8
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

AN UNUSUAL set of circumstances and events may contribute to make this an interesting and successful day. New as well as unique or peculiar interests may claim the attention, and with a degree of success, although an indulgence in reckless, impatient and impulsive conduct may offset or undermine the most progressive efforts and original plans. More constructive may be the support of superiors or the interest of large corporations or even political or fraternal bodies. Social and affectional affiliations flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an unusual or strange turn of events, with much success and progress arising from change, innovations or unorthodox methods or ideas. But these might be jeopardized by indulgence, in rash, hasty or impetuous moves or too strenuous attack. Confer with superiors or with those powerful in lodges, politics or secret organizations. Kindred subtleties and activities may be expected in social or emotional life.

A child born on this day should be energetic, enterprising, original and creative in out-of-ordinary lines, perhaps in artistic, intellectual or drama.'c composition. While bold and audacious it may be subtle, mysterious and have much intuition and imagination.

IN THE PINK: all summer are town suits of linen of the non-crushable variety. One style in deep pink has a jacket which has no fastenings but which is held by a twisted self-belt. A square-necked blouse of pink handkerchief linen goes along.

ROOSEVELT ASKS POWER TO TRADE IN OLD TYPE ARMS

Action Will Make Large Stores of U.S. War Supplies Available to Allies by Private Firms

PLANES AGE QUICKLY

President Likes Editorial in New York Times Favoring Compulsory Military Training

Washington, June 7 —(AP)— President Roosevelt disclosed today that he was asking Congress for legislation which would permit the United States Government to trade "lots of types of guns and thereby complete the government's power to turn back to manufacturers all kinds of surplus equipment.

He said he was sending a request to Senate leaders to incorporate the authority in pending legislation.

While Mr. Roosevelt did not say the effect of the proposal would be to make large stores of finished American war supplies available for sale to the Allies by private firms.

The President told reporters that authority already exists to trade back airplanes and munitions to manufacturers.

The navy yesterday turned back 50 warplanes—most of them dive bombers for sale to the Allies.

Favors Times Editorial

But the power to turn in equipment does not exist for such things as the old .75 cannon.

One short but possibly significant statement ended the press conference.

Asked for comment on a newspaper editorial (in the New York Times) which said the time had come for the United States people to adopt a national system of universal, compulsory military training, the President said he had read only the first paragraph and that he had liked it.

Planes Get Out of Date

Mr. Roosevelt did not amplify that point.

The President had no estimate of how many planes or guns or what quantity of ammunition might be turned back to manufacturers.

Asked whether new equipment would be turned in the President said it could not. But he added that planes could get out of date speed fast.

The navy announcement last night that the "surplus" planes were being turned in to their manufacturer came only a few hours after the White House had disclosed urgent appeals from the Allies for all possible speed in the production of military supplies.

This sequence, coupled with a series of other incidents, prompted speculation as to whether the administration had reached a decision to extend much greater indirect military assistance to the two belligerents.

Naval Appropriation Bill

An attention turned to the White House for possible clarification, President Roosevelt had on his desk for signature the $1,492,542,- 80 naval appropriation bill providing for regular and emergency equipment from bombs to battleships. The Senate passed the legislation yesterday.

The "trade-in" announcement of the navy planes gave a definite indication that more aircraft would be turned back to the manufacturer and thus—although the announcement did not mention the point—be available for resale to the Allies.

Reason given for the aircraft "trade-in" was that improved replacement for the planes is almost ready.

The navy has 177 additional reserve planes.

The Army Air Corps lists upwards of 1,000 pursuit and bomber planes as "obsolete" by European war standards. These army planes, however, were not covered by the navy announcement of policy.

To Turn in 46 More Planes

Officials said specifically that the additional naval reserve dive bombers, of the 50 released yesterday, would be turned in to the Curtiss Aeroplane Company at Buffalo as replacements were available.

These and the original 50 were included among 227 reserve planes distributed among 13 inland and seaboard bases, of which 190 were listed as service craft and 37 as obsolete or obsolescent.

The estimate of approximately 1,000 semi-obsolete army combat planes was given Congress early month by Major General Henry H. Arnold, Chief of the Air Corps.

He thus classified about 400 pursuit planes and 477 bombers, aside from miscellaneous craft, all of which are to be displaced as new planes ordered last year are delivered.

Two German Planes Seen Flying High Over Surrey County

London, June 7—(CP) — Two unidentified planes, believed to be German reconnaissance machines, were reported over Surrey shortly after 11 a.m. (6 a.m. EDT) today.

When first seen the planes were flying at about 30,000 feet.

Shortly after 1 p.m. two machines believed to be those seen earlier were sighted at lower altitudes.

Royal Air Force fighter planes took off from a nearby airdrome.

When first seen, the planes were so high that their presence was revealed only when their wings occasionally reflected the brilliant sunshine. They flew west over the town. There was no anti-aircraft fire.

London's Morale Is Not Shaken

By SAM ROBERTSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, June 7—(CP Cable)— German air raids and fear of England the last two nights have not shaken London's morale.

Parks today held the usual thousands of workers lolling on the grass and the benches munching lunch, mothers airing babies, and others just basking in the summery weather. They seemed to talk of their lives' laughs, lovers or what they are doing to help Britain's accelerating war industries rather than the more unpleasant side of affairs.

It is obvious that neither war nor summer was ruffling Prime Minister Churchill as he walked toward Westminster. He was calm, cool and collected in a light grey tropical suit and hat to match. A traditional English touch was lent by gloves clutched in his hand.

ANTI-TANK NESTS SOWN ON FRONT, REPORTS STATE

Unofficial Sources Say Special Precautions Are Taken Against Motorized Columns and Parachutists

DEFENSIVE FIRE

Paris, June 7.—(AP)—Unofficial sources reported tonight that General Maxime Weygand had sown the entire area between the Sommes-plane battlefront and the Seine river, just above Paris, with anti-tank defence nests.

Roads have been barricaded and strong support posts, armed with machine guns as well as anti-tank guns, have been set up in defence against both motorized columns and possible parachutists, these sources said.

Thus, mechanized units which have broken through the front lines under the new Weygand "swinging gate tactics will run an almost continuous gauntlet of defensive fire.

The area between the battle front and the Seine is roughly from 45 to 55 miles deep.

Threats to Mechanized Forces Give Nazis Extreme Trouble

Development by France of Aerial Anti-Tank Gun Proves of Major Importance

NAZIS USE 2,000 TANKS

(By Guy Rhoades, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Germany struck furiously today for the third day against the resilient Weygand line of French defences, making progress at some points, but encountering two threats to its mechanized forces that gave them extreme trouble.

First enemy they faced was the line itself—a line which allows a certain amount of penetration and then snaps shut like a trap. The second was the new anti-tank guns mounted in aircraft with which the Allies strafed their mobile fortresses from above, firing explosive shells through their roofs and destroying about 400 of them.

Development of the aerial anti-tank gun appeared likely to prove of major importance. The Allies found earlier that the big German tanks, so heavily armored in their ordinarily vulnerable spots that nothing smaller than a 75 millimetre shell will penetrate them.

However, military engineers always seek to save weight and expense as far as possible and the Germans appear to have sought to save it on the tops of their lumbering hilltwgons. For every weapon built there is a counter-weapon and the aerial anti-tank gun so far appears to be an extremely effective one.

Nazis Lose One-Fifth of Tanks

The Allies estimate the Germans shoved 2,000 tanks into the Aisne-Somme action and that they have lost one-fifth of them already.

Inside the Weygand Line the Germans are finding that every tree, shrub rock, hollow in the ground or house window harbors potential death. It is a planned hell-hole of light artillery emplacements, machine-gun nests, land mines, trenches, wire and booby traps. Every topographical advantage has been seized to make the going tough and slow.

Part of the technique of battle in this pit of fire has been to take advantage of the fighting habits of the Germans themselves. In this war they have rushed forward in the day time at full pressure and sought to relax at night relaunching their attacks the next morning.

Last night the French in the northwester section of their line smashed back at the Germans in the darkness after permitting the the darkness after permitting, the tour onslaught.

The nature of the line with its looseness and depth permits small withdrawals with a maximum of safety for the defenders. It tends to bring such material loss to the enemy as to nullify any small territorial gains he may make. It also keeps the defenders' losses to a minimum.

German Opinion On Italy's Attitude

Berlin, June 7 (AP)—Informed German sources said tonight that Italy's entry in the war depends on two things:

1. Destruction of the French air force.

2. Distraction of French attention by a gigantic operation such as a siege of Paris.

Italy, these sources said, cannot undertake to join arms with Germany in warfare so long as France is in position to make quick retaliation against Italy and her overseas possessions.

AS B.E.F. MADE HISTORIC WITHDRAWAL FROM DUNKIRK

Despite the fierce and desperate attempts by the German army and air force to pre-vent the evacuation, 335,000 Allied troops were safely transported from the "hell" of Flanders to England.

GIBRALTAR, MIGHTY BRITISH FORTRESS, PREPARES FOR ATTACK FROM AIR AND SEA

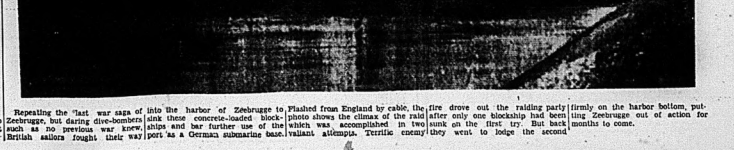
If Italy should plunge into the war, as she is expected to do any day, Gibraltar will undoubtedly be subject to Italian aerial attacks. Italy is also reported to be attempting to have General Franco launch an attack from Spain, on the mighty fortress. Up until the present the Spanish leader has insisted that Spain will remain neutral.

AS WEARY BRITISH TROOPS FILED THROUGH DUNKIRK

Weary but undaunted, British troops are shown filing past bomb-blasted buildings and burning warehouses in a shambled Dunkirk street as they made their way to the waterfront to be evacuated to England in one of the greatest military feats of history.

ALLIED RAIDERS BRAVE TERRIFIC ONSLAUGHT TO BLOCK ZEEBRUGGE HARBOR



Repeating the last war saga of Zeebrugge, but daring dive-bombers such as the unarmored war scow, British sailors fought their way into the harbor of Zeebrugge to sink these concrete-loaded block-ships and bar further use of the port as a German submarine base.

Flashed from England by cable, the photo shows the climax of the raid which was accomplished in two valiant attempts. Terrific enemy fire drove out the raiding party after only one blockship had been sunk on the first try. But back they went to lodge the second firmly on the harbor bottom, putting Zeebrugge out of action for months to come.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was on my back on the floor thinking about doing my homework, and ma said, Benny, do you know what time it is? It will be your bedtime soon and you're lazons if you wont be finished. Just look at him, Willyum, did you ever see such a dopey picture? she said.*

Hardly ever, pop said. And yet Newton the immortal scientist probably looked just like that while he was lying dreaming under the apple tree, and an apple fell and gave him the idea for his Law of Gravity, one of the masterworks of the whole dealin of flimicks. he said and I said, G, pop, that's funny, something happened to me today about an apple.

Did it help you formulate a new law of flimicks by any chance? pop said, and I said, Sure, wait till I tell you pop. I was walking along with Glasses Magee and a truck loaded with boxes of fruit went passed and a spyle bounced out of it, and I picked it up and me and Puds ran to tell the driver, because we knew it didn't belong to him by law as long as the truck was in site, only we couldn't catch up to it, I said.—

And what was the new law of flimicks? pop said, and I said, Sir? Well it proved that 4 wecks are faster than 4 days if they're on 2 different people, I said,and pop said, You and Glasses both have excellent voices, didn't you tell after the man?

Sure, but we couldn't yell very loud and still have enough strength left to run all our might too, I said, and pop said, Well then maybe the incident also proved something else, but that's enough science for one wich we did.

Evening, let it go.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Evaporation! Summer is the season of greatest evaporation. It is an important climatic factor, although few realize it. Evaporation seems to have a relation to rainfall; often evaporation is very high where there is no rain. In eastern United States and Canada the rainfall is the least and the evaporation is also greatest in summer. For the world as a whole, evaporation is greatest in the trade-wind deserts, such as the Sahara, where it may be over 200 inches a year, making that region one of the driest, dunes and baked rock. Over the trade-wind oceans the evaporation is about 45 inches a year, only four times the regional rainfall.

RUSSIA WATCHING HITLER'S MILITARY TACTICS CLOSELY

Soviet Will Protest Any Infringement on Russia's Interests

ANXIOUS OVER BALTIC

London, June 8—(CP)—Reliable London sources declared today that Russia is watching closely Adolf Hitler's military advances, alert to the possibility of infringement on Soviet interests.

There has been no whisper of actual conflict between Russian and German alms, but the Nazi grasp on the Low Countries, Denmark and the southern lobe of Norway, has had the added effect of attracting Soviet "attention," these sources said.

They pointed out that the Soviet Union has guaranteed the Baltic states under her Baltic defense program and therefore is bound to be concerned over anything bearing on them as well as on her own Baltic position.

Germany's control of the Skagerrak—Baltic outlet to the North Sea—and her increasing expansion were regarded as falling definitely in the category of interest.

Visit Adds Weight to Reports

The visit to Moscow of Lithuanian Prime Minister Merkis, accompanied by a foreign office expert and a military representative, gave added weight to reports that Russia was seeking to broaden her Baltic security program.

Reports here in line with Russia's professed role of a nation interested primarily in her internal affairs, and concerned in the international situation only as it reflects on those affairs.

The background of Russian success in the Baltic and recent annexations of Soviet circles in London that Russian and Allied interests in the Balkans, Black Sea and the eastern Mediterranean are parallel also fit in with this new watchful stand before German conquests.

British sources aver that Prime Minister Churchill's government is genuinely anxious to gain Russia's friendship in order to "help naming of Sir Stafford Cripps as ambassador to Moscow, to meet the first Soviet condition for better relations with the United Kingdom is to think with Britain will go to prove her sincerity.

Marshal Emilio De Bono Appointed in Command of 'South Army Corps'

Rome, June 8 — (AP)—Italy's entrance into the war within a week was a forecast today by usually well-informed sources.

These informants said Italian action probably would start on the night of June 13 or June 14—not Thursday or Friday—with an announcement by Premier Mussolini after Italy has moved.

This seemed to preclude the possibility of a speech by Il Duce Monday or Tuesday in Switzerland.

"The Italian people are on the eve of a solemn event," declared Bahaimi Internazionali, authoritative Fascist weekly, which, it said will be a "war of supreme independence."

It echoed Mussolini's motto: "Better to live a day as a lion than a hundred years as a sheep."

Resume of Entry

For the sake of foreigners, the weekly said, it listed six reasons why Italy is going to war:

FOUR SENTENCED FOR ESPIONAGE

Two Given Death Sentence in Absentia, Having Escaped Arrest in France

Marseille, France, June 8 (AP)—Four men and one woman were sentenced to death and another woman wife sentenced to prison today by a military court on charges of espionage.

The woman, Catherine Murature, and one of the men, Henri Rose, were sentenced to death in absentia, having escaped arrest. The three who heard the death sentences pronounced in exile in Algiers, Jean Barrisone and Cesar Curiel.

The four others convicted of cooperating in the spy ring were Marcelle Louise Cretien, who drew 20 years at hard labor; Andre Marro, sentenced to life at hard labor; Philippe Gastaldi, 20 years, and Paul Barthelme, four years.

Details of the ring's operations were not made public.

Passport Regulations Described As 'Unreciprocal Nonsense' by Press

Detroit, June 8 (CP)—The new United States regulations which will bar from that country Canadians without passports were described editorially, by the Detroit Free Press today as "unreciprocal nonsense."

That Detroiters will see in it little new rule: anything but a gratuitous and unnecessary insult to friendly neighbors is very much doubt," said the paper published in this border city across the Detroit River from Windsor, Ont.

"After July 1, Americans will still be free to enter Canada without the formality of a passport," says the editorial.

"Canadians, though, who wish to visit the United States, will have to have passports issued by their government, and visaed by American consuls. There is no reciprocity in sence that they are not coming across the river as passage derived industries or burn the capital.

"That may strike some in Washington, where Canada apparently is just another "foreign" country.

"The fact that here on the border, we Americans and Canadians live and go about our business and pleasure in a social and economic area that virtually ignores the international line, appears to be little considered in other parts of this country.

"We move into Canada almost as freely as into Ohio. We work together and play together and intermarry and live together. Canadians comprise the largest single group in Detroit's foreign-born population. This happy condition has been based on mutual respect and confidence.

"All that is now to be changed. Canada is to be bracketed with Mexico as a dangerous country. . . .

"We are no necessarily for any such unreciprocal nonsense.

"And we think, we know Canada and Canadians as well as they do in Washington."

Everything Short of War Trend of U.S. Aid Toward Allies in Last Two Weeks

New York, June 8 (CP).—A definite trend in favor of immediate material aid by the United States to the hard-pressed Allies in the battle against Nazi Germany became clearly evident today, but equally apparent was the conviction of many Americans that the country should remain a non-belligerent.

Through the press and on the public platform, leading Americans advocate that every possible aid be given to Great Britain and France—money, guns, munitions, tanks and planes. Influential newspapers approve. But throughout the drive, which has made great impetus in the last three weeks, runs the theme: "Every means, short of war."

To a country long accustomed to being secure from invasion from across the Atlantic ocean by the British fleet, the menace of Hitlerism has become a reality with startling suddenness. Thus has been formed the Committee for American Defence through aid to the Allies, an organization that daily is winning support.

Used Planes Supplied.

Tangible evidence of American support for the Allied cause came this week with announcement in Washington that fifty Navy planes, suitable for dive-bombing tactics, had been "turned in" to the Curtiss Airplane Company on future delivories of new planes. The move, made with governmental approval, makes possible sale to the Allies by the company of used planes.

Canadians Determined to Fight "Tyranny of Nazi Brutality" Says Prime Minister King

Ottawa, June 8 (CP).—Expressing the determination of Canadians to fight the tyranny of Nazi brutality to the finish, Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared in a broadcast address that Canada "will proudly accept" its new responsibilities, undaunted by the threat of spreading war.

The coming phase of the conflict "will witness operations in entirely new theatres of war," Mr. King said in a speech last night over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"It will most certainly be marked by conflict between nations that thus far have escaped or avoided hostilities."

Delivering the most outspoken broadcast of the six he has made on the war situation since the conflict started, the prime minister said: "If new enemies oppose us, we may be sure that old and new friends will arise to help us.

"The world-wide significance of this conflict is being realized in every land. You know how earnestly and vigorously the President of the United States has spoken in the name of humanity.

Two Missing R. A. F. Pilots Awarded V. C's.

London, June 8 (CP).—Two Royal Air Force fliers, now missing, who led an attack on an Albert Canal bridge over which the Germans streamed into Belgium May 22, were awarded the Victoria Cross today.

They were Dr. E. Garland, pilot, and Observer Thomas Gray. They manned a leading plane in a formation of five which destroyed the bridge. All other bridges had been blown up and the order was given to destroy this one at all cost. Only one of the five planes returned.

The only V.C. previously awarded in this war was to the late R. A. W. Warburton-Lee of the destroyer Hardy. It is the empire's highest military decoration.

London, June 8 (CP). — Aerial forces, struck and received, from Britain's share of warfare while new land divisions are being organized and equipped for the battle in France.

For the third successive night, German air raiders carried the war into the south and east coast counties of England last night in a series of attacks marked by daylight-like gunning of houses at a southeast port town.

The Daily Mail described these latest assaults as "terror raids." A communique of the Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security said "some bombs were dropped but little material damage was done and no casualties have been reported."

Royal Marine Just Getting into Stride When Picked up 8 Miles From Calais

London, June 8 (CP Cable) — Rifleman Gilbert Rowe of the Queen Victoria Rifles, one of the defenders of Calais who returned to England so told this story today.

"We had left Calais in a small ship and were eight miles out at sea when we overtook a Royal Marine swimming strongly for Dover.

"We pulled him aboard and he seemed quite fresh although he had been in the water more than six hours.

"His first remark was: 'Sure you have enough room for me? I'm just getting into my stride'."

Fifty Merchant Cruisers and 1,500 Minor Craft Added

French Navy Says Official Source is a Very Powerful and Growing Force — Active Co-operation is Given by Polish, Norwegian and Dutch Navies

ADDITIONS MOOTED

Royal Navy to Receive Increase in Strength from Battleships to Motor Torpedoboats and Large Number of Auxiliary Craft

London, June 8 (CP).—An official source stated today that "the balance of naval strength in favor of the Allies is now far greater than at the outbreak of war."

The statement said:

"Since the beginning of the war in addition to reinforcements of warships in all classes except battleships the navy has been strengthened by more than 50 armed merchant cruisers and more than 1,500 miscellaneous vessels and auxiliary raft of which 38 have been lost.

"The French Navy is a very powerful and rapidly growing force. . . . Allied fleets have been reinforced by active co-operation of Polish, Norwegian and Dutch naval forces.

"During the next few months the Royal Navy will receive a further large increase in strength comprising a heavy accretion of warship from battleships to motor torpedo boats and a very large number of auxiliary craft."

The statement listed the following losses: One of 15 capital ships one of seven aircraft carriers; two of 62 cruisers; 20 of 185 destroyers; eight of 58 submarines; six of 108 minesweepers, sloops, patrol vessels and escorts.

Nazi Command Altered.

The statement said that nearly 1,000,000 tons of warships are being built in British shipyards and "the contrast between German naval weakness and the great and growing strength of the Allied navies has apparently alarmed the German high command."

"This anxiety is shown by German efforts to convince neutral opinion that constant issue of groundless claims of naval sinkings that German air power has achieved spectacular ascendancy over British naval power," the statement said. It added:

"Concentrated air power in close proximity to British air defences can inflict losses on the less strongly armed warships, but it has generally failed, however, to annul the decisive advantages conferred by sea power. A recent striking example was the successful withdrawal of the Allied armies from the Belgian coast."

HEAD FOR NEUTRAL PORTS

Mexico City, June 8—(AP)—The Italian steamer Pesaro, en route from Beaumont, Texas, to Naples with 57,000 barrels of oil, put into Tampico today for provisions, her captain said, to radio instructions to make directly for a neutral port. Other authorities said two other Italian ships, the Dora and the Alabama, were reported steaming for Tampico harbor from "somewhere in the Atlantic."

French Bombers Raid Factories in Berlin Suburbs

Paris, June 8—(AP) — The French Admiralty announced today that a squadron of naval bombers raided factories in the suburbs of Berlin last night.

It was the first time Allied fliers had dropped bombs on Berlin, although the German capital has been scouted and showered with propaganda leaflets since the start of the war.

German fliers raided Paris last Monday, causing nearly 1,200 casualties, dead or wounded.

Ottawa, June 8 (CP)—Tank production gets under way in Canada today.

Mr. Howe's announcement said the British government had accepted an offer of the Canadian government to build tanks of a type how in use and previously placed on order for 300.

Actual size of the tanks to be constructed in the dominion was not given. But Mr. Howe said instructions to proceed immediately with the work has been issued and the assembly of the materials and equipment would begin today.

DR. D. S. LIGHTHALL M.O.H. FOR PICTON

Appointment of Dr. D.S. Lighthall as medical officer of health for the town of Picton was announced by Town Council at the regular meeting this week. Dr. Lighthall succeed Dr. T. S. Philp, who has occupied the position for a number of years, but whose reappointment was not considered by the Ontario Department of Health because of being over the age limit.

Members of the council, while indignant over the ruling, gave confirmation of Dr. Philp's appointment made last October expressed appreciation of the "hi-pri-dee-doh's work, but felt they could not go against the department's ruling and accordingly appointed the new medical officer.

STORM VERY HEAVY AT CARRYING PLACE

Intermittent downpours of rain kept pedestrians on Belleville streets on the alert last yesterday afternoon as this section of the province was visited with numerous showers that came up with startling suddenness. Accompanied by the rain was several rumbles of thunder and flashes of lightning but Belleville only received edges of the storm which struck with greater intensity farther west.

A resident of Carrying Place stated this morning that he had never seen such vivid lightning as which accompanied the storm in that district. The clashes of thunder at the height of the storm were almost deafening he said, with the rain coming down in torrents for a few minutes which the storm took to pass over. No damage from lightning was reported in his section, however, he said.

MAKES APPEAL FOR REFUGEE CHILDREN

Rev. George S. Buckingham, of Ottawa, who is well known in Belleville, for his association with the Daily Vacation Bible School in years past, was in the city this week attending the synod of the Free Church of England in Canada, held at Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal church.

Mr. Buckingham, a graduate of the old Alfred College, when it was situated on College Hill, is deeply interested in the very nature of his work among the children of Canada in the present situation of the refugee problem as relating to the children of the distressed lands of Europe. He expects that very many organizations will take up the question of relief in these lands for refugees and giving them a start in life after the terrible experience through which they have been.

In speaking with The Ontario Intelligencer he made an appeal for the refugee children of the world.

WIVES OF SOLDIERS ASKED TO BE ON GUARD AGAINST RACKETEERS

Wives of soldiers in the Canadian Active Service Force who are in receipt of pay and allowances are warned to be on the lookout for slick racketeers who have been victimizing soldiers' dependents in other parts of the province.

Some of the wives of these soldiers have been persuaded to have framed enlargements of their husband's photograph made and ridiculous prices are being charged for very crude work. Not only that but in some cases the wrong pictures have been returned.

Dependents receiving army allowances are advised to see the advice of some responsible person before entering into any contracts with unknown firms, "whose representatives" have been found in many cases to be nothing but chiselers and racketeers, usually working for their own ends.

Fine Talent Displayed at Annual Dance Recital Given by Mary Forster

Youthful Dancers Show Evidence of Careful Training—Over Half of Numbers Were Solo Performances

WELL-STAGED PROGRAM

Youth in dancetime captivated a delighted audience at the Collegiate Auditorium Friday evening when Mary Forster and her dancers were seen in annual recital which attracted a capacity audience. The well-staged program introducing every variety of dance by brilliantly costumed dancers was enthusiastically received. The youthful participants showed evidence of careful training and promising talent, the recital bringing before the footlights many of the city's outstanding dancing stars as well as tiny beginners whose every appearance brought smiles of appreciation to the audience.

Over half of the numbers were solo performances, Miss Madeline Wallen in a smart air hostess uniform with miniature airplanes as a background opening the program in a patriotic song with "We're Ready over here for over there." Miss Wallen demonstrated then her versatility by her acrobatic solo dance in the program, presenting a charming style "Acrobatic Ballet." Mary Lou Pigden, in a gold and white ballet dress, sang and skipped and danced as "Skipper," while Judy Bowerman was very cute in dashing green and yellow figure in the same number. Jean Hubbard, Dick Jeffery was a pocket edition of Fred Astaire in his "Top-Hat-Tie-Tails" act and was a most efficient dancer. Twinkling toes and a twinkling sequined costume made a vivid picture of Barbara Jean Bennett in her "Wah Toga Star" solo, while Mary Bongard in an equally brilliant costume contributed a most graceful performance in "Flash." Later in the program, Barbara Jean Bennett delighted the audience with her rendition. Another graceful and fine dancing was shown in the next number, "Dance of the Flowers," with Mary of the stars of the evening was tiny Shirley Marcelle in an acrobatic dance that was a delight to see. Swinging into "Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me" Shirley Marcelle was dashing flame costume. Shirley Ann Pratt, in a dainty style, had the audience with "Baby Tapz" blasting honors with flaxen-haired Shirley Marcelle who in whose solo was named, appropriately enough, "Baby Star."

Joyce Cooper had a high and graceful talent for dancing, her solo being "Precision." "Acrobatic" featuring Shirley Marcelle and other talented performer, while a touch of comedy was introduced by George Wallen, the little boy youth of "Gay 90's," in which he and Shirley Marcelle in dancing Shirley Marcelle in candy pink and white made a pretty "Waltzing Doll."

Guest Artists

Adding variety to the program were the numbers by guest artists. Miss Mary Alice Rogers won the audience with the beauty of her lovely soprano voice. Her teacher, Miss Leona Riggs, was accompanist. Miss Rogers' numbers, Miss Joan Marsatka, A.C.M., L.C.M., pianist, who played her gifts in a humorous reading featured in the second half of the program.

The duo numbers were especially dancing, the first of these presenting Patricia and Barbara Nicol as "Dresden Dolls" in yellow and pink whose dancing was grace personified. Emily Mae McCullough and Doreen McKinnon gave a specially smart version of "Up to Date." As partners in "Out in the Two", Ruth Hagerman and Jerome Forster gave striking performances, the former in a lovely evening gown giving an interpretation of acrobatic dancing that maintained her high place in the dancing world. Arlene Marcelle and Joyce Kemp in bright flame costumes showed tapping talent in a "Rhythm Steppers."

From tiny tots to senior performers, those taking part in the various numbers displayed beauty and skill. There was a "Bit of Irish Pep", with Georges Bongard as the lad and Helen Cooper, Joan Sabcock, Barbara McLuskie, Doreen McKinnon, Emily Mae McCullough and Valerie Fleming as the girls' partners; Traditional Highland Dancing with Barbara Fleming and Mary Bongard in the Highland Fling; Madeline Wallen doing the elaborate Sword Dance and Wee Bonnie Lass Dance; Jean Cannon as the tiniest Highlander of them all.

Joyce Cooper in a smart costume trimmed with black staff notations introduced the number "Keep Step with a Capital S", which went to town in Lois Lomond their amusing costumes adding to the interesting skit. The dancers were Jean Forster, Ruth Hagerman, Mary Lou Pigden and Madeline Wallen, Graceful Shirley Ann Pratt, Jean Blue, Shirley Fox, Donna Cameron, and Caroline Bowerman bloomed out as delectable "Posies" while the "All Star Revue" with suitably costumed June Perry, Arlene Ackert, Dickey Dickey, Bill Walden, Jean Blue and Doris Caverly, and the "Parasol Ballet", Shirley Marcelle doing frames of which were the little dancers, Irene Dickey, Dickey, Billy Walden, June Perry, Shirley Smith and Doris Caverly a very winsome air and once riveting the group dancing for Junior students was "Junior Jive" featuring Ruby Poste, Elaine Boyle, Betty Boyd, Joan Sabcock, Doris Rodgers, Lorraine Gilchrell, Doris Bowman, lovely in their dainty costumes.

The seniors were seen again in perfectly rendered tap on drums, Inez Forster, Joyce Cooper, Mary Lou Pigden, Madeline Wallen, Marguerite Garvin, Ruth Hagerman, taking part, and in "Once With the Wind", for which they were dressed in Civil War costumes. Those appearing in this by number were Ruth Hagerman, Madeline Wallen, Mary Lou Pigden, Joyce Cooper and Inez Forster.

Miss Mary Forster added the crowning touch to the audience's pleasure by appearing in a toe solo "Moonlight", her grace and beauty never more appealing than in this beautiful performance.

Flowers were presented to many of the dancers by their friends and the accompanist Grace Leeman was similarly honored. The pianist was assisted by Bruce Sills and Reg. Scriven.

Those assisting last evening were:—

Costumiers—Mrs. Pigden, Mrs. Bongard—Mary Forster, Assistant—Antoinette Forster. Secretary-Margaret Forster. Business Manager—John Forster. Dishwriter—Jean Hobbs, Helen May, Rita Richards, Margaret Rogers, Helen Chant.

Make-Up—Dawn Marsatka, Bernice Saunders.

Conference Told Church Must Either Reduce Number of Theological Colleges Or Lower the Standard of Training

Port Hope, Ont., June 8 (CP)—Dr. R. W. Stapleford, Vice-Principal of Victoria and Emanuel Colleges in Toronto, Friday told the 87th day of Conference of the United Church of Canada the denomination must reduce the number of its theological colleges or lower the standard of training.

But he lauded "the fine spirit and tradition sympathetic to Christian principles" prevailing in the institutions, and said scholarships offered by them have been attracting a brilliant type of student.

The cost of carrying on the instruction was rising and soon the church might have to choose between the course of action he had mentioned.

Rev. J. R. Waits, Acting Principal of Queen's Theological College at Kingston, said the Queen's centenary program will be continued during the war.

Not Making Good Losses in Ministry

"We are not making good our losses in the ministry," he said, reiterating a plaint heard earlier in the conference that a shortage is increasingly hard to find enough candidates to meet the demands of the church.

"The health and property of the church depends on the ministers. The thing to address me is the lack in the leadership of the church we have fought since 1925 to get, when adequate leadership cannot be obtained."

Referring to lowered grants for education, Mr. Waits said the church has come to the time "when education has to justify itself." The just sense of the value of education would bring about "a cheaper ministry. Reservation is a most rigorous concept."

"The time has come when you and I, who know what education means, will have to hold the ground we have won."

The conference accepted a report recommending the creation of a general education and foreign missions. Rev. H. B. Clark of Kingston is committee chairman, and Rev. W. Gardner of Brechin is Secretary.

Change Name of Mission Board

The report recommended that the name of the church's "Foreign Mission Board" be changed to "Board of Overseas Missions" because the church now thinks in terms of a universal church, not national or denominational churches.

Dr. Stapleford's report was a psychological effect, indicating a barrier between peoples and nations, the committee argued. Missionaries no longer were considered "foreigners". Rev. Dr. Thomas T. C. Smith were appointed to the Foreign Mission Board.

The Social Service Committee described 400 pages of reading in Canada on alcoholic beverages.

The Social Service report, submitted to the annual meeting, estimated that $1 spent on liquor, an additional $1 is spent for treatment of consequent, disease, crime, absenteeism and loss of time and efficiency. The committee suggested the Dominion and Provincial Governments should prohibit the sale of liquor "during the war and for at least a year after the armistice."

Support of the Lord's Day Alliance was pledged and more extensive use of films in the performance of ministerial duties in church people was recommended. The report of the section dealing with gambling deplored an "increasing tendency to employ questionable methods of raising war funds. The government was urged not to relax its efforts in the control of gambling stakes and suggested they should also be used to raise war finances.

Seek Incorporation

The report on the Oak Lake property submitted a suggestion that the Property Committee seek incorporation under the Mortmain Institution Act. It was pointed out the conference is a church court and as such could not hold property.

Rev. C. S. Reddick reported on the question of church union. Conference concurred in a memorial to General Council the Conference on mission work which, he said, is of equal importance with anything being done in Canada.

Rev. A. M. Irwin of Toronto spoke on behalf of the Ontario Temperance Federation.

As Pollus Withd rew From Boulogne to Make Stand at Calais

The Weary, and pounded by superior units, Battling every inch of the ancient citadel of Calais, hold-members, these French troops are way these troops withdrew to Calais ing the enemy mechanized columns still able to wave their hands as and there, together with a small at bay and keeping the way open they withdrew on Boulogne be- band of British troops, made their for the withdrawal of the main fore advancing German mechanized historic "last-ditch" stand in Allied forces at Dunkirk.

France Possesses Large Superiority in Artillery

Shortage of Manpower and Greater Number of Nazi Planes Force Weygand to Fight Defensive War for Time Being

OBSERVERS' OPINIONS

The following analysis of the situation along the Somme front is written for the Associated Press by a staff correspondent from information available in Switzerland.

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ JR., Associated Press Staff Writer

Berne, Switzerland, June 8 — (AP) — Shortage of manpower is forcing Allied Generalissimo Maxime Weygand to fight a purely defensive war along the Somme, informed foreign observers declared today, with little chance of substantial aid from Britain for at least a month.

Advices reaching both neutral and belligerent ingations in Switzerland said that France's superiority in artillery is contrasted with an advantage of superior, motorized equipment and planes on the German side.

Under these conditions, the experts said, any large-scale French counter-offensive is virtually impossible for at least a month.

The best estimates reaching Switzerland gave this summary of the problem facing Weygand:

Manpower

The French now have 20 divisions concentrated along the Aisne; 10 divisions along the front from Switzerland to the Moselle river; and 40 divisions along the front from the Moselle to the English Channel. The British are reported to have about five combat divisions in France. The remainder of the B. E. F. is being reorganized in England.

The Germans are said to be using 60 divisions in the Western offensive, including five "panzer" or armored divisions of about 1,500 vehicles each, including armored motorcycles.

These attacking divisions are backed up by some of the 85 divisions which swept through Holland and Belgium and now are resting in reserve, while 30 Nazi divisions in Weygand's defence line will spread over a 200-mile front while the Nazis have concentrated power at points of their offensive.

Against such odds, the experts asserted, Generalissimo Weygand cannot afford to spare more than five divisions at different points for small counter-offensives.

Land Equipment

Despite reported heavy losses of artillery left behind following the Dunkirk withdrawal of the northern Allied forces, the French still are said to maintain their superiority in this category.

Reports reaching here today said hundreds of carefully hidden French "75" have been used in the flexible Weygand line to smash German mechanized units.

The French were said to be weak in mechanized equipment, however, since much of their equipment rushed into Belgium was abandoned during the retreat.

Air Strength

All sources agree that the Allies are outnumbered in the air — especially since the threat of Italian intervention and German air raids on the Rhone valley forced the French to send many crack fighters to the south.

TANK PRODUCTION

Last night's announcement followed a meeting of the munitions minister with industrialists representing Heavy Industry.

Purpose Policy Vigorously.

They went over the question of tank manufacture thoroughly, Mr. Howe said, and, together with officers of the munitions and supply department, were constituted a committee "to pursue vigorously the matter of heavy tank production in this country."

Aside from officers of the department and the British Supply Board, others at the meeting were: William Harty and William Casey, Canadian Locomotive Company, Kingston, Ont.; R. B. McColl, Montreal Locomotive Works; H. B. Bowen, Chief of Motive Power, Canadian Pacific Railway; W. G. Turnbull, Turnbull Elevator Company, Ltd., Toronto, and C. W. Sherman.

Mr. Sherman represented the Dominion Foundries and Steel Limited of Hamilton. He is technical adviser to the Department of Munitions and Supply on steel matters.

"The industrialists in attendance at this meeting expressed their conviction that despite the many difficulties involved tanks, of even the most modern type, could be produced in Canada," said the announcement.

Cable Dispatched.

After the tank situation had been gone over a cable was dispatched to G. S. Russell of the Canadian Pacific Railway who went to England some months ago to obtain information on and plans of the Mark III Valentine tank. A British order for 100 Mark III tanks, placed in Canada last January, was cancelled last April after tank plans were altered.

The Comptroller General of the British Supply Board in Canada, Lieut.-Col. J. H. N. Greenly, Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in the United Kingdom and members of Canada House in London, also were advised of the decision to get started on the job of tank production.

These grim faces, drawn with suspense, give evidence that Canada is brewing, but don't take it seriously, folks, it's a scene from Jack Benny's newest comedy "Buck Benny Rides Again," featuring Rochester, Andy Devine and Ellen Drew, at the Bells.

Small Trees on Zwick's Island Growing Well

Thousands of young trees estimated to be in the neighborhood of sixty-five per cent of the 60,000 planted some years ago by ex-Mayor Jamieson Bone, are said to be in splendid health and are adding a touch of green beauty to the otherwise drab appearance of Zwick's Island.

Including in the rows of healthy, young saplings are basswood, elm, ash, maple, Norway spruce, Scotch pine and yellow birch.

The trees have weathered the elements since their planting and are said to be well on the way to a healthy growth. This year, Mayor Thompson and members of the city council planted "refills" in those spots where the trees had been killed.

The young trees will prove a valuable asset to the city and its environments within the next few years

SYNOD MEETS AT EMMANUEL CH.

Rt. Rev. Howard Higgins of New York City is Principal Speaker — Officers Elected

The 45th Annual Session of the First Synod in Canada of the Free Church of England, otherwise called The Reformed Episcopal Church, assembled in Emmanuel Church, Belleville, June 5th and 6th.

The Synod was officially opened Wednesday evening with a service of Holy Communion administered by the Rt. Rev. Howard D. Higgins, M.A., Th.D., D.D., of New York City assisted by several of the clergy. The sermon was delivered by Bishop Higgins, Bishop Coadjutor of the New York-Philadelphia Synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church in the United States, which is a sister church of the Free Church of England in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and in Canada. Bishop Higgins, in addition to his episcopal duties is Professor of Church History and Apologetics in the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Episcopal Church, situated in Philadelphia, Penna.

He preached a forceful and searching sermon on the subject, "The Message, Mission, and Method of the Church in a World at War". Dr. Higgins insisted, that it was not the business of the church either to wage or stop international wars, nor yet to dictate to governments with regard to the policy of the state. Said the Bishop, "We have but one solemn, ever-present, all-engaging task in these days of crisis: it is that we shall bring to the broken-hearted and fear-stricken souls all around us, the simple gospel of the grace of God, which offers them forgiveness, peace, and a motive-power by which they shall be enabled to live the life which in itself is the best guarantee of happiness and security.

Must Not Falter

We must never falter in this our sacred duty. We must, both clergy and laity lay out our energies for the kindgom of God, without any sacrifice too great, no labour too exacting so long as there is a soul left who does not know of our salvation". The bishop referred to the confusion of voices in the religious world, asserted that the church could not hope to hinder the progress of these forms of error except by retracing her steps, repudiating her liberalism, denial of the supernatural) and renouncing her sacerdotalism, which he claimed, is the subordination of the spiritual truth to ritualism, as if some strange magic were connected with sacraments and rites by which men should be saved.

Occupied the Chair

At the request of Bishop George Marshal, D.D., Bishop Higgins occupied the chair during the business session, which proceeded likewise and dignity. A great deal of business was transacted in a remarkably brief sitting of the house. Bishop Higgins addressed the active duties of the episcopacy due to failing health, and was tendered a warm appreciation of services and praise for his faithful labours in and for the synod over a long period of years.

Election of officers for the Synod was as follows:—Bishop Emeritus, Rt., Rev. D. Marshall, D.D., of Brantford; Bishop Rt. Rev. F. Vaughan, D.D.; Vice-president, Rev. J. J. Kridler, M.A., of Oshawa; Secretary, Mrs. G. Nayler, Belleville; Treasurer, Mr. A. W. Carmichael, Belleville; Auditors, Miss Ida Worrell and Mrs. Kent, Belleville; Synodical Registrar, Mrs. D. Cameron, Toronto. In addition to these numerous boards and committees were elected from among the clergy and the laity.

The Synod was entertained by the Young Women's Guild of Emmanuel Church.

FOXBORO RED CROSS

Articles made from material supplied by the Belleville Red Cross, were: 24 pairs socks, 1 scarf, 2 pair wristlets.

The regular monthly donation was given to the Red Cross. Belleville Red Cross supplied the wool needs entirely in May which leaves a small balance to provide a part of wool requirements for next month. The accounts are audited every month.

Canada Sees Big Change In American Touring Habits

As what is predicted to be Canada's greatest American tourist year gets rapidly under way, touring authorities are noting with interest the vast change that has taken place in the touring habits of the American motorist during the past ten years. In the last big touring era, in the late twenties, the tourist was a familiar, slight along every highway, his car burdened with luggage and camping equipment, strapped to every part of the car.

Major automotive developments, such as Nash's new "sleeper," have changed all this, and today's tourist is a "streamlined" traveler. He no longer needs complicated camping equipment, and his luggage tucks away neatly in capacious trunks. Out-of-the-way places are also said to be getting much more attention, because these well-equipped cars make them easily accessible.

The rear compartments of all Nash sedans may be converted into six-foot double beds in less than five minutes. No alteration of the interior of the car is necessary to use the bed, and it may be left up and used by the tourist's companion as the car rolls smoothly along the route.

FRENCH AERIAL CANNON EFFICIENT

Shells Are so Sensitive That Impact With Sheets of Paper Will Explode Them

Paris, June 8 — (AP) — The French are proud of the aerial cannon and their famous 75s, field pieces which fire shells about three inches in diameter, for their performance against the Nazi tanks.

The aerial cannon are bolted to plane motors on each side and fire through the hollow propellers, a throwback to the First Great War which brought forth the machine gun synchronized to shoot between the propeller blades. These are fixed guns, aimed by pointing the plane.

These new aerial guns, firing explosive projectiles instead of merebullets, were perfected in Prance by French, Swiss and American engineers.

The shells, exploding on impact with the tops of the tanks, reed through relatively thin armor plate there and are said to kill all the crew.

Before each batch of shells is approved engineers fire test shells through sheets of papers. If the slight impact with the paper fails to detonate the shell the whole consignment is refused.

Germany at one time was offered rights of production of such cannon and shells but turned them down on the grounds that they had not been perfected. Now these weapons find shells have been tested against Germany. A military spokesman said that they are the "No. 1 enemy" of the tank.

COAL USERS URGED TO BUY FUEL EARLY

The Coal Administrator desires to draw the attention of householders to the possibility of securing their supplies of coal for the coming winter at the earliest possible date. It has already been pointed out that the supply of British anthracite will be considerably lower this year and consumers of blower anthracite in particular have already been advised to secure their season's requirements at an early date.

Apart from the slower coal, there is no prospect of a shortage in fuel for domestic heating at the present time. In view, however, of the great strain thrown on the transportation facilities of the country in moving all other essential commodities for war purposes, it is most earnestly requested that all consumers of domestic fuels place their orders for their season's supply at the earliest opportunity.

A gay time is had by Thomas Mitchell, Priscilla Lane and others as they do an Irish jig in Warner Bros.' "Three Cheers for the Irish," coming next to the Capitol. Also featured are Dennis Morgan and Alan Hale. On the same program "M.-lame X," with Gladys George and Warren William.

WARPLANE PRODUCTION JUMPS RAPIDLY

'A marvel of speeding up of production of airplanes has been demonstrated by the people of the British Isles. In less than a month, to be exact, since May 11th, warplane output has been jumped 62 per cent per week, 33 per cent more engines per week and in repair work even greater speeding up, namely 186 per cent more planes repaired and 159 per cent more engines repaired.

Britain is indeed gearing herself and marshalling her forces for the crushing of the enemy.

These figures, made public on Friday by Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, show what has already been accomplished in a short space of time and there is earnest hope of greater expansion.

Britain can look back to the mighty expansion of munitions output in the days of peace, but under the guidance of that master, David Lloyd George. She knows what was the sequel to victory.

The news of this great increase and that of the past number, the largest in the world, now going into production, were cheering items on Friday when Mr. Churchill the Premier said there was "reason for the confidence" the French hold in their victory over the enemy.

The Royal Air Force is doing fine service in hitting at the Germans on their lines of communication, at air bases, and in work in the battlefront in France. They are delivering mighty blows against the Boches. What they are doing is not on the long front and in the air is also a heroic story.

WAR WORK OF I. O. D. E.

Decision of the I.O.D.E. to buy a Bolingbroke bomber and present it to the Canadian Government will meet with the hearty support and endorsation of everyone. Immediate action in this regard is stressed, the $100,000 must be raised within a month across Canada. St. Julien Chapter and Argyll Chapter will bear their share of the task of raising this money for this laudable purpose.

These organizations have done work of the finest kind in the more than nine months during which the war has raged and this new effort for the next four weeks will meet with the same success, it is expected, as their other patriotic activities.

HITLER'S GERMANS NOT NORDICS CLAIM IS MYTH

The "Aryan" claim of Adolf Hitler was declared a myth by Rev. Dr. Hugh Black at Montreal. He said what most people believe, that the Nordic race is just a myth and the Aryan race which has kept free from the Semitic taint is a joke.

Dr. Black said that the virtues in blood had been believed in from time immemorial but "science and history have backed the statement of St. Paul that God made of one blood all nations . . ."

Dr. Black said that there dies not exist in the world any pure race and the Germans are a mixture of races with very little of the Nordic in them.

Hitler's Nordic claims will of course only propaganda to fool the Germans and the old theory that the Germans were a pure race uncontaminated with others.

Who knows how many races went to make the Germans before they came out of the east as all the races did? In Asia the source of races, there has been an endless march of peoples upon the world. And every people in this procession was no doubt a mixture. What German can prove that there was not mixture with the neighbors of the Germans? Will Hitler claim that all Germans are alike, that the Prussian is exactly the same in temperament as the Rhinelander or the South German, known as the Austrian? If the Prussians differ from the West and South Germans, what is the explanation? Environment does not make all this change. It must have been mixture of race.

ENGLISH HUMORIST HELD BY GERMANS

The English humorist, P. G. Wodehouse, is believed to be held in a German internment camp. He was summering with his wife along the French side of the Channel and when the Germans came to Le Touquet his wife was allowed to proceed to Spain. French but Wodehouse was held.

Humor is one of the qualities of the Englishman and she has been known since the end of the Middle Ages as a land inhabited by people who have sane and healthy in their jokes.

Probably humor is a form of that something which makes the Englishman so essential to the world. He can laugh at himself good-humoredly and so see the mistakes of others. The French have Gallic humor and the United states has a type of humor which has won worldwide recognition. Among the humorists are Shakespeare of England, Rabelais and Moliere of France and Mark Twain, the American.

But as for the German he has none and never will.

Hamilton Spectator says of the healthy work of Wodehouse and the scarcity of it in German humor:

"Did the Germans possess any sense of humor, a few pages of the humorous antics of Jeeves, Bertie Wooster and the rest of the delightful eccentrics the world over have convinced them that Mr. Wodehouse is neither dangerous nor a spy. His humor in fact is to write charming nonsense and make people chuckle. He has done this in a successful way for many years and serving his light effervescence in a diction that is among the best of contemporary authors.

"The Germans, unfortunately, lack the sense of humor. But that does not mean that the situation is likely to remain there. If this is the case Mr. Wodehouse to do, and never was his humor more needed than today. Humor is not wasted in internment. Windows bulged with wax and tired faces were stretched forth from half-starved people whose eyes brightened as the contents of some food box was passed around and not eaten for nearly three days.

"Such is the case in Mlle. Fritzsch and Mme. d'Hautville in charge. The train pulled up, crammed with infirmary, rest room and a series of small cradles. They had always served many trains — thousands from Spain a year ago, evacuees from Alsace and eastern France — now the terror-stricken populations fleeing before the German war machine in Belgium, Luxembourg and northern France.

Quick figuring by these calm, capable women revealed not 1,200 as announced and prepared for, but 3,000 human beings. The compartments were packed. Some screamed to bursting with 15 or 30 persons; the cradles, with six or eight, 60 to 80 persons; the sick, wounded, children, mothers, old people, some with their babies, were packed without their reason — new victims of horror and chaotic flight were crying for food and water.

Bidden Repass

At the window before me, an old lady, "The second time on the road," she screamed out suddenly. "I won't come." Her face was distorted. "Another time," a neighbor said. "She lost her home and all she had in 1914, too."

There were weary, haggard faces and bodies, the fetid odor of the unwashed, wounded and ill. Through the windows I could see children on the benches, handsome ones they had slept and travelled for three days. Ill and wounded choked the corridors. It was a vision of misery from the barbarism and savagery of the Hitlerian challenge to domination.

Temporary Relief

Rapidly the food was handed up —in 10 minutes not a scrap left. Alert little Guides dashed back and forth with bottles of fresh milk. English girl took a seven-day-old baby, not claimed by its mother, up to the infirmary to be bathed. For babies there were tiny nursing bottles, which were passed back and forth, hurriedly rinsed, no time to be scalded. Others were busy until the milk supply ran out. Then the united began distributing cigarettes.

Soldiers on the way to the front stopped at the canteen for food and tea. Then with spontaneous gesture they opened their mouths, fed with their regular ration and a few small luxuries given them by their families, and gave them back for the refugees. There were pots of honey, jars of jam, fine sausage rolls, cakes, tins of sardines, butter, accompanied with a word of cheer —all passed to the outstretched hands which grasped greedily. One child plunged its face into a pot of honey and licked it hungrily. Some were famished, others starving.

Hunger slightly satisfied, tongues were unloosed. Terrible experiments — I saw them dropping like flies — the parachutists, the bombs dropped on the roads that it a miracle we escaped—" A babble of confusion, but nevertheless, it was possible to separate the true from the fantastic — but one thing in common, almost insane fear.

With 12 Grands

One old lady caught my eye. She held her head proudly and there was not a complaint on her lips. Later her were her 12 grandchildren, each with its rucksack. "My daughter stayed behind to look after the wounded and my son refuses to leave his land," she said.

"The German planes skimmed the roof of our train — the man was deafening — it is only a miracle we've escaped," said a priest. "Since we have been here there was hysteria and hallucinations. The excitable think they hear aeroplanes — the children take convulsions. But the majority are admirable just the same."

Now an avalanche of enquiries about lost relatives, brothers, war news from the regions of their last homes. The train prepared to leave for another part of France, leave for another part of France, with the same scenes of misery and chaos.

Fleeing Belgians Cry for Water on Trains

By GLADYS M. ARNOLD

Canadian Press Correspondent

Bordeaux, (CP) — On the railway station platform about us there was feverish activity; wagons piled with sandwiches and steaming pots of coffee and tea; facilitated women of a dozen organizations from London, Paris, Geneva, Catholics, Protestants, three tall English girls (voluntary workers from London), the Red Cross, social service workers of the local Lycee, Girl Guides, eager-faced Scouts and Guides. They had been working all night since midnight when orders come to prepare for the reception of 1,000 Belgian refugees. Then there appeared military guards shouted "Stand back," and the 1,000 refugees were not in sight.

Ourselves and Others

Britain is considering the transfer of her children to her overseas dominions.

And Canada and the other nations of the British Commonwealth answer in the words of one of the most famous mothers that is recorded in the history of the world.

"Suffer little children to come unto Me."

It is to wise move on the part of Britain. The life of a little child, or anyone as far as that is concerned, means more than the hordes than that of a dog. Ruthlessly they destroy men and anything that provides, in their opinions, obstacles to the attainment of their objectives. More than that, the needless slaughter of little children, the work of the villains, has been done by these beasts, and Hitler when it was absolutely unnecessary.

Canada has already answered. Her people and those in the surrounding communities have already signified their intentions of welcoming with open arms those to the evacuee children of the British Isles that the mothers may send here. Here they will find a haven of rest from the flying death that hovers over them daily and nightly. Here they will find a refuge from the fear and terror that is polluted with the presence of the baby-slayers that follow the banner of the modern Attila.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The World Made Flesh

It is not what prime ministers and foreign ministers said that I remember from these never-to-be-forgotten days in Europe. I remember even what they said in a diary afterward, night by night. The viewpoint and the information were interesting, even important, but other things that people said I did not put down. I began to write down. They were words that could not be forgotten.

x x x

It is perhaps a year since I read that beautiful book, "Wind, Sand and Stars," by Antoine de Saint-Exupery. It seemed to me to express the knightly spirit of a man not yet born. It was hard, heroic and humane. In it I caught a glimpse of the world that Whitman prophesied — a society based upon "the love of comrades," where the difference between men is not class and inequality of gifts were harmonized in no regimented or mechanical form. In a very philosophic music of life: the admiration of the poet for the mechanic and the mechanic for the poet; the attraction between the cruel and the rough, each strengthening or polishing the other; a natural order of society, based on service to a common aim. A brotherhood.

These things I thought then, internationality no longer, in terms of geography, but in terms of spirituality and so far. Borders between nations are invisible and incidental. Men understand each other.

When they talked me in Paris whom I wished to see, I said "Antoine," and the response was always "A man at home on earth and in the air."

But he was at the front, flying a reconnaissance plane.

x x x

Still, he had two days' leave, and so he came to Paris.

It seemed to me outrageous that such a man should be flying in the most dangerous of the services. Reconnaissance planes are slow. They must fly high for the enemy country, and fly alone, photographing, observing, radio factories and troop movements. They are the eyes of the army. Every espionage dangerously arrived at. They cannot fight, but must remember this information, posing as friends and allies. They are easily detected by airplane fighters, because even their squadrons are very high. They are, in fact, a fifty-fifty chance over a course of weeks or months.

I told him so. After all, other men can fly planes, I said. But I felt, even then, that I was saying things ahead. France will need you. You owe it to her.

x x x

"You are absolutely wrong," he answered. "Nobody has the right to write a word that is not going to participate in the fullest in the agony of his fellow human beings. Human beings.

"If I did not resist with my life, I should be unable to write a word that holds true for this war has to be lived and written. The whole Christian idea has got to be served; that the Word is made Flesh. Or else the Word is dead. Dead."

He tried to elaborate this, rather brilliantly, I thought, but we are in this war, why there is a Hitler, why our civilization is crumbling up is because this has not been so. Our words and our actions are not one. We say things and pretend to believe things, but in place cannot, because this is not in all our institutions, we have been divided souls and y divided society. And because of this I have been an impotent society. "It is impotent," he insisted. "Intuitively. Otherwise no one is safe in France. Otherwise we cannot call it brotherhood. Otherwise it is a lie."

I felt that the spirit of Saint-Exupery "represents" French opinion." But he is representative of a large, powerful group in France and, in another way, in England. He is a true democrat in this war. Among the intelligent youth one finds fewer and fewer of the Germans than one hears against themselves. They speak of Hitler as the Antichrist, but also say that this scourge and destruction is the result of their own own faults.

I do not know, in generations, the legend of St. Joan, of the Maid of Orleans, more tragic than because she fought with God, has been used by the Church, but because she simply "We will win in the end, one way or another, if we are true to ourselves."

They know now, in France, that frivolous, pleasure-loving, sentimental playing of politics, weighing of personal interests and downright corruption have contributed to the French present tragedy and lack of co-ordination. They do not talk much about the personal-ities responsible, but there is much to do now—but they will certainly not accomplish it if they lose heart over, and however it concludes. Whatever happens, the existing political and economic system will be altered in a revolutionary way. One hears words of praise for aspects of the German organization. One hears expressions of scorn, contempt and disgust rather than hatred for the Nazi values, philosophy, spirit and aim.

x x x

It is a curious experience to see France in the present, and in the tragic crisis of her history and to feel nevertheless that out of this crisis and out of agony and humiliation will come accountably a wonderful. At any rate, whatever rebirth France may have will be in the opposite spirit of the Nazis. It begins with humility and with a will to virtue.

'No Signs That Germans Have Won the War'

When the German army smacked through the little Maginot line at Sedan, American publicist opinion immediately went into a hysterical tailspin, decided the Allies had lost the war, and began hollering at Congress for bombing planes to protect "democracy" here.

Now maybe the Allies have lost the war, or are about to lose it. But I'm going to write this, with the German arms bulging far enough in France, that I see no sign of either one.

Let's imagine a situation in which one German army had reached Paris, another had swept into the Channel ports.

It would be quite possible for a million Germans to pick up such a map and point out that the German armies had "won the war in France," but the whole war as well; to show how the Germans had driven a wedge about to collapse under Allied counter-attacks.

Because the object of war is not to capture territory but to destroy the enemy's army.

A second point to remember while the German armies are strung about in France, is that any army that stretches its supply lines too far for the pleasure at the rate of losses which should normally be suffered by those lines is inflicting on the enemy.

So as long as the Allies are retiring in good order, it is costing the Nazis tanks for every gallon of tank, two Messerschmitts for every Hurricane, two German soldiers for every Allied soldier.

The Nazis have plenty of tanks, planes and men. But they haven't double the number which the Allies have. They can't keep it up indefinitely.

So long as they fail to disorganize the Allies, and so long as the Allies can retain their grip on this two-for-one rate for every individual German soldier, then you needn't lose hope for the democracies.

For they can afford, on this basis to sell the Nazis Northern France, most of Northern France, and still come out ahead.

So now I want to tell you about how we got a flat tire, changed a tire in the Winter of 1918. While the others were using the jack, wrench, we got out and looked around.

There was just outside the little town of Meaux, which is 12 miles from Paris, something like road were some old trenches and rusty wire which the French Germans had dug in 1914.

Glancing up from that barbed wire I could see the Eiffel Tower in Paris on the horizon.

Those trenches had come too far and too fast and had had terrific battles before the Allies had from those trenches even before the first war correspondent arrived. They had lost the first fight, which later came to be called the battle of the Marne.

In the end they lost the war. If they had won tanks for the battle of this battle or this war, but even Meaux, 12 miles from Paris, is in France, there is no sign that the Germans have won the war.—William White in N.Y. Exchange.

Berlin's Standard

Another, British battleship "sunk" by a Berlin spokesman is in perfect health, according to London. Communication on the war being had from Berlin have been compelled to draw a distinction between such nuniques on the land war which have been confirmed, and not by facts, and Nazi claims about victories on the sea which have been as London said them, truly fantastic. The rule would seem to be that when a claim is made which the German High Command puts in out, When the Nazi Propaganda a lesser "spokesman" is chosen.

Even on land it is a question whether Berlin's claims always tell the truth. Berlin says that Paris is spt to be true, because the population of the same sector of Ier will tell the facts. But when it comes to figures of casualties inflicted, including prisoners taken, there is no such check, and one may have confidence in Berlin claims about Allied aircraft destroyed are certainly under suspicion.—N. Y. Times.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The big German tanks which smashed a path for the German army through the Ardennes are meeting their match in Allied aircraft. The experience of warring men down through the ages is that whenever a new fighting device is developed some means is found to meet it.

French cannon-carrying aircraft are proving a match for the big tanks in the open spaces, front and rear in order to avoid damage from fire by weapons on the ground. They are lightly armored on top, however, as it was not desirable to unduly increase the weight of the tank. The top is designed for protection against shell fragments and machine gun fire from the air.

Moreover the tanks provide a limited field of vision for their operators skylights and ca carry, no anti-aircraft guns.

Thus aircraft may attack them without getting close enough to them that they are protected by infantry and anti-aircraft gunners on the ground or nearby.

The use the Germans are making of their tanks, sending them smashing into the Allied lines in advance of their infantry frequently leaves them without such support.

The use of cannon on aircraft against ground objectives is not new. Although belligerents have experimented with the use of cannon for some time they have not used for the first time in the present war. They were installed with a view to their popping at aircraft, not on ground targets.

Capital Closeups

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 8 — (CP) — As Canada's responsibilities in the fight to stem the Nazi lance daily become more onerous, the whole tempo of this capital is stepped up in the battle against time for more publicity and trained fighting men.

Lights burn late in the war departments. There's no let-up for officers in navy, army and air force headquarters, for men on war boards or for many civil servants, this focal point of war administration goes all-out.

Out Parliament Hill, the Commons and the Senate debate questions of both war and peace while in grey buildings dotted with officials struggle with war organization dictated by the government and the legislators.

Swift changes in many plans are necessary to meet new emergencies. Old schemes have to be junked and new ones devised overnight. Costs are juggled as situations alter daily and new financial problems crop up, leading to revamping of some tariffs of which the most big budget in Canadian history.

Every day a few members have some of the records and volumes on their Commons' desks ...possibly preparing for a full-dress debate...

Tall, broad-shouldered J. Lost: one garment in the mass of marble halls of the centre block ...tanned, vigorous Major-General Victor Odlum, returned yesterday the 2nd division, knows all the angles to instruct military manoeuvres...but the labyrinthian corridors of the main buildings proved up his advance...with a hearty laugh he admitted his confusion to a newsman as he asked the way out of the place...

Rideau Hall is being scrubbed, polished and painted for the new governor-general, the Earl of Athlone...and the grounds are being groomed for the arrival of the Vice-Regal party.

Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the House, has a visitor's job as well these days...when the Commons is in committee of the whole, Deputy Speaker Vien presides from the clerk's table at the foot of the throne...beside him sits the doctor, whispering aides of advice to Mr. Vien who is new on the job of arbitration matters of procedure...the Outremont member seems to be an apt pupil...

Dr. F. L. Bruce (Con. Toronto-Parkdale) is becoming known as the stormy crusader of the Conservative front bench ... it's his first session in parliament and parliamentary rules are stumbling blocks...the former Ontario Lieutenant-Governor has been called to order on more rule infractions than any other member...he is more vocal than most new members...

The start of Ottawa's summer heat is bringing out the summer military dress in this city jammed with men of the active forces.... many of the general staff are leading the way by sporting the light khaki uniforms...M. The vista of the lush-green Gatineau hills...a fiery sun setting behind the dark-purple crest...long shadows slanting across the Ottawa River...this still, peaceful scene takes many workers in the centre block to the back windows these evenings...it is one of the finest views in the Dominion...

Conservative Leader Hanson and J. L. O'Brien (Con. Northumberland) have new ideas about drumming up the Tory membership...Hanson and maple sugar industry ... they gave a dinner for 30 M. P.'s and Miramichi salmon and the province's finest maple syrup was served...at different courses, however.

Prize Winning Photograph

VIEW OF BELLE VILLE CLINIC WINS DOMINION V.O.N. CONTEST

The picture is a typical scene at the weekly Welfare Clinic and at the time it was taken, there was no thought of a competition in mind, the photograph being used in connection with local publicity.

In judging the picture the points considered were nursing procedure, technical and artistic qualities, publicity value, reproduction possibilities. On these qualities, the Belleville picture was adjudged the most outstanding and won first place.

The picture is a clipped scene at the clinic, there was no attempt to pose individuals in the picture, the photograph being taken as a snapshot.

Readers will recognize the above picture as a photograph of the Welfare Centre of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Pinnacle Street. It will be delighted learn that Belleville merited first place in a Canada-wide contest arranged by the Education and Publicity Committee of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada. The other prize winners were: second, Saskatoon; third, Kentville; fourth, Rochester, Honorable mention was given to the following: first, Hamilton; second, Kitchener; third, Aldea a place in Saskatchewan; and Sackville.

Are Your Smiles For Guests Only?

By HELEN FOLLET

There are faces that have company manners. Wear sweet smiles before guests, beam during the bridge evening and turn sunny in the family circle. Doesn't make sense. Before loved ones, one should be sunny. They radiate, soon out of the atmosphere. But that's not the point; the point is that smiles and laughter keep the facial fibres strong and resilient. Downcast looks let the muscles relax so the outer tissues soften and what then? A flock of wrinkles. Hard luck around the eyes. Furrows between the eyes. Silly for any woman to mark up her face, make it unattractive, old before her time.

When you see teeth clicked together, chin shoved forward as if it were a threat, you can be pretty sure that malice and meanness are stowed away in the chest that's under that chin. It's a face that makes you thing of a machine gun.

Keeping sweet should be every woman's concern. Going sour only so injure the health that physical symptoms will appear — irritability, anger, jealousy increase the heart beats, causing the heart to weaken through overwork; it increases blood pressure.

Wrinkles Results

The effect upon appearances is devastating. Appetite dulled, and the nervous system jangles like a telephone bell, the digestive system may suffer. It is wise to learn as much as one can about the art of living. Some of it is common sense, so do building for happiness and contentment.

The tabloid items offered by cosmetic chemists are cute as a bug's eyebrow. it bugs have eyebrows. You can get all sorts of things for your purse. A tiny tube of mascara with a wee bit of a brush; you can paint it to give brows and wrinkles when you want to freshen up in a hurry.

Lipsticks come in small sizes. Little metal tubes. Push a lever, the lipstick one comes out. Lipstick all nicely shaped to make a clear cut application. Cosmetic chemists are doing well by the frail sex. Why shouldn't they? Consider the millions the profits shovel into their bank accounts.

Hawaii—Queen of Pacific

By TEMPLE MANNING

If there is one place that is verily ever-changing it is the Hawaiian Nature placed these islands in the mid-Pacific, far from the beaten track of the tropics. Time, aided by man, has blended the care-free, happy-hearted traditions of the Polynesian Sea with the smartness and delightful comforts of the 20th century. Hawaii epitomizes Polynesia in the superlative degree. Here the myriad hues of tropical flowers, the rainbow colors of the sun-warmed sea, the unbelievably sky, all add to 20th Century in her shops, her hotels, her industries, her fun-filled fringed Olympus to those who love sports; the Waikiki Surges on Fort Avenue in the scintillating life of great hotels, in her wealth of beautiful women.

All of which is to say that Hawaii should be the first port of call for the tourist who wants a real thrill when he lands. Europe in its palmiest days never offered a title of the tourist attractions in these islands in the blue Pacific. And one can return again and again, to revel in the old and wonderful fresh sights on each of the four major islands that cluster in the Pacific some two thousand miles southwest from the California coast. Oahu, Hawaii, Maui and Kauai, are some of this tropical crown.

Honolulu, capital of the Territory, is on the Island of Oahu. It's a city of smiling contrasts with modern office buildings, smart shops, a downtown district and flagrant flowers everywhere. There is much to see, including Bishop Museum and Iolani Palace with America's only Throne Room. There is Mt. Ma-Kee-Kee, a hill built of coral blocks when the missionaries first came to Hawaii.

And of course there is Waikiki, the world's famous, almost legendary in its beauty and gaiety. There is Tantalus Drive and the Punch Bowl, and the romantic gardens at Kaneohe and Pearl Harbor.

Volcano land, nucleus of Hawaii National Park, is on the island of Hawaii. A mighty spectacle is Kalaues and its spectacular active fire pit, the Mokuaweoweo. Or there is Cathartics, Mr. and Mrs. F. Spencer, Cathartics, Mr. and Mrs. F. Spencer, Cathartics, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith, Mrs. E. Simpson of Kingston.

"And, of course, there's Waikiki" giant ferns, canyons and waterfalls and clumps of amazing tropical flowers and plants, while the Kona district is the driest section of a fairy story. On the island too, are kilometers of the drive connecting Kona and vast stock ranches to contrast with the dreamy atmosphere.

The Sliding Bathtub

The island of Maui is exquisite. Its name is the Grand Canyon, filled with ancient lava flows as a contrast, groves, and the Hana Coast, of bamboo and beautiful flowers. Then add to the picture On the island of Halekala, the largest inactive volcano ever measured. The chief communities are Wailuku and Lahaina, and the section of the drive connecting them is called Amaiti Drive, for it really is a beautiful jewel.

Kauai is the oldest island, geologically. Her contours are more picturesque. Here are wonderful dried hills, deep-cut canyons and fertile soil. Her scenery has always a series of amazing tricks, providing ceaseless interest as it changes its shores. There's a natural chute-the-chutes, called the Sliding Bathtub, the famous Waimea Sands; the Spouting Horn, an ocean geyser, and the Hanalei Valley. Waimea Canyon is a smaller Grand Canyon, and Kokee Park on Kauai is a wonderful region of Kukuuolono Park.

Keeping sweet is one of the most important things in life. Learn to laugh at little things. Don't be touchy, don't be quick to take offence. Don't be a wet blanket. Don't be a grouch. Don't be a pessimist. Don't be a gloomy Gus. Don't be a sorehead

FIGHT FOR LOVE

By SYLVIA TAYLOR

INSTALMENT 1.

She should have known better, Star-Lee herself afterward. But it had been such a thrilling evening that for a little while the caution which usually ringed her footsteps had disappeared, leaving her like any other girl of eighteen. It was the first real party that Star had ever attended. Given by Sheila Bennett, whose father, one of the most important judges in the state, believed in public school for his children. Every member of the graduating class had been invited.

The comfortable, old-fashioned Bennet home with the dignified, smiling judge and his wife, in the way Star's conception of an ideal mother, slender and gracious, was gay with dozens of flowers. Gardenias, asters and beneath the broad turn of the stairway, pyramid dance music. Rugs were rolled up, leaving shining, polished floors over which moved the soft-colored party dresses. There were laughter and chaffed that had Star smiling, too. "Just like the movies," Star thought, enchanted. Best of all she, Star-Bright, seemed to belong. The girls included her in their casual friendly greeting and the boys, with whom she had always been reserved, begged for dances with a shyness which surprised her.

She had no idea, why. Knowing that she could never invite young people with a cultural background to her home, she held herself aloof from every one. But tonight the music and excitement seemed to have gone to her head. The dancing lessons that Mamie had forced her to take, many a time and often, fell went unpaid, gave Star self-confidence, but they utterly failed to convict she had no conception of the picture she made.

"Who is the girl in white?" the judge asked his wife, who in turn asked Sheila.

"Her name is Star Bright," Sheila answered. "Isn't she lovely? Nobody knows much about her except that she has been taking a business course at school."

"She is beautiful," Mr. Bennet admitted. Which from the old man's soft dark hair and pale skin, are very striking."

The judge did not reply but his gaze followed the graceful figure. Sheila might not be so pretty, but thank God her eyes were not steeped in sadness like those of her schoolmate. How could a girl as young as that have acquired such an expression, he wondered. His daughter seem older than her laughing, carefree companions. It was apart from them, wrapping her in mystery and a sort of glamour. He had seen that look before on faces of those doomed from the beginning by environment. A circumstance they had not had the strength to overcome. It was the expression of those who hadn't a chance and knew it. But Star's face held no bitterness. Life had been good to her years yet.

"Darling," laughed his wife, "will you stop staring at that femme fatale and pay attention to some of our other guests?"

"What's that? Who's staring?" he muttered, flushing like a schoolboy by the phrase I was hunting for. That's what she is. I was fascinated by fate . . ." It rather provoked him that his wife should have been the one to notice it.

Meanwhile Star, entirely unconscious of the attention she was receiving, did not feel at all unhappy. Life seemed so simple at this moment, disembodied and free, as she danced with one another, fitting her steps to theirs, conscious gratefully for even the rhythm of the good dancer to the awkward movements of the beginner. But she discovered as the evening progressed that there was one whose timing seemed as natural to her as her own. Leslie Reed, had been in her class for two years. He had asked her for a date once but, on the defensive as always, Star refused. She was one of Sheila's crowd. His father was a prominent doctor in the city. Leslie was an only child just as Star was, but with a difference in background she felt with that sensitiveness which was her curse.

Tonight, however, it didn't seem to matter. She felt that she fitted in. This cultured, harmonious atmosphere and in some marvelous fashion, as yet unrevealed to her, she could escape from the sordid ugliness of her own environment.

Leslie, made bolder by her unusual response, returned to dance with her again and again, content in an every one else, finally victoriously claiming her as his supper partner. There was much giggling and chattering to over the sandwiches and fruit cup. For the first time in her life, part of that inner group which exists in every school, no matter how democratic, Star found them strangely kind. As Leslie's partner she was included in their jokes and banter as if she belonged. For that one dizzy hour she believed that she did, knowing in her heart that she was deceiving herself. But after all they had graduated now. This was their farewell party. She would probably never see any of them again.

"I'm taking you home," Leslie said.

It would have seemed silly to object, and how wonderful it would be to find him waiting at the foot of the stairs where they said good night to their hosts. Star thought that she looked at her rather critically. Perhaps he was surprised to see the beautiful boy in the class accompanying her. She was very proud of Leslie as he stepped to her side.

"All ready?" he asked matter-of-factly.

It was more like a movie than ever, she thought as they walked together down the stone steps and entered his car. A graduation present, Leslie explained. And Star, who had paid for the dress she wore by odd jobs of typing, said, "How nice! It certainly is lovely."

"Just like my Dad's," Leslie continued. "The one he drives to the hospital, I mean. Mother uses the sedan."

Three cars in noe family, Star thought, impressed, but she said nothing. She had learned long ago to conceal astonishment or any other emotion. She sat beside him quietly happy as Leslie confided his plans for going to the university.

"But that's not until fall. Usually mother drags me to the country for the summer but this year they have promised I can stay in town. We'll have some swell fun together. That is if you feel the same way about it."

Star answered recklessly, "Of course!"

He patted the hands which lay folded on her lap.

"Isn't it funny how well we dance together? As if we'd been doing it all our lives. Well, it isn't my fault that we haven't."

She should have stopped him then. Should have warned him that they had nothing in common and never would have, but she couldn't spoil it. Maybe some way these plans of his would come true after all. Maybe this was the beginning of a new state of affairs—that break for which she had prayed so long!

"What are you going to be doing this summer, Star?"

"I'm going to try to get a job," she admitted.

"Good idea!" he approved. "Then you'll have to stay here with me."

As if she could leave. As if there were any place else for her to go.

She felt that she fitted into this cultured, harmonious atmosphere and in some marvelous fashion would escape from the sordid ugliness of her own environment.

"Good-bye!" Star said closing the door.

It had ended almost as soon as it had begun, she thought. Well, she should have known better.

"Why didn't you introduce your boy friend?" the other driver demanded belligerently. When Star did not reply she added, "I know why. You're ashamed of your mother."

"No, mother, why can't you ask like other mothers?"

Mamie replied, "That's gratitude for you, I work my fingers to the bone to give you dancing lessons. Spend the best years of my life giving you advantages so you can go on the stage and now what do I get for it?"

"I don't want to go on the stage," Star reminded her. "I'm through. I'll use to talk about it now. Let's go to bed."

Still grumbling, Mamie retired into the bedroom she shared with her husband. Star undressed quickly. Mamie and Sheila's mother and father made Star cringe. And she had let Leslie kiss her! She shivered and make plans to see her again. She must have been crazy, she thought, entering her own room.

It opened upon a court and was so small that there was no space for anything but a bed and dresser, but the curtains at the window were pretty sheer and white. The spread, in dull blue, Star had bought herself with money she had made typing manuscripts for a teacher with literary aspirations.

It was a shabby little room but it was the only place in the apartment that was orderly. Even the closet, where were hung the cheap little dresses she wore to school, was as clean as soap and water could make it. On the dresser were her cosmetics (lipstick), powder, and jar of cleaning cream), and a small framed photograph of a distinguished-looking man which had been cut from a newspaper. In vain Mamie had tried to find out who this was and why her daughter kept it. But Star knew better than to tell her mother that it was her own contribution to the family album and bored only vaguely.

Star's father had been deserted by the mother and baby when the child was three years old. For years now Mamie had believed that she was dead. Star knew this photograph was of some one else, but she chose to forget the real name and pretend it was a picture of her own dead mother.

Star nodded and was shown into a room bright with flowers and sunshine. It was a reception hall—an other world. Gay and friendly like the people she was sitting with in her cell. But the woman who rose to meet her resembled no one Star had ever seen before.

INSTALMENT 2.

Nina Lambert was short, plump and fortyish, with gray-streaked hair and large, dark, appraising eyes. She wore a house coat of striped yellow and white flannel. Star wanted to cut her. She was smoking a cigarette, which was held in a long amber holder. But she didn't inhale and she blew little puffs of smoke into the air like a bright-colored toy engine. Her smile was the kindest Star had ever seen. It warmed her like the sun streaming through the open windows.

"How do you do? Nina said. "Won't you sit down? Would you like a cigarette? Where has Leslie been with it more comfortable. I suppose Mr. Beverly has told you what I want. I warn you I'm a devil to work for. Some days I don't write a line. Others I work half the night. And I've acquired the very lazy habit of dictating my stories. You don't mind if I smoke? Do you think you could come here and live?" Her voice was fascinating, low-pitched and sweet, pouring out in a stream of sentences which never seemed to quite finish. She was making it appear as if Star were the one to be solicited instead of Nina.

"I should like it very much," the girl answered primly.

"But what will your mother think about it? Will she be willing for you to stay with me overnight?"

A shadow as swift as the flight of a swallow crossed the girl's young face.

"My mother won't mind. But even if she does . . . I'm not a child any old."

"And determined to get out on you rown just like all the beautiful heroines in my own silly books," Nina laughed. "Well, I'm glad you're very beautiful. I hope it won't interfere with your work."

Star looked at her in surprise.

"Nothing shall interfere with my work," she promised.

"Well that's fine then. Would you like to have a look at your room? It's not very big but you will have a bath of your own."

A bath of her own! Star trembled at the mere thought of such luxury. She followed Nina upstairs and into Mrs. Epperson, the housekeeper, and gasped inwardly as she gazed at the room that was to be hers. She had no intention of stopping, but she feared a scene. Joe would be called from another room. Mamie would be there with Mamie and Joe. But this place was like a picture in a magazine. No doubt that there could be an answer to her prayers.

"Now we'll leave you to unpack," Nina said. "And Mrs. Lambert is a fine person to work for. She has some peculiar ideas but she is very kind."

At that moment Star did not care how peculiar the novelist's ideas might be. Anything would be better than the life she had been living with Mamie and Joe. But this place was like a dream and she was afraid to wake.

Leaving the dishmop in the pan of soapy water, she walked through the kitchen into her own room where she changed from the uniform that Nina had given into her best school dress. Regarding herself in the mirror she adjusted her collar and hat, she wondered anxiously if she looked all right. She was always worried about her ability. Mr. Beverly had often told her she was the most careful girl he had ever had in any one else in the business world she thought she was capable of being down a job?

She sat across from her, touching her hair now and clasping her pocket book in nervous hands.

"I'm afraid I'm not for you," he said. "That is if you're willing to live away from home."

"Live away from home?" She must be dreaming. Miracles like this didn't happen to her.

"You see it's like this. Mrs. Lambert is a writer and Mrs. Lambert. Perhaps you've heard of her?"

"No," Star admitted. But then she was not very well read.

"That doesn't matter. What she wants is somebody who will live in her house. She likes to have one with her so she can work on a regular hours. It will be a wonderful opportunity for you if you can get it."

"What makes you think I can?" the girl asked wistfully.

"Because Mrs. Lambert asked me to recommend some one from the business college. I've been watching you. She isn't paying much to start with, but you'll have your meals except your clothes, and the experiences will be invaluable to you. I think it would be wonderful," she agreed solemnly.

"To live and avoid living away from home?"

"Yes!" she said so emphatically that he smiled.

"All right. That's settled then. I'll tell Mrs. Lambert that you can get right up to see her and meantime I'll drive you home to get your things."

As she lifted the brass knocker on the front door of the Lambert residence Star's hands were cold with excitement. Suppose Mrs. Lambert didn't like her? But she would. Oh, she must! One couldn't come this close to escape and be thrust back into prison.

A comfortable middle-aged woman opened the door.

"Mrs. Lambert?" faltered Star.

"No, I am the housekeeper. Are you the girl Mr. Beverly is sending?"

Star nodded and was shown into a room bright with flowers and sunshine. It was reception hall—an other world. Gay and friendly like the people she was sitting with in her cell. But the woman who rose to meet her resembled no one Star had ever seen before.

A comfortable middle-aged woman opened the door.

"Mrs. Lambert?" faltered Star.

"No, I am the housekeeper. Are you the girl Mr. Beverly is sending?"

She had given him the address of her apartment without apology and if he were surprised he did not show it.

"So this is where you live? I've often wondered," he said.

"You needn't come in with me."

"I'm certainly not going to let you in alone," he objected.

Unable to confess the reason for her reluctance, afraid he might think she was ashamed of the shabby building, Star permitted him to accompany her.

"There isn't any elevator. You'll have to walk," she warned.

But the way to the three flights she tried to reassure herself, but the impossibility of evil winds never entirely left her began to flutter like a storm signal in her heart.

"No tonight. God, please! Let her be nice just this once."

"Is anything wrong?" Leslie asked as they stopped in front of her door.

"I haven't any. Thank you for bringing me home."

"How you going to get in?"

The door is unlocked," she told him.

"But it isn't," he insisted, trying it. They would have to ring.

"Don't wait," she urged nervously. "I'll talk and everything. Do you think I'll leave you out here alone?" His did not add "in this dump" but she could guess how disreputable it must look to him.

He rang for her, touching the button lightly, but there was no answer. Star's heart beat quickly. That meant her mother was asleep.

Leslie said, "Gee, you don't suppose anything is wrong. Aren't they expecting you?"

"There is no one here but my mother."

Well, it's too bad to waken her but it will have to be done," he said pressing the bell. At first there was no response, then they heard an indistinct, certain movement inside.

"Somebody coming now!" Star said, anxious for him to leave.

Leslie took her hand she held out to him, saying, "I'll call you tomorrow. Okay?"

Star, stricken, she nodded. But before she could push him away the door opened. Mamie Bright Delevan stood before them. Frowsy and cross, prematurely gray but with eyes as bright as her daughter's.

"What's the idea?" she grumbled. "Standing out here ringing the door bell?"

Star made no effort to introduce him and Leslie fled with a pitying glance and a hurried "Good night."

Joe Delevan, Mamie's present husband, drove a truck at night. Star was never able to find out where nor why. His days were spent at home quarrelling with his wife. Ever since her daughter could remember, Mamie had clung to this second husband although she spent hours reviling him. Such had been Star's girlhood.

Lying straight and tense in her bed, Star could not sleep. How much longer must her life run on like this? Was there never to be any change? Beverly, the beginning of her soldier must have lored her, but so far not Star proved see herself in that little evidence of it. Even the name which Star disliked had been given to her when a sentiment than she sense. Yet with what a glimmer of hope when that the stirring of a mile in her arms might lift them both to the dramatic heights of which Mamie Bright had dreamed.

Star's earliest memories were of squalor and quarrelling but there were moments when Mamie had lulled of better days. There had been a time when she had "been somebody and had things", she insinuated. But when Star tried to question her about it she closed up like a clam. Her one explicit was that her daughter should follow the career Mamie considered she herself had missed, that the Lee Academy could walk she had taken dancing lessons until she flatly refused to go on with them. It was ridiculous, she insisted, to throw money away on preparing for a profession she had no intention of pursuing, and she worked harder than ever at her shorthand and typing, determined by this means to make her escape.

But how? Clearly the time had come when the break must be made, but could it be? Had she not provided a paying enough so that she could live away from home? Never again would she submit to such humiliation as that she had endured last tonight. She did not cry about it, having learned long ago the uselessness of tears. But there must be a way out, she told herself, and she would keep on trying until she found it.

Morning had not lessened her resolution. She decided to go to an employment agency and register as soon as she had finished the dishes. She had breakfasted when he came home early in the morning. The kitchen was in its customary state of disorder with eggshells and coffee grounds on the table. Star had made herself some fresh coffee and drank it standing at the window looking down upon the busy street. Then she plunged into her task, swallowing her distaste, bringing order into chaos which would be waiting for her when she returned from the kitchen. So many times Star had cleaned it, feeling as she did now, that morning ever have been different from any other until the telephone rang. She answered it fearfully. Could it be Leslie? Calling as he had promised in spite of what had happened?

It was not Leslie, but Star's typewriting teacher.

"I think I have a position for you," he said.

Such commonplace words to open a new world before her despairing eyes.

"You have?" she repeated, dazed. She must have thought her very stupid not to save her life she could not think of anything else to say.

"How soon can you come to the office?" he continued.

"Oh," she answered. "Right away. I'll be there in half an hour."

Leaving the dishmop in the pan of soapy water, she walked through the kitchen into her own room where she changed from the uniform that Nina had given into her best school dress. Regarding herself in the mirror she adjusted her collar and hat, she wondered anxiously if she looked all right. She was always worried about her ability. LOSERS RALLY

Ruth McClelland, Replacing Stewart, Allowed Only Five Hits in Last Four Frames

Scoring early and often the Corbin "lockmakers" pounded out a 27 to 14 win over the "5 & 10" ladies to advance into the league leadership of the Belleville Ladies' Softball League at the Collegiate campus last night.

Smith's league leaders pounded the offerings of two "big-nicked sisters" for 26 hits, the latter eight home runs and numerous other extra base smashes.

Corbins scored seven runs in the first and added eight more in the second, which led to an easy victory. "Stewie" Stewart, the Corbin "5 & 10" starting pitcher was replaced by Ruth McClelland in the fifth and the "lockmakers" garnered but five hits off the latter pitcher's delivery in the last four frames. The losers rallied strongly in the latter innings, after having made a futile bid in the fourth, but they could not haul down the mountainous-like lead piled up by the "lockmakers" earlier in the pastime.

Sylvia Reddick hurled for the winners and struck out five and walked one, while Reddick led her team mates with a potent bat that saw her connect for three safeties and two doubles in six official trips to the plate. Blake, Corbin lefts fielder, also counted two circuit blows and a brace of singles. Hammond and Marsh also hit for the circuit, as every member of the Corbin line counted at least one hit each. The Corbins fielded superbly holding the ball for only two miscues in the field as they scored in every inning except the sixth and fifth.

"Ginger" Cretney led the "Stricked Sister" losers at the bat with five hits in six tries. Miss Alderman batting three, including a triple and Burley two doubles and a single, while Beverley collected a triple and two one base blows. Some spectacular fielding plays were made by Marsh, Archer, Blake, Burley and McClelland.

Three games are scheduled in the league next week with the second placed "Mets" also meeting the K-nines at the Armouries Tuesday evening.

The line-ups:

"5 & 10's": Alderman c; Cretney ff; Irwin 1b; Burley cf; Bates lf; Stewart p, ss; Hodges 2b; Ewenson 3b; McClelland ss and p.

Blake lf; Marsh 2b; Chambers 1b; Reddick p; Hammond ss; Adkins c; Hammond rf; Archer 3b and Hughes cf.

Score by innings:

Corbins	7	8	0	0	2	0	0	2	8	— 27
"5 & 10's" ..	1	4	0	0	0	0	0	3	6	— 14

Indomitable Brooklyn Dodgers Drive into First Place With 4-2 Win in 11-Innings Over Reds

Casey Pitches Five Scoreless Innings in Relief and Given Credit for Win

WALTERS STOPPED

New York Yankees Broke Feller's Spell Defeating Indians 5 to 4

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Ray Blades is out and Brooklyn Dodgers are in.

The responsibility for the major leagues' first managerial crackup of 1940 should be spread in a lot of directions, but the Dodgers will have to shoulder their share of the blame because they are doing everything St. Louis Cardinals were supposed to do this season.

It was more than a coincidence that yesterday as the Cards fired Blades and hired Billy Southworth, the indomitable Dodgers drove back into first place in the National League with a 4-2 11-inning conquest of Cincinnati Reds.

The Cards were the "glamor team" of last season, soaring from sixth to second place under Blades' guidance and were labelled as the team that could cop the flag this year. The dead is it is the Dodgers who have become baseball's bright boys.

They gave a stirring show at Cincinnati yesterday, winning on a two run homer by Dolph Camilli in the 11th and stopping Bucky Walters' undefeated streak at nine games.

Casey Gets Credit.

Hugh Casey, the hurler the Reds whipped May 1 to end the Dodgers' sensational string of nine victories dating from the start of the season, pitched five scoreless innings in relief and got credit for the victory and a taste of sweet revenge.

The Cardinals, under the temporary handling of Coach Mike Gonzales, squeezed past New York Giants 3-2 with the help of five stolen plays and advanced into fifth place. Southworth will take charge of the club Monday.

Another swap in positions in yesterday's games left upheaval in the National League saw Pittsburgh Pirates finally get out of the cellar and Boston Bees drop in. The Pirates pounded out 18 hits to crush the Phillies 10-4 while Chicago Cubs beat the Bees 5-3 with Bill Nicholson hitting his third homer in two days and Clay Bryant pitching effective eight-hit ball.

Broke Feller's spell.

New York Yankees broke the spell of Bob Feller's 1-hit pitching over Cleveland Indians which the champions obtained by batting four singles for two runs in the ninth. The tribe was held to five hits one of them Rudy Troppy's fourteenth home run.

Cleveland's setback preserved Boston Red Sox' half-game lead in the American League although Hal Newhouser baffled the Bostons with seven-hit pitching that enabled Detroit Tigers to win 7-1.

Washington Senators edged out Chicago White Sox 3-2.

Rookie Al Brancato took care of Philadelphia Athletics' heating St. Louis Browns 7-2 by driving in all the A's runs on a triple, a double and a single.

"THE BEST OF LUCK, DIZ"

Teammates of Dizzy Dean, crowded around the big pitcher in the Chicago Cubs' dressing room to wish him luck as arrangements were made to option him to the Tulsa club, a Cub affiliate in the Texas league, Diz will endeavor to perfect a side-arm delivery in an effort to return to major league form.

Johnny Wittig of Jersey City Throws Two-Hitter and Wins 3-0

(By The Associated Press)

Up to last Sunday, young Norman Branch was just one of the "firemen" Manager Johnny Neun would rush in from Newark Mems' bullpen to put out the fire of the other club's attack.

But now, with a five-hitter and a four-hitter since Neun gave him a starting assignment six days ago, the 24-year-old righthander has definitely made the first-string.

He proved last Sunday's 2-1 win over Toronto was no fluke by pitching even hotter last night, and holding the league-leading Rochester Red Wings to one hit as Bears pounded out an 8 to 0 victory, featured by a six-run spree in the seventh inning. A clean single into center field by Augie Bergamo in the third inning spoiled Norman's chance of a no-hitter.

Johnny Wittig turned in a two-hitter to give Jersey Giants a 3-0 win over Toronto; Bill Crouch hurled five-hit ball to beat Syracuse 2-1 for Montreal, and Claude White held Baltimore Orioles to one hit for eight innings on relief, while Buffalo overcame a six-run lead to beat Orioles 8-6.

Only one of the Little Giants' runs against Toronto was earned, tying in five runs.

NO WAY FOR CHALLENGER TO ACT

Arturo Godoy, Chilean challenger, hopes to wrest the heavyweight boxing crown from Joe Louis at the Yankee Stadium, New York City, June 20, he'll have to do better than this. Godoy, who will be taking his second crack at Louis' crown, almost hits the canvas when he was caught off balance by Henry Moros at Godoy's Rockidge camp in Carmel, N.Y. Godoy lasted the full 15 rounds with Louis in February.

21 FINEST STARS IN GOLF WORLD HAVE A CHANCE

Sam Snead and Lawson Little Tied as Tourney Moves Into Home Stretch

SMITH CLOSE BEHIND

Qualifiers Play 36 Holes Today for the Coveted Crown

Cleveland, June 8 (AP). — They "mobbed" the payoff window today in the drama of pressure, failure and victory that is golf's biggest gamble—the National Open Championship.

Promising what may be the greatest finish in the history of a tournament 21 of the game's finest stars were within a six stroke leadership bracket as the final 36-hole stretch drive started at Canterbury course.

Deadlocked for the 36-hole lead at 141 strokes were two top power players," Slamming Sam" Snead and Lawson Little; and one of golf's style artists, Horton Smith, one-time "Wonder Boy" and boy wonder of the sport. Their battle toward the game's biggest crown—with almost a score of others ready to take the yardage if any slip—late carried the prospect of as colorful a free-for-all as the event ever has known.

Snead, who lost his grasp on the title a year ago with a disastrous eight, turned in a two over par card of 39-35—74 yesterday to add to his Thursday round of 67, five under regulation figures.

Winds Play Havoc.

Sometimes tricky winds, dominant two days, roared over the fairways during the main grind which sent Sam reeling at the sixth hole. He took one over par there and three over for six out into the wind for home, he picked up three strokes on the holes coming back to finish at the short 17th going two over par.

Little, working on an opening 72, came in with a three under par card of 36-33—69, playing the kind of golf which won him the British and American amateur titles in 1934 and 1935.

Smith had nines of 36-36 to match par as against his first round 69. On the 18th, Smith missed by a hair's line-foot putt which would have given him a 70.

Frank Walsh, veteran Rudson, N. N., professional, was a stroke off the pace at 143, going around yesterday in 69.

Fights Last Night

New York—Joey Fontana, 133 1-2, Brooklyn, outpointed Jimmy Harper, 131 1-2, Port Arthur, Tex., (8).

Boston: Al Ettore, 179 1-2, Boston, outpointed Melio Bettina, 180 1-2, Boston, N.Y. (10), light heavyweight champion (10).

El Paso, Tex.—Babe Ritchie, 208, El Paso, knocked out Mickey Baldan, 189, Detroit (3).

Wittig fanned seven and walked only two in winning his fifth game of the season.

Montreal also had a pair of uncarned runs in winning their sixth straight victory. A home run by Bert Haas in the seventh provided the margin.

Orioles jumped on Quinn Lee for all their runs in the first inning but Bisons came back with three in the second and two in the fourth and pushed across three more in the fifth to sew up the game. Clyde McCullough paced the 13-hit attack with two homers and a single, batting in five runs.

Norman Ross Gooderham, one of Canada's most noted yachtsmen died at his home in Toronto yesterday. Locality citizens will remember the late Mr. Gooderham's yacht — Oriole 3rd — that was moored in Belleville and the Bay of Quinte for many years. It was the flagship of the R.C.Y.C. In his 54th year, Mr. Gooderham died of heart attack. Yachtsmen will recall that Mr. Gooderham and his R.C.Y.C. crew defeated the famed C. F. Adams of Boston and his Eastern Yacht Club crew in the International Seamanship series in 1926. Adams handpreviously won the America's Cup for the United States.

About the only colorful thing to last night's girls' softball game was the new flashy paddy-green and silver silk uniforms worn by the Corbin "lockmakers." They will are to be worn throughout the best dressed team in the loop, but they're tops in the league standing after shellacking the "5 and 10" cent store girls 27 to 14. Incidentally the Corbins have been deprived of the services of Lois Calvert and Ruth Reddick, but Sylvia Reddick ascended the mound in grand style to add to her ball prowess with three circuit blows and two singles in six tries. Coach "Doc" Dougherty introduced a new hurler, Ruth McClelland, who is called the "Big Nickel" team seemed to play better ball with Stewart at short and McClelland in the box. It was Corbins' second win in as many starts.

Will we ever see a four-minute mile? Coach Matt T. Geis, of Princeton, says it is quite possible. First all the requirements are: 1. a super athlete; 2. a well-paced race; 3. ideal weather conditions. Commenting on the possibilities of a four-minute mile Geis says: "In Chuck Fenske, University of Wisconsin graduate flash, you have a super-athlete. But Gunder Haegg of Sweden, who won all the major indoor miles during the past winter, is better than his nearest competitor and hasn't the opposition adequate to pace a four-minute mile.

Incidentally the present indoor mile record is held by Glenn Cunningham at 4:04.4.

One of the oddities of the baseball season was seen in a game played between Brockton versus Dorchester, Mass., recently, during Brockton pitcher won with a wild pitch. With the score 1-0 in his favor and a Dorchester man on second with two out in the ninth, the Brockton pitcher turned loose a wild pitch that hit the umpire behind the plate on the chest protector and bounced back to the pitcher. He threw out the Dorchester man gate to end the game that was the game. It's legal, too. Seeing 18 to 5 over Corby's down at

While it was a route at Point Anne with the Cementmen winning 18 to 5 over Corby, down at Picton they had a nitty softball tussle to have the Shell "Oilers" emerge winners by a 6 to 3 score. The "Cementmen" have won their last two starts and are going strong. However, the "Oilers" do not look as well balanced as last year and it is predicted there may be a shake-up in the entire softball set-up soon. Down in Picton Eddie Schrieder scattered eight hits well and helped his own cause with a circuit blow, although it was Bill Whalen's double, with the aboard that gave the Oilers victory. In the meantime "Red" Townsend's Jr. Trentons are leading the local softball parade and playing good ball. Although Point Anne and the Oilers are tied for second and Corbys and Picton in the cellar, Coach Jim Point last night Ding Luffman silenced the Corby bats, allowing but nine scattered hits, while his team mates shelled Corby hurling for fifteen safeties and kept up their hitting when Lum Carson went to the rescue.

Remember Al Heckman, the Peterborough right-hander who hooked up in many a baseball pitching duel with Jack (Chief) Williams in the heyday of the C.O.B.L.? Well, "Heck" appeared in the Toronto Globe and Mail some recently seeking Canadian naturalization, having been born in the U.S.A. An outstanding Heckman for naturalization the pro ity. Let's get behind the move of man we like to see come to this country. Writing under the heading Item Al said: "Canada has been good to me and if she needs me I'll be glad to serve." Heckman is all of the days of the C.O.B.L. Lois Calvert and Ruth Reddick, but Sylvia Reddick ascended the mound in grand style to add to her ball prowess with three circuit blows and two singles in six tries. Coach "Doc" Dougherty introduced a new hurler, Ruth McClelland, who is called the "Big Nickel" team seemed to play better ball with Stewart at short and McClelland in the box. It was Corbins' second win in as many starts.

Heckman was the type of player who was equally as popular on the road as he was at home. He was a fast and and undoubtedly the best right-hander ever to grace the C.O.B.L. and one of the best players ever to perform in the league. Welcome, Al."

We are sorry to have to report that Harry Doyle, former manager of Canada and the Picton International baseball team, is critically ill in the Picton General Hospital. Harry returned home to Picton early this spring upon advice of his physician to overcome after a winter's illness.

Daily (never-say-die) Gray, persistent mentor of baseball in the community, plans to organize a junior baseball league in the city. The idea is to organize some team as was the case five years ago, with the station section sponsoring a team. Foster Ward, the College Hill and one other entry. Can Dolly get any supporters for this worthy project? After all it's a good idea to give the kids a chance to play baseball and in the end help develop talent for the future.

SPORT SPICE—The Yankees have discovered and chances Bob Feller may have had to duplicate Bill Walters' pitching efforts when they nicked him for nine safeties and beat the Cleveland Indians Saturday. . . . And in an oldtime world champion can beat the topranking team they'll eventually go on top. . . . Strangely enough it had to be the Dodgers that stopped Bucky Walters' pitching record; the pesky Robins downed the Reds 4-2 yesterday and in so doing handed Walters his first pitching defeat of the year. . . . Ruhe Marquard's effort of 1912 is still intact. It is quite possible that the Yacht Club may stage a matinee race tomorrow afternoon, especially open the sailing season. Having little less to do the citizens can at least enjoy the cool breezes off of the Bay of Quinte, as well as the sailing races.

"CLOUDS OVER EUROPE"

The sensational laugh hit "Clouds Over Europe" which had its premiere showing at the McCarthy Theatre several months ago, has by popular request been booked for a repeat showing the beginning of next week.

"Clouds Over Europe" is not a war picture, but one of the most delightful, one of the wittiest and pleasantest comedies ever brought to the screen, you'll never dream a picture could be so good . . . so full of entertainment. Perhaps it was our fault if you missed it before, but now it will be yours. Don't on any account miss "Clouds Over Europe".

"Clouds Over Europe" is not only the best in entertainment, it also features the fine acting talents of the excluding Ralph Richardson, remembered as the star of "Things to Come", Lawrence Olivier, star of "Wuthering Heights" and "Rebecca" and lovely Valerie Hobson, heroine of "Drums" An excellent array of good actors, a fine story, good direction and a subject entitled "The World of 1960".

"The Lone Wolf Meets a Lady"

Warren William and an excellent cast in "The Lone Wolf Meets a Lady", the best and most recently made production in the "Lone Wolf" series, plus Jack Holt in "Hidden Power", powerful dramatic hit, are the twin feature entertainment offered on the McCarthy Theatre screen, in addition to an amusing cartoon and "Little Lo: Sheep" and a new episode in the adventures of "The Shadow" at the screen's greatest chapter-play hit.

BOON TO GOLFERS

The newest boon to golfers who desire relief in nibbling shafts regardless of what the weatherman does to document times this rain and sun proof jack outfit, light and transparent. The outfit permits full freedom of motion with the added advantage of giving ample protection.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Three Cheers for the Irish" with Thomas Mitchell lends is a good laugh. And the Capitol Theatre is going to oblige next week by presenting one of the funniest comedies to come out of Hollywood. In "Three Cheers for the Irish," Warner Bros. has assembled a cast one of the finest ever seen, headed by Priscilla Lane, Dennis Morgan, Alan Hale and Thomas Mitchell.

The story, which takes place in New York City, Mitchell plays the role of a member of "Tammy" York's Finest, the Police Department. Tammy's two main loves are forces because of his age, Mitchell's family of three daughters and Delia Mahoney, a fiery Irish alderman. The daughters, played by Priscilla Lane, Rosemary Lane and Virginia Grey, all pitch in and work their hardest to get a husband for their mother.

With the luck of the Irish everything turns out for the best in the end, with Mitchell elected alderman. Friends rally around the young cop and the other two girls marry their respective beaux.

"Madame X," one of the most celebrated and established characters as the world has ever known, will be the second headline attraction at the Capitol Theatre when it will be shown with "Three Cheers for the Irish."

With the highly touted Gladys George in the title role and such screen favorites as John Beal and Warren William in the top spots, Madame X, respectively, the famous story of a woman's degradation and her ultimate sacrifice comes to the screen as one of the major Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offerings of the new movie season.

The many dramatic characterizations and treatment brought up to date by John Meehan, who adapted "Madame X" for the "Good Earth" and "Strangers May Kiss," the story of Madame X, the beautiful, wanton, erratic career of the beautiful young woman who was given a taste of wealth and happiness only to descend down, down, down to death as an old, withered harridan she is defended against a murder charge by her son.

Went Without Fireworks Gave to Canada Instead

David and Stanley Jones of Winnipeg saved up two dollars for fireworks to celebrate when they read of Hitler's Blitzkrieg and decided that beating Germany was more important than fireworks. So they sent the two dollars to the Minister of Finance at Ottawa country.

A resident of Kingston, Ontario, who merely signs himself "Mrs. P. A. W." sent an American $2, note with the remark that she has heard in a broadcast that Canada requires American money to buy American goods and sends the $1. will help a little. She will also try to help by buying war certificates.

Robert Wm. Hopkins of Jackson, Michigan, forwards two dollars. "Use it", Mr. Hopkins writes, "in the best way you can to defeat Germany, buy bullets or anything needed."

T. D. Anderson of Sturgeon River sends a war contribution of one dollar.

Dr. Carl E. Hill, of Lansing, Ontario, forwards a cheque to the Prime Minister as a contribution to Canada's war effort.

A SMOOTH dignified funeral service is never accidental. It comes of careful planning.

"Buck Benny Rides Again"

When we saw that Jack Benny forfeits a radio to ride a horse, twirls a mean lasso and routs a band of cattle rustlers without losing an ounce of sangfroid, to say nothing of insouciance, we give you some measure of the laughs to be found in his newest picture, "Buck Benny Rides Again", which is the Paramount laugh riot, now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Not only Benny but most of his radio troupe have forsake the microphone to don ten-gallon hats and head for the wide open spaces. Eddie "Rochester" Anderson there to heckle his boss; Phil Harris lends his inane presence; Andy Devine, and even Carmichael, the singing bear, add gusto to this new Benny production.

The result is lively entertainment which is the same as saying "joss for anybody". The picture is as funny as all get-out, which you might expect with Jack Benny playing a dynamic role under Rochester's critical eye, and Rochester that self-same critic, sees fit to show as usual with a side-splitting imitation of Fred Astaire, and a new dance which may make all Shall Shuffle Off to Rochester-Buffalo.

The story of "Buck Benny Rides Again" permits Jack to cavort against a fine background and to get without surrendering any of his radio personality. The picture opens in a broadcasting studio. The New York heat is unbearable, and Benny's sidekicks are all for it. He's trying to sell him the idea of a vacation. Phil Harris wants to go to Nevada, with an eye to meeting a Reno divorcee there. Rochester is dreaming of buying ice cakes for Carmichael, the polar bear.

It's no go, however, until Jack meets Joan Cameron (played by Ellen Drew) and falls in love with her. Joan likes the West, and to make an impression, Jack persuades her that he owns a ranch out there. His deception gets a boost when he learns that a Jane Devine owns a ranch in Nevada. The complications are rife, plenty, Jane is auditioning for Benny, are transported there.

Out on the range, Jack, by bribing the cowhands, managers to convey the idea that he is

Little Benny's Note Book

Saturday morning me and Sid Hunt rang the Simkins's bell for Puds and his sister came to the door, saying, Charity, isn't up yet but it's high time he was.

Do you want us to go up and wake him up? I said, and Mrs. Simkins said, I'm sure I dont mind your trying.

Meaning she doubted if we could on account of Puds being such a famous sound sleeper, and we went up to Puds's room and Puds was sleeping on his stummick with the whole front of his face in the pillow as if he didn't even need air to sleep, and we called him around right side up and started to yell, Hey Puds, wake up, Puds hay, Puds, hay.

The result being Puds just stayed asleep, Sid saying, O winnickrs his ears and everything else must stop working when he goes to sleep.

Well holey smokes his breath cant stop working, I said.

And I grabbed a hold of Puds's nose and closed it so he couldn't breathe through it, and Puds just opened his mouth and started to breathe through that, so Sid put his hand over his mouth to shut the air out and I says see wile I still kept a hold of his nose, and Puds started to jump around like a big shark or something and me and Sid had to leave go and Puds still stayed asleep, and I had another idea, saying to Sid, O Sid, smell those buckweak cakes, O boy Puds is going to have some breakfast.

The result being Puds opened one eye half ways and said, Heh?

Proving the superiority of mind over muscel, and Sid said, Good night, do you mean to say you didn't feel us shaking you and everything?

Were you shaking me? Puds said, I didnt smell anything, he said.

Meaning Mrs. Simkins, and his eye went all a ways shut again and he looked worse asleep than ever, and me and Sid went out disgusted to see if any of the other fellows were around.

Butter Prices Lose ¼ Cent

Toronto, June 8 — Continued active export trading in eggs with about ten per cent grade B included in some of the shipments overseas provided the only bright spot as otherwise tradeless produce market here during the week.

The egg market steadied after an uneasy opening and prices varied but little for the week's dealings outside of a noticeable decline in grade C. Receipts of this grade showed increased volume, due to the warmer weather. Trade was confined to smaller lots picked up for grade A-large, while other offerings kept fairly well cleared, although shipments in to the north country remained light.

Butter prices lost ¼ cent per pound on the Canadian product as a result of the prevailing poor demand. Unusual for this time of the year is the lack of storing operations, buying being confined to small lots needed to cover immediate requirements. The market closed yesterday at the Canadian price of 23¼c per pound for No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids. Western offerings at 21¼c to 22¼c were not taken.

Montreal Prices

Montreal, June 8 (CP).—Produce prices quoted today as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 26c to 26½c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 25½c to 26c; Quebec No. 1 pasteurized, current receipts price, 23½c.

Large Number of Sows Marketed

There is a tendency on the part of some farmers to keep several sows when the prospects for favorable hog prices are good, and to sell out completely when the hog future is not so bright. When war was declared last September the prospects were that there would be a strong demand for Canadian bacon, and if there was money to be made by keeping sows there would be a chance to be more money by keeping several sows.

While none of the pigs bred for the war contracts are on the market yet there are a large number of sows being marketed that have just raised one litter. This movement of sows should not be considered as an indication that the steady hog raiser is going out of business but rather that the gambler is leaving the business.

Some good lots of hogs marketed out of the Belleville district during the week of June 7th, 1940, are as follows:

In the Canadian section Dome Mines was off a point and other gold stocks were down fractions. Canadian Pacific was unchanged. Canada issues in the Bond Market, advanced 1 1-8 cents.

Ahead at one time or another were Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, General Electric, Du Pont, Anaconda, International Nickel Easman Kodak and Consolidated Edison.

Fifty Dollars Taken From Cash Register And Pin Machine

Leaving goods that had been stolen in a downtown business place not only entered the Belle Ewart district, but also entered another and other gardens, but returned a cigarette lighter that was stolen from the premises some three weeks ago.

The break-in was found by P. C. Thomson, who discovered a window open and found the steady hog raiser is going out of business rather that the gambler is leaving the business.

EVERYTHING

In addition, President Roosevelt yesterday asked congress to increase authority to turn old army guns back to manufacture. This procedure would enable them to be placed swiftly, if indirectly, in the hands of the allies. Well-informed observers in Washington also said the administration had requested more than 500 army and navy planes.

That such a course is approved by many prominent Americans was indicated by public statements this week:

New York — Governor Herbert Lehman, saying that should Germany win the war, "democracy and all we have cherished would be in the greatest danger," urged in public address that the United States furnish the Allies promptly with "everything we have."

Boston — The Yankee division veterans association, after giving full the aid and strength necessary to defeat Germany now.

Atlantic City — Senator Claude Pepper, who persistently in recent months has urged that America send aid be given, warned Italy in an address that she will be at war with Germany "Mussolini will feel the retributive force of the moral indignation of the American people."

Atlanta, Ga. — Governor E. D. Rivers telephoned Roosevelt urging every plane be sent.

Harrison, N.Y.—The American Neurological Association in a resolution urged immediate furnishing of credits, supplies and armaments.

New York — "Immediate and practical aid, in the form of planes and other implements of war," was advocated by 150 members of the faculty of the College of the City of New York.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Colonel Frank Knox, the Republican Vice-Presidential candidate in 1936, declared: "The United States should lend immediately every possible aid to the Allies and if necessary an army abroad. This means guns, ships, munitions, planes—and they without waiting for payment."

NEW YORK—"Unlimited material assistance," was advocated by the New York States Chamber of Commerce. Immediate aid to resolution to give lacit approval to the sending of military forces to Europe if necessary.

NEW YORK—James W. Gerard, United States Ambassador to Germany in the first Great War, declared: "We ought to be in the war. If we are not, we're cooked."

BOSTON—Paul V. McNutt, Social Security Commissioner: "We must do all in our power to help the Allies. We must help them in every way, except one—sending our men to fight them."

NEW YORK—Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother-in-law of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, urged several Americans not to "meddle" in Europe, said yesterday was over for which we could give without impairing our own safety—"in its within us"—should go to help the Allies.

NEW YORK—Major-General J. F. C. Fuller, retired British army, 57th. Division of the American Expeditionary Force in the last war, said that the Germans have 2,000 planes and pilots at once — "with or without a declaration of war."

NAZI TANKS

The French war ministry said the Nazi push, aimed at the centre of the French defensive position on the broad Oise Valley which leads to Paris, had been checked yesterday, 23 miles northeast of Paris yesterday.

200 Tanks Destroyed

(The French government radio announced 200 German tanks alone were destroyed yesterday. This was the bulk of Germany's official force of 2,000 reported destroyed since the Battle of the Somme began.)

The results of the drive against Paris from the north were undisclosed here, but military commentators said the French were fighting in "a tank hunt," aimed at annihilation of machines and crews.

Along the front of the 125-mile front from the Channel to the Maginot line, the French and British army were withstanding Nazi assaults. Advance positions were yielded in positions after withdrawing in the central zone between Amiens and Roye.

Attempts to Cross Fail.

Fighting raged from the channel resort of Treport to the Aisne River, where the center of the German offensive zone was marked by the villages of Bourg and Comin at the junction of the Oise and Aisne rivers.

Between there and the Maginot line, Germans attempted to cross artillery bombardments, drawing fire from the Maginot forts.

German attempts yesterday to cross the Aisne east of Soissons failed to gain a foothold on the south bank, and the French said the situation of fighting today began north of Soissons, where the French army continued to hold their positions on the north bank of the Aisne.

Fighting of Soissons advance guards battled on the north bank of the Aisne, where the Germans early heavy in the glades of the Oursscamp forest.

Allied aviation continued to attack German tank and motorized columns in northern France, and reported 200 tanks destroyed, dropped on German rear guards, causing enormous losses, Paris advices said.

A French military spokesman said the German advance in the Weygand line, withdrawn altogether before the German advance, now follows an almost straight line from Abbeville, on the English Channel south of Ham before joining the Oise and Aisne defenses.

The high command said the Nazi penetration on the west occurred, not in the Weygand line, but straightened by strategic withdrawals. In the fighting yesterday, was holding "on all the rest of the front."

No Sign of Infantry

The spokesman said the German column which swept southward was composed only of tanks, and there was no sign of accompanying Nazi infantry.

French airport groups moved in behind the German tanks immediately, the commentator said, to take evacuation of their advance bases.

This was typical of the shockwave tactics by which the Nazi power of the defences mapped out by General Maxime Weygand.

The high command communique stated the Germans had penetrated to the Oise River at the region of Forges-Les-Eaux," 12 miles south of the Bresle River and 35 miles northeast of Rouen. Rouen is 45 miles east of the important port of Le Havre.

These advanced Nazi units swung to the southeast from the south and slightly west of the original Allied positions, which had been heighted along the Bresle River.

The French high command himself at the front the French troops which withdrew to new positions in the face of the Nazi attack, maintain parts of the northern France Maginot line, which was built to command for strategic withdrawal in the event of the present military facing the German tanks.

The military reporter said the French estimated the Nazis have only a little more than half the available tanks in action at present as they had at the beginning.

Isolate Motorized Spearheads

The French detences are holding the Nazi spearheads of motorized heads, he declared, while artillery and infantry are being also slashed in front line battles.

The battle was renewed this morning with full violence but the French high command was reported "satisfied" with the results of the fighting.

Meanwhile Paris heard anti-aircraft fire at 11:31 a.m. (6.31 a.m. E.S.T.) and the sirens sounded the alarm.

Two divisions of German tanks (between 800 and 1,000) were said to have been brought from Abbeville, on the English Channel coast, to the central front to join some 1,-000 German armored vehicles in the region south of Peronne where the Nazis are driving at the Oise River and its two highways leading to Paris.

The French 75's continued to blast the rolling fortresses, the spokesman said. He declared the artillery battery of these famous guns destroyed 50 tanks yesterday. Published reports of the Nazi losses in tanks have run as high as 700.

Heavy forces of Allied planes supported the artillery and infantry by breaking up troop concentrations, refueling infiltrations and halting supply trains.

At the same time Nazi planes conducted scouting and bombing expeditions against Allied communications. A number of bombs were dropped on railway lines leading west, north and south from the Paris region, the spokesman said.

He said other parts also were bombed. He did not identify them by name.

Infantry action was fiercest on the Aisne, east of Soissons in the region of the heights of Chemin des Dames.

Violent Artillery Barrage.

There the Germans unleashed a violent artillery barrage to cover construction of a bridge they succeeded in throwing across the river. They also crossed onto the left bank as the Nazi detachments, at the heavy cost of men described by General Weygand in his own night communique, streamed across under withering machine-gun fire.

The few Germans who stumbled into the bridge were "destroyed or wiped out," the communique said.

Elsewhere, the bank action was restricted to the Germans, British-manned tanks, in support of the infantry on the Somme front, were reported to have captured a Nazi infantry division and counter-attacked with the British Expeditionary Force and the gendarmerie pressing by a march 10 miles a day and then plunging into battle without a chance to rest.

PARADE OF YOUTH SET FOR TUESDAY

Will Move Off From Collegiate Grounds at 7.45 p.m.

The youth and beauty of Belleville Collegiate Institute and public schools will adopt a martial air in the city on Tuesday evening when the cadet corps of these institutions will march in a parade of youth through principal city streets, according to announcement made today.

The blue and white of the Girls' Cadet Corps of the Collegiate Institute will afford a colorful contrast to the drab khaki of the male collegiate organization. Members of the public schools cadet corps will be augmented with girl pupils of the various schools.

The parade will "fall in" on the Collegiate Institute campus at 7.30 sharp Tuesday evening and will move off at 7.45. The route of parade will start from the campus to Church Street north along Church to Station Street, west to Front and down Front Street to McAnulty Street near the City Hall. From this point it will turn north along Pinnacle Street to Bridge Street and from there to Church Street to the campus where it will be dismissed.

Plans for a reviewing stand and salute have not been definitely arranged as yet, but tentative arrangements call for its location to be on Front Street in the vicinity of the Canadian Department Store.

The parade will be under the supervision and direction of Cadet Lieut-Colonel Theobald, Officer Commanding the Belleville Collegiate Institute Corps. Arrangements for the parade, the first of its kind ever held in the city were made by Chairman of the Board of Education Reg. Moorcraft and Lieut.-Colonel A. B. Orchids, senior militia officer of the city.

The band of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and the Public Schools Band, and in all probability the Belleville Municipal Band will furnish the music for the parade.

'FOULEST CRIME' IS CHARGED TO U-BOAT CAPTAIN

German Watches for Half Hour 36 Struggling Seamen, Takes Pictures of Them

WERE LEFT TO FATE

London, June 8 (CP)—The navy press section declared today that a U-boat commander and his crew after torpedoing a British merchant vessel May 27 watched the crew of 36 struggling in the water for half an hour before leaving the helpless seamen to their fate.

The press statement said that all but five perished before a neutral ship arrived. It described the treatment of the men as "one of the foulest acts ever perpetrated by a U-boat commander and his crew."

The statement said the ship sank in two minutes, leaving no time to get the boats clear. The statement did not identify the merchantman. Sumbarine Drivers Among Men in Water

The statement added that the German U-boat commander drove his craft among men struggling in the water "as ask survivors became of their ship and to give members of his crew an opportunity to take photos of his unfortunate victims.

"And while they did so, the U-boat commander stationed two men with machine guns to fend off and hit at the wretched men who tried to clamber on board, thinking the U-boat had come to pick them up.

"For about half an hour this went on. Then it seemed the Germans were satisfied with their bestial gloating. The submarine steamed away, leaving helpless British seamen to their fate in the rough sea."

Twenty-four hours later the statement said, a neutral ship picked up five men. The other 31 perished.

(London advices have indicated the Ambassador is in German hands.)

The agency added that since Sir Lancelot "was captured in the course of military actions on French soil and under certain suspicious circumstances, his case will be closely examined."

WANTS FIGHTERS ON FRONT

London, June 8 (CP)—The Evening Standard, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, said today that Britain must not fail into the grasp of "a perpetual defence of air attack" on England by which the Germans "may believe they can keep great numbers of our fighters idle on the ground."

The paper held fast to the principle that the life of one soldier in France is more precious than the lives of many civilians in Britain," the Standard said, arguing that "the maximum number of fighting planes be kept in action above the battle lines."

WANTS OFFICIAL NEWS ONLY TRANSMITTED

Santiago, Chile, June 8—(AP)—Broadcasting of war reports "which have the object of inciting the people to acts against public order, or which contain incorrect information," was prohibited today. The director of electrical services asked radio stations to transmit only the news published in newspapers or distributed by news services.

The War This Week

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Cable Editor)

The main forces of the French and German armies are engaged for the first time in this war and, as its 40th week closes, the enemy has made little headway in this phase of it. The battle may last for weeks, since the French divisions are arranged in depth, almost the entire 70 miles from the Somme and Aisne rivers, where the Germans are now attacking, to Paris, their objective. The Germans can hardly expect to break through such a formidable barrier in a day or two, especially now that new French tactics for combatting German tanks are proving effective. It is possible, however, that if some substantial breakthrough can be obtained by the German right wing, the task of concentrating the attack in the direction of Paris will be discarded in favor of a rush for the channel ports of Dieppe and Le Havre, the capture of which would make communications between France and Britain more difficult.

On the other hand, Berlin dispatches hint that something in the manner of a siege of Paris, complete by absorbing attention and energy of the French, is expected to induce Italy to begin hostilities. Nazi sources say Mussolini will not act as long as the French have the means available to hit back. However, warlike manifestations in Rome continued through the week, the latest being an order to Italian shipping to remove itself from the reach of Allied seapower by taking refuge in neutral ports or hurrying home.

Will Fight Till Tides Turn

But whatever Italy does, and whatever progress the German offensive makes, the Allies will fight until the tide turns and victory is achieved. Both Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Reynaud made this clear in declarations during the week. Mr. Churchill went further; he said that, if necessary, Britain would fight alone, and that if ever the British Isles were subjugated the struggle would be continued from the New World.

The realistic yet buoyant words of the Prime Minister, finding in the rescue from Flanders of more than 300,000 British and French soldiers proof of the virile qualities of the British race, but nevertheless frankly describing the splends as a "colossal military disaster," spurred the nation to new efforts in its drive to devote the whole national energy to the task of winning the war.

The Royal Air Force daily raided factories, railways and enemy troop columns, and Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, was able to announce that all the aircraft losses sustained have been replaced by output since the war in earnest began. The first raid on a western capital was made on Monday when several hundred German planes raided Paris; 264 persons were killed.

Glancing Back 25 Years

Pressing along fortified city in Galicia, fell to the advancing Austro-German forces on the eastern front, June 3, 1915. The Russian defenders fell back on Lemberg (Lvow.) In northern France, Allied troops continued to make slight local gains in heavy fighting in the Souchez area, while Italian divisions pushed forward at Monfalcone and Corlita.

A Good Suggestion

New Glasgow, N.S., June 8 (CP) After spending serial numbers of a Canadian war bond to Finance Minister Ralston a home defence enthusiast here burned the bond. It was bought with a collection taken at the Sutherland-Cole Angus MacArthur, commanding the unit, urged that the practice be followed across Canada.

"If every town did this, the receiver-general would sleep well tonight," he said.

MISSIONARY FORCED TO LEAVE

Peiping, China, June 8—(CP)—(Cable)—Rev. Andrew Thomson of Toronto, sole remaining member of the northern Honan Province mission of the United Church of Canada, arrived in Peiping today. Allied orders for evacuation had forced him too lose his mission at Taokowchen, northern Honan, May 28.

Laurence Olivier and Valeria Hobson who are featured with Ralph Richardson in the laugh hit, "Clouds Over Europe," which still has a returns engagement on the McCarthy Theatre screen next week.

More Kid-Kar Derby Entries Wanted by Club

Evidence of the interest taken in the forthcoming Kinsmen Club Kid-Kar Derby by merchants and business men of the city and outlying points was seen here today when events took a novel turn, causing members of the race committee to raise their eyes in surprise.

It seems now that sponsors for th race which now number some sixty all told, exceed the number of entries, and committeemen are forced to centre their efforts for the time being at least on plans to acquire entries sufficient to cover the number of sponsors.

Officials of the club are sending out an urgent appeal to the mechanically-minded youth of the city to get behind the race and forward their entries as soon as possible. Application forms may be had from Kinsman Cleo Colling at Lattimer's Drug Store, and when filled out should be returned to the same place.

Other plans for the big July sports classic are well under way and point to an outstanding race. Practically all arrangements for the accommodation of a large crowd are complete and another advertising the event should be one of the best in the history of the club.

In the meantime, more entries are needed. Full information can be obtained from any Kinsmen who ask the youth of the city to help them in their drive for funds to supply the underprivileged children of the city and district with eye treatment and glasses.

KI-Y SOFTBALL

The "Smashers" and the "Bonebusters" hooked up in a regular Ki-Y Softball League fixture at the Queen Mary Schoolgrounds last evening with the Smashers emerging on the top end of a lopsided 27-8 score. The winners scored in every inning with the second and fourth being their big frames when they counted nine and eleven runs respectively. Four runs scored on the fifth proved the losers' only big inning as they held off the score sheet for the last two frames. L. Cook officiated. The teams:

Bonebusters — Almer, Hanna, Moon, Carrol, Shanky, Peters, Wood and Donnan. Smashers — Adams, Assistine, Sargent, Welsh, Cummings, Rushton, Tweedle and Allon.

Another game played at the Queen Alexander Schoolgrounds, the Kindergarten teams swamped under a 16-3 score at the hands of the Big Shots. A nine-run lead established in the first two innings by the winners proved enough to overcome the losers who were only able to tally in the middle frames. Jerry Benisteil officiated. The teams: Knickerbockers — Wardhaugh, Sunden, Lyall, Adams, Barrett, DeRuhle, Taylor, Arnott and Hewson. Big Shots — Vaughan, Meagher, Miller, McIntyre, Eaves, B. Eaves, Aylesworth, Baker and W. Mills.

Pursuit Plane Placed at Disposal Of Henry Ford

Washington, June 8—(AP)—The United States army put one of its fastest pursuit planes at Henry Ford's disposal today to let him determine whether his mass production genius can get aerial engines rolling off assembly lines at the rate of 1,000 a day.

Completion of arrangements to have the pursuit plane delivered to the Ford plant in Detroit Monday momentarily distracted debate in congress from the nation's sharp cleavage of Congressional opinion on the administration's appeals for a newspaper editorial urging compulsory military training for the nation.

The unofficial debate on compulsory training, however, was off to a heated start, and there were indications of additional legislative dissension over administration plans which would, in effect, make huge amount of last war equipment available for Allied purchase by turning it back to the manufacturers.

(A New York, spokesmen for the Anglo - French Purchasing Commission said today that Allied orders for United States war planes now are approaching the $1,000,000,000 mark, with more than 8000 machines ordered. All planes are being shipped to Europe as rapidly as they are delivered by the manufacturers.

(A $4,000,000 order for high-speed marine engines has been placed in the United States, it was announced. Negotiations also have begun leading toward purchase of "considerable quantity of automotive equipment." Purchases of machine tools have been increased steadily and production has been "considerably accelerated," it was said.)

BEAUTIFUL DOE SEEN THROUGH WINDOW

While looking over the property of the Silver King gold mine, east of Queensboro, near the Blue Mountain area earlier in the week, Wellman brothers of Bonarlaw looked through the window of an old building and to their surprise there stood a beautiful doe.

Before the visitors she quietly walked out of the building and did not appear the least excited. One of the settlers told the boys that he had often picked up one of the little fawns, which appeared quite tame.

A transport, loaded to the gunwales with members of the British Expeditionary Force, is shown pulling into a port as it passed by the British censor. These are the 250,000 troops snatched from the jaws of the German trap in what has been called the "flaming hell" of Flanders. The evacuation is designated as one of the greatest feats in military history.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Cloudbursts! Clouds become familiar to all of us as fogs. As everyone knows, fogs are "just clouds." Very heavy rains over a watershed which converges into a narrow canyon may drown those in the enormous and destructive quantity of water. It is believed that this condition may be intensified by an astonishing volume of air holding water suspended for a while, so that when the whole collapses the rainfall is intense. It is probable that the term "cloudburst" arose from such circumstances. The heaviest rain on record is 1.02 inches in a minute at Opid's Camp, Calif., and that, therefore, for 24 hours is 46 inches at Baguio, Philippine Islands.

Premier Hepburn Ordered to Rest

Toronto, June 10—(CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn has been ordered by his physician to complete rest and quiet for two weeks at his farm near St. Thomas, it was announced at Queen's Park today. TEXT OF ADDRESS BY MUSSOLINI

New York, June 10 (AP).—The text of Premier Mussolini's address, as translated and transcribed by the National Broadcasting Company, follows:

Combatants on land, sea and in the air, blackshirts of the revolution and of the legion, men and women of Italy, of the Empire and of the Kingdom of Albania, listen:

An hour signed by destiny is ticking on the skies of our country, an hour of the irrevocable decisions. A declaration of war has already been given to the Ambassadors of Great Britain and France.

We shall descend on the fields against the plutocratic democracies and the reactionary democracies of the west—who in all times have always obstructed the march of the Italian people. Some facts of more recent history can be assumed in these words, promised, menaces and threats against us by 52 states. Our conscience is absolutely quiet. With us the whole world is a testament that Italy has done what was humanly possible to avoid the storm that is overhanging Europe.

Treaties Not Adequate Claim.

It was enough to see again the treaties that realize that they were not adequate to the times and that they would have to be changed. The Ally should have accepted the proposals of Hitler before the Polish campaign.

Today we are decided to face the sacrifices of the war and the risks of the war to safeguard the honor and the interests and the future, because a great people is only such if it considers sacred those pledges which decide its history.

You will take arms to safeguard our frontiers and also to solve the maritime problems. We want to break the chains which are hedging our sea closed, because 45 millions

GERMAN INVASION OF SWITZERLAND MAY BE IMMINENT

Country is Armed Against Any Eventuality but Outwardly Calm

NEW CONCENTRATIONS

Residents in Basel Awakened by Heavy French Artillery Fire Toward Black Forest

Berne, June 10 (CP).—Switzerland was armed for any eventuality but outwardly calm today in the face of new German troops concentrations along her borders and Allied expressions of sympathy that a Nazi invasion may be imminent.

Fresh German reserve divisions were reported to have slipped into the Black Forest during the night, drawing a tremendous bombardment from the heavy guns of the French Maginot forts along the Rhine shortly before dawn.

Residents of Basel were awakened by the earsplitting crash of the cannonading and scurried to vantage points to watch the cannonading which flamed along the front for miles.

After an hour of shelling the German west wall fortifications opened up in reply fast and heavy. Both sides suddenly ceased firing 25 minutes later.

Three huge fires which continued to blaze in German villages long after the firing ended apparently indicated the French had hit oil and gasoline storage tanks in the Nazi fortified zone.

U. S. Liner, 'Floating Nursery,' Brings 150 Child Refugees

14 Rhodes Scholars Aboard Agree British Confident of Victory in "the Long Run"

PASSAGE ROUGH

New York, June 10 (AP). — The Statue of Liberty became a sentinel of safety and peace at dawn today as hundreds of American and alien refugees fleeing the widening holocaust of war in Europe.

Steaming through fog and rain, the commissioned United States liner President Roosevelt, a "floating nursery" with 150 children among her 728 passengers, docked last night after a nightmare voyage of storm and terror from Galway, Ireland.

It was the first of three United States liners racing home with Americans stranded in the path of the spreading battle zones.

The Manhattan, scheduled to arrive late today, will bring 1,904 refugees from Genoa, Italy. Hundreds of clamoring passengers who "missed the boat" at Galway will be picked up later in the week by the U.S. liner Washington which sailed from a French port Saturday.

Rough weather and shortages of fresh water and clapers added to the discomforts of passengers aboard the President Roosevelt, which was built to accommodate only 400 cots and lifebelts.

Half of the refugees were women, many of them wives of American business men who remained in England. All but two had husbands in the Royal Air Force. Among the children were 23 babies, whose mothers were forced to launder for them in sea water.

There were also fourteen Rhodes scholars who agreed the British were confident "they'll win in the long run."

Scores of passengers were so seasick they remained below decks for days.

Mussolini Declares Italy's Conscience is Clear and Speaks of a 'Great People's Destiny' — Calls Italy 'Young and Progressive People' — 'Dies Are Now Cast,' He Says as His Voice Rises and Almost Cracks

PROMISES TO RESPECT NEUTRALS

Italian Dictator States 'Friends Will Always Help Each Other' as He Speaks of Hitler and the Berlin-Rome Axis — Italy Has Been Preparing for War for Many Years and Has Openly Refused to the Mediterranean as 'Our Sea' (Italian for the Old Roman 'Mare Nostrum')—Italian Aspirations for French Possessions Have Been Openly Expressed

Rome, June 10 (AP via Radio)—Italy tonight took the plunge into war at the side of Germany.

Premier Mussolini made the announcement in a bombastic speech from the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia before a crowd of Fascists.

Italy's declaration of war, Mussolini said, had been handed to the Ambassadors of France and Great Britain.

"Our conscience is perfectly tranquil," he said.

All the world knows, he added, that Italy has "tried in vain for peace".

"The Allies should not have rejected the peace offers made by Hitler," he shouted.

"Now all this is a fact of the past," he continued.

Ready To Face Risks.

"Now we are ready to face all the risks and sacrifices of the war.

"A great people is ready to face its destiny and mark its own history in the future.

"We want to break the chains that suffocate us in the Mediterranean.

"This gigantic struggle is only a phase in the development of our revolution.

"This asserts itself against the stranglers—the rich nations.

"It is a struggle between young and progressive people as against the decadent people, the struggle of one century as against another century.

"Dies Are Cast."

"The dies are now cast!

"I wish to declare that Italy does not wish to drag into the conflict other people — neighboring and friendly people. The neutrality of these nations will be severely respected."

Mussolini's voice rose at times to the breaking point.

"In a memorable meeting at Milan I declared that Friends will always be friends," he said, apparently referring to the Rome-Berlin axis.

"In this great historic event, we turn our thoughts to the King-Emperor.

"The King of Italy has always interpreted the soul of Italy as wanting to join her arm with that of Germany.

"Thefallacian and Fascist history for the third time is on its feet ready to strike.

Dues Proclaims New Era.

"The order of the day binds all to the same cause.

"We will give a new era of peace to Italy, to Europe and to the world."

"People of Italy run to your arms! "Take up your cause, all your valor!"

Mussolini spoke for about fourteen minutes.

For long after he spoke the crowd roared, cheering.

Climax of Long Preparation.

Il Duce's speech was the climax of a long preparation for war. For months Italy has been going increasingly on a war footing. Her troops have been mobilized. Her meagre stores of oil and gasoline—almost all imported—have been rationed.

Italians had been told repeatedly that the day was coming. They had been told that Italy must have territory of the Mediterranean — "our sea" they call it. They have clamored for Tunisia, Nice, Djibouti, Corsica—French possessions.

Two Cling to Capsized Canoe, Five Others of Party Drowned

Cause of Upset of Outboard Motor Boat in Lake Superior is Not Known

MILE OFF SHORE

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 10—(CP)—Five persons out of a party of seven were drowned at Haviland Bay, Lake Superior, last night. The bay is 40 miles west of Sault Ste. Marie.

The dead are: Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McDonald, Sault Ste. Marie; their son, Donnie, seven; Mrs. Verne Mills, Sault Ste. Marie; her infant son, Wayne, two.

June Mills, 16, and Doreen McDonald, 16, who clung to the edge of the capsized boat until help arrived, were saved.

The party, originally eight, spent the day at Haviland Bay, fishing. At nine o'clock last night seven decided to go by boat to the landing point some three miles across the bay where cars were waiting to return them to the Sault. Verne Mills decided to walk around.

The boat, propelled by an outboard motor, was about a mile from shore when it capsized. No information is available yet as to what caused the upset.

It is thought members of the party started to avoid spray that may have caused the boat to lose balance.

Verne Mills finding no one at landing place and seeing no one out in the bay, secured a rowboat and going out, found his daughter June and Doreen McDonald clinging to the upset boat. June Mills held onto Gordon McDonald for some time before losing her grasp. He was evidently suffering from cramps.

No other members of the party were seen after the boat rolled over. The two girls clung to the boat for an hour and a half before rescued. Provincial Police are grappling for the bodies today.

PREP BOYS OF 'T' ENJOY HIKE

If you saw a gang of youngsters heading down the street Saturday morning in the company of Jim Trumpour and Bill Vaughan of the "T" staff, carrying baseballs and bats, don't worry, nothing is on if they had a big day in view.....it was the Preps out on their first big hike of the year.

Twenty-five boys were in the party with the hops hitting out to Bell's Creek where they had a swim, cooked their dinner and had a ball game before returning to town about the middle of the afternoon, tired yet remembering and happy. When they got back they were ready for a shower and another swim at the "T".....and their leaders were almost ready for bed.

JUNIOR MEMBERS OF 'T' HOLD OUTING

The Saturday morning activity of the Junior members of the "T" was a change from the regular gym and swim this week. Taking advantage of the fine weather they spent the morning in the open following the trail of a treasure hunt, and then having a short baseball game before returning to the "T" for a swim.

Finding hidden treasures always make a fun and interesting fun for boys and grown-ups as well, and has its attraction when it comes to action.

Dick Frost won the major prize, and Stan Wiggins took second. The ten prizes were won as follows:—

1. Bruce McCrae, 2. vincent Massey; 3. Dick Frost; 4. Dick Frost; 5. Bruce McCrae; 6. Stan Wiggins; 6. Ron Salisbury; 7. Tom Hutchinson; 8. George Meade; 8. Doug Bateman; 10. Dick Frost.

The trail was laid, clues devised, and the hunt supervised by Joe E. Shortt, General Secretary of the "T".

MOSQUITOES, BLACK FLIES WORST ON RECORD

Mosquiies and black flies are the worst on record this season according to residents of Picton and Hastings. The exceptionally wet weather during May had filled the swamps and low lands with water and with the arrival of warm weather, these pests are the largest single breeding place of millions of the pests that are found out. So numerous are the flies to livestock, that stock owners in that part of the county report that the fly season has rapidly fallen off even though the pastime is but just beginning.

15TH ANNIVERSARY OF CHURCH UNION IS OBSERVED

Three Belleville Congregations Worship in Union Service at Holloway Street Church

REV. DR. LITTLE SPEAKS

"It is certain that it is faith that makes the church," declared the Rev. Dr. George Little of Toronto at the service held at Holloway Street United Church marking the fifteenth anniversary of Church Union. Bridge Street and Tabernacle United congregations worshipped with the Holloway Street congregation and their pastors, Rev. Dr. James Semple and Rev. D. C. McClinlock took part in the service along with the Rev. R. J. Wenman who was in charge of the service.

"In Belleville you have the custom of meeting together as a congregation, and I could wish it general for June 10th, 1925, is a red letter day in the history of the church and a believer of Canada," Dr. Little remarked.

Day of Incorporation

June 10th, 1925, he recalled as the day of the great union and inspiration, for on that day three branches of the church united in Christ. There were tears of joy on that occasion. Church union, united not because of a mere idea, but because of a trend, because of growing brotherhood and the realization that fellowship that made possible combatting the depression, Albert College at the same years later, and doing something swiftly for relief, stressing interest at home and abroad with missions and with something of the idea of world Christianity.

Continuity of Leadership.

The preacher pointed out that "we have suffered from departmental organization, the result of which was a narrow and limited view of the whole work of the church. Spiritual life is paramount. In a land the size of Canada there is need in the church for continuous leadership, said Dr. Little referring to the heavy and important duties of the moderator.

He declared that the United Church stands for free discussion on moral questions. He referred to the temperance issue and to the modern observance. He spoke of the Christian's duty and the his political patronage and the duty to vote against the open liquor sale. It was the church people who could bring about the spiritual maintenance and in behalf of maintenance of the observance of Sunday," he said.

Personal Evangelism

Dr. Little stated that the church must begin a great interest in personal evangelism and he asked if the church was on a war basis. "Are we conscious of our personal membership" he asked, "such as to make us of Penitence, of Reformation and of devotion of our own foreign mission." Dr. Little spoke of trouble. Two things are in danger, democracy and Christianity. "We must sacrifice ourselves for the nation. Is Christ in the world, or is the world Christ in the world, or is the world Christ in the world, or is the world

5 TRAFFIC DEATHS ARE REPORTED IN WEEKEND TOLL

Two Brothers 15 and 8 Years Old, Drowned in Thames River

2 KILLED BY TRAINS

By the Canadian Press

Ontario's week-end toll of violent deaths rose to 19 today with reports from Haviland Bay of the drowning of five persons at that Lake Superior resort, 40 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

Traffic accidents and four other drownings contributed to the list—largest of the summer season—and others died from gunshot wounds and a fall from an hotel room.

The victims at Haviland Bay were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McDonald and their cousin, Mrs. Neil Mrs. Verne Mills and her infant son. They drowned when their outboard motor boat capsized.

At Toronto, James A. Varley, 81, retired merchant of Port Credit, died in hospital from injuries suffered in automobile accidents raising to 35 the number of persons killed in traffic accidents in the city since Jan. 1.

Police detained Howard Sidney, 22, on charges of manslaughter and failure to remain at the scene of an accident, in connection with the death of Beaumont, who was injured when an automobile crashed into his car. Varley was struck by a truck.

2 Die In Car Hits Tree

Mrs. William H. Parsons of Warwick Township and her nine-week-old daughter, Lorrea, were killed when an automobile driven by the woman's husband crashed into a tree yesterday near Birnam in Western Ontario. The child died on the way to hospital at Sarnia and Mrs. Parsons died shortly after she was admitted to hospital. Parsons escaped with cuts on his chin and another passenger was unhurt.

Frederick Egie, 55-year-old east Missouri farmer, was killed Saturday night when the automobile in which he was a passenger struck a washout out shoulder and rolled into the ditch near St. Marys in Western Ontario. Egie was crushed under the overturned car. Five other occupants escaped without serious injury.

Brothers Drowned

Two brothers, Willis and Donald Tuffnall, aged 15 and eight years, respectively, were drowned yesterday in the Thames River not far from their East Nissouri Township home. Willis lost his life in an attempt to save his brother who is believed to have stepped into a deep hole while wading. The bodies were located an hour after the accident.

Leland Schuyler, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Frank Schuyler of Townsend, was drowned while swimming with about 25 other boys in a pond on the farm of his uncle near Simcoe. The boy was not missed until he failed to return home. His clothing was found beside the pond and the body was recovered in 10 feet of water.

Flying Boat Capsizes

Willis J. Couillard, 34, of Ottawa was drowned in the Missisquoi River at Ironsides when the canoe in which he and two companions were fishing capsized. Constable Fred Symes of Ottawa rescued the third fisherman, James Gordainer of Ottawa.

Robert Miller, 28-year-old Lakeview resident, was killed when struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway train while walking across the tracks near his home. Magistrate Tassler, 28, of Cornwall was killed Saturday when a C.P.R. freight train struck him at a level crossing near the eastern Ontario city.

Nine-year-old John MacCormick was shot and killed yesterday by his brother, Frank, 13, while they played soldier in their home at Bromsburg in Eastern Ontario. Frank aimed his father's rifle at his youngster brother and pulled the trigger not knowing the gun was loaded. The bullet pierced John's abdomen and he died within a half-hour.

Falls to Death From Window.

Richard Hamilton, 3-year-old Dominion Skyways Limited pilot, fell to his death from his fourth-floor room in a downtown Toronto hotel Saturday night. Police believe he lost his balance when he sat out the window in his room and plunged fifty feet to the sidewalk.

Joseph Lloyd, 40, was found dead in the kitchen of his Toronto home Saturday night. A revolver bullet in his heart. A revolver was found near the body.

There were a number of sudden deaths also in the province during the week-end, among them being that of Adam Patterson of Port William who collapsed and died at St. Catharines where he was attending the 66th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He was 77 and was one of the oldest commissioners attending the assembly.

Frank Regan, Toronto lawyer who acted in some of Ontario's most sensational trials in recent years, died Saturday at Sudbury a few minutes after he had registered at an hotel. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Sea Scouts Tossed For 27 Hours in Lake Ontario Storm

Port Hope, Ont., June 10 (CP)—Tossed about for 27 hours in a storm on Lake Ontario, three Port Hope Sea Scouts made port Sunday near Pickering in a boat they were sailing from Toronto to Port Hope, a distance of 68 miles.

The three, Harry Van Everdingen, Jack Demille and Douglas Chesher, left Port Hope at 1:30 p.m. Saturday for Toronto to pick up the boat, purchased recently for the Rover Sea Scouts here. Fears for their safety arose when it was learned they had not made Oshawa harbor Saturday night as scheduled. They were to have continued from Oshawa to Port Hope Sunday.

The craft was reported to have been blown far out in Lake Ontario before the Scouts were able to sail it to shore.

Many Small Boats Lost in Withdrawal Of Troops At Dunkirk

London, June 10—(CP) — Many small boats were lost in the withdrawal of Allied troops from Dunkirk, Vice-Admiral Bertram Ramsay said yesterday, but that the total might never be known.

"Many of the small craft which disappeared into the haze of Dunkirk will largely go unthanked because we don't really know what they were," the Vice-Admiral said in an interview. He directed the naval forces in the rescue work.

A number of cutters, dories and skiffs were lost before they reached Dunkirk, he said.

"We got an inquiry from the port of London authority yesterday about 34 motor lifeboats and 82 ships' lifeboats. They said they had got six back and wanted to know where we rate the rest. If they get back another dozen they will be lucky. The beach over there must be strewn with wrecked boats."

The actual embarkation of men at Dunkirk started at the docks, he said, but the German bombers soon put an end to that, setting such raging fires that the troops could not stand the heat.

Narrow Pier Used.

Then a narrow pier or breakwater of wooden piles was used, he said.

"There came something like 200,000 men off this place here—I'm not intended in the wildest imagination as a place for a ship to go alongside," he continued, "and there were no gangways so the men marched on to the ships from the pier across narrow mess tables."

The small boats were called for when it became apparent that "we must embark also from the beaches."

On the first night of the evacuation, May 28, Vice-Admiral Ramsay said, they took off 13,000 men; on the second night 20,000; on the third, 45,000.

"Our peak day was 66,000 men taken off but that was only gained at the expense of casualties to craft," he said.

Noted Humorist Asks a Question Of United States

London, June 10 (CP)—A. P. Herbert, Independent member of parliament and noted humorist, yesterday published the text of Sunday Graphic verse sardonically referring to those Americans who last autumn were calling this a "phoney" war.

It said:—

"Dear Uncle Sam, I seem to remember

(Was it October or was it November?)

"Somebody called it a 'phoney' war,

Somebody said it was rather a sore.

"Dear Uncle Sam, is it still so phoney?

Is the fight for liberty 'all baloney'?

"And when next speak of British guts

Does 42nd Street still say 'nuts'?

"Dear Uncle Sam, do you still think whether

One bit of Europe's bad as another?

"Possibly Sam, but forgive us do, For now you're a corper of Europe, too."

GERMAN INVASION

One fire burned at Haltingen within a mile of the Swiss frontier, another at Istein and the third at the mouth of the Gulingen railway tunnel, German shells apparently fired some buildings in the French Alsace village of Burgfelden.

The Swiss estimated the Germans had approximately twenty divisions concentrated in the region of the Black Forest, but they kept calm and showed far less concern than they had displayed during the anxious hours which followed the Nazi invasion of the lowlands May 10.

About 400,000 Swiss troops are standing ready, however, in the Winkfeld Line facing Germany and in the Alpine passes looing down on Italy.

Key points in the Swiss defences are well-manned in the valley of the Aar, which leavs the Rhine at Koblenz and flows south toward Geneva. Even more powerful groups are stationed further south where the main branches of the Limmatt and Reuss flow respectively east and southeast. Truth Yet To Crack

If the Germans attempt a blitz offensive into Switzerland the Aar would be the logical pathway for an eastern counterpart of the Schlieffen plan—and the Swiss believe the Aar would be a tough nut to crack.

Swiss newspapers received briefly that young Germans residing in Switzerland had been recalled to their homeland within the last two days for military service.

The Swiss estimated the Germans had approximately twenty divisions concentrated in the region of the Black Forest, but they kept calm and showed far less concern than they had displayed during the anxious hours which followed the Nazi invasion of the lowlands May 10.

led other foreign residents to fear that the Nazis might be turned into a fifth column.

Basel, which most foreign observers believe would be battleground if the Germans now in the Black Forest go into action either in an attempt to flank the Maginot Line or join hands with Italy across Switzerland, showed no alarm of panic. The city has been turned into a rabbit warren of underground forts and tems with troops. But even the crash of guns between the Maginot and Siegfried Line forts this morning failed to create great alarm among the civilians.

Getting Used To It.

"We're getting used to it," one Basel resident explained.

Geneva, which lies almost surrounded by French territory and would certainly be the first big Swiss city affected if the Italians moved north, also appeared calm although there are no fortifications in Geneva proper.

Evidence that the Swiss are on the alert for Nazi parachutists was obtained by a Swiss airplane pilot, who fell into a tree in Thurgau Canton yesterday while practicing parachuting.

He was promptly surrounded by scores of angry farmers armed with rifles who threatened to kill him before his Swiss dialect convinced them he was not a German in disguise.

ALLIES INSTRUMENTS OF RIGHT

"Britain's cause in the war, is God's cause and Canadians are called with our Allies to be His instruments for the accomplishment of moral and righteous purpose among the nations," said a report of the evangelism and social service committee of the United Church in the Bay of Quinte Conference.

No Britisher doubts that. No Frenchman doubts. No ally and no nation which is free from domination and which has tasted the joys of freedom doubts that the British have the cause at heart and that they and their Allies are agents of the good at this critical time of the world.

With the King who called the Empire to prayer, the British Empire battles against the dragon of Satanic heresies as the Christians of old fought for their sacred principles of their religion. In this Britain's heart is as clean, France's heart is pure, while those of their smaller Allies suffer a temporary eclipse through the shadow cast by the cloud of Hitlerism are free from taint.

At the Bay of Quinte Conference, the report of the committee expressed the belief that there had been a direct answer to prayer in the success of the withdrawal at Dunkirk. It said, "We acknowledge with thanksgiving the answer already given to the nations' appeals in the wonderful exodus and deliverance from destruction vouchsafed to our armies and those of our Allies."

Nations with honest purposes have their ideals reflected in the hearts and courage of their soldiers and they truly fight for their soldiers. It is true they have to endure hardships, perform almost incredibly heroic deeds and sacrifice lives that the prayers of a people who are trying to do the right may be answered.

When the enemy goes to war in a spirit of enmity and with violence in his heart, with soldiers all fired by envy, by the hope of rapine, by violence and by a will to destroy everything of British, French and democratic civilizations have produced, it is not to wonder that if his aims do not prosper, despite the holocausts of slaughter the enemy sows where he goes, it brings upon himself. No high idealism, no great hope for mankind guides the enemy—his aim is that of destruction. His works show it on every hand.

On the other hand nations that have endeavored to preserve peace and to deal justly with others, nations which would have made the world a place in which all nations might dwell in happiness, each following its own development and making its contribution to society, have been the burden of civilization and Christianity against the negation of all of these. Truly the Allies fight in the cause of the world of God, and if ever a nation fought for devilish principles it is the German Reich.

MASS MADNESS OF NAZIS

One of the strangest manifestation of the German shock troops is respected now for the third or fourth time. It is said that some Nazi attacking troops behave like madmen, rampage, arm in arm, taking, it is said, no care how they fire their rifles. A few days ago it was said that they went through a graveyard in a sort of dance while the Allied guns took heavy toll of them.

Is this the culmination of the rule of Nazism? To have young soldiers acting as if mad as a result of the diet of training given them by that deadly doctrine.

This is a strange war in many ways. Here is Germany endeavoring to end the campaign in short order, soldiers being hurled against the Allies with a recklessness as if a million German lives did not matter one iota to the Nazi army, their soldiers at times acting as if possessed in their attack, sirens placed on Nazi planes to jar the nerves of the Allied troops with the wild bedlam of screaming from the diving bombers' sirens.

On the world stage today is witnessed the consequence of evil and mad ideals in international affairs. To this generation has been given the experience of living in which a Hitler can disturb the equanimity of mankind with millions. The world is also seeing and will see what dictatorships always end in disaster and defeat for the tyrant. No dictator can 'dictate' for many years before the crisis comes for him. There is no way out of his path but to go to war or collapse. That is why Hitler went to war. That is why what dictatorship in the past meant. Greece had its history despots who rose only to fall. Napoleon a century ago tried it but he used some practical sense in his mad dream of world imperialism to make him last longer than the usual run of dictators.

These wild youths of the German shock troops are a terrible manifestation of the nations gone mad in the worship of violence and force.

The German people may whimper and whine about the alleged treatment of Germany at the hands of other nations, say they are all "down" on Germany but it is plain to see as a result of the acts of the German government and the direct result of their crimes against women and children, rich and poor, sick and well, driven like sheep and treated far worse than even a flock of sheep was treated as they are driven from their peaceful homes and submitted to the worst privations of refugees and yet no one has heard them complaining in this. But they would whine if German children were driven away from foreign lands. But they are not driven because the Allies have a code of honor. Germany does not. Germany has those who sets himself up to attain dictatorship of Europe and the world and the murder of Adolf Hitler does not blame these deeds on Germany but if they happened in Germany it would blame them on the Allies. That is how partial and unjust Nazism is.

Nazism has made a gods-like nectar of the joy and happiness of life in many spheres and instead of making this wine into honey has made it into a foul poison for the world. But the scales of justice tell truth, fortune distribution comes. The Allies are the agents of that justice which will restore order and ambitious Germany and the distracted world to peace. True to the laws of life the poisons of Nazism are brewing has affected the reason of the Nazis themselves. It has made them forget many things of use and beauty to weapons of destruction but eventually the blow of destruction will at last fall on Germany and Naziism themselves.

The finest German troops with their mass madness are neurotic consequences of the insanity of German National Socialism.

There is a saying of the ancients that whom the gods would destroy they first make mad. Germany's great gamble to end the campaign by one or two great blows is the act of the German nation trusting in violence and force and not in right and justice.

"This Phony War"

This is the war, let us remember, that many Americans—some of them in high places, at home and abroad in the United States—are calling a "phony" war. Let us remember that it was a true description in the sense that for two years with a space on the western front the whole world was waiting for the other shoe to drop, for the attack and a sickening spectacle of bloodshed.

As the war has changed, American opinion about the "phony war" has changed. We can find one measure of this change in the report of the Princeton Public Opinion Research Principles, Method and Procedure machinery of the American Institute. Dr. George Gallup says that two months ago these studies led to the conclusion that 58 per cent of the American people believed they would be personally affected in their business or occupation by the war by mid-May, a few days after the invasion of Holland and the Low Countries, the figure had risen to 65 per cent; and, no doubt, after Hitler's victory in Flanders, that it is high. Two months ago only one out of four Americans were asked if they thought Britain and France could help, about the right help, or not much help. Only 7 per cent of those polled answered "About right"; only 18 per cent said "Not enough"; 75 per cent said "Not much." By mid-May only 29 per cent said "Not much right"; only 6 per cent "Too much" and the great majority of 65 per cent said "Not enough." This, too, was before the German victory in Flanders.

Public opinion has changed, swiftly and impressively, with a clearer realization of the character of German aggression and the consequences of German victory. It will change more.—N.Y. Times.

Her Shrewd Move

Millicent Rogers Balcom, the former wife of Doris Duke and Arturo Lamoa, has settled all accounts with the Nazi Government. The transaction involves the purchase by Mrs. Balcom of the castle of Klizbuhel, in Austria.

Mrs. Balcom, who once had planned to spend the rest of her life in Klizbuhel for the rest of her life, suspected that Hitler would achieve his present victories. She left Austria before it happened, Mrs. Balcom explained, because she feared that none of the bills sent to her here, and also accumulations of investments and property owned by her neighbors. Those large unpaid bills piled up during the Nazi occupation.

Then Hitler marched into Vienna. Mrs. Balcom remembered Klizbuhel and gleefully informed Mrs. Balcom that the property would not be taken out of the country. But she merely applied the proceeds to the payment of those unpaid bills, and the accounts are even.—N. Y. Post.

Nurses Stood Trained, Willing And Ready For Active Service

No branch of the military service is regarded with more respect and excellent deeper memory by veteran soldiers than the Nursing Service of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps. The nurses, who are the members of the Nursing Sister, their devotion and untiring energy have left an indelible record to soften the rare tragedies of sickness and injuries in war.

Again, as before, hundreds of Canadian nurses stand ready and excellent to serve at home and abroad, in those tasks for which they are most fitted.

Strict requirements are necessary before a nurse is accepted for service with C.A.S.F. Like her brothers in uniform, the Nursing Sister must be in the pink of health. To be sure, she must pass a rigorous examination. In addition she must be a British subject and a graduate from a recognized training school with an R. N. degree. The age limit is 45 years.

Besides such professional qualifications as she may have, the Nursing Sister must have the spirit of cheerfulness and an agreeable temperament. In the way of personality of cheerfulness is an inestimable value as many a victim of war's unrest effects can testify. The nurse set shown by the Nursing Sister to each individual patient, her sympathy and consideration and aid have helped thousands through dark hours, and has played a part in the mental repose necessary to cure.

In peace time, the Permanent Force Nursing Service on duty in Canada is very small, being confined to one station and ten Nursing Sisters and in most stations one Nursing Sister only. The Medical Officers, Sisters and non-commissioned officers in Military Hospitals hold courses to qualify nurses for the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, Non-Permanent.

Nursing Sisters, after passing required examinations, are posted to the Military Hospitals when needed for special cases. Nursing Sisters interested in military work, they have taken a month's course, attended lectures and spent specified time on duty in without pay. In all war-there is a steady flow of new graduates who undertaken military routine.

Nurse Canada's entry in the war nurses throughout Canada. applied to join in the Service. Each Military District has long lists of applications from girls desirous of medical science. As yet only a few units of C.A.S.F. Nursing Service are required to meet the needs of military hospitals in Canada. Overseas service will be given when the division of the C. A. F. goes into action.

When required, the Nursing Sisters are stationed in general hospitals, stationary hospitals, casualty clearing stations, behind the lines, and may be posted to hospital ships or ambulance trains. The duties of a Nursing Sister in a military hospital unit are to nurse sick and injured, in a civil institution, but naturally conditions vary in war time and the ability to improvise proves most useful. She must be able to instruct orderlies in nursing and a number of these may be untrained when sent to her ward.

Nursing Sisters are not combatants. Sisters are made as comfortable as circumstances permit. In large units there is usually a Home Sister on duty to supervise the home life. She plans for her use applied, help in entertaining and generally contributes the Sister's life as much as possible.

The dominating color in the Nursing Sister's uniform is blue. She wears a tunic of mid-blue gabardine, a grey-green of dark-blue artificial or broadcloth, a recreation dress of navy blue serge worn with a navy blue felt hat, with a corded ribbon and narrow brim type. The Sister in the summer wear will be white felt. R.C.A.M.C. badge is borne on the front of the hat. Full badges of rank on each shoulder strap of the tunic and great-coat Matron or Principal Matron-in-chief, a crown; Matrons, three stars, Principal Sisters, two stars.

Matron E. F. Pense is the Senior Officer of Nursing Services on duty at headquarters in Ottawa. She finds the applications for enrolment and, as far, more than are required; but they do come in sufficient number to enable the conference of the Sisters to ensure a number always up to the required strength. What that may be, of course, no one knows.

Difference Between Growing Pains and Rheumatism

As youngsters, we have no complaint of pains in the joints, especially the knees, we were told by our parents and sometimes by physicians that these pains were growing pains and no attention was paid to them.

About twenty years ago young physicians began to differentiate between growing pains and rheumatism. It may be true that some that are not due to rheumatism may in later life due to growing pains either, but nevertheless there is no doubt about it because than the growing of the ends of the bones of the child can be found.

How, then, is a parent or a physician to know whether rheumatism is causing so much pain in the joints or joints due to growing pains and whether awake or asleep? This question is of such importance that it is the subject of an address by Dr. W. J. Shapiro to graduate students in medicine at the University of Minnesota.

The difference between growing pains and rheumatic pains was studied from various standpoints. The most striking was that of pains (b) time of day when pain occurs, (c) location of the joints affected and (d) rheumatism, (e) changes in appearance of the joints and (f) fever.

In age of onset where growing pains were present, pain began in the early years and continues till about time full growth is attained, whereas the rheumatic pains are most commonly between ages of 8 and 12, often following an attack of sore throat or bronchitis.

As to time of day when growing pains it is at the end of the day, especially during the night, awakening the child from his sleep in the morning. Rheumatic pain is felt usually in the morning, when awaking from sleep, but may appear when warmed up or by exercise.

As to exact place where pain occurs; in growing pains it is in the muscles of the thighs and legs; in rheumatism it is in the joints and muscles.

As to signs, there are no signs in growing pains, whereas in rheumatism there is repeated joint pains, pallor, nose bleed, loss of appetite, anemia, joints slightly warm and swollen.

As regards family history, growing pains in parents or grandparents, whereas rheumatism and in rheumatism a family history of rheumatic fever was common.

Britain Awakened

The Flanders campaign has not only proved Britain's unsuspected heroic legend that will inspire them forever, but it has awakened them as fast to all that this war means. The round-up of Fifth Columnists, the internment of aliens, to the call for home defense volunteers, the grim acceptance of new taxes and new restrictions, the official warning to the manufacturers showing "signs of slackness, irresolution, slow starting and easy finishing," the calm view of the proofs that a revolution has come over the conduct of war, all show people in the past terrible fortnight. That the British people is proving to be a truly national coalition with genuine democratic principles capable of German guns across the Channel is now apparent. Class and party prejudices, habits, comfortable assumptions are being thrown off.

It takes time to rouse any free nation if there is no Hitler to whip the helm or a sense of imagined security in the public mind. Britain's danger was real but not yet awake even after they ran the gauntlet of the submarines to Norway. The May 11 issue of the famous British weekly, the London New York last week with a page of photographs of the German troops and equipment used in the Norwegian campaign; the heading across the page was "Britain's Danger." Not Britain's danger but Britain's danger faces them, the British people have awakened to danger. Now that the danger threatens them, the British people have awakened to danger. Now that the danger threatens them, the British people have awakened to danger. Now that the danger threatens

SURPRISE VISIT PAID CANADIANS BY KING, QUEEN

Devoid of Fanfare it Gave Their Majesties a Chance to See the Troops at Work

(By Edwin Haddrell—Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Aldershot, June 10 (CP Cable)—The silvers and the khaki tunics of Canada's 1st Division will long cherish the memory of Saturday, June 8—the day their democratic King and Queen came to see them at work.

It was a surprise visit devoid of fanfare and formality and gave their Majesties a closeup glimpse of Canada's hardy sons, how trained to the bit.

Both had previously paid official visits to inspect the vanguard of the Canadian Active Service force. But this was the first time they came together to see the men from the Dominion.

They remained in the camp for nearly five hours and left highly impressed by the splendid appearance and efficiency of the entire division.

From the time the King and Queen were received at the camp boundary by Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, General Officer Commanding the C.A.S.F. they moved amid a scene of constant activity.

Motored For Miles

They motored for miles through country resembling the actual theatre of war and they saw an imposing array of modern armament.

They strolled through lines of cheering Canucks and frequently stopped to chat with sun-tanned, grinning men in shirt-sleeves.

They did not miss a single activity that was going on and they had a look at every unit that was on routine jobs or informally lined up, awaiting the Royal visitors.

The Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry drawn up on a three-sided square and their Majesties walked along the ranks, talking to many men of the famous unit. Its officers wore field service dress cape of dark green with French-grey piping.

Piped Into Building

At the Connaught barracks the Royal pair were piped into the building by the pipe band of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto. They stopped there for tea and it was the only place that the Royal Standard was broken out.

An escort of eight motorcyclists from the 1st Provost Company accompanied the King and Queen on their tour.

The first visit was to the Toronto Scottish of which the Queen is Colonel in Chief. Lieut.-Colonel D. C. Thompson, wearing steel helmet and with his gasmask at the ready, was putting his men through an advance machine-gun scheme, preparing for a mock action.

At the close of their tour the King and Queen remarked on the smartness and efficiency of the men and their healthy appearance.

Dressed as Field Marshal

The King wore a Field Marshal's uniform. The Queen wore a costume of Regina Blue—a name given to a particular shade of blue after the Royal visit to the Saskatchewan capital last summer. Her hat was of the same color and she carried a pearl-grey parasol. A diamond maple leaf clasp was pinned to her coat.

Major-General McNaughton said afterwards that the King noticed the progress the Canadians had made in their steady training.

"It was my privilege to say to His Majesty that our troops now are battle-worthy and that I have no doubt as to the outcome of the bitter struggle on which we are now embarked," General McNaughton said.

General McNaughton accompanied by Colonel C. R. Turner, (personal Staff Officer (first grade), Colonel E. W. Sansom, Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster General, and other members of the divisional staff, met Their Majesties upon their arrival.

White Pique Frosting

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

You can't go around under a shower bath to cool off, but you can create an overhead illusion of coolness by wearing crisp white hats. These two new bonnets are both made of white pique.

The top sketch shows a halo, somewhat gathered, somewhat like the famous gathered Felt hat of early Spring. The other model is a Breton of sorts, black straw with cuff and band of the spotless pique.

WEDDINGS

MULLINS—NOEL

A pretty wedding took place Saturday in the Lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wright officiated. The bride and groom were attended by Kathleen Noel, Toronto, and Robert Bailey, Point Anne.

BRIDGE STREET W.M.S.

The meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of Bridge Street Church on Friday afternoon, took the form of a prayer service—prayers for all who suffer physically and spiritually in this national trouble. For some it was a time of self-searching to see if there be anything in the spirit of civilian action which we represent that is worth the price that is being paid today, in France—anything that is worth saving or anything on which our troubled Motherland may, with confidence lean. For some, it drove home the necessity for individual and national repentance.

The passages of Scripture, so familiar, took on a new and vital mean, "God is my refuge . . of whom shall I be afraid?" — certainly here is the answer to fear and nerves.

The program which was a continuation of the worship service told of the building for peace into the lives of the people of China, Korea, Japan and Trinidad. All men and women, if children of God are one family where no hatred, jealousy, fears and antagonisms exist.

The prayer service was led by Mrs. Price and the meditation by Mrs. Truman, assisted by Mrs. Dix-Mrs. Houston, Mrs. Ash, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Gartley and Mrs. Davidson with a number of other ladies taking part in the prayer service.

A very beautiful solo was sung by Miss Doris Houston and the president, Miss Lasalle Brown was in charge of the business of the meeting.

CANNIFTON Y. P. U.

On Friday evening the closing of the Cannifton Y. P. U. took the form of a supper meeting with approximately thirty present.

Following supper, Doris Gould and Flora Furnidge led a singsong, after which the President, Margaret Smallhorn called upon Lyle Armstrong to propose the toast to the King. In doing so, Lyle said that were the King not restrained because of his position he would undoubtedly be fighting with his subjects and closed by quoting from the King's Empire Day speech: "So now, peoples of the Empire, men and women in the quarters of the globe, I say to you: Put into your task, whatever it may be, all the courage and purpose of which you are capable. Keep your hearts proud and your resolve unshaken. Let us go forward to that task as one man, a smile on our lips and our heads held high, and with God's help we shall not fail."

After the response, God Save the King, Ruth Whitfield proposed the toast "to the church". She stated that there was no other organization so much for the world as the Christian Church. Sometimes it seems because of its imperfections, but rather than stand on the outside and criticize the critics should get on the inside and help make it what it should be.

Rev. A. Armstrong responded and mentioned in detail some of the things the world owes to the church. He also personally and for the Union, expressed appreciation of the splendid work of the President during the past year.

Doris Gould proposed a toast to the President and in the course of her reply, Margaret thanked the officers for their help and the effort they had made to be original in their work, and expressed the hope that, with the opening of the fall season, the Union would be able to do better work than ever.

She then voiced appreciation of the help of Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong, Lyle and Marguerite in the Young People's work and asked them to accept the offered gifts as an expression of it. Though taken completely by surprise, Lyle in turn thanked the young people for their remembrance.

The meeting closed with the worship service in charge of the president. The opening number, a sacred song, "We are climbing Jacob's Ladder" was followed by a reading of the Scripture reading and the president gave some thoughts suggested by the reading, after which Prayer.

All joined in singing, "Blest be the Tie that Binds", and Rev. A. Armstrong closed with prayer followed by all joining in the Mispah Benediction.

THE PLEA FOR PLEATS has now become universal. Pleats are back in everything. The fluffy skirt of the season is the little smart-ly-pleated crepe in blue, yellow, rose or white, with sun-ray pleated skirt. Smart for town as well as for resort wear.

Highlights of the Wedding Reception

(The Receiving Line)

At the wedding reception, whether the bride's parents receive the bridegroom and the bride's attendants are a part of the receiving line. The best man and usher never have places in this line. As the other members of the receiving line, there are no fixed rules. Generally, the bride's mother, who is the hostess of the occasion, stands first, to greet the guests. Usually, too, the father of the bride stands next to the bride's mother. He may, if he prefers, greet the guests after they have passed down the line, or he may circulate among the guests. Next, usually, is the bridegroom's father, then his mother; then the bridegroom; at his right, the bride; then her right, the maid of honor; and at her right, the bridesmaids. As the guests arrive, they are greeted first by the bride's mother (or her usually is the father), and then they pass down the line, shaking hands with each member of the receiving line, saying a few words of greeting, making some pleasant and appreciative comment. (But remember that you do not "congratulate" the bride.)

x x x

The Bride's Table

When all the guests have been received, the bride and bridegroom go to the bride's table to be seated at table.

Usually there is a 'bride's table, at which are seated the bride, bridegroom, members of the wedding party. The bride sits at the right of the bridegroom; the maid of honor at the right of the bride; the maid of honour at the left of the bridegroom. The maids and ushers are seated alternately.

x x x

The Parent's Table

There are certain definite traditions to be observed in the seating arrangements at the parents' table. The bride's mother sits at the head of the table, and the bridegroom's father, who is the male guest of honour at the wedding, sits in the honor place, on her right. Opposite the bride's mother, as at a formal dinner, is the host, the bride's father. At his right is the bridegroom's mother, the woman guest of honour.

At the left of the bride's mother is the man guest, whose wife, if present, sits at the left of the bride's father. At this table will be seated close relatives of both families, especially intimate friends of the bride's parents, distinguished guests. They are seated with careful regard and compliment to their relationship, age, and all other distinctions that are to be considered.

At a small wedding, where only the immediate families are present, the plan is often to have only one table. In this case, the bride and bridegroom and their attendants sit at one end of the table, and the parents, relatives, and perhaps a few close friends, sit at the other end. In the seating arrangements for one table, it is important that the same traditions as outlined above be observed.

x x x

The Bride's Cake

The bride's cake, white, iced and often elaborately decorated, is usually the centrepiece of the table. The bride usually always cuts the first slice of this cake, left in front of the bridegroom. If the reception is a small one, she usually cuts the rest of the cake for the guests. If it is a large reception, an attendant cuts a slice for every guest, and if it is a buffet, the guests may cut the cake themselves.

The wedding cake—a dark fruit cake—is sometimes served in slices, but usually small monogrammed boxes of this cake are placed on a table near the door, so that each departing guest may take a box as a memento of the wedding.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Shall He Send Her Some Flowers?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I don't know her very well, but that doesn't prevent me from loving her from afar. She is employed in a little while, and I want to send her some flowers. Would it be all right for me to? I seem presumptuous? She hardly knows of my existence, and I worry every moning moment, I am aware of her.

x x x

I never saw the girl yet who wouldn't be pleased with an offering of flowers at her graduation. Perhaps you're not as unknown to the young lady as you imagine, and the flowers may be the means of turning her thoughts in your direction.

This will also answer a young man concerned about sending flowers to a girl of his acquaintance.

By all means send flowers, unless, of course, the girl tells you she never wants to see or hear from you again. In that case you may even have gone beyond that in discouraging your suit. It used to be known as "loosening the dog."

A Case of Sour Grapes

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 17 years old and just starting to date. I like a girl I'm in love with is 22, and he says he is now free.

Then we've alone he is an ideal lover—kind, affectionate, considerate, and gentlemanly. But when we are out in the company of other girls he flirts with them, chasing him. They must think I'm a silly little fool. I'm heartbroken without pride.

The young man has asked me to marry him, but it's supposed to be a secret. I should like to get your version of a character like this.

He dances I don't care to dance with another boy because he's so jealous. He is very handsome and rich either, and he makes me feel that he is ashamed of me. Would it be wise to marry a man of this sort? What makes him act so? He isn't a college man, but has a wonderful position.

In Doubt

I can't understand, my dear, why you put him in such trustment. This young egotist should be firmly taken in hand by someone capable of applying the scissors to his self-esteem. In the same manner one would clip the wings of a young rooster to keep him from flying over the fence.

It is unbelievable the number of letters, along similar lines, which comes from nice girls. They allow themselves to be walked over by some boy with this same object of proving his love. I hope you'll decide to let this young man before you marry him.

Inquires About Wedding Dress

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl with a three-year old son, and am going to be married soon. I am 22 and my best friend is 27. Our wedding is to be in June at four o'clock in the afternoon in his church, and I would like to know if it would be all right to wear a short tailored and-a silk finger-tip veil. Our dental would be the correct attire?

M. S.

Veils are not considered in good taste at a second wedding. And three days quite consult their own taste in the matter of their wedding dresses. But a pink satin formal at four in the afternoon would seem the happiest choice. If you have an evening wedding at half past eight, then the pale satin would be charming, especially if your bridegroom is formal, a nice floppy one.

If your colour is a more convenient hour, don't you think something in powder blue, beige or coral would be much better? One is not supposed to wear a formal gown before six. My best wishes to you.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, June 11

By GENEVIEVE KENNLE

UNDER a varied and vivid chain of highly stimulated astral forces this should prove to be a day of unexpected developments and unforgettable experiences. Every department of life will respond to an expansive urge to do things in "a big way," brilliant, buoyant and magnificent. High stakes are at issue and high-pressure tactics may be expected—possibly subtlety and shrewdness as factors. This may involve a complete reversal of programs, with change of associates, methods and objectives, and this holds some very definite hazards in dramatic reversals. But if speculation is to be indulged today, regard the ends may justify the means.

If N is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of great aims and lofty ambitions, with the energies and emotions expansive, high powered and indomitable. Although subject to shrewd acumen, crafty measures, the colder emotions of influential persons, both business and social. This applies to sudden changes of plans and surroundings, with speculation and chance offering either unforeseen defeats or highly gratifying achievements. It seems a matter of keen insight and sound decision in reaching cherished goals and personal qualifications.

A child born on this day should have splendid talents and ambitions, with energy, industry and dynamic ideas, combining to help build its fortune and enhance personal prestige, despite sudden stresses or reversals.

SCIENTIFIC FACTS ABOUT B.O.

The adult skin has 2 to 3 million sweat glands which act as a cooling system, giving off from 1 to 3 pints of perspiration daily. Ordinary odors are strong at first. If you let this sweat dry out on the body, under the arms, around the waist, it gets stale—decomposes . . . Then YOU have "B.O."

The sad part of "B.O." is that you may be offending others and never know it. Why not play safe with Lifebuoy? For Lifebuoy contains an exclusive deodorizing ingredient not found in any other leading toilet soap. Used in your daily bath, Lifebuoy stops "B.O.", fresh, creamy lather washes stale perspiration deposits away. And Lifebuoy pips you up, invigorates . . . assures personal cleanliness.

OUTDOOR SHRINE DEDICATED

Ilderton, Ont., June 10 —(CP) — Archbishop Antoniutti, Apostolic Delegate to Canada and Newfoundland dedicated Sunday an outdoor shrine to Our Lady of Perpetual Help on the grounds of St. Mary's Redemptorist College at nearby Augusta. More than 5,000 pilgrims from Ontario, Quebec and points in eastern Ontario and northern New York State attended the ceremony.

The shrine was preached by Rev. Alexander McNeil of St. Ann's Paris at Montreal. The gathering also was addressed briefly by Archbishop M. J. O'Brien of Kingston.

The shrine took three years to build.

FIGHT FOR LOVE

by Sylvia Taylor

INSTALMENT 3.

But Leslie belonged to a past she was discovering she would be too busy to see any one for a while. It would take time and effort to become accustomed to her new duties. Mrs. Wren not in her picture at present. There was too much she wanted to accomplish first.

The gay young Scotsman's became blanker as the girl fought with the desire to close her eyes. If she could sleep for just a few moments she would be all right, she told herself, and no sooner had the thought materialized than she had drifted off.

She was awakened by a kiss. Impressed lightly against her cheek. Star sat up in alarm, too frightened to protest.

"The sleeping beauty!" a man's voice said laughingly. "You were really too tempting to resist."

Il st ease and uncertain of the subject attitude to take, Star remained silent. He was tall and impeccably dressed but had a dissipated looking face and tired eyes.

"My name is Condon," he explained. "Ed Condon, partners, I'm one of dear Nina's dearest friends."

Even so, Star decided she didn't like him then she saw Nina standing in the writing-room doorway.

"Pay no attention to him, my dear! He is a gay deceiver. One of these past days he will fall in well to steer clear of."

Still startled, Star slipped to her feet to escape, but the man put his arm about Nina's shoulders and drew her from him, laughingly calling back, "Bye bye! I'll be seeing you later, Beautiful!"

"You must learn how to regulate a man without hurting his vanity," Nina said later after her guests had gone.

She had found Star in her own room with the door locked. Nina suspected that the interruption in the writing-room had been a shock but she had no idea that the girl was inhibited. "How can a man like that be a friend of Mrs. Lambert's?"

Nina curled herself down at on the bed puffing a cigarette in the amber holder.

"I have all sorts of friends," she said carelessly, not realizing that she was answering her companion's question. "People are my hobby. All kinds of people. Human nature in the rough, if you like. I do not consider myself too good for any one else. I make friends with anybody who interests me without regard to my manners or morals. I like to find out what people think, and why. And the amusing part of it is that when you know them you can always find a plausible explanation for the most trifling things they do. That doesn't mean, however, that I shall expect to follow their lead. They are much too inexperienced and too beautiful to have anything to do with a man like Ed Condon."

"Mrs. Epperson said I might sit in her writing-room," Star said, "and company downstairs." Star explained. "of course, I didn't hear him come in."

Nina laughed.

"My dear child, I am not blaming you. Merely making it clear that I do not expect you to follow my example in making friends with every one you meet. Now, if you wish to be the subject, telling you how to keep a man like Ed at arm's distance and still not offend him."

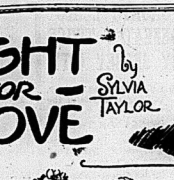
"If I don't intend to be friends with him, I don't see that it matters," she said.

"In this particular case perhaps it's good that you are granted. "But if you wish to become a poised, charming woman you must acquire the habit of keeping complete control of any situation. You must take anything to make you more beautiful. Beauty, my dear, is an invaluable asset. The line of least resistance is down river or dismay, nor even to lose one's dignity."

Seeing the girl's troubled expression, she added kindly, "I suppose it all sounds like Greek to you, doesn't it? Never mind. You'll pick up information as you go along but just remember this: You don't have to take anything from a man. Don't think they like you better for it. Men have no respect for the woman who is meek and humble. That's why so many nice girls never get anywhere. They think being virtuous is an end in itself. Well, it isn't. A good woman needs to be as much fiended as any her through as the other kind. But that's enough for today. Run downstairs. It's time for dinner."

Completely bewildered by the entire conversation, Star followed the plump, vivid figure into the dining-room. When there were no other guests, she was to eat with Nina. Otherwise she would have a tray in her own room. Star wished she might always eat there. It would mean to have to sit at the table with the older woman. She was afraid her limited knowledge would be shown up when it came to the correct fork or spoon. She discovered, however, that the meals were simple, and watching Nina made it impossible to make a mistake.

Nina was a most unusual person, different from any one Star had ever known. Impetuous and spontaneous, kind until she suspected dishonesty or unfairness, then making her accusations in a controlled rage without raising her voice.



FIGHT FOR LOVE-3

"Well, take her upstairs," Nina directed. "And Mrs. Epperson can bring her something cold to drink." The housekeeper snorted.

Mrs. Epperson had been right when she said their employer had "queer ideas". Nina had also told the truth when she said she liked all kinds of people. When she wasn't writing, she filled her house with them. Any one she happened to meet was sure to appear sooner or later. Nina's attitude to them all was exactly the same. Mrs. Epperson might turn up her nose, but the writer was unfailingly gracious to any one who entered her room. Star thought she was the most wonderful person in the world. Nina's word became law to her. Within the next few weeks went by she began to conform in her manners as well as her clothes. The salary Star received was small but having no other expense she was able to purchase a couple of cool pastel colored dresses to wear in the afternoons.

Her duties as a secretary were slight. There were occasional days when Nina acted like a writer and kept Star busy until late at night. Usually however the girl considered herself was confined to the hours between noon. Star seldom typed more than an hour or two after lunch, but more and more Nina depended on her for other things. To help Mrs. Epperson with the sandwiches or serve the cocktails or entertain some poor soul who had taken advantage of Nina's open invitation to "drop in any time" on the-wrong day.

It was marvelous training for the girl, who became almost as-proficient in making people comfortable as her employer. Leading them to talk about themselves, or the topics of the day which worked quite as well with Nina's more sophisticated friends as with the others. Star found that most of many people that first month that she would not have recognized any of them had she seen them on the street. But it was all fascinating and an interesting change that she had no time to worry.

Twice she telephoned her mother to see if she were forgiven but Mamie's phone was so cold Star decided not to risk a meeting. Which, no doubt, was the reason Mamie took the matter into her own hands.

It was a warm afternoon in late July when Star, who had been serving iced drinks to some of Nina's more distinguished friends, was called to the door by Mrs. Epperson.

"There's a woman out here who insists upon seeing you," she said ill.

Star suspected who it was. With a sinking heart she followed the housekeeper's rigid figure to the door where Mamie stood in the willing glory of an organdy dress. It was pink, her favorite color, and with it she wore a bread-brimmed hat heavy with flowers, which dipped and nodded as Mamie toased her head.

Star said slowly, "Hello, mother. Is anything wrong?"

"I want to talk to you," Mamie declared.

Star glanced at the housekeeper who guarded the door but she couldn't turn her mother away. After all she was not so differen in appearance from some of the characters Nina entertained.

"If you'll be quiet we can go up to my room," she suggested.

"Why should I be quiet?" bellowed Mamie.

"Sh!" warned Mrs. Epperson. "Mrs. Lambert has company."

"Don't you shush me!" advised Mamie, shouldering her side.

Nina appeared in the living-room door looking mildly amused.

"What's the trouble?" she inquired.

"It's my mother," Star explained. "Well, talk her upstairs," Nina directed. "And Mrs. Epperson can bring her something cold to drink."

The housekeeper snorted and Nina returned to her guests as the other two climbed the stairs.

MY FOR LOVE-4

"Now there's a lady for you," stated Mamie in a loud voice. "If you ask me, there's a real lady."

INSTALMENT 4.

Star led the way to the writing-room and Mamie gazed at the array of books, magazines and autographed photographs which served to fill the room.

"My, she must have a lot of friends!" she commented, sinking into the writer's swivel chair. "Who's this one?"

She was pointing to the single photograph on the desk container.

"That's her son," Star explained. "He's just graduated from the university."

"Does he live with her?" Mamie inquired.

Not just now. He's trying to get a position on New York. That's where he would like to live." Star's voice was reluctant. She did not like her mother to know any more about Mrs. Lambert than was absolutely necessary, but it would have seemed rude not to answer such a simple question. Mamie seemed to have calmed down since they had entered the room. She lifted the hat from her prematurely gray hair and Star thought with a jump in her throat that her mother really was a rather pretty. If she would only be more fastidious, she could be a good looking woman. But Mamie dressed for the grand effect with no regard for detail, always a blending of hers as "dramatic" and "colorful.

"Look like a nice kid," she continued with the picture of Nina's son still in her hand. "A little on the plump side like his mother, but good-looking in spite of it. Too bad he's leaving here."

"Why?" Star asked, remembering what Nina had told her about never losing one's temper no matter how great the provocation.

"You two might make a match of it," giggled Mamie fanning herself with a magazine. "Say, when is the old lady going to bring up those drinks? Or was that just an excuse to get rid of me?"

"I hear her coming now," Star answered ignoring the first part of her mother's remark. "Put the picture back where it was, Mother, please! Wouldn't you rather sit over here? I think it will be more comfortable."

"I'll sit where I am." Mamie decreed.

The housekeeper entered carrying two tall glasses on a tray. Mamie gulped from hers greedily as Star said. "Thank you, Mrs. Epperson."

The housekeeper glanced at her sympathetically and left the room.

When she had gone Star added, "You shouldn't have come here, Mother. You really shouldn't. If you wanted to see me I could have come home."

"You've been gone over a month," Mamie said significantly.

"I didn't think it mattered to you," the girl confessed as the hot color stained her cheeks.

"Of course it matters," Mamie declared reproachfully. "Aren't you my own flesh and blood?"

"Sometimes I wonder," Star said soberly.

"Well you weren't adopted, if that is what's bothering you."

The girl leaned forward eagerly hoping that since her mother was in a more reasonable mood than usual she might answer her never answered question:

"Who was my father?"

"His name was Bright. Donald Bright."

"But who was he? What did he do? Where did he live? Where is he now?"

"I've told you a hundred times," Mamie cried, exasperated. "He's dead now and what difference does it make what he used to do? He wasn't any good."

There was no use antagonizing her mother and causing another scene. But Star could vaguely remember her father discussing with his tailor the cost and kissing her as if he loved her. He was good to her and to her mother. Star could never believe otherwise.

"I need some money," Mamie confided. "Since you're working at such a swell job you ought to be willing to help me out a little now and then."

"I don't make very much," Star said truthfully.

"Neither does Joe," Mamie retorted. "Business has fallen off terribly this summer and considering all that he's done for you . . ."

So this was the reason for her call. "I might have known it," Star thought but she rose to get her pocketbook, saying, "I haven't much but you can have what there is."

She emptied it into Mamie's outstretched hand feeling more distressed than she had since she had started working. What was the use? How could she ever get ahead if Mamie started hounding her for money? Yet how could she refuse? It wasn't fair, but what could she do?

"It certainly isn't much," Mamie agreed. "But it will help. Well, I guess I'll be going. It's a nice soft place you've got for yourself, Star, but you'd have made more money if you had taken my advice."

Star smiled.

"You talk as if a job were just waiting for me."

"Maybe it was." her mother said. "Joe's got friends who could have helped plenty. He was just waiting for you to get out of school."

"I don't want the kind of job Joe's friends would offer me," Star declared.

"You might not be so sure of that," Mamie countered, putting on her hat, "if you knew who Joe's friends are."

"I don't want to know," Star told herself vehemently. The mysterious way her stepfather made his living was reason enough to suspect his friends. She accompanied her mother down the stairs, and this time Mamie departed peaceably. Star breathed a sigh of relief. The scene had shaken all the poise Nina had helped her acquire. Mamie's temper was so unlike Star that she could tell when she might have an outburst. She felt confused and unhappy, embarrassed and ashamed. Slipping back to her room, she lay down upon the bed and buried her flushed face in the cool, white pillows.

Twilight fell outside the drawn shades. Nina's guests left and presently there came the sound of footstep and a knock upon the door.

"Star, my dear, going moping up here alone?" Nina inquired cheerfully.

She thought she had never seen anything so beautiful as that white face with its cloud of dark hair.

"I was just tired," Star replied, but her voice betrayed her.

Nina sat down on the side of the bed.

"Listen, my dear, I'm awfully fond of you, and I'm going to give you some advice. I know how you feel. I heard what happened this afternoon, but don't let it get you down. No matter what your environment has been you can rise above it. You have beauty and brains. An unbeatable combination. Even in the short time you've been with me you've learned enough to be at ease anywhere. Associate with any one. Marry any one . . ."

Star cried gratefully, "Oh, Mrs. Lambert, do you really mean that? You're not saying it just because you're sorry for me?"

Nina laughed.

"Perhaps, if I looked as you I'd give up everything I've worked a lifetime to obtain. Sorry? For what? Get out of this bed and get busy. I'd like to finish that chapter before dinner."

x x x

The weeks that followed were the happiest Star had ever known. Working with Nina Lambert was an education in itself. Nina was also a delightful person. So warm-hearted and kind and generous that she considered had had a raw deal. Dramatic and humorous, appreciated and full of pep. She apparently endless vitality was a source of bewildering admiration to the girl. The writer could dictate for several hours, rush out for a late luncheon, then go back for tea, and after dinner return to her desk beginning afresh and keeping at it with an energy which was astonishing.

"Where were we?" Nina would say. "Oh, yes ,they had just met on the ship . . . Harry knew that at the moment their hands touched. . . . Come, Star, get busy."

She would sit in the swivel chair with an immeasurable cigarette in a piece the floor clad in the flamboyant costumes she donned the moment she left her bedroom. Star would do some one were waiting to see her, but Mrs. Lambert's concentration was the dress. On the street she was more conservatively dressed but in the privacy of her own home her love for color ran rampant. The girl was fascinated by the way in which she was always threatening to dye her hair, yet she was content to wear in tight-little ringlets all over her head. No wonder people were crazy about her. Star thought. She idolized everything Nina said or did. Her unconventionality, which to Mamie was a shocking lack of decency, was always being invited to lunches and dinners. The girl found herself a continual succession of celebrities as well as a number of interesting looking men who were always interested in love with her, yet even Star could see that nothing they said was personal. Appreciating "dear Nina" was one of the unwritten things to be done by her, laughing at her pointing out her inconsistencies. Yet with all of these she was a lovable character. Her contacts sparkled on the surface like champagne, but the depths pools which had no depth.

Under her generous tutelage Star blossomed into a new personality. Nina gave her tips on manners and advice which she took literally. Once Star read the books Nina suggested, and spent the afternoons at art exhibits and lectures Nina recommended, usually accompanying her choice by a ticket she herself would be unable to use.

Recognizing this as a period of preparation Star spent no time longing for the masculine companionship so desirable to the average girl of her age. Some time she hoped to be married and have a home and children, but she was too disinterested in success accepting but the best. Obedient to Nina's shrewd advice, she discouraged the flirtatious advances of the men who came to the house. Star learned to smile and be friendly without being too familiar or flippant. She managed to steer a safe middle course during the time nothing said seriously and permitted no liberties, yet did not offend them.

Orthopic Miracle

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

There are about two and a half million cross-eyed persons in Canada.

Your sympathy and mine go out to the cross-eyed child. Needlessly he bears a heavy burden of self-consciousness.

Since one's eyes are a large part of one's personality, the cross-eyed child is reminded of his handicap every time a person, especially a stranger, comes into his presence. Who can easily keep his eyes off the cross-eyed child? What is le worse, the longer the eyes have been crossed, the less easily they are corrected. Besides the eye out of focus tends to lose its sight eventually; the cross-eyed child becomes a one-eyed child.

Fortunately, eyes can be corrected and usually without surgical operation.

Some of my readers will remember when they used to entertain their friends with the stereoptical views. A simple device, essentially a stereoscope is used, by surgeons now for exercising the crossed-eye. As with the stereoscope for amusement, a different picture faces each eye, say the picture of a bird and a cage. As the eyes are crossed child looking through this stereoscope, see the bird and the cage apart. With effort, after some exercise by the child, the two pictures come closer and closer together until at last they are one—the bird in the cage.

Curse Possible

Then with regular exercises of this sort a few times a week for several months, the eyes look may have been trained to operate as one when the cross-eyed child, wonderful to relate, will have normal eyes—cured.

Treatment is called orthopics. Johns Hopkins began the practice of orthopics in 1920. The year later the first eye clinic in the United States was established solely to orthopics began at the Fifth Avenue Hospital, N. Y.

Many a cross-eyed child not receiving proper medical care, could do much for his later happiness by inducing his parents to take him to the proper clinic or eye specialist; or, if his parents can't afford to pay for such care, to get in touch with an organization you belong to would provide the funds for treatment.

In some cases surgery is necessary and a competent eye surgical specialist is as safe as operation for adenoids.

Early Affliction

The period when cross-eyedness is the most likely to threaten the ages of six months and six years, when children's eyes are most frequent. It is often following: for each case as measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, chicken pox and measles that the defect may appear. Therefore, every whose child is convalescing from such diseases will do well to watch the child's eyes by reading, stringing beads, looking at pictures. Any parent entertains him with materials not requiring eye action and fixation of both eyes on objects, drawing and coloring large figures, playing phonograph records, and reading of stories to him.

Many children, perhaps are bowed-legs as handicaps, especially for the girl whose legs should have graceful, richly rich conditions, resulting from the lack of adequate lunch spent daily in the sunshine and its nearest substitute, cod liver oil, or other fish liver oils. Only the highly trained medical expert should be sought by parents who hope to correct bowleggedness in the child.

Something You Ate, No Doubt

By HELEN FOLLETT

If your complexion flares up, goes blotchy and has a tantrum—don't blame cosmetics. It's not cosmetics you are using. They may be all right. It's not your powder, something your tummy doesn't like, and your diet is letting up on the sympathy.

When there is the slightest sign of trouble with your face look ugly, the common sense step is to consult a doctor that does not specialize in diseases of the skin and scalp. Don't fool around with any home remedies or self-appointed conditions. The average woman's face needs only attention to the last resort which seems silly to consider that doctor's fee is charged for a visit to a doctor is no more than many a woman will spend for a box of powder, half as much as she spends for a bottle of perfume. Penny wise and pound foolish.

Check Them Early

There are many skin disorders that are checked if taken in the early stages but which prove stubborn if permitted to get a foothold. Many of them are contagious; other members of the family may become infected. Impetigo is in this class, a disease frequently found among school children. If there is a small blemish that doesn't look like any you have seen before, toddle to the doc and find out all about it.

Blackheads, rounded at the ends, should be massaged once a day. Acne, with a heavy crust, begin thumming at the base, continue along to the nail, point and it alone is the cure. We won't promise that there will be a change in a hurry but massage has its good points and something can be accomplished if one is faithful and persistent.

The finger nails should be worn fairly long, filed to a neat oval outline, tinted, their full length, and the nail beds soon covered with the ruby glow. That design detracts from width.

CARDS BEATEN TWICE

St. Louis Now Fifteen Games Behind Leaders as Southworth Takes Over

(By Bill White Associated Press Sports Writer)

Safest bet of the week: That Billy Southworth of St. Louis Cardinals will get a hatful of headaches before he finds a handful of happiness in his return as a Major League Manager.

Perhaps he was wise to defer his arrival in St. Louis until after the week-end doings were over, for the Cards won a game the day after Ray Blades was deposed, then lapsed again with two shellacking by New York Saturday and Sunday. Yesterday's losses by 11-5 and 11 innings and 7-6 in the nightcap left them an even 15 games away from the league-leading Cincinnati Reds and just one ahead of the last-place Boston Bees.

The "Jints," chasing rapidly on the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers, have Stu Martin's error in the 11th to thank for that first victory and their potent punch at the plate to thank for the other one. Martin's wild heave ruined the opener after Johnny Mize had tied it by blasting his 16th homer with two out and two on base in the ninth.

Failed in Desperate Bid

The Dodgers, making a desperate bid for the National League lead, failed in a doubleheader attempt with the Reds before a near-record Cincinnati crowd of 34,900. Tex Carleton spun a fine five-hitter to give the Brooks a 5-1 victory but a similar effort by Junior Thompson and heavy hitting by Bill Werber and Billy Myers gave Cincinnati the nightcap, 6-2, and left the clubs a game apart.

Meanwhile Chicago Cubs were pounding Boston pitchers for 27 hits and a pair of victories, 7-1 and 15-8 with most of the plaudits going to Larry French for his six-hitter in the opener and Paul Cavarretta for four blows in the second game.

Hugh Mulcahy broke a six-game losing streak for the Phillies by pitching a five-hitter for the 2-1 victory over Pittsburgh. But the Pirates bounced back to whack out 13 hits off Ike Pearson and Cy Hanton for the 11-3 triumph. Manager Brown's grand relief hurling pulled the Bucks out of trouble in the second game.

Yanks Win on Homers

The American League wasn't quite as active. The best of four games set the New York Yankees' surging 4-3 victory over Cleveland Indians. The Yanks got only six hits off Lefty Al Smith, who had beaten them twice, but three were homers. Charley Dahlgren, Joe DiMaggio and George Selkirk that accounted for all the Yankee scoring. They also kept the Tribe from taking first place from Boston, whose game with Detroit was rained out.

Washington Senators lost a heart-breaker when they scored three runs to tie the White Sox, only to lose in the 11th, 4-3. Luke Appling scored the winning run on Eric McNair's long fly.

In the only doubleheader, St. Louis Browns hammered and removed the Athletics into the league cellar. They won the first game, 8-7 on a 10th inning four bagger by Walter Judnich and the second 4-2 on homers by Ray Cullenbine and Johnny Berardino.

In Saturday's American League games, Detroit defeated Boston 4-2; Cleveland shut out the Yankees 3-0 and Chicago triumphed over Washington 12-6. St. Louis whipped the Athletics 15-1. In the National the Giants won both ends of a doubleheader with St. Louis, 4-3 and 5-2. Chicago played a 2-1 victory over Boston. The pirates edged out a 6-5 triumph over the Phils and the Reds ran up one of the highest scores of the season, 22-2, against the Dodgers.

LAWSON LITTLE DEFEATS SARAZEN IN GOLF PLAYOFF

Wins Open Golf Crown at Cleveland in Most Hectic Tourney for Years

SIX DISQUALIFIED

Barred from Having Scores Counted Because of Starting on Final Round Too Soon

Cleveland, June 10—(AP)—There was only one question remaining unanswered during Lawson Little's rank as one of the great golfers of the day, his claim to greater right to a place in the game's hall of fame, and the 44th National Open championship's rating as the most dramatic and hectic in the event's history.

The 30-year-old Little, professional at Bretton Woods, N.H., crowned the Open crown by virtue of a 70-73 playoff victory yesterday over the doughty Sarazen at Canterbury Golf Club. Little's defeat of the former veteran ace twice had won the event, rebuffed those who had claimed that Little, winner of the American and British Amateurs in 1934 and 1935, never would reach the top as a medal play star.

But back of Little's playoff victory lay a Saturday which will be long remembered in the club-house annals of possessor of a 287 score and a message from tournament officials that he had been disqualified for starting ahead of schedule.

The youth was Ed (Porky) Oliver of Horsell, N.Y. He had a fine one under-par 71 on his final round, thrown out as he and three other meritorious competitors were disqualified. They were Lee Mackey and Gibson, first and last Canadian, Chicago; Claude Harmon, Ithaca, Ill.; J. Hamton, Little Rock, Ark., and Johnny Bulla, Denver.

Little, meanwhile, was battling gamely to a fourth round 73, going over par on the 18th hole to take what appeared to be a comfortable edge for the championship. Then Sarazen started his remarkable finish.

He had birdies at numbers 11 and 12 holes to go par and turned in that point in he needed par to tie. He still had even par playing the 18th before the treacherous seventeenth hole almost robbed him of his great moment. In the rough to the right on the tee shot, he pitched 30 feet past the pin. Without a moment's hesitation he rammed it home and as it was he was easy for the game little veteran.

Dizzy Dean Gives Tulsa Ball Fans Story Book Finish

Tulsa, June 10—(AP)— They gave old Dizzy Dean a rousing welcome home coming to the Texas League and he gave Tulsa fans a story book finish, a three-run winning run.

The one-time fireballer coaxed his lame right arm with sidewise pitching yesterday but he was back straightaway in the pinch to lick the Fort Worth Cats 5 to 4.

Two pitches were out and the score was tied when Jerome Herman singled in the ninth inning. Two successive errors moved him to second and he won for the clamoring, cheering crowd of about 7,500.

It was hot and sticky the kind of weather that hopes will cure his wing and his major league hope. He sidestepped a full nine innings for the first time, allowing six hits including two home runs.

"How does your arm feel?" was the all-important question.

"Pretty good," said the sweat-wet Dean. "It got a little tired but it felt right for six or seven innings.

His pitches weren't those of his heyday but neither were they "nothing" balls. He showed enough speed than had been expected, edged the corners inside and out and kept good control all the way.

His only walk was intentional. He struck out four.

TORONTO LEAFS DEFEATED TWICE BY JERSEY CITY

First Game Goes 18 Innings, the Longest Tussle of the Season

WINGS WIN TWO

Estil Crabtree, New Playing-Manager, Wins First Game With Homer

(By the Associated Press)

It appears that a change of managers won't interfere with Rochester Red Wings' progress in the International League pennant race —at least as long as Estil Crabtree can add his personal example to his other duties as leader.

Crabtree was made player-manager of the Red Birds after Billy Southworth was promoted to the managership of St. Louis Cardinals. His first performance in that role—or perhaps a gesture of farewell to Southworth, who remained until after yesterday's tilt—was to blast a game-winning home run against Syracuse Stars, which continued two hits and one score to a second victory.

The Red Birds won the opener, 2-1, when Crabtree's ninth-inning homer broke up a pitching duel between Mike Ryba and Jack Tising. Charlie Wagner allowed three more hits ball for the Birds in the nightcap but let one run score on a single, pitch and wild throw. Gene Hasson's homer so Pireman John Berly finally had to retire.

18 Innings at Jersey City

The Jersey Giants had to go 18 innings to take the first game from the cellar-dwelling Toronto Leafs, 5-4, but they went on to polish off Tony Lazzeri's team 2-0 in only five innings of the afterpiece. Alex Kampouris, Jersey City MacRoss, relief pitchers, were the leading performers in the first game, longest so far this season. They waged a scoreless duel from the 10th to the 18th, when Johnny Dickshot singled and scored on Bruce Dudley's second. Kampouri gave only three hits in nine innings. Chet Laabs' double paved the way for the first time since he joined the Little Giants, pitched a neat relief hitter to Phil Marchildon in the nightcap.

Baltimore slugged out 22 hits and 24 runs, including five homers, to beat Buffalo Bisons 13-6 and 12-6.

Montreal Wins Two

Kemp Wicker, Montreal right-hander, outpitched George Washburn to give the Royals a 6-3 victory over Newark in their first clash when Jimmy Ripple's double and Ed Isaac's single paved the winning run. George Barley hurled eight-hit relief and Montreal won the second game 6-2.

Rochester and Syracuse split a doubleheader Saturday, 8-6 and 8-7, while Buffalo and Baltimore also broke even in the twin bill. Jersey City won the game 5-3 after dropping the first, 15-13. Toronto's surprise of the crew pinned the unexpected 4-0 tag on Jersey City Leafs. Syracuse 10-7 in a night game.

Under his stern scrap, Godoy trasellers 15 rounds with the champ and introduced the "Godoy Crouch" which is the equivalent of sitting within a few inches of the canvas.

If a man threw the world's heavyweight wrestling champion (if there is such a being in these times) and then turned around and knocked out Joe Louis for good measure, he would not only get prominent newspaper publicity, but his fortune would be made. However, such glory went unrewarded, insofar as publicity and monetary gain went, once. In the early 90's, of the last century Hugh MacDonald's son of New Brunswick, was attending Queens University and later graduated. Just recently Dr. MacDonald died in his native town, near St. John, N. B, and his passing brought out the fact that the late Dr. Donald had beaten the world's champion boxer and wrestler and without much publicity connected with such a feat.

While he was a medical student at Queens University a roving wrestler came to Kingston, where he offered to take on all comers. Donald, a husky youngster, volunteered to meet the challenger and in the surprise of the crowd pinned the professional in 19 time. Afterwards it was revealed that the wrestler concerned was none other than Tom Lynch, hailed as the world's champion matman of his day. Just before graduating the next spring young MacDonald left Canada to broaden his business. One day he walked into a cafe frequented by the great John L. Sullivan, then world's heavyweight boxing champion. As the story goes the burly Sullivan picked on the Canadian youth and a fight started. MacDonald not recognizing his adversary and being loss, he just two well-timed punches MacDonald had the great "John L." on the floor and in his frenzy had to come to his rescue and carried him into a nearby corner where he recognized, while young MacDonald was told to "behave." So believe it or not and it's one for Ripley—a Canadian medical student went and defeated the world's heavyweight boxing and wrestling champion without realizing he was in such alleged dangerous company.

Those playing together in the Pittsburgh lineup for the fourteenth consecutive year, Paul and Lloyd Waner hold the all-time endurance record for a big league brotherhood. Big Poison broke into the loop in 1926 and Little Poison came along the next year.

The Waners made their first appearance in the Polo outfield this season in the April 25 game at Forbes Field, St. Louis.

Of all the other brother acts, the closest approach to the Waner record is that of the Sewells — Joe and Luke, who were on Cleveland's roster from 1921 to 1930. The Farrells, Wes and Rick were together for some four and a half years on Boston and Washington. The Deans, Dizzy and Paul, had a four-year hitch with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Back in the old days the Wrights, Harry and George, were seen with the original Cincinnati Redstockings in 1868 and 1870, moving to Boston in 1871, but parted company after the 1875 season, when George left the Boston club to manage Providence and Harry continued as Boston's manager. Then George, one of the rare ones, another team of big league tacticians — brothers managing rival teams in the same major league. Today there are but two DiMaggio brothers playing in the major leagues and since Dom Dimaggio was yet see three of these brothers under the "big tent" of baseball, which, I think, bears quality "Pepsa" DiMaggio as the father of big league baseball.

Up three over the first nine holes Lawson Little, the former British and American open golf champion, hammered home to a second United States open golf title at Cleveland yesterday, defeating Gene Sarazen three up in an 18-hole play-off. Sarazen and Little were tied at 287 at the end of the tournament, as was Ed Oliver, but the latter was deprived of his opportunity through some minor technicality. However, it is generally conceded that Little would have won on his day's play regardless, as he is the only American open this year. Little rode the hot streak on the two holes and Sarazen just couldn't shake down that three shot lead. Little is the sixth player to win both the American amateur and open titles.

SPORT SPICE — After failing in the Preakness by a nose and the Withers, Col. Bradley's Bimelech, winner of the Preakness, turned on the steam and in the last big stake for three-year-olds Saturday when "Big Red" won the Belmont Stakes. . . . He beat Johnstown and Fairbrook and by him, Carydon and Gallahadion. . . . The Yankees' powerhouse machine of Selkirk, Selkirk, Dahlgren and DiMaggio hit homers the first time as they beat the Indians 4-3 yesterday. . . . Cubans Mel and Peterboro not in their first Inter-city ball games played at the Maple Leaf Stadium last night. . . . Manager Frankie Frisch put himself a $50.00 fine and suspension for batting with Umpire Campbell during the ball-game. . . . After all that's about the only way the Pirates' manager or even his team, can crash the headlines these days.

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press

Johnny Rigney, White Sox—Relieved Ted Lyons in the ninth and allowed only two hits in three innings to beat Senators 4-3 in 11 innings.

Babe Dahlgren, Joe DiMaggio and George Selkirk, Yankees — Their homers accounted for all the Yank runs in 4-3 triumph over Cleveland.

Mace Brown, Pirates and Hugh Mulcahy, Phils—Former's fine relief hurling gave Pirates nightcap victory over Phils. Mulcahy in first with seven-hit performance.

Frank Demaree, Cubs—Homered in six runs as Giants won two from St. Louis.

AT THE BELLE

"Buck Benny Rides Again"

A saga of the sagebrush that's more wacky than wild galloped happily into the Belle theatre over the week-end to reveal Jack Benny, the klooycie kid, as the only cowboy in the world with a valet—and the valet none other than the inimitable Rochester. The title of the lyrical rodeo of fun is "Buck Benny Rides Again."

Practically the entire crew of Benny's justly famous radio program have turned up for the picture, among the cow punchers and the over-stuffed cactus, Andy Devine, Phil Harris, Dennis Day are all present and excellent in their specialties while there is Virginia Dale, Lillian Cornell and the Abbott dancers ably and appealingly augment the feminine contingent.

It was a stroke of genius to pose Benny as the cowboy hero of the wide open spaces, in the face of the public's known preference for horses and fresh air. Rochester under the direction his is another sight to see.

"Buck Benny Rides Again" will be received with an interesting newsreel, a funny comicolor cartoon, and an added short featuring actress film in technicolor.

"Four Daughters and Ross"

True to its reputation for trailblazing, Warner Bros. have given us "Four Daughters and Ross." In their newest production, third in their fall hit parade, they have a story which will be presented next at the Belle theatre, which is a combination of drama, pathos and comedy which, if anything, surpasses the best blending of life.

Heading the cast is the lovely Irish actress, Geraldine Fitzgerald who became famous overnight for her performance in "Dark Victory" and "Wuthering Heights" Jeffrey Lynn and Dick Foran both of whom are favored fame in "Four Daughters," and Gladys George, stage and screen star.

An important difference between "Four Daughters" and most other film dramas is that it concerns itself with the lives of mothers. This was accomplished by making the story unfold individually during a few short days and skillfully weaving them all together into a solid dramatic pattern.

"French Without Tears"

Dedicated to those people that there is nothing more dangerous than a little knowledge of French comes a new comedy, "French Without Tears" which opens a two day engagement feature attraction proved to be definitely one of the laugh hits of the current season, and ranks with the last strip of film.

The picture will always be funny to watch a woman-proof bachelor turns to the gentle sex and for "Tears" tackles the subject with gusto and a smooth approach, and many unexpected laughs, gives so much fun to the age-old situation, that we view it with astonishment.

The cast deserves much of the credit for the entertainment value in "French Without Tears." Ray Milland is given a very favorite light-comedy hero; he is teamed with Ellen Drew, Raymond Walburn, "Find" who climbed from the extra ranks to sizable roles in a few years, and who now justifies her success by turning in an outstanding performance as a comedienne.

The Belle news of the hour completes the program.

AT THE CAPITOL

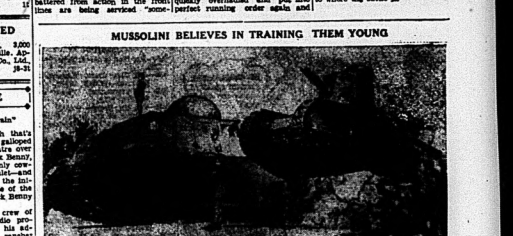
"THREE CHEERS FOR THE IRISH"

They always argue that if there is any subconscious watchword in Hollywood it is the "continuation".

Well, true, it is a land of countless anachronisms. Kids in their teens have often played gray-bearded old-timers; Humphrey Bogart is the most vicious killer-rat in the underworld gallery; Mickey Rooney, ace of Hollywood's most 'regular guys'. They never photograph a rainy scene outdoors even when it's pouring in buckets—they are clanking their cup back to the studio to be overhauled and put into shape for the next rainy order again and

These French tanks, mudded and battered from action in "France." The tanks are to where the battle is.

MUSSOLINI BELIEVES IN TRAINING THEM YOUNG



Two small Italian boys—of an age when American boys are just getting the knack of how to shoot marbles—are shown undergoing military training in a distinctly Italian atmosphere. These boys are members of the Balilla, Fascist youth organization.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was going to the grocer store for ma and I met Puds Skinkin going there for his mother, and I said I have to be extr careful because I've got this 5 dollar bill to bring home the change of.

O, that's funny I've got one too, I have to bring home more than 4 dollers charge, Puds said.

Wich just then we started to go passed Mary Watkins and Maud Jonson sitting on Maud Jonsons front step, and me and Puds started to both hop on one foot for no special reason, and Mary Watkins said, O my, here come the clowns aren't they funny?

Being scurvaric, and Maud Jonson said, See hee. I can hardly keep from laughing.

If you're talking about us we cant even hear you, I said, and Puds said If you want to know the truth we dont even know you're sitting there.

Being 2 good answers, and on our way home from the store we had a idea and we went around the alley first and both stuck our groceries in the back way and came around front and Mary Watkins and Maud Jonson were still there and we stood in front of them rattling the change in our pockets and dropping dollar bills on the payment axidently on

Fighting Fifth Column

Dr. Alfred Baldomir, president of Uruguay, is reported to have requested the aid of the United States in combating Nazi fifth column activities in the South American republic. Within the last few weeks there have been sensational revelations of Nazi activity in Uruguay. Plans are said to have been uncovered revealing Nazi designs on strategic centres, such as airfields, river ports and railroad junctions. There have been several arrests. Last week the U.S.S. Quincy, one of United States latest cruisers, went south on a "good-will mission."

ALLIED COMMANDER

A recent photo of General Eugene Mittlehauser, of France, who has taken command of the Allied armies in the Near East to succeed General Maxime Weygand, now conducting the war on the western front against Germany. General Mittlehauser conferred with the Turkish general staff and Turkish President Ismet Inonu on taking over his command it was learned. Gen. Mittlehauser's most recent command was in the Norwegian campaign, when he headed the French Expeditionary Force.

purpose and picking them up again, me saying, Boy, that was hard work we did for this money, but 5 dollers apiece is worth it, what shall we do with it, Puds? and Puds saying, O I dont know, maybe we'll treat people to things, and everything.

Wich just then ma and Pud's mother started to call us at the same time from our front doors and ask us about their change, and I quick said, My mother wants to talk to me about investing this money, and Puds said, That's funny, that's just what mine wants, but I still think I'll invest it in candy and stuff.

And we hurry up ran home, Mary Watkins and Maud Jonson making loud sounds after us like 2 people that had their doubts.
